Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking about different subjects with Sid Hunt and Glasses Magee, and Sid said, Hay, we haven't got up a new club for a heck of a while. Let's get up a club called The Champeen Athaleets, and nobody can be a member until they prove they're a champeen by doing something better than anybody elts can do it, he said.

Okay, I'm the champeen jumper, I said. I can do the street in 5 jumps, I said.

And I did it to prove it, and Sid and Glasses tried, and it took them each 6, making me the champeen, and just then who butted in but Maggie Jonsin, saying, If you want to see some real jumping, watch me.

Her always claiming she can do everything better than anybody elts. Which she genrelly actually can, making it werse, and she jumped the street in 4 jumps, saying, How many did you guys do it in?

Aw, how do ye know? I said. We weren't trying serious, we were just practicing, I said. Come on, fellows, let's go, I said.

Which we did, going and sitting on Sid's frunt steps, and Sid said, I'm the champeen runner, and I'll prove it. I'll go in and get our kitchin alarm clock and we'll time each other running around the block, he said.

Which just then who butted in again but Maggie Jonsin, saying, Oh, you're going to see who can go around the block the fastest, heh? I'll get in it, let's start, she said, and Sid said, Aw, we didn't say rite away, did we? It was just an idea, we didn't say when, he said.

Well whenever you do it, I'll beet you, Maggie said.

And she kept on going, and we posponed the rest of the champeenships and didn't do anything elts about the club except change its name from The Champeen Athaleets to The Boys Champeen Athaleets.

Buna, Synthetic Rubber, Which Hitler Hoped to Win War for Germany, Now is News

By HEINZ WEISSENBERGER

Recklinghausen, Ruhr, Oct. 24 (Reuters) —Buna, the synthetic rubber which Hitler hoped would help him win the war, is back in the news again.

The allies, who stopped production in Qortn are discussing with west German producers whether permission to produce it shall be restored. When news of the talks leaked out, the allies said that the Germans had taken the initiative. The Germans, on the other hand, said the Americans had told them to ask for the permit.

Joseph Taylor, United States industry control official at Weisbaden, near Frankfurt, summed it up diplomatically in the phrase "it was a 50-50 initiative."

British authorities, scapegoats in so many affairs of this kind, were again allegedly being "difficult" over something the Americans were so willing to concede to the Germans.

One Plant Spared

Dr. Paul Baumann, 53-year-old director of the former I. G. Farben chemical works at Huels, the only west German works still capable of making buna, accused British authorities of deliberately obstructing the talks.

Only one of the original eight buna processing plants at Huels was spared from dismantling. The huge works, with its red-brick halls, batteries of tanks and cylinders and hundreds of miles of Germany's wartime rubber demand.

Hitler's main works, with an annual production of 70,000 tons, were at Schkopau, near Hall in the Soviet zone. Today, it is a Soviet state-owned corporation.

Baumann claims that Huels production could be started three months after permission is given.

The Huels works, built in 1938 on the northern fringe of the Ruhr, now employ 7,500 workers in the production of soap, insecticides, disinfectants and other chemicals.

I. G. Farben experts estimate that the Huels plants could produce about 7,000 tons of buna a year— "a mere trifle" Baumann said, "compared with the American plants on the Mississippi in Louisiana, which could produce about half of the world's natural rubber output (1948: 1,500,000 tons)."

WILY PHEASANT

Luther, Mich., Oct. 24 — (AP) — A wily pheasant on the farm of Robert C. Smith apparently knows the bird hunting season is on. The pheasant has taken up residence with a flock of chickens, adopting the old strategy: "There's no one here but us chickens."

Two-Party System Will Return Drew's Prediction

Saskatoon, Oct. 24 (CP) —Return to the two-party system was predicted last night by George Drew, national leader of the progressive Conservative party.

He said there has been "a noticeable trend in by-elections of the past few months away from the Socialist party of Canada."

"I think modern history demonstrates very clearly that democracy works much better under the historic two-party system than it does in those countries where there are a multitude of parties which so divide the votes that no one party has the power to form a government."

The Progressive Conservative party failed to win the recent by-election in the pro-Labor Ontario seat of Welland, Mr. Drew said, but the party's showing in proportion to the total vote was a distinct gain. Proportionately the Liberals lost considerable ground in dropping 4,000 votes since the last election, but the most significant change occurred in the CCF vote.

There, Mr. Drew said, the drop was from 11,000 to 6,000. He added that the same trend was noticeable in every federal by-election since the last general election.

MELROSE

Melrose — A group of ladies met at the home of Mrs. Russell Macfarlane on Thursday afternoon to cut out the materials for aprons, dresses etc. for the garments for the bazaar next month.

Mrs. Arthur Fleming and Mrs. Jean Miller and Marcia of Madoc spent the weekend with their sister, Mrs. Grant McLaren.

Friends will be sorry to hear Mrs. Charles Bates is a patient in the Belleville Hospital. A speedy recovery is hoped for her.

Rev. L. Scott spent the Sunday dinner hour with the Misses McLaren. Other dinner guests were Mrs. A. W. McLaren, Miss Dukelow, Mr. Charles Bates, Sr., Charles, Jr., Ronnie and Betty.

Mr. Frank Farrell and friend from Rochester spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Farrell.

Messrs. Gerrard Brennan and William English have been taking their trial runs on various trains, contemplating becoming permanent employees on the railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stewart of Belleville spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. William McMechan.

Mrs. Newton Demill is still a patient in Belleville Hospital. Little Ronnie Demill is staying with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cross.

Mrs. Stirton Badgley was a recent guest of Misses Agnes and Mary McLaren.

Jack Fair left the Belleville Hospital early last week and will spend a time with his mother in Toronto.

Little Heather Sexsmith is gradually recovering at her home from the accident she had which necessitated a week or more in the hospital.

SHIPS TIED UP

Valparaiso, Chile, Oct. 24 (AP) —A four-day strike of port workers that tied up some 20 ships here ended yesterday after President Gabriel Gonzales Videla intervened personally. Settlement terms were not disclosed. The port workers had requested social security benefits.

Fall Pasture Excellent

Toronto, Oct. 24 (CP) — Cattle are making better than average gains on excellent fall pasture due to continued mild fall weather in most of southern Ontario, the agriculture department said today in its weekly crop report.

Western Ontario reports a heavy feed crop harvested and fall wheat and rye making good growth. Fall plowing is well advanced.

Silo filling is common on most farms in southern Ontario

Govt. Changes Regulations For Retirement Pay

Ottawa, Oct. 24 — (CP)—Federal civil servants, reaching retirement age or retiring voluntarily after Nov. 1, will be able to choose between a retirement leave and a lump-sum gratuity, it was learned Monday.

The government has changed the regulations under which civil servants were given leave on retirement. The length of the leave, during which they collected their regular salary, depended on the length of service. A maximum leave of six months was granted employees with service of 15 years or more.

Under new regulation the employees will be able to take the retirement leave or a lump - sum gratuity. The amount of the gratuity will vary according to salary and years of service.

The new regulation will apply to persons 65 and over, whose retirement is authorized and to persons 60 and over who apply for voluntary retirement.

TWEED

Tweed—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Conan, Masonville, Que., were weekend visitors with Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco, at the parsonage.

Mrs. Edna Huntley, London, Ont., is visiting with her sister, Miss Marjory Frost, and her aunt Miss Annie Frost.

Mrs. S. B. McGee visited with her sister, Mrs. Fletcher, in Belleville, over the weekend.

Mrs. Adam Gillespie and her daughter, Mrs. Fisher, of Peterborough have been visiting at the home of the former's sister, Mrs. W. E. Badgley and Mr. Badgley.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Atton, Margaret and Robert left early Monday morning for their winter home in West Palm Beach, Ravlera, Fla., they will be spending the next six months there.

Mrs. Ruth Crawford, London, Ont., visited with her brother, Mr. Russell Terry over the weekend.

Mr. Roy Terry and Mrs. Mary Wright of Toronto, attended the funeral on Saturday of the late Mrs. Russell Terry.

Bill Countryman has returned to his home where he is convalescing after undergoing an operation in Belleville General Hospital.

Miss Ila Blakely has return to Toronto after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Blakely, in town.

Mr. George Hall, Leaside spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall. George is an inspector in the large frigidaire plant, at Leaside.

Miss Helen Mouck has returned to Toronto following a five-week trip to the British Isles.

The many friends of Inspector A. W. McGuire will be pleased to know that he is getting along well at the General Hospital, at Belleville after his recent operation.

Among those attending the Warden's banquet given by Clarke Rollins at Bancroft last Wednesday night were, ex-Warden S. A. McCarey, Reeve T. C. Graham, C. Edward Way, Reeve Harry M. Coulter and Deputy Reeve Bernard Hunt of Hungerford, and Reeve Carman Kleinsteuber of Elzevir township.

Dorothy and Patricia Quinn returned home last week after a two-month tour of Europe. The girls were thrilled with the sights of the old world, the war ruins of Germany, the Royal palaces in many countries, and the 20-minute interview with the Holy Father will always be remembered by th girls.

On Saturday afternoon the old council chamber's building went under the auctioneer's hammer, and the highest bid offered did not quite reach a reserve bid, but a sale will finally be settled, and one of the oldest landmarks in Tweed will likely be dismantled to make room for a more modern business block in Tweed.

TRUMAN CALLS

"Second, the plan must be based on unanimous agreement. A majority of nations is not enough. No plan of disarmament can work unless it includes every nation having substantial armed forces. One-sided disarmament is a sure invitation to aggression.

"Third, the plan must be foolproof. Paper promises are not enough. Disarmament must be based on safeguards which will insure the compliance of all nations. The safeguards must be adequate to give immediate warning of any threatened violation. Disarmament must be policed continuously and thoroughly. It must be founded upon free and open interchange of information across national borders."

Truman conceded that the possibility of attaining that goal "appears distant today," but he declared, "we must never stop trying."

"For its attainment would release immense resources for the good of all mankind. It would free the nations to devote more of their energies to wiping out poverty, hunger and injustice."

Have Greater Program

"If real disarmament were achieved the nations of the world acting through the United Nations could join in a greatly enlarged program of mutual aid. As the cost of maintaining armament decreased, every nation could greatly increase its contribution to advancing human welfare. All of us could then pool even greater resources to support the United Nations in its war against want.

"In this way, our armament would be transformed into foods medicine, tools for use in underdeveloped areas, and into other aids for human advancement . . . Thus, we could give real meaning to the old promise that swords shall be beaten into plowshares, and that nations shall not learn war any more."

He made no reference to Russia's opposition to the U.N. police action in Korea or to its attempt to tag the United States as the aggressor there.

As a result of the Korean victory, Truman said, the people of the world rely on the U.N. (A) to help them improve their living conditions and (B) "to fulfill the profound longing for peace."

"Throughout the world today, men are seeking a better life. They want to be freed from the bondage and injustice of the past. They want to work out their own destinies. These aspirations of mankind can be met—met with conflict and bloodshed—by international co-operation through the United Nations."

ARRIVES HOME

Prague, Oct. 24 — (AP)—Karal Laitner, former editor of the New York Czech language newspaper Newyorkse Listy, has arrived here with his family, the Czechoslovak News Agency said yesterday. Laitner was quoted as having said he had come back after 43 years because he could not live in a "war-mongering" atmosphere and because he wanted to use his experience in the "constructive work" going on in Czechoslovakia.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

[illegible] the secret joke that is [illegible] the corners of your [illegible] Miss Phillips? Share it. The chaotic world needs laughter. No?" Jaffray set down the empty cup. "Gene, excuse us, I have a message from Ken Phillips for his sister. Finish your coffee, Fran, and we'll adjourn to the terrace."

"Is it so private you can't tell it here, Myles? I've hardly spoken to you tonight." Gene Sargent's tone was aggrieved.

"It is."

"I hope the message isn't as solemn as your voice. Run along, you two, make it snappy. We'll have some Oklahoma when the men come from the dining room. Don't look so scared Fran, Myles won't eat you."

"Don't be too sure of that, Gene." He laughed and gnashed his strong white teeth. "I crunch the bones of bad little girls, me, I'm the demon trustee."

"What do you mean, trustee," Myles?" The sharpness of Gene Sargent's eyes was repeated in her voice.

"Hasn't Fran told you that her brother appointed me trustee of Rebecca Harding's estate in his place?"

"She has not." Her face was white with anger. "Why the secrecy Fran? Why didn't you tell me when I—I was advising you a few minutes ago?"

"Because, believe it or not, I kept pushing it out of my mind. I think the change unnecessary."

"And on that note we will adjourn for our talk fest," Jaffray declared smoothly. "Come one, Miss Phillips, unless you want to bring your objection to me out in the open and discuss it here. I can take it."

"That's noble of you. Let's talk it over." Fran suggested crisply and sprang to her feet.

"Almost as light as day, thanks to daylight saving," Myles Jaffray observed when they reached the terrace. "How about holding our conference on the rocks?. Will it hurt that swanky yellow dress, can you make it in those high-heeled gold sandals?"

'No to the first question, and yes to the second. That flat boulder looks inviting."

Her sandals had not been designed for a trek like the present. She dropped to the broad, flat boulder jutting into the sea. Seated beside her Jaffray frowned at her bare neck and arms.

"I was crazy to let you come without a wrap," Jaffray told Fran. "You'll freeze. I'll sprint to the house and get one."

"I dont need it. We won't be here but a few minutes. The salty breeze is like warm velvet."

Now what, she wondered, what message had Ken sent that should be delivered in private? The tide lapped against the rocks and swished in recession. A boat with a mother-of-pearl sail drifted by slowly not far from shore. A salty breeze picked up the skipper's voice:

Nita, Juanita,
Ask thy soul if we should part.

"What a voice and what a song, perfect for this night," Myles Jaffray approved.

"Right. Smoke? No?"

He returned a silver case to the pocket of his white dinner jacket and clasped his hands about one knee. Fine hands, one with a dark seal ring she liked them if she didn't like him. Why didn't he talk? She regarded him from the corners of her eyes. His profile was cut with cameo clearness against a sky turning from blue to violet. Perfect nose. Determined mouth and chin. Was he waiting for her to throw the opening conversational ball. "Here I go," she told herself, and plunged: "What is Ken's message? If it is about his appointment of you as trustee under Aunt Becky's will, the subject is closed definitely."

"You're the doctor, but before we close it definite, I want it understood that your reaction doesn't make the slightest difference to me. I have undertaken a job and I intend to put it through. As I told you earlier, you are quite outside my life except as a confounded responsibility."

"If you hate it why did you take the trusteeship?"

"To help your brother and incidentally this country." He rose looked toward the house, and at the rocks sloping to the shore. Something about his narrowed eyes sent a chill along Fran's veins. He had said he had something to tell her privately, did he suspect someone might be listening? Apparently satisfied that no one was near he sat beside her.

"Ken is fighting an unseen enemy now, an enemy determined to smash our plan for a united, independent Europe which is necessary for the survival of the civilized world."

"There is something terrifying in the thought of an unseen enemy; it must be so much easier to fight face to face, if fighting is ever easy."

"That's right we are fighting over there to make the purpose of the United States understood and appreciated, to prove that we are not in Europe for selfish gains, but to help people work together, to create conditions within which every individual may thrive without dragging down another. In short, opportunity for all. Having explained why I took on a job most distasteful to me, I'll close with the information that I am entitled to a vacation before I slip into harness. I shall spend it with my sister here. Don't let it worry you. You won't see me. Is that clear.

"Crystal clear, especially about Ken's objective. Now that you have crunched the bad little girl to powder, let's proceed to the reason for this private interview or have you already told all?"

"I have not. That preamble was to lay a foundation for the rest." He lighted a cigaret, tossed it impatiently into a tide pool and faced her. "Your brother has disappeared."

"Ken! Gone! How long have you known this? Why didn't you tell me before?"

"Sit down, please, or you'll lose your balance and hurtle down this cliff. That's better. You know, don't you, that there has been much un-American activity in the zone where Ken is stationed?" She nodded and clasped her hands together tightly in her lap.

"That activity has been driven underground. Ken had information as to the identity of the leader and decided to follow it up. The only way to avert suspicion from his purpose was to hint that he was being held somewhere as a prisoner. He asked me to tell you the truth the day before he was scheduled to disappear. No use for you to have it on your mind before, we both decided. 'Fran can take it, she's a good soldier," Ken said."

She choked back a sob of terror. "Is—is he in danger?"

"Yes."

"Did he have to be the one to go?"

"He and the higher up so decided."

"He is all the family I have in the world, I adore him. Why, why did you let him do it?"

"You overrate my influence with your brother. I volunteered to go in his place—my married sister is the only near relative I have, she doesn't need me, he had you. No dice. Ken had a source of information that would dry up if anyone but he tried to tap it. He declared that I could help more by taking the trusteeship, then he would be sure that no matter what happened to him you would be taken care of."

"How can I live with this terrible anxiety? He may be tor-"

"Skip it. Keep your imagination on leash. When you begin to think of Ken's danger tune in on another station and quick. Each time you allow fear to get you it will be more difficult to keep the next crack under control. You lived through the war when Ken was in the thick of the fighting didn't you? This is a different war which may prove quite as devastating. He told me you were valiant then and added: "Tell Fran that the certainty that she is carrying on, chin up, will help me, tell her to believe that I will come through safely, to believe it hard."

"Oklahoma coming up!" The voice came from the terrace. "Calling all play—" A door slammed on the last word.

"Come, Fran. We must go in."

"How can I with this horrible thing on my mind?"

"You haven't a 'horrible thing' on your mind, remember. You don't know what Ken is doing. No one here will know if the higher-ups succeed in keeping his disappearance hush-hush in this country, as they hope to do, a rumor will be started that he has been sent on a secret mission to a far country. No one must suspect what I have told you. Keep your mind shut tight against fear and your lips against confidences. Even in this small place there may be pricked ears. We have handed you a tough assignment, I know."

"I will do my best. Will you tell me if you hear anything, good or bad news?"

"I promise. Look up. How are your eyes? We don't want the people inside to suspect that I have been beating you. Okay. Not quite normal, but they'll pass."

He caught her arm and steadied her as her heel turned on a jagged rock. She clutched his sleeve with her right hand, and brushed the left across her eyes.

"Wait—a minute. I—I want to say that I'm sorry I was so hateful about the change of trustees. I didn't know—"

"That subject is definitely closed, remember. There you go again," he flared as she stumbled "Why do you girls wear such fool heels?"

"I couldn't see where—"

"Because of tears in your eyes? We'll fix that pronto."

He swept her up into his arms and carried her to the lawn, looked down at her. The sailboat had come about and was nearer shore

Nita, Juanita,
Be my own fair bride.

The breeze faithfully transcribed the passionate appeal in the singers voice from the sailboat. Myles Jaffray's arms tightened.

"I haven't given you the whole of Ken's message, he sent you—this." He bent his head and kissed her lightly on the lips, then set her on her feet.

"Why did you do that?" Her voice was shaken by anger. "I was beginning to think perhaps you were not a destable wolf, but if you kiss every girl the first time you meet her, Gene was right, you have—"

"Ssh!" He placed his hand over her mouth and drew her close. "Don't move."

CHIEF, DEPUTY CHIEF OF WINDSOR 'RETIRED'

Missing Ted Rose, 10, Found Dead in Bush

Body Discovered By Posse, Bullet Wound in Head

Boy Said to be Companion Is Being Questioned

Madawaska, Ont., Oct. 25 (CP) — The body of 10-year-old Ted Rose, a bullet wound in the head, was found today in bush near this village and another boy was taken into custody.

Inspector W. H. Lougheed of the Ontario Provincial Police said the other boy is being held for questioning.

The wound in the Rose boy's head was made by a .22-calibre rifle slug, police said. They seized a rifle.

Some 400 persons — police, townsfolk and soldiers — searched the Algonquin Park bush for more than two days when the lad was reported missing.

He and Alex Yankovich, 13, had been hunting partridge, but, when young Yankovich returned to his home here Sunday, Rose remained in the woods, police were told.

Partially Under Log

Ambrose O'Malley, one of the searchers, found the body partially under a log near the Madawaska River rapids 1½ miles from this village 130 miles southeast of North Bay.

Inspector Lougheed said it was possible the Rose boy was shot accidentally.

The Yankovich boy previously had told of roaming the bush Sunday with his friend.

When the Yankovich lad decided to return home, young Rose preferred to remain near the Madawaska River rapids, where the two had been throwing stones into the water.

One report was that Alex last saw his friend in the general vicinity where the body was found.

Provincial police aided by some 200 volunteers—most of Madawaska's population—launched a search of the bush shortly after the boy was reported missing. They dragged the Madawaska River but found no trace of him.

Some 200 men from the army camp at Petawawa were assigned to the search yesterday. An RCAF helicopter from Trenton had been dispatched to this area Monday. One member of the crew was a parachutist, ready to drop to the boy's aid if needed.

Ted Rose was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Rose. The father, a truck driver, was one of the searchers. The boy's mother is ill. The Roses have four other sons and a daughter.

Accused Quoted As Saying Nerves Had 'Snapped'

Gore Bay, Oct. 25—CP—A 22-year-old Toronto factory hand, charged with the murder in the stabbing of his wife, was quoted today as saying "my nerves snapped" when she refused to leave her parents and return home with him.

"I remember reaching for a hunting knife," John L. Galloway said in a statement admitted as evidence by Mr. Justice A.M. LeBel. It was given to Provincial Police Cpl. Louis Needham soon after Mrs. Elma Maude Galloway was slain last July 16.

The attractive, 22-year-old mother of a year-old daughter was stabbed 33 times with a hunting knife. Her death followed an unsuccessful attempt to get her to leave her father's home at Tehkummah, 30 miles southeast of this Manitoulin Island town.

The case against Galloway was expected to go to the jury late today.

The statement read into the record by Cpl. Needham, under questioning by defence counsel J.J. Robinette of Toronto, told of a series of family quarrels which Galloway said brought "everybody's nerves to the breaking point."

"I couldn't stand it. I wanted a home of my own. I asked her before to return to Toronto. She said she wanted to stay with her parents for a year, that I could go alone."

The afternoon of July 16—the Galloway's second anniversary—he went to his wife's bedroom to try again to persuade her to return to Toronto, Galloway said in the statement.

"She told me,'I have no time to make love to you and I am not going.'

"My nerves snapped. I remember reaching for a hunting knife I had stolen from Elma's half-brother, Bill Gibson. I don't remember anything more until I saw her on the floor. I tried to kill myself but when I couldn't I ran to a neighbor's to phone the police and give myself up."

TWO OFFICERS KILLED

Edmonton, Oct. 5 — (CP) — Two RCAF officers were killed yesterday when their Harvard training plane spun into a farmers field six miles south of Edmonton.

$400 DAMAGE CAUSED

London, Ont., Oct. 25 — (CP) — An oil drum which fell from a truck caused $400 damage Tuesday when it landed in front of a car driven by Mrs. Olive Knightley of Windsor. The drum fell when Gerald Spencer of Northbrook, near Peterborough, swung off a side road onto No. 2 highway.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP) —Synopsis: Skies are generally clear over southern Ontario this morning but cloudy and cool weather prevails over northern sections of the province.

The disturbance that moved through Ontario Tuesday is today moving across southern Quebec. Following its passage cool moist air from Hudson Bay has spread into Northern Ontario.

Frost is likely in most sections of the province tonight but warm weather is expected on Thursday.

ON GOODWILL TOUR

Cherbourg, France, Oct. 25—(Reuters) — The Royal Canadian Navy's aircraft carrier Magnificent and the destroyers Huron and Micmac arrived Tuesday night from Portsmouth, England. The ships are on a goodwill tour of the Baltic and French coastal areas. The mayor Cherbourg gave a ball in honor of the ships' crews.

ACHESON REJECTS RED-BLOC PLAN FOR GERMANY

Blames Germany's Plight on Russ Action

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP) — State Secretary Dean Acheson turned down today a Russian-bloc proposal for a new big power effort to establish a single German government.

The proposal was made Saturday following a two-day conference at Prague of Russian Deputy Premier V. M. Molotov and Foreign Ministers of seven satellite countries.

Acheson in a statement blamed Germany's plight on Russia's post war actions. The proposals made at Prague, he said, "should be directed to the government of the Soviet Union."

Russia, he declared, could make the postwar Potsdam agreement "one hundred percent complete in Germany by taking the required steps in the Soviet zone."

"The time has long since passed when the world can be stirred to hope by general phrases from the Soviet Union about disarmament and peace and German unity," Acheson said.

"We who have striven so hard want actions—we want the threatening east German army disbanded, the capricious restraints on internal German trade removed, and free democratic elections held in all Germany.

"We want an end to threats such as that uttered by the communist Ulbricht, deputy head of the east German regime, on Aug. 3, when he declared that the government of the Federal Republic would share what he hoped was going to be the fate of the Republic of Korea."

'Perversion of Language'

Acheson gave reporters at a press conference a 900-word statement which took up and dismissed one by one, the proposals advanced at Prague. The statement concluded:

"We will always hope for and welcome tangible proof that Soviet intentions have changed. The Prague statement gives us no proof. Instead it abuses by its perversion of language the world's hope for peace and understanding, for an end to fear and threats. Against that abuse I raise a solemn protest."

In the course of the press conference, Acheson also:

1. Welcomed the initiative taken by the French government in proposing a method for organizing Western European defence forces, including those of Western Germany. The proposal will be given further study by the U. S. government.

2. Pledged the U. S. will continue to do everything in its power to obtain the release of many thousands of German and Japanese war prisoners he said are still held by Russia five years after the Second World War.

3. Said the U. S. has no confirmation at all of reports that red China forces have been ordered to invade Tibet, or may aleady have done so.

Kelling Wins Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket, Eng; Two Canadians Win $73,750

Newmarket, England, Oct. 25. (CP)—Kelling won the 109th running of the Cambridgeshire stakes today in a three-way photo finish. Zina was second with Valdesco third.

Kelling was ridden to victory by D. Smith in the race on which an Irish Sweepstakes is based.

Holders of sweepstakes tickets on the winning horse receive £25,000 (about $73,750). Ticketholders on the second horse get £10,000, and those holding the third-place finisher £5,000.

Lester Piggott, the 14-year-old riding sensation of the British racing season was aboard Zina.

It was Piggott's last ride of the season as he had been suspended by the jockey club earlier today following an inquiry into a race last week.

Thirty-one horses started in the race.

The other starters, not in the order of finish, were Hyperbole, Flush Royal, Periscope III, Burnt Brown, Urfe, Stormy Petrel, Refund, Tribal Song, Master Gunner, Backtor, Black Pampas, Coastal Wave, Persia, Rubens III, Cabbage Hill, Rodogat, Fastnet Rock, Nur-Ur-Din, Luciferous, Coalition, Montezol, Ma Souer Anne, Crown Flatts, Socrates, Avocet, Giglet, Mostly Light, and Sports Provider.

Five Minutes to Pick Winner

It took the judges more than five minutes to pick a winner after calling for the pictures.

Kelling started at odds of 100 to 7, Zina was 100 to 6, and Valdesco 28 to 1.

Socrates started as the favorite at 10 to 3.

The official verdict was that Kelling, a three-year-old chestnut colt owned by Chris Jarvis won by a neck. Zina, three-year-old bay filly owned by Lady Isabel Guinnes, finished a head in front of the outsider, L. Redfern's Valdesco, another three-year-old colt.

Kelling is a son of Orestes — Monk's Fancy.

The Cambridgeshire was run over a straightaway mile and one-eighth course, and the winner got a purse of £3,500 (about $10,000).

(By The Canadian Press)

Girl Quits Job

Two Canadians each won $73-750 today when Kelling came home in front in the 109th running of the Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket, England.

Jean Burns, 31-year-old creamery clerk quit her job at Manitowaning on Manitoulin Island when she got the good news.

George Hall, 66-year-old Toronto bachelor who was born in Scotland, was the other big winner.

Hall, who works for a Toronto manufacturing plant, held a ticket on Kelling. At least two other Ontario residents held tickets on the second-place horse, Zina. One was Mrs. Effie Clay, a Toronto widow. The other was S. A. Longhurst, a Peterborough accountant. Each won about $28,000.

Several other Toronto and Ontario ticket-holders won residual prizes ranging from $384 to $530.

Longhurst is a former manager of the Beaver Lumber Company and the Harold Scott Lumber Company in Peterborough. He is single and resides with a sister. During the war he was district manager for Wartime Housing Corp. and had charge of all wartime houses between Peterborough and the Ottawa River.

He is a past president of the Kiwanis Club. Asked what he would do with the money he won, he said: "I don't know, I have not given it much thought."

He now is secretary-treasurer of the Armstrong Lumber Company.

Tokyo, Oct. 25 — (AP) —Radio Peiping broadcast today that Chinese reds are moving on Tibet. mid-Asian country seldom seen by white men.

The communist radio said the purpose of the Chinese communist advance is "to free 3,000.000 Tibetans from imperial oppression."

It did not mention the size of the Chinese force, its destination or whereabouts.

Narmadic Tibet is ruled by yellow-robed Lamaist priests. It covers 470,000 square miles in the lofty Himalaya mountains and often is called "the roof of the world." In winter it is almost inaccessible by land approaches.

The grave news of a possible new communist-inspired war in Asia, this time on the opposite side of China from Korea, swept Asian capitals.

At New Delhi, the Indian foreign ministry said it had reports of "certain troop movements and incursions" by Chinese reds along the China-Tibet border.

But it had no direct word of a Chinese invasion of Tibet, where already winter snows and icy mountain passes would make travel by foot soldiers difficult if not impossible.

Neither Washington nor Hong Kong, a good oriental listening post, had any report of a Sino-red move against the priestly government of Tibet.

The Peiping broadcast, heard in Tokyo, said the red army's "liberation" move was disclosed in a dispatch from Chungking. China, Tuesday.

Delegation Leaves

After the red broadcast a Tibetan delegation left New Delhi for Peiping to try to talk with the Chinese communist regime on Tibet's future. Delegation members said their departure for Peiping constituted a denial of the invasion report.

Tibet maintains it is autonomous. The communists insist it is part of China. The mountainous country declared its independence centuries ago. China recognized its autonomy in 1914.

Since Nationalist China fell last year. The Chinese reds have clamored for inclusion of Tibet in red China. Lofty Tibet is described as strongly anti-communist.

Its army is small, between 10,000 and 100,000 men. Their equipment is poor, mostly rifles and no armor.

The communists have accused Tibet of being friendly with American and British "Imperialists". Both countries have been accused of wanting Tibet as a base for aggression in Asia.

For months the Chinese red radio has plumped for "liberation" of Tibet.

In August communist Gen. Liu Po-Cheng forecast a march on Tibet by his Chinese soldiers and said an invasion would have this double purpose:

1. "Drive out aggressive influence of American Imperialism.

2. "Consolidate the west line of National defence."

Spiritual Ruler

The spiritual ruler of Tibet is the Dalai Lama, a 15-year-old who is under a priestly regent.

Two years ago he led the "living Buddhas" and student Lamas in three days of prayer against communism.

A few days later a revolt broke out in Lhasa, the capital, but it was quelled. Many reports at that time said the revolt was communist-inspired.

Since then there have been recurrent reports of revolts in Tibet. The Tibetans avoided the Chinese civil war by ordering the Nationalist Chinese Mission in Lhasa to leave the country.

2,000,000 Wild Geese Sweep In To Feed on Grass Roots in James Bay

Hannah Bay, Oct. 25—(CP)—On the bleak coast of James Bay, remote from civilization, nature has again staged its awe-inspiring spectacle of a mass migration of wild life.

Some 2,000,000 geese are estimated to have paused on their race southward from polar regions to the ricelands of Louisiana. They stop to feed on succulent roots of sea grass on the mud flats extending along the south shore of James Bay.

The migration, just ended after four weeks, was a paradise of limit bags every day to the handful of hunters from all parts of Canada and the United States. To the 5,000 Indians who live around James and Hudson Bay, it meant food.

The geese swept in with a mighty honking and whirring of wings in flocks ranging from a half dozen to 10,000. The James Bay flyway is used chiefly by the blue goose, a white-headed and white-breasted bird with slate-blue wings, weighing about six pounds. There are some Canada geese and snow geese.

The blue goose nests during the summer on Southampton Island and Baffin Island, 2,000 miles north of this refueling ground from where it flies another 3,000 miles non-stop.

BUTTER SURPLUS MAY BE ENDED BY NEXT SPRING

Increased Consumption, Less Production Cause

Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP)—A general tightening up in production and increase in consumption may spell the end of surplus butter day for Canada next spring.

A government agriculture official discloses that the government, under its support plan, has purchased only about 36,000,000 pounds of butter this year, compared with about 48,500,000 last year.

The surplus butter-producing period in Canada is between may and September. Last spring, when Canada went into new butter production, the government held about 18,000,000 pounds, which it sold partly through foreign sales and partly through below-market prices in Canada.

Smaller stocks in government warehouses were reflected in declines in general holdings. The bureau of statistics estimated that stocks of creamery butter in nine centres on Oct. 20 totalled 48,651,000 pounds—a drop of about 5,400,000 from 54,035,000 at the same time last year.

Agricultural officials estimate that butter production this year has dropped about four per cent. Last year's output totalled about 330,000,000 pounds. This year it may decline to about 320,000,900 In September, production of creamery butter declined to 28,800,000 from 30,600,000 last year.

Consumption Increases

On the other hand consumption has increased. For the first eight months of 1950 it totalled 206,500,000, compared with 199,000,000 last year.

Stocks of government butter will be moved out to market on the same basis as last year, officials say. Last year the government paid about 58 cents a pound basis delivery at Montreal or Toronto, and sold the butter for about 60 cents a pound, delivered in carloads lots to anyone who chose to buy it. The difference between the buying and the selling price included freight and storage charges.

This year the support price has been reduced to 53 cents a pound. The government—when it starts selling butter, probably within the next month or two—may be about 55 cents a pound in carlload lots although this is not certain. A decision may be announced shortly.

Why Do Leaves Fall in Autumn? Leaf Jelly on Stem Turns Soft

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

(Associated Press Science Editor)

Grand Forks, N. D., Oct. 25 — (AP) — Why autumn leaves fall is a new scientific study at the University of North Dakota.

Vera Facey, assistant Professor of Biology, has discovered some new reasons. This seemingly-artistic study has a practical side, because it explains why fruits fall before ripening, a serious loss to the fruit-growing industry.

Everyone knows that falling leaves always separate just at the base of their stems. But nothing is visible to explain the perfect separation. There are no broken fibres.

Facey used the advances in biological chemistry to find that the explanation is a peculiar action of jelly. This leaf jelly is pectin, the kind that wives, cooks and industry use to make table jellies.

In leaves and fruits, pectin is the cement that binds tissue cells together. All summer this jelly is hard, and holds the stem fast to its anchorage. But in the fall, the jelly at this point turns to a thin syrup.

What about leaves that hang on all winter? In them the veins which carry sap become woody and strong enough to pin the leaf in place.

Interests of Force To be Best Served Says Commission

Recommended Men be Put On Full Pension at Once

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 25 —(CP) — Chief of Police Claude Renaud and Deputy Chief W. H. Neale were 'retired' today by the Windsor Police Commission at the end of its investigation of law enforcement here.

In a formal statement, the commission said that the interests of the police force "will be best served by the retirement of these officers." The commission recommended that the city board of control put them both on full pension at once.

Until a new police chief is chosen, Staff Inspector Edwin V. McNeill of the Ontario Provincial Police will be acting chief.

The statement, issued by Commission Chairman Judge Archibald Cochrane and signed "with the full agreement" of the other two members, Magistrate Roland A. Harris and Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, said the decision to retire the two top police officers was made after several weeks of "extensive investigation into the administration of the police force."

On Force 36 Years

The investigation had been directed towards finding if the two senior officers have shown "alert and aggressive leadership" required in Windsor "where policing tasks are particularly difficult."

"The conclusion has been reached that the interests of the force will be best served by the retirement of these officers."

The commission adjourned today until next Monday when it will meet with the new acting chief. Magistrate Harris said routine matters will be discussed. There was no indication whether any further reorganization of the force will be made.

Chief Renaud, on the force for 36 years, "has carried out his duties and to the best of the ability which he possesses. We feel that he should be honorably retired with full recognition given to the 36 years of such service."

Deputy Chief Neale, who has served on the force for 32 years, should also be given "full recognition" of his services, the commission decided.

Holds Third Interest

The commission referred to deputy Neale's association with an equipment company which supplied $2,500 worth of clothes and equipment to the police force annually. He was former president, and holds a third interest in the firm, which he described to the commission as a family business.

"It should be made clear," the commission stated, "that although in the opinion of the commissioners this association was indiscreet and perhaps unwise, there is nothing in the rules and regulations of the Windsor police force which prevented him from engaging in this enterprise."

The rules and regulations were drawn up in 1923, and were termed "ancient" by judge Cochrane during the commission investigation.

Eight Survivors Think Other Crew Members Lost

St. John's, Nfld., Oct. 25—(CP) —The United States coast guard cutter Sorrel was nearing Argentia, Nfld., Tuesday with eight seamen, survivors of the ill-fated North Voyageur, aboard.

The survivors, discovered clinging to a bobbing raft in the North Atlantic yesterday, said they believe the other 12 missing crew members went down with the ship.

The men were rescued as three U.S. aircraft and another coast guard cutter criss-crossed the area about 50 miles southeast of Cape Race, Nfld., after the 1,100-ton vessel disappeared early Sunday.

The ship issued a terse S O S call and a brief pinpointing of her position before her radio went dead.

The R.C.A.F. at Halifax, intercepting a message from the Sorrel, said there was no immediate indication of the fate of the other 12 members of the Voyageur's crew.

The Sorrell was to rendezvous with the cutter Humboldt some 60 miles south of Argentia before coming to port. Another cutter, The Duane, along with aircraft, will continue the search for the other crew members.

Widely-Known Jesuit Father To Visit City

On Friday evening, Oct. 27., the people of Belleville will have an opportunity of hearing Father Lord, once designated "Energy, S.J.," speaking on the subject "Fun in the Family," in St. Michael's Auditorium at 8.15 p.m.

After his ordination in 1923 Father Lord began a spectacular career which has kept him in the public eye and made him the most widely-known Jesuit in North America. Father Lord is one of America's foremost scholars, lecturers, writers, and orators. He has travelled extensively and has addressed gatherings of every sort. People of the widest range of opinion have talked with him. All this in spite of a natural shyness which only those who know him well even suspect.

Father Lord has learned to read people's hearts. . .the inward struggle that lies beneath the soiled overalls of a workman. . . the emotions hidden under the giggles of little girls and awkward boys learning to dance. . . People! Father Lord captures for you the highlights of the secrets they have opened to him as you listen to him in the lecture hall or follow him in his endless writings. He brings to your heart, through his voice and his books the bright side of human nature, and strikes a note that is even more human than tears.

Father Lord's work in plays, pageants and musical shows dates back 25 years. He has written more than 50 musical compositions; he has written and produced 22 plays, most of which have been published. His output of more than 200 pocket - siged pamphlets has earned him the title of "the most prolific writer of pamphlets" living today. He has also been the author of many larger books and his weekly column is syndicated in many Canadian and American newspapers. As a writer for children, Father Lord has produced 40 juvenile books, profusely illustrated in colors.

At present Father Lord is engaged in a cross-Canada lecture tour which is proving just as successful as the many tours he has made lecturing in all of the large cities of the United States.

Ald. C.D. Tice Vice President Of Arenas Assoc.

At the annual meeting of the Ontario Arenas Association held in Guelph over the weekend Ald. Claude D. Tice was elected vice-president of the organization. He has served on the executive for two years. Harold "Barney" Barnett, manager of the Sault Ste. Marie rink, was elected president by the unanimous vote of the Association. Mr. George Patterson, owner of the Brantford rink is the retiring president, he having served since the association was organized three years ago.

When the Association was formed there were 15 representatives of rinks present and today there are 51 arenas in Ontario in the organization. It is the intention to secure new members from rinks that have added artificial refrigeration to their arenas. The association voted and the offer was accepted by the OHA. that a representative of the association could sit on the executive of the OHA without voting powers to protect the interest of the several arenas. Mr. George Patterson was appointed to this post. "Barney" Barnett is the representative of the association on the NOHA executive.

Ald. Don Thomas, chairman of the local Arena Association was present at the meeting in Guelph.

Queen's Principal Guest Speaker At Kiwanis Club

Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal and vice-chancellor of Queen's University, followed up his United Nations theme of yesterday morning at B.C.I. & V.S. with a luncheon speech at Kiwanis.

The Queen's head used the theme at the luncheon that if the feeling that was present in all service clubs — the fellowship and understanding of a common table — could be spread throughout the world, then peace could become a reality. "Understanding and love are the keys to all the problems of the world", Dr. Wallace said.

Dr. Wallace reiterated his morning conviction that "In the long run, there's only one way to world peace — creating understanding throughout the whole world." He dwelt on the use of the veto, the iron curtain, and the Atlantic Pact. The basis for his speech appeared in Tuesday's Ontario Intelligencer, as he made it to the students at the collegiate.

At Kiwanis yesterday, Dr. Wallace was introduced by Dr. Sam Cronk and thanked by Lorne McDougall. A sing song was led by Vic White.

Supervisor Will Be Speaker at Commencement

Commencement exercises at the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School will be held this Friday night. Guest speaker for the evening will be Mr. A. G. Hooper, M.A., who is the supervisor of secondary education for Ontario.

The exercises will start at 7.30 p.m., in the school auditorium.

Mr. Hoper has had a brilliant career in Ontario education, being one of the forces behind the current curriculum revision. He is expected to direct his address at the graduating class, but principal G. E. Currie said this morning that there should be much of interest in his speech to parents and the general public.

At one time, Mr. Hooper was principal of the largest collegiate in Windsor, Ontario, and was noted for his administration of the school.

The ringing of the great new Peace Bell of the United Nations in Berlin, on Tuesday, Oct. 24th., was heralded (and significantly early in the morning) by an advance peal of one hundred and one double strokes on Gitchi Nagamo, the "Poet's Bell" at Abbey Dawn.

Gitchi Nagamo means "A Beautiful Song," and honors the first poet of North America, the Redman. This, too, is significant, for it is altogether fitting that the Bay of Quinte countryside should give such a gesture on such a beautiful bell at this time, because Dekanaweda, the great Mohawk dreamer who visioned and created the first United Nations for Peace, was born on the Bay of Quinte.

Dekanaweda's name is so sacred to the Indians that they usually refer to him as "The One Whom Hiawatha Assisted." He created the League of the Iroquois in 1390 and it was successful in keeping the peace for two hundred years.

Wallace Havelock Robb, who gave this gesture for the people of "The Kente Country" (Bay of Quinte area) was born on this sacred water. He rang Gitchi Nagamo as a Pine Tree Chief of the Mohawks in Dekanaweda's name, to honor history and the new Peace Bell.

Govt. Could Save Half Billion Year, Says Drew

Saskatoon, Oct. 25 — (CP) — George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said last night that the federal government can save $500,000,000 a year by eliminating waste spending. It would help combat the growing dangers of inflation.

Mr. Drew said in an address that savings proportionate to those outlined for the United States government by the Hoover Commission could be made by Ottawa without interfering with necessary services and defence expenditures.

Mr. Drew was attending the opening of the first Saskatchewan school of young Progressive Conservatives.

"It is time the people who run insurance companies and banks, and those who depend upon them, asked the government to check inflation and preserve the value of the dollar," he said.

Larman, of Holloway St. United Church. Interment was in Belleville cemetery.

Second Charge Laid by Police After Investigation

It was apparently just one drink too many for two Trenton young men Elmer Wood and Cecil Belnap who last night were apprehended on LCA charges and then were later charged with the theft of scrap iron.

The two men were apprehended by city police who lodged them in police cells on drunk charges. But a look in the trunk of their car revealed a quantity of scrap iron and this morning police laid the second charge of theft. It was charged that the scrap metal, valued at less than $25, had been taken from the Port Hope Construction Company.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 25. (CP)—Industrials continued yesterday's decline with losses up to a point as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

They opened mixed and then [illegible]an to decline strongly. Mild [illegible]port was seen throughout the board, however, with a fair number of issues bucking the trend for gains. Steels, foods, liquors, constructions, refining oils and retail stores showed a majority of losses in the groupings. Utilities, agricultures, textiles and manufacturing companies were mixed and papers and banks advanced.

Base Metals were irregular though most leaders were lower.

Junior and Senior Gold producers declined strongly with a wide list of issues lower. Prices were fairly narrow, however, and losses were mostly limited to less than ten cents.

Western Oils drifted lower for the seventh straight session with penny losses. Oil selections was the most heavily traded issue on the board advancing four cents following news of a new financing agreement.

Royal Family Visit New House of Commons

London, Oct. 25 — (Reuters) — King George and Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by the King's mother, Queen Mary, visited Britain's new House of Commons today.

It was a private visit to give the Royal Family a chance to look over the Chamber in detail before the King opens it formally tomorrow.

The Commons will be returning to their own chamber for the first time since the old one was destroyed by German bombs nine years ago.

Today was the King's last opportunity of viewing the new Chamber as he is barred constitutionally from being present when the House of Commons is in session.

Tonight the King and Queen are giving a sherry party at Buckingham Palace for the Speakers of the Dominion Parliaments who are in London for tomorrow's opening ceremony.

Did Not Obey The Rules

Chief Renaud questioned in the early stages of the investigation, admitted that he had not obeyed many of these rules, including those requiring him to give orders to his force and hold regular drills and parades.

The commmission chairman told him at the time that, although the rules were outdated, they should have been followed.

Today's statement said the commission's next task is the appointment of a police chief "who will bring . . . qualities of leadership and experience which are requisite to that appointment."

Until such time that the appointment was made, Attorney-General Porter had made the services of Staff Inspector McNeill available. He will take over at once as acting Chief of Police.

Ask Citizens Support

In making its shakeup of top police administration, the commission called for the "co-operation, support and respect" of Windsor citizens.

The investigation leading to today's reorganization was touched off in September in the shakeup of the police commission and the dismissal by Attorney-General Porter of Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey.

Judge Cochrane and Magistrate Harris were appointed to the commission to take the places of Judge Albert Gordon and Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan who resigned. Mayor Reaume remained as the third member.

The changes came on the heels of a report by two provincial police inspectors who said Windsor officials must have known about "wide-spread" vice and gambling which they found in Windsor.

R.H. Macklem Addresses Y's Men On Education

Roy H. Macklem, Inspector of Schools for South Hastings addressed members of the Y's Men's Club at their regular weekly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. giving an outline in the development of education from a basic curriculum of the 3 R's to the present day emphasis on guidance, health services, extra curricular activities, administration and teaching as well as a practical curriculum.

Mr. Macklem explained the turnover from the grade system to the system of divisions now being introduced which added to the opportunity for individual service to pupils at various levels of attainment.

The speaker was introduced by Y's man Garth Sine and thanked by Bud Trill.

Presentations were made to Hugh Watson and Garth Sine recognizing their recent marriages.

Announcement was made that the details regarding Radio Auction were now complete and solicitations were underway.

The next meeting will be in the form of a Ladies' Night.

B.C. Publisher New President Weekly Assoc.

Quebec, Oct. 25—(CP)—Lang Sands, publisher of The Record at Mission City, B.C., today was elected president of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association.

Mr. Sands succeeds Roy Bean of Waterloo, Ont., who remains on the board of directors of the C.W.N.A.

A. W. Hanks of The Leader, St. James, Man., was elected first vice-president, and Robert Moore of The Sun, Swift Current, Sask., was elected second vice-president.

W. E. McCartney of Brampton, Ont., was re-appointed secretary and manager of the association.

The association concluding its annual convention decided to transfer its headquarters from Brampton to Toronto. The move was recommended by retiring president Bean.

The association decided that Canada's weekly newspapers will observe an annual "National Unity Week", the first to be celebrated June 24 to July 1 next year.

A C.W.N.A. committee will lay plans for publication of special articles on the theme of national unity and dealing with such topics as the story of Canada's two races, their background and contributions to the country.

During National Unity Week, the newspapers will run special editorials in keeping with the celebration.

N. Koreans Flee In Carts, Afoot As Allies Press

Seoul, Oct. 25 — (AP) — South Korean troops thrust within 32 miles of the Manchurian border tonight in the drive to end the war.

The South Korean 6th Division was reported closest to the border. It was four miles west of Hoemoktong and about 20 miles northwest of Huichon in north central Korea.

The Commonwealth 27th Brigade, made up of British and Australian forces, and three other South Korean divisions were pushing northward on both sides and in the middle of the mountainous peninsula.

Intelligence officers at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said reports that a South Korean force already has reached the Korean-Manchurian border "are in error."

There was no resistance, except for small-arms fire in a few spots. Nor was there any evidence of a big convoy moving southward to oppose the United Nations cleanup campaign.

The Far East air forces reported a cluster of miscellaneous vehicles was strafed by fighter planes Tuesday. Fifty-five vehicles were destroyed, 40 damaged.

That was at Mupyong, 20 miles southwest of Kanggye, near the Manchurian border about midway across the Korean peninsula.

Kanggye has been reported to be the mountain retreat of the refugee red regime.

Ford Company Denies Charge Made by Union

Windsor, Oct. 25 — (CP) — Ford Motor Company of Canada has denied a union charge that it plans indiscriminate layoffs of 5,600 men in the coming changeover to 1951 auto and truck models.

Roy England, president of the big Ford local of United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), said yesterday that the company told union negotiators it would lay men off "as it sees fit."

Mr. England said the union had asked for an umpire to settle the layoff dispute, which hinges on the interpretation of seniority clauses in the present union-company agreement signed last May 29.

A company spokesman replied that Ford would keep "strictly" to the agreement when the main layoff begins this Friday.

"At no time have we said we would lay men off as we see fit," he said.

The union wants seniority applied on a plant-wide basis in the layoff, while the company feels it should be applied on a departmental basis.

The Ford spokesman also described as "distorted" union statements of what the layoff will involve. The union said that more than 1,000 of the 5,600 would be idled 35 days or more.

The change-over would continue until early December, the Ford spokesman said, but 5,600 employees would be the peak number off at any one time. The majority would be idle seven or 10 days, and "only a few hundred" would be affected for longer. Some of these however, might be off work for the entire change-over of more than six weeks.

The company yesterday announced a layoff — not connected with the model change — that will idle 350 men on truck assembly lines until Monday. Another 140 will be laid off in the machine shop Thursday or Friday because of reduced truck requirements.

Suggests 'Friendly' Vishinski Call Off Reds in Malaya

London, Oct. 25 (Reuters) — Anthony Eden suggested in parliament today that Russian foreign minister Andrei Vishinsky "who now is so friendly," should call off the communist operations in Malaya.

Eden, deputy leader of the Conservative party, made the remark after Emrys, Hughes, leftwing Labor Pacifist, had urged the government to stop using bombers in Malaya.

Colonial secretary James Griffiths told Hughes only one civilian, a child of three, was known to have been killed by bombing.

Everett Fairman Named President Of Kiwanis Club

Major Everett Fairman, second in command of the fifth Anti-Tank Regiment and principal of Queen Victoria School, was elected president of the Kiwanis Club at a meeting of the newly-elected directors of the club immediately after the luncheon held on Tuesday.

Mr. Fairman has been a member of the Kiwanis Club since 1946 and has served as a director for three years and is well qualified for this important post in the community life of this city. Everett was born in Campbellford and received all of his public and high school schooling in that town and came to Belleville in 1930 as assistant principal of Queen Mary School.

At the outbreak of the Second World War, Mr. Fairman enlisted in the 3-47th Battery in 1940 and served in England, North Africa, Italy and the Continent. As a Major he commanded the 88th Battery in the 5th Division during his entire tour after leaving England.

In 1945 Major Fairman came home and immediately entered his duties as teacher being selected as principal of King George School and continued at that school until transferred as principal of Queen Victoria School in 1949

Fraternally Mr. Fairman is a member of The Belleville Lodge No. 123 A.F. and A.M. and served as Master of the lodge. He is also a member of the Juvenile Court committee. Mr. Fairman is married and has one daughter, Barbara Joan.

Motor Rugs In Demand By Transients

With colder nights in the offing motor rugs are becoming more in demand by transients passing through the city, it was suggested today by city police.

Tuesday night the proprietor of Dulmage Motors on Station Street reported to the police station that a man was sleeping in one of their cars wrapped up in motor rugs. Police answered the call immediately but the intruder had disappeared along the river bank at the rear of the houses.

Police said the description of the two motor rugs answered that of two rugs stolen earlier this week from parked cars.

U.N. DAY ANNIVERSARY

United Nations Day has been a day this year which finds a strong feeling of support in all parts of the free world in the light of the effort of the North Korean reds to dominate their neighbors the South Koreans. It was but natural that in the area of Korea which has been saved from the hands of the aggressors the feeling should run high. To these South Koreans it means freedom and home made safe from communistic tyranny.

To the great part of the world this occasion was one which holds the greatest hope which has cheered the people in the past decades which have seen two great wars started by aggressor powers.

There was a fine symbolism used to impress the peoples, the ringing of the freedom bell in Berlin. The reds tried to deaden or drown its sonorous tones, which were heard not only in the former capital of Germany where it is placed but were carried across the world by broadcast. It was significant that half a million Germans crowded the city hall square in Berlin and the surrounding streets. In the dedication of the bell, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, a former governor of Germany who officiated in the dedication of the bell placed in West Berlin's city hall tower, said it stands "to resist aggression and tyranny wherever they appear on earth — that this world, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom."

Five years have passed since the momentous meetings brought forth that organization which has lived and today stands as the herald of a day of peace for the world.

Communism, which reared its ugly head in Korea, is the direct antithesis of the principles for which the bell of freedom stands. And with U.N. victories and triumphs in Korea, communism has received a heavy blow that means loss of prestige among the nations.

The fifth anniversary was an occasion which impressed upon the world states the determination of the free nations, the United Nations Organization, to guard as the most precious asset the liberty which is found in democracy and peace-loving states.

It is the prayer of all people of goodwill and lovers of peace that the reverberations of this day may echo down the corridors of time with the greatest of messages, that tyranny will not be permitted and that the state that loves freedom will have help to support it if it is ever in peril.

The U.N. flag stands for a principle backed by the power of free states that observe the rights and liberties of other powers. It has come into the world as a symbol of a principle which is in the hearts of hundreds of millions of people on this earth who desire to see the free protected from aggression. It stands for justice and it stands for help against tyranny. As a writer in the New York Times puts it, it is the cornerstone of our actions around the world. That applies to all free nations who love freedom and will not endure oppression.

PERSISTENCE

Certain individuals appear to be always so very busy, but with only negligible results. Others, who act quietly, without fuss or display, often put the accomplishments of their more showy competitors to shame. How is it done? Who would not gladly possess the secret? Almost always, it will be found, the quality of "stick-to-itiveness" has made all the difference. The busybody is, as a rule, over-confident; working by fits and starts. The one who is more patient, even if less brilliant, has no delusions about what is required; he knows that it is only by steadily pushing onward, with measured but unfaltering pace, that he will be able to attain the desired objective.

That method may take longer; it is less showy, but far more trustworthy. "Hurry slowly" — that is nature's way.

In the case of young people who are passing through the important stages of instruction, it is of vital consequence to realize the value of persistence, which is, in fact, absolutely indispensable to progress. And when the years of formal education are passed what a deplorable fact it is that so many young people, after leaving school or university, cease to take any further interest in the subjects they have been studying, and in which, perhaps, they have attained a fair degree of proficiency.

They have been at great pains to lay the foundations, but their labors will have been to little or no purpose if they do not build upon them. The foundations themselves will crumble if neglected.

"With ordinary talent and extraordinary perseverance, all things are attainable." So asserts that great English philanthropist, Sir Thomas F. Buxton, whose own perseverance in the historic fight for the abolition of the slave trade is an outstanding example of what can be effected by an earnest will and a strong determination.

To have exceptional talent is a great asset, but talent, being a natural endowment, cannot be got by merely wishing for it.

On the other hand, perseverance is something which every one may have. It is perhaps the most important of the two, so far as the average individual is concerned. — Hamilton Spectator.

BEFORE MAN CAME

"Fill him full of passions wild,
Lures to sin that tempt him.
Even as a little child
From danger don't exempt him.

"Do not bind his feet and hands
In a firm and tight way,
Free from even my commands
Let him find the right way.

"Dull his life on earth would be
With the mind I gave him
If I held him fast to me
Just from hurt to save him."

God said: "Man to earth must go
Without restraining fetter.
He will like it better so,
And will love me better."

Forty-five thousand dollars of winter relief construction work has been authorized in Belleville, according to information which Mayor George A. Reid received today from the Municipal branch of the Department of Highways. Of this amount the Department of Highways, through the Province will contribute fifty per cent, or $22,500. This is equivalent to more than two mills on the dollar of the city's assessment.

At the entrance examinations, Cora Moffatt, a pupil of Tweed Consolidated School, secured the highest marks this year, in Centre Hastings, and will receive a medal in Belleville during the session of the County Council in December.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF FAME

"Crucified under Pontius Pilate." "Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him." "Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin."

How would you like to have had any of this immortality bestowed upon you? What would Pontius Pilate have said and done on the day he condemned Jesus to be crucified had he known that in church services through the centuries his name would be mentioned in solemn tones of condemnation What must have been the feeling of Judas Iscariat as he weighed his thirty pieces of silver in his hand and realized that they were heavy with a man's blood? There is a variety of immortality which, had the immortal ones known they would ever achieve it, they would have thrust it from them at the cost of life itself.

"The evil that men do lives after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." So said a profound sage three hundred years ago. This terrible truth applies not just to the great; it applies to us also. We need to ponder solemly the possibility of leaving a hateful memory in the minds of our contemporaries.

Such a memory can begin within the family circle. What will our freinds say of us after we are gone? There is an immortality of contempt as well as of glory.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If a man likes to collect postage stamps or army badges, nobody thinks it odd of him. The collecting mania can take almost any form. Any hardware store man will tell you that there is a kind of citizen who comes in frequently, just browsing around, picking up odds and ends, a quarters worth of assorted screwnails, a carpenter's pencil, maybe a packet of assorted drills for 49 cents, a couple of fifteen cent spring latches for screen doors.

He picks these things up with such a bemused yet concentrated air, and comes in so frequently to browse around, that the hardware dealer knows he is just another of those human pack rats, those collectors and pickers up of inconsidered trifles, whose shelves and drawers and cupboards at home are overflowing with all the things a man sometime, somehow, might need.

Personally, I am known as Old Sheeny Clark in my family, because I am incapable of passing anything on the highway — the car is stopped and I run back to salvage an old rusty bit of a broken spring or a tool some poor motorist has shed, or even a burlap sack that blew off a coal truck. One of my latest treasures was a magnificent nickel-plated bracket about two feet long which my wife turned right-end up when I showed it to her, explaining to me that it was the leg off an old stove that had likely fallen off some junk man's load. It keeps the family busy calling the Veterans or the Salvation Army to get rid of the treasure trove.

Happy is the man whose mania for collecting involves pennies, nickles, dimes, quarters. There are any number of men who get as much kick out of collecting these vulgar little things — and larger denominations, too! — as any of us do dare stamps, trout flies, or first editions, We may look down upon such collectors. But it is idle to deny that they may get every bit as much satisfaction out of their collections as we do from ours. A nickel, after all, is a pretty little thing, especially in large heaps.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

SWEET AND LOWBROW

One of the things I'm glad I ain't is a dramatic critic—and don't get jumpy: this isn't going to be another of those tired tirades against the gents who separate the clicks from the clucks. In my book, the New York play reviewers—bless their little hearts and peashooters — are a smart set of hombres, and the cultural itching powder they spread around has a lot to do with our theatre being up to scratch. Nevertheless, I'm glad I ain't one of them, and to show you what I mean let's take the case of "Call Me Madam," the new musical which opened the other week.

Had I gone to the Imperial Theatre opening night in the line of duty, chances are I would have written up the show as most of the reviewers did — part holler-out and part ho-hum. As a conscientious workman, I would have had to point out that the score didn't compare with "Kiss Me, Kate" or "South Pacific"; that its love story was as old as knock-knees, and that as a political lampoon it wasn't in the same class or cosmos with "Of Thee I Sing."

Fortunately, though, I wasn't working that night. Eleanor and I were wearing our gladdest rags, we'd had a nip of after-dinner sherry, and we were at the Imperial for no other reason than to have a good time—no pressure, no perspicacity, no notes on the edge of the program. So we yipped and yokked at Ethel Merman, loved every minute of Paul Lukas, liked the Berlin songs fine, ditto the duBois scenery and costumes, and as for the Lindsay and Crouse book, we found it plenty adequate and in spots a lot better than that.

Sure, if you want to get technical about it, there were moments when nothing much happened on stage, but thanks to George happened pretty fast, and so taking the show in toto—and looking at it through the rose-colored specs of Joe Mezzanine—we had a pleasant enough evening. . .

Come to think of it, when it comes to most things cultural, I'm glad I'm a babe in the woods instead of a reforestation expert. Take painting, for instance. If I were an authority on art, I probably wouldn't give Utrillo a second look—his sunshiny street scenes would seem pretty corny compared to the inspired grotesqueries of a Bracque or Picasso. Happily, however, I'm an art-for-orb's-sake man, and so the gay little Utrillo which hangs on my dining room wall continues to look pretty good to me.

The same lowbrow logic governs my taste in music—I'm anything but a hepster in that department, and so the glissandi of a Strauss waltz, although they may offend the sensibilities of a Beethoven lover, are still tops on my personal Hit Parade. And I have the same boob affection for the clip-clop rhymes of Rudyard Kipling, even though, by highfalutin' standards, they may be small spuds compared to the elegant gymnastics of T. S. Eliot. Kipling's Fuzzy-Wuzzy is an old friend of mine; Eliot's Mr. Prufrock I find plain fuzzy.

I guess it boils down to this: when it comes to the arts, lively or otherwise, I like caviar as well as the next fancy-pants, but for a steady diet my taste runs more to hot dogs and soda pop. And for this good and sufficient reason, I guess I'll always be inclined to see the fun rather than the flaws in shows like "Call Me Madam."

Am I quarreling with the drama critics? Heck, no. I'm just darned glad they're them and I'm me.

MacKenzie's Column:

Aggression Still Stalks World On UN Birthday

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Celebration of the United Nations' fifth birthday was notable for the emphasis which had to be placed, not on the existence of peace, but on the fact that aggression still stalks the world.

President Truman in his address said that as long as "there are some who will resort to war," the United States and other free countries have no choice but to use their collective strength to curb assault.

And meantime in Washington—bearing out the thought of a troubled world — the chiefs of staff of the 12 North Atlantic Treaty powers were meeting to plan common defence.

Key to Defence

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. joint chiefs of staff, gave the key to this meeting when he declared that mutual defence forces must be created now, "or we may be forced to improvise them in face of enemy attack" later.

State Secretary Dean Acheson also emphasized preparedness in a statement broadcast to American armed forces, saying he was glad to report "that the United Nations is working urgently to insure that if there is a next time, the free world as a whole will be prepared".

Acheson also declared that the U.N. victory over communist attack in Korea offers the free world an opportunity to devise "an international rule of law which would stop war."

Rejoicing Ears

Any plan for stoppage of war will fall on rejoicing ears. There is no doubt that the peoples of the world as a whole are anxious for peace, no matter what the complexions of their governments may be.

The principal Moscow newspapers, including Pravda and Izvestia, printed articles on the U.N. anniversary. All of them praised the concept of the United Nations. They also declared that Russia has been faithful to the original concept of the organization—an assertion which is a matter of much argument.

On the whole, despite the troubled condition of many parts of the world and notwithstanding the difference between the communist and the western blocs, the U.N. had a pretty good birthday. It would look on the Korean intervention as a big job well done and fully justifying the hopes placed in the peace organization.

Letter to the Editor

'Friends Of The Forest'

Toronto, Oct. 24

An item in my recent reading speaks of a new conservational organization in the United States named "Friends of the Forest." This is a fine—if tardy—step in the right direction. It would be nice to see an equivalent move in our own favored land.

The story reminded me of the following assertion in one of the forestry booklets issued by a non-profit organization in New York City: "When Columbus discovered America, nearly half of the land area of what is now the United States was covered by a dense primeval forest. Today these forests have been reduced to less than one-sixth their former size. Much of our standing timber today is poor quality; second or third growth. Man has cut large areas of timber, without provision for re-seeding — and moved on. Fires, too-often man made, have ravaged millions of acres of land once in forest. Waste of trees, in lumbering, remains high even in 1950. We are still cutting saw timber faster than it grows."

The above picture reminded me of your own constructive editorial on Canada's forest fire losses generally—but particularly dealing with the situation in Ontario. Frankly, I thought the following challenging and appropriate words were right on the target: "There is no more reason for leaving a cigaret burning in the woods than there is for leaving it ignited on the family chesterfield. Settlers are destroying their own future by carelessly allowing fires to start and campers have no defence. If they cannot learn to camp properly, and to put out their fires before they leave, then they should be barred from the bush" (Editorial, July 5).

My Boy Scout-son desires me to point to these few lines in his "Follow The Trail"; as told by Chief Meri-Ka-chak to his tribesmen the Shan-a-macs: "Later, after they had eaten, Lahn made dippers of the birch bark. These they carried filled with water, and upon the glowing embers emptied carefully the water— making sure no ember smouldered. Then once more the trail they followed."

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address:

A backache which persists without apparent cause — such, for instance, as may occur following an injury—is an ailment which should have the early attention of a physician. Some of the causes of backache are not too difficult to dispose of, but occasionally backache portends a serious prospect.

A lady reaching up to a high shelf experienced a sudden "crick" in her back which momentarily "took her breath away." Severe pain persisted and she consulted a physician who among other procedures, ordered an X-ray examination of the spine. It was revealed that the spine was involved in a "metastatic" cancerous process. The word metastatic refers to a process which "spreads" usually through the bloodstream to some area far from where it orginated.

Questioning revealed that the lady had been aware for some time of a pelvic disorder, which while annoying had not been painful or disabling. She had ignored it in the thought that in time it would pass away. Examination revealed the uterus to be the site of the original cancerous process which had extended to the spine. At this time she is under appropriate treatment and is progressing favorably.

My point in mentioning this unusual incident is not to play upon the element of fear in advocating the necessity for early attention to a persistent disorder. Rather, I mention this to emphasize the fact that there are a great number of causes involved in backache, some common and some very unusual. I emphasize also that backache, common as it is, deserves the early attention of a physician.

A notion which gained considerable credence—one nurtured largely by those who stood to profit of a "bone out of place" in the spine as the cause of most backaches, barring those which developed after income tax payoff. It seems that this concept is rapidly fading away of late.

Many persistent backaches are the result of years of sedentary living in which the muscular support to the spine is weakened by lack of essential activity or exercise. Muscular weakness — lack of "tone"—permits poor posture to develop, in which the spine has a tendency to fold upon itself. The erect position gives way to the slouch. This abnormal posture places a persistent strain upon the ligamentous tissues and weakened muscles concerned in the function of the spine. The erect posture becomes uncomfortable and the sloucher "folds up" into the most comfortable posture obtainable.

Under these circumstances it seems quite obvious that no "cure" will result unless some semblance of muscular tone is restored to the areas affected. The restoration of this "tone" involves exercise; make no mistake about it. As I have stated many times previously, exercise as such does not require membership in an "athletic club". Any person with sufficient determination can find means to supply the essential efforts with what he may have at hand.

The muscles chiefly at fault are the "erectors", the muscles which draw the head and shoulders backward. One of the simplest exercises which can be used to develop tone in these muscles, merely involves lying face downward and alternately elevating the trunk and legs without assistance from the arms and hands. It is just as simple as that. Persistence in this simple exercise say for fifteen minutes night and weeks.

I repeat that anyone contemplating such activities should first consult a physician for an examination to determine the cause of the backache. If no apparent cause can be found, other than the muscular weaknses referred to, one may proceed in moderation at first and increase the tempo in accordance with one's capacity.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WE DIE A LITTLE

Every time a beloved one leaves us we ourselves die a little. The world for us becomes a little smaller, and there are interests that formerly were alive and active, but which lose some of their glow because we can no longer share them with one who has gone from us.

There is something that dies in the hearts of us all, when a widely known man or woman is taken from life, even though there may be millions who never had the opportunity of personal contact with such a one. But when one long known, and intimately, goes from us there is a personal loss that leaves us desolate and alone.

The names of mothers, fathers, and loved ones, of those whose sacrifices have been made upon the field of battle, do not appear in the casualty lists, but they are there, invisibly, nevertheless. They, too, have died a little, They, too, have rendered their toll of suffering and sorrow that freedom might still live in a troubled world.

Many years ago I read somewhere the statement that when people leave Hawaii they die a little, that something beautiful and inexplainable, faded. Twice I experienced this feeling. And many a tear was shed by people not commonly given to tear. I wondered why. But there are things that have no explanation in this world.

We die a little when we fail ourselves, when we miss out on an opportunity to be useful, or to add to the happiness of someone else. And we live anew when we do something that helps another up. Thrice blessed is that one who inspires hope, gi[illegible] comfort, and increases the fa[illegible] of another!

I read in my newspaper of a boy who wrote to his mother from Korea that he was coming home, with both legs gone, but for her not to worry, for, said he." I face the best years of my life". That kind of courage is something to challenge the faith of us all. To read such high fortitude is to wither and silence all complaints and hardships on the part of us all.

CAMPBELLFORD

Charles H. Calver Given Promotion In Liquor Board

M[illegible]les H. Calver, of [illegible]d, who was formerly th[illegible]ict supervisor of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board, has been promoted to Assistant Chief Inspector of the LLB for the Province of Ontario. The appointment has just been announced, and is an outcome of the recent shakeup in the department.

Mr. Calver will operate from the head office of the L.L.B. in Toronto, and will be away from his home in Campbellford all week.

The position he leaves will be filled by Mr. Frank B. McCulloch of Ottawa, who has arrived in Campbellford, and will take over the duties of District Supervisor immediately.

Manager Refuses To Allow Men To Ride Bull

Campbellford, Oct. 25— Two Campbellford men, Frank Brown, age 51, and Hilton Smith, a younger man, are quite disappointed. The management would not let them ride the bull at a recent rodeo show. . . .

The two men had a bet on, and despite the offer by the management that anyone who could stay on the bull for 20 seconds would receive fifty dollars in cash, the men waived all offers of money and said they would do the thing for fun. That was at the Campbellford show. Hilton stayed on the bull for a time, but Frank didn't stay on quite so long.

The men figured they could take the money next time, so followed the show to Frankford where they were all set to ride the bull again, to settle their bet as to who would stay on longer, and also to collect the fifty dollars if they could ride for the 20 seconds. This time, however, the management refused to let the men on the bull. Now the pair are hoping a new show will come along with a new bull to ride.

WALLBRIDGE

Debt on Orange Hall Paid, Note Burned

Wallbridge — A pleasant time was spent on Friday evening last when the L.O.B.A. members and L.O.L. members met in the Orange Hall, the occasion the burning of the note. The hall has been made attractive with its new floor and paint job.

All members deserve much credit for their untiring efforts in which they all worked faithfully to pay off the debt.

Mr. Hudson Ketcheson acted as chairman for the evening and all enjoyed a good program, after which appetizing refreshments were served by ladies on the committee. All returned home feeling that an evening had been well spent.

BANCROFT

Three Schools Will be Built

Bancroft — Two three-room schools at Paudash and Bird's Creek and a one-room school at Lake St. Peter will be built this fall and winter. At a recent meeting of the combined school boards of Wicklow and McClure, Bancroft-Faraday and Monteagle-Herschel the contracts for the three-room buildings were let to J. B. Hughson of Brockville and the contract for the Lake St. Peter school was given to Howard R. Davey of Almonte. The two larger schools will replace three small rural schools in Faraday township and four small rural schools in Monteagle-Herschel. At Lake St. Peter an antiquated building is being replaced with a modern structure. Approximately $50,000 each will be the cost of the larger units at Paudash and Bird's Creek and the one at Lake St. Peter will cost about $15,000.

DIES IN HARRIER RACE

Seaman Unaware He was One of Two Listed 'Missing'

Montreal, Oct. 25—(CP)—One of two Canadians reported missing after the North Voyager sank off Newfoundland Sunday turned up safe in Montreal today.

E. M. Gaudreau, 38, of Montmagny, near Quebec City, said he quit his job aboard the vessel one hour before she sailed from Philadelphia on her ill-fated voyage to St. John's, Nfld.

The seaman walked into The Canadian Press office here today with a copy of the report on the sinking of the freighter.

He said he left Philadelphia by bus shortly after quitting his job and was unaware that he was on the official list of missing crew members until he reached Montreal.

Gaudreau and seven other Canadians stayed with the North Voyager when she was sold last summer by the Clarke Steamship Company of Montreal to Bonicas Brothers, a Greek line.

Eight crew members were found clinging to a raft Monday and taken to Argentia, Nfld., by the United States coast guard cutter Sorrel.

Extradition Order Upheld by Court Against Canadian

Toronto, Oct. 25—(CP)— Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly yesterday upheld an extradition order against a Canadian citizen wanted on burglary charges in the United States.

Counsel for Arthur F. Walton, 33, of Hamilton said Walton sought refuge in Canada when released on bail pending trial in New Orleans, La. He said New Orleans police held him incommunicado and beat him to force a confession.

Walton, formerly of Edmonton, was arrested in Hamilton last June, more than a year after he crossed the border, and Judge William F. Schwenger committed him for extradition Sept. 28.

In upholding Judge Schwenger's decision, Mr. Justice Kelly said Walton had made a statement implicating himself in jewel robberies worth several thousand dollars and should not be freed without trial.

Red Papers Say Austria May Be Split in Two

Vienna, Oct. 25—(AP)—Communist newspapers openly threatened today that Austria might be split in two—the same as east and west Germany—before long.

The threat came as the Russians countermanded an Austrian government order suspending five pro-communist district police chiefs in Russian sectors of Vienna.

The suspended police chiefs still were at their desks this morning, refusing to obey orders to leave.

American intelligence officers said as far as they knew, the suspended police officers had issued no orders of a nature threatening the city's security.

The recalcitrant five—who enjoy Russian support—were suspended for firing several police inspectors who declined to sign papers pledging co-operation with the communists.

Girls: does your back ache? Is your neck stiff? Are your limbs creaking? Even so, don't give up now! Basketball is due to start about the second week in November, to take the place of these (pardon the expression) "body building exercises."

Last Wednesday's senior assembly was put on by Mr. Bradley's form G12D. Just for laughs, a quartet (we use the term loosely) sang "I'm Just a Country Boy," supplying some of their own words to the original tune. The assembly took part in a sing song. Why the mournful look when we sang "Good Night, Irene," Mr. Sloan?

The Home and School Club has started a series of programs on the local radio station Wednesday nights from 8.30 to 9.00. Parents are invited to listen because there is something to be gained from these programs.

Speaking of radio time, "Hi Time" is on the air once more, bigger and better than ever. Listen every Thursday night from 7.30 to 7.45 p.m. for Belleville Collegiate's parade of talent.

Practice is under way for the Glee Club once more and anyone passing room 309 between 12.30 and 1.30 on Tuesday noon can hear wonderful and weird harmonies from the altos and sopranos. The club is practising for a Christmas Cantata. With the high standards of the Club, it should be enjoyable listening come December 15.

The hard-working Elevator Club is busy with plans for the 1950-51 book of the year. We can't tell any secrets but it wouldn't be spoiling anything to say there's a bright future ahead for the magazine.

The Dramatic Club is at work busily preparing for the production of the play "Arms and the Man," by George Bernard Shaw. It will be presented November 16 and 17. Between acts Joan Shindell will sing the theme song "My Hero" and the band will play music from the "Chocolate Soldier," the musical based on this play, as entre-act music. Mr. Tindale, the new art instructor, is designing the scenery and Mr. Sloan is directing the play. This is something to really look forward to!

The big event of the year, the Commencement Formal, is to be held Friday, October 27.

Celebrates Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. E. Moynes and Mr. Roscoe Jenners, of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Ervon Scott, Mr. Jim Scott; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peister, Mr. Kenneth Peister, Mrs. D. Jenners and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Scott of Trenton, were entertained on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Smith of Wooler, on the occasion of the 55th wedding anniversary.

WEDDINGS

SIBLEY—ROBINSON

Tall standards of lovely autumn toned gladioli adorned the chancel of Central United Church, Calgary, Alberta, for the twilight wedding ceremony of Helen Clare Robinson, who chose the 25th wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Robinson, of Calgary, for her marriage to John Oliver Sibley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Sibley, also of Calgary. Dr. Gerald B. Switzer and the Reverend Gordon Lapp, officiated.

Mrs. Phyllis Chapman Clarke presided at the console of the organ, and accompanied Miss Barbara Draper, cellolst, who played an "Old Italian Love Song" by Sammartini; prior to the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, Greig's "I Love Thee", and "Apres un Reve", by Faure.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was charmingly gowned in a formal model of ivory chiffon velvet misted with a train-length veil of illusion net, which cascaded from a simple pearl bandeau, worn by her mother at the latter's wedding, and caught at either side with white gardenias. Styled on classic lines, her gown was designed with long lily-point sleeves and portrait neckline and sculptured long torso bodice from which the softly draped skirt extended into a cathedral train. Her bouquet was an arrangement of autumn-toned chrysanthemums centred with a bronze orchid, and a double-strand of pearls her only jewelry.

Mrs. Harvey Scott Robinson, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor; Miss Anne Knode of Fort Worth, Texas, and Miss Jane Anne Ketcheson Robinson, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids, and little Sandra Banks was flower girl. All wore formal frocks of silk faille, fashioned similarly to that of the bride's in tones of burgundy wine, bronze, leaf green and autumn gold, with matching gloves of self material. Matching floral hair bandeaux of bronze and gold baby 'mums and arm bouquets of matching flowers completed the ensembles of the senior attendants and filled the flower basket carried by the little flower girl.

Mr. Ray H. Tharpe attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Mr. Donald Skinner, Mr. Bernard Burand and Mr. William C. Hart.

The reception was held at the Glencoe Club which was profusely decorated with autumn flowers and baskets of gladioli. Pink and mauve sweetpeas and tall, white, lighted cathedral tapers flanked the four-tier wedding cake cut by the bride and bridegroom, and the three-tier anniversary cake cut by Mr. and Mrs. Robinson. The mothers of the bride and bridegroom assisted the bridal party in receiving the 200 guests.

The honors at tea and coffee urns were shared by Mrs. C. G. Egbert, Mrs. C. M. Hoar, Mrs. D. Raymond, and Miss Mabel Robinson, while those who assisted were, Mrs. E. C. Higginbotham, Mrs. Harvey Clare, Mrs. L. R. Brereton, Mrs. Fred Campbell, Mrs. B. W. Banks, Mrs Conrad Carey, Miss Marion Scott, Miss Ella Isaac, Miss Ruth Wylie, and the Misses Noreen, Suzanne and Barbara McCullough.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Judge J. W. McDonald, to which the bridegroom responded; the toast to the bridal attendants was given by Dr. E. R. Selby, and responded to by R. H. Tharpe, while the toast to the bride's parents honoring their silver wedding anniversary, was proposed by Mr. L. R. Brereton, with Mr. Robinson, responding. A special toast was proposed to Mrs. H. H. Sharples, a guest, on the occasion of her birthday anniversary.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Conrad Carey and Miss Mabel Robinson, both of Toronto, who were present at the marriage of the bride's parents, 25 years ago.

Enjoyable Social Evening Held By Women's Institute

Mountain View. —Last Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, with Mrs. Ed. Hall, the president, in the chair, the Women's Institute held a social evening in the church at which the Rednersville and Hillier branches were guests. The number of ladies present was in all, 90.

Two musical numbers and a reading, were given by all three Institutes. A humorous roll call was fairly well responded to and a general singsong, made a real enjoyable evening.

Later the ladies adjourned to the basement where card tables were set up for the serving of refreshments. Vases of baby 'mums lent a delightful air to the room.

A "Hallowe'en Frolic" is to be held on Saturday, October 28, in the garage of Mr. Stanley Barber, pies, doughnuts and coffee are to be brought. All are welcome. Prizes given for costumes. Collection at door.

WOOLER

Neighbors, Friends Present Gifts to Mr., Mrs. W. Ashby

Wooler.—Friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ashby on Monday evening to spend the evening with them and present them with gifts before they leave for the new home in Stirling.

Mr. W. H. Morrow read the address and Mrs. Morrow and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Brown made the presentation of an electric floor lamp and table lamp.

Mrs. Ashby received a china cup and saucer from the Women's Institute.

Delicious refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Ashby carry with them the good wishes of their many friends in this locality.

Toy Rocking Chair On Way to Canada In Warship

Portsmouth, England, Oct. 24—CP—A toy rocking chair which weighs about five pounds started on the long journey to Canada today in a 14,000-ton Canadian warship.

In the captain's cabin of the aircraft carrier Magnificent, which left Portsmouth for Halifax via Cherbourg, Lisbon, Gibraltar and Bermuda, stood the gaily-painted chair which Leonard Jones of Bristol built three years ago for his grandchildren in Prince Edward Island.

Jones couldn't afford to send the chair to Canada because of shipping costs. But when his wife Ethel heard that the Magnificent was in Portsmouth, she got in touch with the Canadians.

The result was a new entry in the ship's log:

"Received one chair (rocking) for conveyance to Prince Edward Island, Gulf of St. Lawrence.

And the Navy promises that when the Magnificent reached Halifax Nov. 26, a special Naval patrol will take the chair (rocking) to Mrs. Jones' daughter, Barbara, and the three grandchildren, Glen, 4, Alan, 2, and Brenda, three months.

CARMEL W.I.

The October meeting of the Carmel W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Milton Ross.

Mrs. M. Robinson read the minutes of the last meeting and gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Ross reporting for "Agriculture and Canadian Industry", gave a short talk on "It Pays to Advertise". Mrs. Clarence Barlow, reporting for Mrs. Hicks on "Historical Research", read a clipping regarding William Lyons Mackenzie's home being made into a museum and also gave an interesting talk on a tour around the Indian Reserve.

Mrs. J. Homan gave a paper on "Shortage of Teachers and Why", in connection with "Citizenship and Education". Mrs. G. Moorman, Home Economics, gave a hint on "How to Prevent a Rug from Curling". Miss M. Hicks in regard to health, read a poem entitled "Well To-morrow".

Mrs. J. Homan, Mrs. Moorman, Mrs. Patterson and Mrs. Latone were named as a committee to assist Mrs. Brintnell in decorating the collegiate for the convention. It was decided that a donation of $10 be given for the blind and also that a Hallowe'en concert be held.

The meeting was then turned over to Mrs. A. Allison and the program was opened with community singing. Mrs. Allison read a piece on "Thanksgiving". Mrs. W. Sills then favored with a solo, "Lord of Harvest"; Mrs. Allison gave an interesting account on the founding of the "First Thanksgiving Day in Plymouth, in Nov. 1621."

Following this, Mrs. C. Barlow read a poem "Father We Thank Thee". After the meeting closed refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

CONSECON

Twenty-One Teachers Attend Meeting Wellington Unit

Consecon.—On a recent evening 21 members of the Federation of Women Teachers' Association of Ontario, Wellington Unit, answered the roll call at S.S. No. 1, Hillier, Stinson Block, the guests of Miss Thelma Buell, teacher.

After the minutes of the September meeting and treasurer's report, Miss Mary Huff read and discussed the highlights of the president's bulletin. Plans were then made for the next meeting which will be a joint meeting of the two divisions of the county taking the form of a banquet in the Presbyterian church, at Picton.

Miss Buell then presented the following program: community singing with Miss Lois Doxsee, leading and at the piano; an address by Miss Barnby, Continuation principal at Consecon, on "Guidance". This was interesting to the teachers and a great many questions were asked by the group and understandingly answered by Miss Barnby.

A duet by Miss Huff and Miss Doxsee, "Kentucky Babe" and a humorous contest by Miss Tait, completed the program.

Miss Buell and her assistants served refreshments.

Later, Miss V. Payne moved a vote of thanks to Miss Buell, Miss Barnby, all those taking part in the program and the members of the lunch committee.

Acting is Strain For Ann Sheridan

New York, (AP)—Ann Sheridan revealed the other day that she is gradually giving up her career as a movie actress and will concentrate on the production end.

She has been unusually successful with her movie career, along with stage and television personal appearances, but it's been giving her too many butterflies in her stomach.

She already has one foot in the door as a producer. She has a financial interest in her new film, "Woman on the Run", by Universal-International. Rather than a salary, she is taking a share of the profits from this picture and if they're substantial Miss Sheridan will advance her ambition to become a producer rather than remain an actress.

"After I finished 'Woman on the Run' I wanted to quit being an actress," she confessed. "Much of the action in that story takes place on a carnival roller-coaster. I get dreadfully seasick on a roller coaster and my tummy started acting up as soon as we started shooting film.

"Aside from the roller coaster I had to submit to the fact that several girls who played around me in the roller coaster cars had healthy appetites. Between takes they would stroll off and return loaded with hot dogs, root beer and other refreshments. I couldn't stand it. At least, my stomach couldn't stand it."

FOXBORO UNITED CHURCH WOMAN'S ASSOCIATION

The October meeting of the Foxboro Woman's Association was held on Thursday last in the Foxboro United Church Sunday School rooms with 23 in attendance.

Mrs. B. Hollinger and Mrs. McPherson were in charge. Mrs. Gilbert read the scripture lesson from the 13th chapter 1st Corinthians and followed with The Lord's Prayer in unison.

Mrs. McPherson took the last verse of the scripture reading, as her theme and gave some interesting thoughts while Mrs. Hodgens gave a poem entitled "If". Mrs. Priest on "Memory". Mrs. Hodgens on "Charity of Thought"; Mrs. Bamber, "Hoping and Sharing"; Mrs. McPherson, "The Better Way". Mrs. Simmons rendered a solo accompanied by Mrs. Burley.

Mrs. Bamber, president, took charge of the business. Reports were given on cards, treasury and film council. It was decided to hold the regular W.A. meeting on December 14, and the three groups would meet in the first week of December.

A presentation of a pretty cup and saucer was made to Mrs. (Rev.) F. Gilbert on the occasion of her departure. The address was read by Mrs. E. Tummon on behalf of the W.A. ladies.

Mrs Gilbert thanked the ladies for their thoughtfulness. Mrs. McPherson read a humorous reading, "Kate's Agent", after which the meeting was closed and a social half hour was enjoyed by all with the ladies serving dainty refreshments in Mrs. Gilbert's honor.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge — Anniversary service at this appointment was well attended on Sunday morning. Rev. L. Gilbert of Foxboro, occupied the pulpit and gave an inspiring sermon. The choir rendered special music and the church was decorated very prettily with beautiful fall flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Wannamaker of Stirling, and Mr. Gordon Carr, and friend, Miss Isabel Galibreth of Trenton, was Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wannamaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Langabeer, of Peoria, Ill., spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris also visited with his brothers and families and his sister and husband Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pound. It has been 42 years since Arthur left his home on the 4th concession of Sidney and has been home a few times in those years and many changes has taken place in that time.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Maggie who are celebrating their 53rd wedding anniversary also to their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clair who are celebrating their 30th wedding anniversary on the same day. Their many friends wish them many more happy anniversaries.

Mr. Bleecker Ketcheson spent the past week with friends in Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bringham of Trenton called on Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris on Thursday afternoon.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

[illegible]'s engaged, but her feelings have changed

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For a little over three years I have been going out with one fellow, and up until now everything has been fine. We have been engaged for four months, but during the last two, things have changed for me, and somehow, I don't find we have anything in common any more.

I want to go out a little now and then, but he is always tired. My mother thinks he is probably older than he is willing to admit. I am 20 and he says he is 29.—B. L. A.

Dear B. L. A.:

Surely in the three years you have been going with this young man you must have come to know him well enough to determine how congenial you are. Is he behaving differently now from the way he did when you first had dates? That is, did he like to go out more than he does now, or were you so interested in him at the time when you didn't mind whether you went out or not?

It seems to me you should think about this very carefully, because it will help you decide whether it is he who has changed, or your feeling for him. In any event, you had better be frank enough to admit to him that you aren't as sure of yourself as you were, and that you'd like a little time to find out whether you really want to continue your engagement or not.

Be honest enough to tell him just what is bothering you, and explain that you are young enough still so that you like to go out more than he apparently does. You might even suggest that both of you be free to do as you please for a few months and see how you feel at the end of that time. If he really cares about you, he should be willing to go along with you in such a plan.

Keep the quartet together awhile

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Recently I found myself falling in love with my best girl friend's boy friend, and he has given me reason to believe he cares for me also. The trouble is that my girl friend is wonderful, and neither I nor this fellow would want him to do anything to hurt her.

Should I just forget him and concentrate on someone else? That would be very hard to do, as I always double-date with them and my girl friend would be very hurt if I stopped doing this. I don't care about getting hurt myself, but my girl friend has told me she loves this boy very much.—R. S.

Dear R. S.:

If you're in the habit of double-dating with this girl, what about the second boy in the quartet? Can't the four of you just keep on going out together?

It seems to me it would be silly to break up the arrangement you now have in a hurry. If you did this, perhaps a few months from now you'd find you and this boy didn't care for each other as much as you thought, and then you'd have spoiled these friendships for nothing. Give it all a little longer to work out before you do anything definite, and in the meantime, try to carry on as you have been doing.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Some champions are not content with merely smashing records. Take the case of Mr. George Howell of Vancouver, B.C. Mr. Howell, who ate 6 dozen eggs in 6 minutes, 37 and 4-5 seconds, aroused the envy of all egg eaters. But when Mr. Howell insisted on topping off his meal with a big steak, his extravagance seemed a bit unnecessary.

Dozens of reasonably priced lunch and dinner casseroles can be created with hard boiled eggs. The sauce for such bland combinations as hard boiled eggs and oysters should be tangy but not overseasoned. It should not create a reign of terror on the spice shelf.

Hard boiled eggs are best when cooked in water that is kept just below the boiling point. Overcooking will sometimes cause the dark ring between the egg yolk and white. After removing the hard eggs from the heat, plunge them at once into cold water to stop cooking. Eggs may be hard boiled by placing them in boiling water, turning off the heat and letting the eggs remain in the hot water about 25 minutes.

Clams, shrimps or any other seafood may be substituted for the oysters.

Oyster and Noodle Ring—Serves 6

3 tablespoons vegetable fat
3 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon curry powder
2 cups hot milk
2 tablespoons finely chopped onion
6 hard boiled eggs
18 large opened oysters
1-2 pound fine size egg noodles
3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Salt and pepper

Melt the vegetable fat over a low flame. Remove from fire, and stir in flour and curry powder. Gradually stir in the hot milk. Return to a small flame and simmer 10 minutes.

Add onion. Cut eggs into quarters and add to the sauce. Cut oysters into 1-2 inch squares and add to sauce. Add salt and pepper to taste. Turn off flame. Reheat just before serving.

Drop the noodles into 3 quarts boiling water to which 2 tablespoons salt have been added. Cook 5 minutes or until tender. Drain. Add melted butter to noodles. Add salt and pepper to taste. Turn into large ring mold. Unmold onto serving plate.

Turn hot sauce mixture into centre of noodle ring.

Do you want a particular recipe, or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped, envelope for his reply.—Ed.

ST. PAUL'S W.M.S. AUX.

Stirling.—St. Paul's Auxiliary of the Woman's Missionary Society met on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors with the president, Mrs. C. Macklin, in the chair, for the opening and business periods.

Miss Caldwell, corresponding secretary, read notes of appreciation for letters of condolence sent to bereaved ones. Mrs. A. E. Good, community friendship secretary, reported ten calls made. Mrs. R. Stapley, Missionary Monthly secretary, reminded the members that renewal of subscriptions to the magazine are due this month.

The president reminded the members to bring to the November meeting their gift packages for the soldiers in hospital. Mrs. George Carlisle, who had been made a life member, was presented with her Life Membership certificate at this meeting.

The program was in charge of Mrs. R. A. Patterson. The General Confession and a Psalm were read in unison.

Mrs. Dave Luery read an article on "Thanksgiving"; a solo, "Good is Good", was sung by Mrs. H. West, and Mrs. G. Carlisle read some lovely verses on "Thanksgiving".

The second chapter of the study book, "The United Church Enters Japan by Reinforcements" was reviewed with Mrs. Macklin and Miss Caldwell assisting Mrs. Patterson. The history of the W.M.S. mission in Japan; the revival of social service work, and the facts regarding social conditions in Japan were briefly surveyed.

Missionaries Sent

For over 75 years those of the United Church of Canada have sent missionaries to Japan. When the pioneer missionaries went out the church in Canada believed that Christianity is a universal religion. Today all know it to be a fact for in every land including Japan there are bands of loyal Christians. Indeed, the history of the last 100 years have proven that of all the great religions, Christianity alone can ever become the religion of the whole world. From Japan itself comes the words of Dr. Kagawa, "Without the Spirit of the Cross, Japan cannot be saved". In this belief reinforcements are being sent by all to strengthen the Christian witness in Japan.

After the meeting closed, a half hour was enjoyed when cookies and a cup of tea were served by the lunch committee.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

Stirling.—The October meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Tummon last Tuesday evening, with a splendid attendance.

Miss Gena Spry conducted the meeting which opened with a short poem on "Thanksgiving". The Scripture lesson was read which had been selected by Mrs. Charles Fargey.

Mrs. A. E. Toombs, of Campbellford, is to be the guest speaker at the November meeting.

Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh had charge of the program and read a poem entitled "Our Heavenly Bank"; Mrs. Roy Eggleton sang a solo, "Watch and Pray"; Mrs. R. H. Williams played a piano solo, Beethoven's 'Minuet in G'. Mrs. Vernon Matthews was accompanist for the hymns.

Count Your Blessings

Mrs. Don Fargey had the topic "Count Your Blessings". All long to feel a blessing in the life, and God does bless each and every one. It is only ignorance that fails to realize that God is blessing all the time.

The blessings of God become more effective and more open to the eye when the hearts are eager and thankful to receive them. He was a wise minister who wrote the words of that old hymn.

Mrs. Tummon, Mrs. McIntosh, Mrs. Walter Rodgers and Mrs. Russell Woodbeck served dainty refreshments.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Telling the engagement-news, when fiance is not present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister, who is a Marine and is stationed in a distant city, has just become engaged to a civilian who lives in that city, and on her next leave is to come home for a short visit. Only the two families know of the engagement, but when she is here Mother and Dad would like to give an engagement-announcement party. But since her fiance will not be able to come with her, would this be proper?

Her Sister

It would be proper, and very delightful, too, for your mother and father to give a party for your sister when she comes. . . but it would be in better taste to call it a "Welcome Home" party, or just a "tea", but not an engagement-announcement party". If, for instance, you give a tea, your father might rise when all the guest have arrived, and tell them the news of the engagement.

A club secretary should know how to sign her letters correctly

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just been elected secretary of a woman's club here, I am not sure how I should sign the letters I will be called on to write, and I hate to ask any member of the club about this. Will you tell me, please? The signature I have been considering using is:

Yours sincerely,
(Mrs.) John Smith

Is this correct?

Emily

No! For your direct signature to these club letters, use your informal name. . . Emily Brown Smith (this is the best form), or Emily B. Smith.

Sincerely yours,
Emily Brown Smith

Then, whenever it is necessary for you to inform the person to whom you are writing who you are or how to address a letter to you, write your formal name, Mrs. John Smith, in parentheses, under and to the left of your direct signature. Like this:

Sincerely yours,
Emily Brown Smith

(Mrs. John Smith)

When you write these letters for your club, it is most important that you sign them correctly, for in these letters you not only represent yourself, but the club as well. So you just must know what's what about proper signatures. The signature-form you had in mind . . . (Mrs.) John Smith. . . is entirely incorrect, meaningless. Never, in your signature to a letter. . . any kind of letter, business letters, professional letters, club letters, personal letters . . . sign your name with the title "Mrs." Your informal name is your signature. And when, for identification or information, you add your formal name, it should be enclosed (entirely enclosed) in parentheses . . . . (Mrs. John Smith) . . . and written under your signature.

Generous to send wedding present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A third cousin of mine, who was one of my four ushers, is to be married soon. As only close relatives are invited, I have not received an invitation. Should I give them a wedding gift? If so, should I mail it to them to avoid any embarrassment?

M. D.

It would be a fine and generous gesture for you and your wife to send a wedding present to your cousin's bride-to-be. This would show your understanding of the circumstances of their wedding, and appreciation of his service at your wedding. I suggest that you send the present from the store in which you purchase it. . . most stores have a special service for artistically wrapping wedding presents.

Seek Authority To Search House Of Pontecoro

London, Oct. 25 (CP)—Bruno Pontecorvo, the missing British atomic scientist, had no secrets which the Russians did not know already, quarters close to the government said Tuesday.

These sources said government circles are not greatly concerned at reports that Pontecorvo, who once worked at Canada's atomic-research centre, might be in Moscow.

However, it was believed the Pontecorvo affair was discussed informally at a meeting of the cabinet today.

Pontecorvo, who worked at Chalk River, Ont., late in the last war, had been at Britain's Harwell research station when he left for his Italian birthplace on a vacation. He was to have returned to take up an appointment at Liverpool University Jan. 1 but last week Rome newspapers said he had skipped out to Moscow with his wife and three children.

Traced to Helsinki

He was traced as far as Helsinki but no one is known to have seen him after that.

Security officers at Harwell were seeking authority today to search his locked and deserted house in nearby Abingdon.

More questions about Pontecorvo's disappearance are to be asked in parliament tomorrow, including a request to the government to reveal what kind of work he was doing at Harwell.

Meanwhile, two Conservative newspapers called on Britain's Labor government to plug up apparent gaps in the security controls over its atomic information.

The Daily Express said the fact that so important a scientist could be "so easily lost abroad must cause dismay to Britain's associates in the commonwealth and to her ally America."

The Daily Mail suggested the authorities should "ask everyone with access to atomic secrets to surrender his passport for, say five years, so that he could not travel abroad."

"This would not close all the gaps, but it would stop one possible source of leakage and would enable better control to be exercised."

Helsinki, Finland (AP) —"Are we now in Russia?" Antonio Pontecorvo, the five-year-old son of Britain's missing atom scientist, was reported today to have asked his parents after their arrival in Finland.

New Opportunities Created in Forces For Officers

Ottawa, Oct. 25 (CP)—Canada, her fighting services increased by 40 per cent, offered new opportunities for potential navy, army and air force officers Tuesday.

Defence Minister Claxton announced three main steps being taken to widen the scope of tri-service officer training plans to fill vacancies created by the expansion of the forces:

1. Men in the ranks will be screened with a view to selecting those with necessary qualifications and leadership qualities as officer material.
2. The plan by which Second World War veteran university students might take officer training is being widened to include non-veterans.
3. The university plan, also will extend to a limited number of students in science, engineering and the like who wish to have a career with Canada's defence research board, which makes studies of the weapons of war.

Mr. Claxton said in a statement that "the recent increase in the strength of the services by 40 per cent is creating a number of vacancies for officers in all categories.

Men picked from screening of the ranks will be qualified by one of several means, including attendance at the Canadian Service colleges for men under 20, attendance at a university for men more than 20 or technical training in trades for tradesmen having unusual qualifications.

RCAF North Star Given Send-Off In UN Air Lift

McChord Field, Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 25 — (CP) — An R.C.A.F. North Star, loaded with combat troops, was given an official send-off on the Pacific Air Lift Tues., by United States military and government officials.

The ceremony was in observance of the fifth annual United Nations Week. Officials present included the governor of the State of Washington, the mayor of Tacoma and high-ranking officers of the United States Air Force and the military air transport system which is directing the big U.N. air lift.

Wing Cmdr. C. F. Mussells of Montreal, commanding officer of R.C.A.F. 426 Squadron participating in the lift, said its members, representing Canada, were "sincerely proud" to be assigned to serve with the U.S. Air Force.

For the crew of the North Star taking part in the ceremony, the flight will be their seventh crossing of the Pacific in the service of the United Nations.

They included FO. J. B. Millar, Gainsborough, Sask., captain; Flt. Lt. C. S. Olson, Vancouver, co-pilot; FO. R. S. Reid, Toronto, navigator; FO. D. G. (Don) Selby, Font Hill, Ont., radio officer; Cpl. W. J. Hoehn, Gravelbourg, Sask., flight engineer and LAC. J. L. Lanteigne, Blanchard Settlement, N.B., air traffic assistant.

Says West Should Have Large Army On Elbe River

Bonn, Germany, Oct. 25 (AP) — Western Germany's powerful Socialist party declared Tuesday that the German people should refuse to bear arms again until the Western Allies have formed a powerful army to face Soviet Russia on the Elbe River.

Socialist chairman Dr. Kurt Schumacher said his party would approve German remilitarization only if the western powers "couple their military fate to the military fate of Germany for an indefinite period."

SEND DELEGATION

New Delhi, India, Oct. 24 — (Reuters) — Tibet is sending a delegation to Peiping, Chinese communist capital, for talks on the communist claim for control of Tibet. A seven - man delegation now in New Delhi for consultations with the Chinese communist ambassador here, will leave for Peiping Thursday.

END OF SPYING CAREER

Letters and Documents Seized By U.K. Police in Raid on Home Of Missing Atomic Scientist

London, Oct. 25 — (Reuters)—Code experts of Britain's secret service today examined letters and documents seized in a night raid on the home of Bruno Pontecorvo, missing atom scientist.

Security officials armed with a search warrant entered the locked house at Abingdon, near Harwell, Britain's atomic research station, where the Italian-born professor worked. Pontecorvo is a naturalized Briton.

Nearly 100 letters and magazines—some from abroad—had accumulated during the three months Pontecorvo, his Swedish-born wife and children had been away.

The 37-year-old scientist left England last July, ostensibly for a vacation on the continent.

From Rome he and his family flew to Sweden, then went on to Helsinki, Finland, where they vanished.

They now are believed to be in Russia.

The mystery deepened today as signs accumulated that the family had left Britain fully intending to return.

Mrs. Pontecorvo is reported to have left behind her fur coat and clothing belonging to her three children. Another report said she had sent a postcard from Rome to a neighbor in Abingdon saying they would drive their car through France on their return.

His Atomic Studies

(By ARTHUR L. EDSON)

Washington, Oct. 25 — (AP)—Britain's missing atomic scientist, Dr. Bruno Pontecorvo, could collect more than $500,000 from the United States government if all his claims for development of the atomic bomb were allowed Pontecorvo has mysteriously disappeared. Reports from Rome—thus far unconfirmed—say he and his family skipped to Russia. The naturalized British subject, reported travelling on a Canadian passport, worked at Canada's atomic project at Chalk River, Ont., during the war.

A check here today showed that Pontecorvo is one of a group of scientists who say their patent on fissionable materials was taken over by the government.

They have filed claims for $10,000,000 in the U.S. court of claims and $200,000 in the Atomic Energy Commission.

The court of claims suit was filed Aug. 21. Nothing has happened there yet. A preliminary report by an Atomic Energy Commission Board doubted the validity of the claims, but no final action was taken.

The scientists were together at the University of Rome back in the '30s. Seven of them shared in the work, but they weren't business men. They left that part of the work to G. M. Giannini, who had come to the United States. He set up the G. M. Giannini Company, Incorporated, of Pasadena, Calif.

It was agreed they'd all share equally from any proceeds, one share for Giannini, the rest for the seven scientists.

However, the Giannini firm said Monday it is relinquishing its interest in the suit because "we do not care to be associated even remotely with anyone involved or reputed to be involved in any sort of international mystery."

Pontecorvo later disposed of half of his interest, leaving him with a one-sixteenth share. One-sixteenth would amount to $681,250 in a kitty of $10,900,000.

The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 is the key to the suits.

That year Congress decided that the government, not private industry, should be responsible for the development of atomic energy for military weapons. All patents were revoked in this field, but the law said just compensation would be paid.

Halifax, Oct. 25—(CP)—A Canso flying boat winged toward Hudson Bay today to take to a Montreal hospital an unidentified man suffering from serious injuries, the R.C.A.F. reported here.

FO. Bob McFadden of Montreal, pilot, and FO. Ted Forbes of Vancouver took off from Goose Bay, Labrador, at dawn and were scheduled to arrive at Port Harrison, on Hudson Bay, in the early afternoon. They left the 103 Rescue Squadron at Greenwood, N.S. late yesterday.

Officials said the operation may be unsuccessful for two reasons: the plane may not be able to land because of floating ice; if the temperature is around freezing, the take-off from Port Harrison would be seriously affected by flying spray.

The air force said the patient will be crippled for life if he doesn't receive expert treatment soon.

ISLAND STRONGHOLD

Recent surveys indicate that the island of Malta at one time was joined to Europe, but not Africa.

It Happens at Every Election

Seattle, Oct. 25 (AP)— "It happens every election. Somebody sets the garbage dump on fire and stinks up my campaign."

So complained Dean C. McLean, county commissioner, after another blaze—third in a week—broke out yesterday in the county garbage dump.

McLean is running for re-election.

"The same thing happened two years ago," he said. "Only that time whoever did it passed out printed handbills complaining about the smoke and blaming me.

"This mistake, of course, was that they passed out the handbills before they got the fire going."

Wife's Anger Leads Her Into Trouble

Toulouse, France, Oct. 25 — (Reuters) —Pierre Debard was doing all right as a spy-hunter until he told his wife he obtained a list of communist spies by making love to a pretty secretary at the Polish consulate here.

Now Mrs. Debard is in jail for questioning because, in a rage, she stole the list from her husband's pocket and stormed indignantly into the consulate with it.

Debard is in jail on suspicion of divulging service secrets to his wife.

His only consolation: The Polish vice-consul, Alexander Skyznia, is in jail too on suspicion of espionage.

By JACK SCOTT

A GOOD GUY

This visit into the United States is fast destroying one of my most cherished Canadi[illegible] illusions; the nice old fabl[illegible] we're really different f[illegible]merican.

Most Ca[illegible] know — or, at any rat[illegible]se like us who come this way infrequently — have a pretty harsh idea of Americans. Come on, now, ain't it the truth? Don't you honestly think the Canadian is really a nicer sort of person than the American, more reserved and polite, less fiercely in pursuit of the elusive buck, steadier, soberer, sincerer? Darn right you do.

And this, it seems to me, is our greatest conceit. For whatever we think of America, we sure do under-estimate Americans and the American character.

Coming from me, this ought to have a certain mild curiosity [illegible] As a columnist I spend a lot of time looking with horror at t[illegible] kind of things that go on down here.

Only yesterday, when we were visiting in Boston, the most interesting local story of the day concerned the fight being made to ban a painting of Paul Robeson from an exhibit of portraits of great American Negroes. Which is the kind of corkscrew thinking that we in Canada sometimes ar[illegible] call "typically American."

I am one of those who hold, too, that America has plenty to answer for in its waging of the cold war. The graft and corruption in this kind of political system, the ownership and abuse of the airwaves by advertising men, the rampant racial intolerance. . . well, why go on? From north of the border there are a great many unpleasant aromas drifting our way from these United States.

So you come into the United States with the knowledge of these things and the prejudice they leave and with your nostrils twitching expectantly. And you begin meeting Americans of many types (not "typical" Americans, since there's no such animal, just as there is no "typical" Canadian), and you discover that people are pretty much the same on both sides of the 49th parallel.

Back Home

I think it was this realization that led me to splurge well beyond reader interest on four columns about a family in Maine. We'd met a lot of families in Canada. Many different types from coast to coast. And what interested me most about Johnny Longmore's U.S. family was that life for them is essentially the same as it is for those we'd come to know in our own country.

Again at Boston we spent two nights in a trailer camp and met some young people, most of them veterans with youngsters, working like the devil to scrape together enough to buy a home of their own.

Brown Eyes and I sat with two of these families until very late one night. Listened to them talk about their lives. The realities and the dreams, as well.

They simply wouldn't fit in snugly with any preconceived American type; they were modest when they should have been brash. Analytical and even cynical about politics when they might have been innocent. That talk reassured me about America as nothing else could. Later I hope to do a column about that conversation. At the moment something particular about it interests me.

One of the men, Bill Maynard, had asked me what I saw wrong with the United States. I recited my list. On many points he agreed with me. On others he presented argument. At the end, he said this: "Don't you have anything that corresponds in Canada?"

I thought it over later. Thought of that nice, refined lady in Edmonton who said we'd like such-and-such a mountain resort because "they keep the Jews out." I thought of the divorce statistics in my own province where one out of three marriages fail. I thought of those glass companies pleading guilty to a combine of fix prices. I thought of the young would-be lawyer banished for his politics. Thought of a lot of things.

None of these could be called typically Canadian." None could be taken as a guide to the Canadian character. And yet, isn't it precisely on that kind of evidence that we judge the average American? I am afraid that it is.

The Unknown

Since Washington is so keen these days to have Americans "understood" abroad (or so the syndicated pundits say) I'm wondering if they're doing anything in their propaganda to "sell" the American citizen. If we alongside in Canada are confused, what must the rest of the world be?

When we think of the American tourists abroad (the monster of all tourists), when you think of the kind of news America makes through its hoodlums and freaks, when you think of the concave carnival mirror Hollywood holds up to America for the world to see, when you think of the moronic and irresponsible quotes that come from some of its hillbilly senators, when you think of the America of the trashy, sexy best sellers—why, it's a miracle that America has any friends at all beyond its borders.

And so it seems to me tragic that the people who are the real backbone of the United States—the John Longmores, the Bill Maynards, the Frank Snows—are the unknown Americans. They represent all that is decent and understandable in an America that a lot of us outsiders view with a peculiar mixture of admiration and loathing.

But don't underestimate that forgotten American. With a little luck, he might be your neighbor.

CAMPBELLFORD

Donald Gentleman Addresses Rotary Club On "Geology"

Campbellford, Oct. 24—Mr. Donald Gentleman of the teaching staff of Campbellford High School was guest speaker at the Monday noon luncheon of the Rotary Club. Mr. Gentleman gave an interesting talk on "Geology" and dealt with the exploration for gold and radium in the North Section of Manitoba and in the N.W.T.

Working on a government survey during the war, Mr. Gentleman, described rock structure and the workings of a Gieger counter and told of aerial surveys by the R.C.A.F. who mapped the area.

Mr. Gentleman worked out of Goldfields for a while and at that time, during the war, the town was deserted and could well be described as a ghost town. The town has recently been reopened and it is once again the thriving place it was a number of years ago.

Two guests at the luncheon were Mr. Wickens, who recently purchased Edgewater Park Pavilion in Campbellford, and Mr. Frank B. McCulloch who is replacing Mr. Charles H. Calver as district supervisor of the LLB following the latter's promotion and appointment to Assistant Chief Inspector.

Each member present at Monday's meeting was given a $5 bill and told to bring back another of the same, along with the original, before Christmas. The members were told they could invest the money or do anything they saw fit as long as it was legitimate. The $10 each member should bring back will be used to help the club's crippled children's fund.

Gloomy Picture Of Future Meat Stocks Painted

London, Oct. 25 (AP) — A gloomy picture of future meat stocks in Britain has been painted by the executive council of the National Federation of Meat Traders' Association.

After criticizing Food Minister Maurice Webb for his "optimistic prediction" that imports from Australia could be increased vastly in the near future, the council recorded that lack of dollars is preventing Britain from trying to buy carcass meat in the United States and Canada.

The report added:

"Now, due to the continued hecklings over prices and exchange rates, we have no pregnant agreement for meat with Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil or Chile. Imports from the Irish Republic in 1949 were also five-eighths of the 1938 tonnage figures. The shortfall of meat imports from Australia was fortunately offset by the increase in supplies from New Zealand. Supplies from Denmark were less than two-thirds of the 1938 figures, and Holland is down to approximately three-fifths. The over-all import figure, with the sole exception of New England, is therefore a gloomy one."

The council admitted that home production is increasing, but "we are confronted with the stark fact that the Ministry of Food have insufficient slaughter houses in operation to cope with a higher peak kill."

"The foregoing remarks all point to a peculiar situation arising in the future which, although it promises an ample supply of home-killed beef during the latter part of each year, threatens a dearth of meat during the first half of the year if contracts are not signed or fulfilled.

The council demanded the return of the meat business to the trade.

QUINTS CREATE CONFUSION

Thousands jammed Montreal's Windsor Station to glimpse the Dionne Quintuplets as they arrived Sunday from their trip to New York. The crowds foiled attempts to smuggle the quintet out quietly and the station was in confusion for half an hour. They finally were herded into a baggage elevator while police filled two cars as decoys. The famous five visited the Archbishop of Montreal and left for Ottawa two hours later. — (CP Photo.)

Churches Refute Proclamation By R.C. Faith

London, Ont., Oct. 25 — (CP)—The London Council of Churches, composed of nearly every Protestant religion in the city Tuesday endorsed a Church of England statement refuting the proclamation by the Roman Catholic Church that the body of the Virgin Mary rose into Heaven after she died and that belief in this is necessary to be a Christian.

They called on all clergy to "warn your people of the error being promulgated."

Pope Pius XII recently announced he will proclaim on Nov. 1 that the doctrine of the bodily assumption of the Blessed Virgin into Heaven be henceforth an article of faith.

Roman Catholicism has "gravely injured the growth of understanding between Christians based on a common possession of the fundamental truths of the Gospel," the statement said.

"There is not the smallest evidence in the Scriptures or in the teaching of the early church of belief in the doctrine of the bodily assumption. The church refuses to regard as requisite for a saving faith any doctrine or opinions which are not plainly contained in the Scriptures.

"We profoundly regret that the Roman Catholic Church has chosen by this act to increase dogmatic differences in Christendom.

"The church does not and can not hold this doctrine to be necessary part of the Christian faith, belief in which must be required of members of the church."

U.S. Dollars Must Keep Flowing Into Dominion

Atlantic City, N.J., Oct. 25 — (CP) —Ronald A. McEachern of Toronto, editor of the Financial Post said today that Canada can continue to be the United States' best customer only as long as U.S. dollars keep flowing into Canada.

In an address prepared for delivery to a convention of the Life Insurance Advertising Association, he said:

"Canada is your best friend and your best customer. Canada's ability to buy your goods is of direct pocketbook interest to your business, to all your employees, to all your citizens. We can continue to be your best customer only if you in your trade, tariff and other policies make it possible for us to get the U.S. dollar exchange which will permit us to buy more from you."

Canada had been "quite literally transformed" in the last 10 years. Her population had increased 16 percent to 13,500,000. The number of her people employed had gone up 40 percent, while total output of goods and services had advanced 75 percent.

"To achieve 75 percent more production with 40 percent more workers is a significant index of the character and extent of the revolution which has taken place. And the average Canadian standard of living has risen 51 percent over what it was 10 years ago.

"As a nation, we are drinking one-third more milk, eating two-thirds more pork, paying two-thirds more movie admissions and buying 75 percent more new houses than we did 10 years ago. We are using twice as much gasoline, chewing twice as much gum and drinking more than twice the amount of whiskey.

"Your country has a big stake in Canada. You have a larger capital investment in businesses and resources in Canada than in all other countries combined."

John Bull to Let Feelings Loose Thursday as New House of Commons Opened

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 25—(CP)— John Bull is a game guy who likes to keep his deeper feelings under control, but tomorrow is the day he throws his top hat in the air.

The occasion is the official opening of the new House of Commons, and across the land there'll be a warm glow of pride as another chapter unfolds in the long history of the mother of parliaments.

For once there'll be a lump in the throat instead of the stiff upper lip; unabashed sentiment instead of stony silence. Britain respects her parliamentary institutions.

Perhaps because its roots go deeper, perhaps because it grew up the hard way, the British House of Commons has an authority and commands an affection that no other Commonwealth parliament has achieved.

Members of what is sometimes called the "best club in Europe" are persons of some eminence in the community, and the old forms are revered. By contrast, the Canadian attitude towards parliament sometimes may be more casual.

That's why the new commons chamber, rebuilt at a cost of £2,000,000 (about $6,000,000) on the ashes of the old, seeks to preserve the pattern and the spirit of the past. The planners could have built a great new hall capable of seating all 625 members. Instead they kept it small and cosy.

There are only 437 seats, and of these just 346 are on the floor of the house.

Few Modern Touches

The idea is to preserve the intimacy of a forum where conversational tones are referred to the rhetoric of set speeches.

There will be a few modern touches. Among other things, there will be a system of acoustics guaranteed to outwit every echo, the latest in loudspeaking equipment and novel air conditioning designed to reproduce the feeling of a fine spring day outdoors.

Air will be pumped into the chamber horizontally instead of vertically, and an engineer will be sitting at a periscope regulating the flow of freshly-laundered air. The set-up is so elaborate one nimble wit has already christened the new chamber the "Iron Lung."

In case there are any hitches, a hotplate has been installed in the Speaker's chaisdom to keep Mr. Speaker's feet warm in cold weather.

With all these flourishes, the real story of Thursday's official opening is the continuity of the parliamentary tradition.

A fitting slogan for John Bull's new house would be the words Winston Churchill pronounced May 7, 1941—three days before the Germans bomblasted the old chamber:

"Let it roar and let it rage; we shall come through."

FREIGHTER INTO DRYDOCK

Halifax, Oct. 25 (CP) — The Spanish freighter Monte Inchorta which sank in Halifax harbor Oct. 12 after an unsuccessful three day attempt to quench flames in her holds, will go into drydock here for repairs, it was learned today.

The 3,500-ton freighter was raised Sunday and attempts will be made to salvage her cargo which was destined for Bilbao, Spain.

North Atlantic Countries May be Able to Create Force Much Faster Than Hoped

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Oct. 25—(AP) — The 12 North Atlantic countries, banded together for defence against communist armed might, may be able to create a bigger force and do it faster than their military planners have hoped.

This prospect, cheering to a nervous western world, developed out of the opening session yesterday of the military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty organization.

It resulted, essentially, from three things:

1. The urgent plea by Gen. Omar Bradley of the United States to the committee for action now to bring into being an integrated land, sea and air force to resist any new military thrusts by Russia or her communist satellites.

2. A move in the military committee, sparked by one of the smaller countries, to contribute to the combined defensive organization a larger force than had been blueprinted.

3. The overt act of communism —bringing war to Korea—which has stepped up the tempo of rearmament by most of the Atlantic powers, whether or not they are fighting in the far eastern conflict.

A spokesman for the American delegation to the conference didn't identify the small country that set off the move to speed up formation of the combined forces, but he said the idea immediately gained approval from the other chiefs of staff who represent the treaty members.

Applies To All Phases

He said the idea for speeding up applies to all phases of the plan —the immediate, emergency action to get a defensive force into existence, intermediate steps to follow that, and also in what had been considered as the "long-range future."

But the agreement of the military chiefs of staff on the idea of providing forces faster and making them bigger was only a first step.

The proposal and a multitude of other details arising in yesterday's discussion compelled the military committee to recess until tomorrow, instead of finishing business in one day, while the chiefs today consult their superiors in Washington and at their home capitals.

Actually, whatever the military committee does constitutes only recommendations on which the high-level committee of defence ministers will act at a meeting on Saturday and which that committee, in turn, may send on to the council of foreign ministers of the treaty powers Canada will be represented by Defence Minister Brooke Claxton.

Fenders Crunched As Truck Roadeo Gets Under Way

Toronto, Oct. 25—CP—The Canadian Championship Truck Roadeo got under way Tuesday to the tune of crunching fenders.

Three of the 60 drivers in elimination rounds of the three-day contest found the competition harder on fenders than bucking highway traffic. In addition, one truck had its right headlight broken by one of the obstacles in the indoor course.

Drivers found the straight-line test hardest, only three successfully negotiated obstacles that give the heavy dual truck wheels just a four-inch clearance.

Tuesday's eliminations narrowed the field to 12 each in the straight truck and semi-trailer divisions. In addition, provincial champions and last year's winners advance into the finals of the contest, staged annually by the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario.

Among Ontario drivers advancing in the straight truck division were Alexander Elliott, William K. Johnston and [illegible] Postill, all of London; Donald Fitzpatrick of Burlington and Harley Cathcart of Peterborough.

Qualifiers for the quarter-finals in the semi-trailer division included Joseph E. Long and George F. Cumming, London; Oscar Breault, Chatham; Wray A. Cunningham, Ingersoll; Allan Sheperd, Burlington, and G.E. Townsend, Hamilton.

Many Cattle Still on Pasture

Toronto, Oct. 25. (CP)—Mild fall weather, which hasn't been doing Ontario's winter wheat much good, has given promise of better beef and more plentiful autumn milk supplies.

This was noted in this week's Ontario Agriculture Department report, which said cattle have been on pasture in most sections of the province and are still out.

In Huron County, for instance, it was reported that there had been no drop in milk production and that farmers with feeder cattle were fattening them up on fall grass before stabling them. This is expected to cut beef production costs to some extent.

Dairy herds were also producing well in Simcoe, and feeder cattle were certain to start the winter in excellent condition. Even as far north as Cochrane South, cattle were still on pasture.

House Shortage Causes Trouble In Australia

By LOUIS L. LECK

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Australia has a shortage of 250,000 homes for a population of about 8,000,000. And the population is growing every year at the rate of 125,000 by natural increase and another 200,000 immigrants.

But Australia is building homes at the rate of only about 60,000 a year. The housing shortage has led to all kinds of family tragedies and black market abuses.

Most familiar of the rackets is "key money," a cash payment for the keep of an empty house or apartment. The practice is illegal, but it's common.

The Sydney Sun recently published an article by a correspondent who had advertised a flat for rent. He received 600 applications from all sorts of people.

They pleaded, begged, cajoled, promised bribes, offered to paint, renovate, care for the flat "as if it were our own" offered rewards and presents.

Some made the sky the limit in rent and made vague references to that post-war phenomenon—the "key."

Others were candid on the key. "Willing to pay £100 for the key, mum's the word" said one unhappy applicant.

Numerous Pleas

Almost all the letters stressed the buoyant incomes of their respective families (half of the couples were both working and described themselves as business couples.)

Three-quarters of the applicants said they neither smoked, drank, kept late hours, gambled, had parties, or, as one man put it, "troubled with no vices at all."

One applicant stressed that she had "relatives in parliament" and a bookmaker's wife promised that her husband's professional advice "would mean a steady income for you."

One in every four of the letters was from a couple getting married in the next few weeks and without a home to go to after the honyemoon.

Wrote one young man:

"We will be back from our honeymoon at the end of November. Believe me, it is not a very pleasant feeling to have nowhere to take your future bride. Please help us make a start in life . . ."

There were over 100 like him, telling stories of postponed weddings, years of engagements . . . waiting, waiting, waiting.

"We are genuine people and desperate" wrote one young wife. "We live in one little room and don't mind what rent we have to pay to get away from this misery. After being married for five years, I still answer ads every week . . . ."

BLIGHT SPREADING

Backstage at Ottawa

Blair Fraser, Maclean's Ottawa editor, and well-known radio commentator, reveals from the nation's capital:

- Why the Progressive Conservatives suddenly dropped out of the three Quebec by-elections.
- That the conscription issue is again in Cabinet discussions.
- That the 50 volumes of Mackenzie King's diary may go up in flames.

HOW TO GET RICH SELLING HOUSES. In 1946 Ernest Ridout left his milk wagon to grab a ride on the housing boom. With a weak heart and the gift of gab he set out ringing doorbells to put himself on top of the real-estate heap. And he's still only 31.

EAST-ZONE POLICE SOLDIERS FLEE TO SAFETY OF U.S. SECTOR IN BERLIN

These two pictures graphically illustrate the escape of two communist police-soldiers from the Soviet zone of Berlin to the U.S. sector, where they gave themselves up and will join other refugees from Soviet-controlled areas in a camp established by the West Berlin city government. The two police-soldiers, whose names cannot be used because their families still live in the Russian zone, had approached a passerby who notified a West police patrol and the surrender was arranged. Left, two men, their eyes etched out to prevent recognition, approach the U.S. sector and are questioned by patrol units. At the approach of Russian patrols, the two literally run for their lives, right, while a border guard peers over his shoulder. They made the west police station, around the corner, safely. — Central Press Canadian.

BALLOT WITHOUT MEANING

In the elections held in East Berlin by the Soviet authorities ballot papers had no place for "yes" or "no," merely the name of the Russian chosen candidate, so that the act of handing in a ballot paper meant a vote for these men. More than a thousand districts registered 100 per cent participation and the "victory returns" ranged from 95 per cent to 99.8 per cent. The balloting of this voter is watched closely by "scrutineers" of the party. — Central Press Canadian.

FLORIDIANS EXPECT ANOTHER BLOW

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TO BE OR . . .

Royal Canadian Air Force puckchasers at Trenton and No. 6 Repair Depot are gazing into crystal balls at the moment wondering what the future holds for them.

While they are more or less sure of an inter-sectional league, the boys in blue have had nothing laid down as yet as far as Intermediate Ontario Hockey Association activities are concerned.

While both the Trenton Flyers and the 6 Repair Depot have the nucleus of intermediate squads at their respective stations, lack of ice has prevented the powers that be from arriving at an actual estimate of player strength.

Up around Sergeant Mike Kelly's hunting grounds at the South Station, postings and the old fellow with the scythe and whiskers have made sharp inroads into the personnel of last year's team.

"Brack" Brackenbury is still around but will probably hang up the gear. Nicky Sargent, that elusive little centre, it is reported will confine his hockey activities to the Tech-Wing squad. Millar has been posted to another station. Mac McLeod's official duties will take him far afield at intermittent periods and he will not be available. "Pops" Lawlor will go overseas at the first of the year.

It is understood that a player or two or three of senior calibre have been posted to No. 6 Repair Depot, but the Tigers, like their compadres at the South Station have also lost strength through postings and whatnot.

As a matter of fact, a few weeks ago, Group Captain Greene, commanding officer of No. 6 Repair Depot told this reporter that it was extremely doubtful if his station operated an intermediate team this season. It appears the squad, like all others, took a financial beating and the RCAF like other hockey orchards do not have trees on which the bucks bloom.

Meanwhile other teams of the Lakeshore Intermediate League are champing on their respective bits and are anxious to get underway. Bowmanville, Port Hope and Cobourg have signified their intentions to enter a team. All three teams have artificial ice in their respective arenas and probably have plenty of practice sessions under their belts.

OHA executive member Frank Buckland, Peterborough has called a meeting of the intermediates at either Port Hope or Cobourg for Monday night next, and it is expected the group will get underway shortly after the master-minds draw up the schedule. At time of writing Mr. Buckland has had no word from the RCAF teams here as to their intentions.

Incidentally the schedule of the Junior "B" Group consisting of Belleville, Peterborough, Lindsay, Oshawa and Port Hope has been delayed a day or so due to the fact that Port Hope had a change of mind regarding its nights of play and the sked had to be redrafted. It probably will be along within a day or so.

Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins have the youngest teams in the National Hockey League this season. The Leafs, known for their youthful clubs the past few years, have an over-all team average among the 19 players on their roster of 24.9 years. Average age of the 18 players on the 1950-51 edition of the Boston Bruins is an even 25 years.

Montreal Canadiens, oldest team in the League last season, have youthfulized their club considerably this season, and are now the third youngest sextet in the circuit. Average age of the 18 wearers of the bleu-blanc-rouge is 25.7 years. Detroit Red Wings are the next youngest team in the League. The 19 players on the roster of the Stanley Cup champions average 25.8 years per player.

Chicago and New York, the two biggest cities in the N. H. L., have the most veterans on their clubs. The average age of the 19 members of the Black Hawks is 26.6, while the average age of the 19 players on the New York Rangers is an even 27 years.

The Rangers have six players on their roster who've had 30 or more birthdays. Chicago has five players in the 30 or better category. Detroit and Montreal each have three players 30 years or above on their rosters, while Boston and Toronto each have two players who've gone over the 30 mark.

The two "babies" of the N. H. L. this season are Paul Masnick of Canadiens and Danny Lewicki of Toronto. These youthful forwards are both 19, but Masnick was born in March, 1931, and is one month younger than Lewicki. There are five players in the League who are just 20. Lorne Ferguson and Dave Creighton of Boston are 20, as are Terry Sawchuk and Marcel Pronovost of Detroit and Jackie McLeod of Rangers.

Turk Broda, venerable goaltender of the Toronto Maple Leafs, is the oldest player in the National League at 36. Buddy O'Connor of the Rangers and Doug Bentley and Roy Conacher of Chicago are second to Broda in point of years. All three have celebrated their 34th birthday. Chicago's Jack Stewart and Boston's Woody Dumart are next at 33, while six players report in at 32 years of age. They are Pat Egan, New York; Billy Reay and Elmer Lach, Canadiens; Joe Carveth and Sid Abel, Detroit; and Milt Schmidt, Boston.

The average N. H. L. player this season is 25.8 years of age. Last season the average age was 25.5, while two years ago the average player was 25.4 years of age.

It's a Long-Shot View but Don't Be Surprised to See Thompson As General Manager of Dodgers

By JACK HAND

Branch Rikey? Running the show at Pittsburgh.

They ran off the second chapter yesterday in the serial entitled "what happens to Rickey?" Now the answer is supposed to come tomorrow.

One thing came out of yesterday's second press conference in two days. O'Malley and Mrs. John L. Smith are going to buy out Rickey and take control of the Dodgers.

The price, reported to be $1,050,000 with $50,000 ticketed for William Zeckendorf as a "commitment fee," means the Dodgers are worth more than $4,000,000. Rickey's share was only 25 per cent.

O'Malley, presiding at a press conference at which Thompson, Brooklyn farm director, was an interested spectator, shed no light on Rickey's future.

Rickey still may wind up in Brooklyn as a salaried employe of his old partners. Rickey, O'Malley and the late John Smith each owned 25 per cent of the Dodgers. They had an agreement to give the others first chance if they wanted to sell.

When Rickey agreed to sell to Zeckendorf, O'Malley scurried to dig up the cash to buy the stock. He says he and Mrs. Smith will complete the deal "well in advance" of the late January deadline.

Expires Saturday

In the meantime Rickey's contract as general manager expires Saturday. It has not been renewed. The board of directors meets tomorrow to decide what to do.

Although Rickey says he has "no offers" the Pittsburgh thing is still red-hot. First he wants to know how he stands at Brooklyn.

If Rickey goes, as seems likely, the Brooks will have only one man—Thompson—who knows all the inner workings of the far-flung organization. It is expected Branch Rickey, Jr., will go along with his dad.

Branch, Jr., and Thompson have run the Brooks farm system in recent years.

O'Malley insists he has given no thought to the matter of a manager for 1951. But if Rickey goes, it is believed that Burt Shotton will go to.

Reese, highly regarded as potential managerial talent although still a first-rate shortstop, stands aces high with O'Malley. He is out front in the early running but the race may continue until the December meetings in St. Petersburg, Fla.

Rockey Graziano Returns to Garden To Meet Janiro

Greenwood Lake, N.Y., Oct. 25—AP—Rocky Graziano is back near home again and contented with life.

Friday night he returns to Madison Square Garden—"my second home"—to fight Tony Janiro of Youngstown, O., in a 10-round bout that will reopen the Garden fight season and bring in plenty of cash.

"Right now I'm going to fight Janiro," the Rock says. "Nice kid, but I'm going to knock him out. Then I'll take on some of the contenders."

How about fighting Jake LaMotta for his title

"Jake can keep that for a while," says Rocky. "You know all I got with that title was trouble—suspensions and what not. I'm beginning to feel like that title was a jinx."

"What I want now is the dough. And I'm going to hold on to it."

Touchdown Club Of McGill Poking Fun at Somebody

By The Canadian Press

The McGill Touchdown Club is poking fun at somebody—by paid advertisement, too.

Last week there was a flutter of football fulmination, sparked by a story in the Toronto Telegram, suggesting subsidization of McGill University's football players. It even brought sharp denial from President F. Cyril James of McGill.

An advertisement yesterday in a Montreal newspaper reads:

"Toronto papers
"Should explain
"That when you lose
"You don't complain."

It was signed "McGill Touchdown Club."

Yesterday's version:-

"Let's give credit
"Where credit's due
"Our football players players
Are students too."

Trick pitching, the knuckle balls, "ford balls", and sliders, can be murder on a pitcher's arm, Dr. Robert Hyland said Tuesday.

The unnatural motions in throwing these pitches can permanently injure his elbow, the St. Louis surgeon, an expert on baseball players' injuries, told the American College of Surgeons at Boston. The trick pitching is striking a growing number of pitchers right out of their careers, he said.

Ball players can play longer if they listen to top-notch medical advice on how to use their arms and bodies, Dr. Hyland said.

"A pitcher can and should be taught to develop and use only those types of delivery which conform as far as possible to the normal movements of his shoulder and elbow joints."

Sliders and knuckle balls can twist the arm so much that bits of membranes and tissues are rubbed off. These bits lodge in tendons and ligaments and cause pain.

Hugh Bolton, rookie defenceman for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, will be out of action for three more weeks, coach Joe Primeau said Tuesday following a practice session.

Bolton, scheduled to skate Tuesday, suffered complications to a knee injury incurred in preseason training at the Leafs' St. Catharines training camp. Primeau said he will have only three defencemen when Leafs face Detroit in Toronto tonight.

Defenceman Bill Barilko is also out with injuries, but is expected back in action Saturday.

Paul Meger, second highest scorer in the American Hockey League, will be out until Sunday and possibly a week longer with a broken nose.

Meger, left-winger on the league's high-scoring "Money Line" of Buffalo Bisons, had his nose broken in two places Sunday night as the team lost a rough game to Hershey Bears 5-4.

Ralph Zannelli had to pay $350 to regain his new England welterweight title at Providence, R.I., Monday night.

It happened this way:

Zannelli agreed to take 50 per cent of the net receipts and guarantee his opponent, Don Williams $2,000.

But only 2,566 persons showed up and the net receipts were only $3,300. Thus Zannelli collected $1,650 as the 50 percent share.

So he fought for nothing and had to pich in $350 from his own pocket to make up the Williams guarantee.

Ed (Whitey) Ford, rookie left-handed pitcher of New York Yankees, was accepted for army duty Tuesday. He was 22 Saturday.

Rangers Open NHL Season With Silver Sticks But There Will be No Patricks

(By The Canadian Press)

New York Rangers start their silver anniversary season in New York tonight with silver sticks but no Patricks.

The sticks won't be real silver, just painted wood as a sentimental sign that the Rangers are playing their 25th season in the National Hockey League.

But this game will be the first time that the Rangers have played in New York without a Patrick—first Lester and then Lynn—at the helm. To make it worse, the Patrick will be in the enemy's camp.

Lynn, who shifted over to coach Boston Bruins this season after almost winning the Stanley Cup with Rangers last year, will be leading his new charges into Madison Square Garden for the first time this year.

The game is important to both teams, who played a scoreless draw Sunday night in Boston. The Bruins are still looking for their first victory after four starts. The Rangers, whose home opening was delayed by a rodeo, haven't done much better with only one win and a draw in five games on the road.

Wings Meet Leafs

Meantime, Detroit Red Wings meet the Maple Leafs at Toronto with the Leafs looking for a victory that will hurdle them over the idle Montreal Canadiens into first place, and the third-place Wings trying to tie Toronto for second position.

It was back in 1926 that the Patricks and the Rangers first became synonymous. Lester, chosen to guide the new N.H.L. club as manager-coach, stayed for 20 years, seven times winning the Stanley Cup.

Once, his hair even then silver, he won the world hockey championship for them by stepping into the nets when the regular goalie was hurt in Montreal and giving a memorable performance.

In 1946 Lester stepped up into the front office and Frank Boucher took over as coach while Lynn was being groomed for the job. Last summer the elder Patrick severed his connections with the club and returned to Victoria Cougars in the Pacific Coast League.

Tonight there'll be the usual opening game ceremonies for New York fans. League president Clarence Campbell will present the Hart Trophy to goalie Chuck Rayner, last year's winner of the most-valuable-player award. And centre Edgar Laprade will get the Lady Byng Trophy as the player best combining sportsmanship with effectiveness.

Then of course there'll be the silver sticks. Many of the fans will no doubt forget the silver anniversary and choose to regard them as a tribute to the departed "Silver Fox".

McLaughlin Bows Out of Canadian Racing Picture

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP) —Col. R. S. McLaughlin, millionaire sportsman who made a fortune on automobiles and spent a lot of it on thoroughbreds, today, bowed out of the Canadian racing picture. And the carefully-groomed 470-acre estate which housed his nationally-known Parkwood Stable at Oshawa, Ont. made way for the country's first national stud.

The last link of Col. McLaughlin's ties with racing was severed last night at a public auction with a sale of 45 Parkwood Stable occupants—stallions, mares, geldings, colts and fillies—for a $78,325 total. It included thoroughbreds that had won hundreds of thousands of dollars on Canadian and American tracks as well as many potential money-earners.

The stable that sent three King's Plate winners to the wire and produced Kingarvie — the country's all-time leading money winner among Canadian - bred thoroughbreds—will be operated only as a stud farm. "We shall do no racing," owner E. P. Taylor of Toronto said.

"We shall send five or six first class sires there and the idea is to provide a means for persons who own, two or three mares and who have not farms, to leave them there," Taylor told the gathering of buyers and onlookers. The Toronto industrialist bought the farm last month for an undisclosed amount.

There were a few lumps in the throat as the thoroughbreds were led around the ring at Woodbine track in Toronto's east end. Highest price, $10,700 was paid for Nephisto, three-year-old bay gelding, considered one of the outstanding horses campaigning in Canada. It went to the Nelly-established three V's stable of Toronto.

Bought by Trainer's Wife

Kingarvie, magnificent seven-year-old chestnut gelding by Teddy Wrack and Forsworn and winner of the 1946 King's Plate, realized $5,400. Winner of $93,860 in its still active career, it was bought by Mrs. Arthur Brent wife of the trainer who groomed i. during its campaign in Canada and the United States.

Then there was Fairaris, which ran the fastest nine furlongs in North America in 1942 when he won the Peter Pan Handicap at Belmont Park in 1:48.2. Sire of Nephisto and winner of $21,560 in its racing career, the 11-year-old chestnut stallion was bought by the National Stud for $5,500.

Teddy Wrack, which sired Kingarvie and Moldy, King's Plate winner in 1947, also was bought by the National Stud. The 12-year-old bay stallion's price was $6,000, second-highest of the sale which averaged more than $1,700 a thoroughbred.

Big Buyer

Charlie Hemstead, Toronto hotel owner, was the big buyer of the sale. He paid $5,700 for Corwynt, two-year-old bay colt which won three races this year and is entered in the 1951 King's Plate at Woodbine and the Canadian Derby at Winnipeg. His other purchases were Sataris, year-old bay gelding, for $4,800 and a bay filly, eligible for the 1953 King's Plate at a $700 price.

Out-of-town buyers came from Winnipeg, Windsor, Kitchener, Ottawa, Montreal and the U.S.

R. J. Speers of Winnipeg paid $600 for Pine River, three-year-old bay colt, and J. Jackson, also from Winnipeg, paid $450 for Teazerette, two-year-old bay filly which didn't place in four races this year.

Dave Zakoor of Windsor, Ont., bought Salariel, two-year-old black gelding, for $2,400, and Nick Angelo, Kitchener, Ont., paid $2,600 for Caractacus, year-old chestnut gelding. Steve Chris, also from Kitchener, paid $600 for a brown filly, eligible for the 1953 King's Plate.

The two-year-old chestnut filly, Marakina, was bought for $1,600 by Mrs. C.H. Tonyers of Ottawa, and W.C. Pitfield, Montreal, paid $700 for Smoky Miss, four-year-old chestnut filly.

Sentenced at Brockville

Brockville, Ont., Oct. 24—(CP) —John J. McCauley, 57, of West Saint John, N.B., was convicted last night by an Ontario Supreme Court jury on charges of theft, breaking into Wall St. United Church and possession of housebreaking tools after dark.

He was sentenced to two years less a day in prison on the first charge and four months on the second, the terms to be served concurrently.

Black Hawks From Galt Win Fourth Straight

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros, last season's Allan Cup champions, make their 1950-51 debut tonight. They met the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen at Kitchener in the tightly-packed Ontario Hockey Association Senior 'A' circuit.

Marlies, a Toronto Maple Leafs farm club, step into the league with their three rivals —Hamilton Tigers, Toronto St. Michael's College and Kitchener —all tied for first place with one victory each.

St. Mike's moved into the tie last night by blanking Hamilton 4-0 in the first game of the year for the Irish.

In the Junior 'A' series, Waterloo and St. Catharines struggled to a 7-7 tie at St. Catharines, Guelph defeated Windsor 6-4 at Guelph and Galt beat Oshawa 5-1 at Galt.

St. Mike's and Tigers battled through a scoreless first period last night in Hamilton, then Gordon Hannigan, a former Marlboro, exploded for two goals in the second period. John Meldrum and Larry Kennedy each found the mark in the final.

Galt's win over Oshawa — fourth straight for the Black Hawks—moved them into a first place tie with Barrie Flyers. Johnny Sleaver, Jack Price and Bob Carruthers scored for Galt in the first period.

Held Edge in Play

The Generals held the edge in play during the second frame but were unable to beat Clark Sommerville, Galt's starry net-minder who has been scored on only three times in six games this year. Alex Delvecchio robbed Sommerville of a shutout late in the final period. Len Cooke and Ken Wharram finished off the scoring for Galt.

By beating Windsor, Guelph Biltmores vaulted past the idle Stratford Kroehlers into second place, two points behind Barrie and Galt.

Brown put the Spitfires ahead in the first period only to have Willy Marshall tie it up in the second. Then goals by Chuck Henderson, Blair, Andy Bathgate and Herby Dickenson in rapid succession shot Biltmores far ahead. Windsor replied with another goal by Brown and markers by Elmer Skov and Eddie Joss but Aldo Guidolin sank one more for the Biltmores with eight seconds remaining.

The St. Catharines game was the first point of the season for the Waterloo Club, new entry in the circuit this season. Teepees have tied three games, but have yet to win on their home ice in regulation time.

Movie Column

Hollywood, Oct. 24—AP—To bare or not to bare. That is the question debated by two rising young film actors.

In one corner is Anthony Curtis, who told me recently that he jumped [illegible] dom after he stripped [illegible] ach for some "beefcake." His gal fans went wild [illegible] his exposed frame.

Now comes Keefe Brasselle, who says "leg art should be left to the glamor girls." He took sharp issue with Curtis' claim that showing the torso is a short-cut to success.

Famed Frame

First of all, Brasselle emphasized that his build can stack up against Curtis or any of the other glamor boys.

"I've done picture layouts at the beach myself," he said, "so I have nothing to hide. But lately I've turned down five requests for swimsuit picture spreads. . . .

"I don't think there is anything exciting about beefcake. The mail I get from fans proves that. They mention my eyes, my face, but not my chest."

Raft Tops

"George Raft can put across sex better than any man in the movies," he claimed. "Not because he displays his chest, but because he is perfectly groomed at all times."

"The same goes for Clark Gable."

Brasselle also named Cary Grant, Laurence Oliver and Ronald Colman as examples of stars who have exuded sex without going shirtless.

Wonder whatever happened to the theory that actors just had to know how to act

Hollywood, Oct. 25 (AP) —Al Jolson is home today for the last time.

The cantor's boy whose voice thrilled millions will lie in state in his suburban Encino residence as friends pay their final respects to the great entertainer who died Monday night in San Francisco.

The body arrived by plane late yesterday and the flower-draped casket was taken to a mortuary in a small grieving procession.'

Mrs. Jolson—the singer's fourth wife, the former Erle Galbraith—was too grief-stricken to meet the airborne cortege.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow noon at Temple Israel on the Hollywood Boulevard, a street where his name appeared in blazing lights so many times. Interment will be in nearby Glendale.

Ruby Keeler, the former Halifax dancer who was Jolson's third wife—they were divorced in 1939—last night paid tribute to the entertainer.

"The world has lost a great figure," she said. "That his end was sudden is a blessing. Al had too much driving energy to have tolerated a lengthy illness."

"I ALWAYS OBEY"

Trenton, N.J., Oct. 25 (AP) —A balky motorist who refused to follow a policeman's instructions, was sentenced yesterday by a police magistrate to write 500 copies of the following statement:

"I will always obey the order of a traffic policeman."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

There are several conspicuous differences between expert and palooka play. One is that skilled players avoid as many finesses as possible. They rely more on the results from endplays.

South was declarer at three no-trump. West led the spade ten. In title play it is not enough to make the contract. Make all the tricks possible..

Dummy took trick one with a spade top and led back club jack. East covered with the queen. South won with the ace. Dummy got in with a spade and returned a small club that east ducked.

South played the seven and west was forced to win with the king. With nothing but red cards by now, west sent out his fourth best seven of diamonds. Dummy ducked and it ran to the south nine for a trick.

The south diamond ace was cashed for a trick right here. Then the five of diamonds was led. It happened that west hopped up with the king to take this trick and was thus again in the lead.

West had a choice of returning a heart or a diamond. His return of a diamond would give the dummy two diamond tricks. On these south could sluff both his queen and ten of hearts.

Instead of a diamond, however, west elected to come back with a heart. On this was played the east jack and south won it with the queen. Dummy got in again when south led a spade.

Dummy led the diamond queen and south was able to sluff heart ten on it. The last dummy, club was then led. East saw no good reason for playing the nine and south finessed. He got both last tricks.

West might have ducked the third diamond. If so, dummy would have won with the ten. Two clubs and a spade later, west would be squeezed down to bare essentials and could take only one trick.

The endplays are often deadly.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the bridge problem and pop was reeding the sporting page and I was thinking to myself and I started to think out loud, saying, Darn the darn guy.

No doubt you're referring to some prominent political figure, pop said, and I said, No sir, I'm referring to Sticky Puggley.

Goodness what a name, ma said, and I said, His name is no werse than he is. His ears stick out like butterflies, only not that pritty, and just because he was the last guy to move around here he thinks he has to keep proving how grate he is, so he's always challencing me to a fite, I said.

Why, that's dredful, ma said. Do you think I awt to speek to the boy's mother, William? she said, and pop said, No, I think Benny awt to speek to the boy. There are certain of life's challences that can neither be successfully disregarded nor delegated to others. Is this Sticky bigger than you, Benny? he said.

No sir, he's just my size, but he's squarer, I said, and pop said, his squareness has probably gone to his head. If you stick out your chest and your jaw and your fists and accept his challence, he may decide he's not quite as reddy to fite as he thawt he was.

That's not what he decided the 2 times I did accept it, I said, and pop said Yee gods, do you meen he's alreddy licked you twice?

Sure, easy, I said, and pop said, Then you are morally and socially justified in ignoring ferther challences till you are as square as he is, and maybe even a little squarer.

I'll wait all rite. I dont care how long it takes, but I wish it was tomorrow, I said.

Which I do.

Property Owners Think Province Should Limit Tax

Toronto, Oct. 25 — (CP)—The Ontario Property Owners' Association wants the provincial government to assume full responsibility for education. It also thinks the province should limit taxation on land to 25 mills on a fair assessment.

These two resolutions, which would produce a wide change in provincial and municipal administration, were among a number passed yesterday at the annual convention. Prepared by the executive, they went through without comment.

In another resolution, the Association urged the provincial government to appoint a Royal Commission to study the whole question of municipal government and taxation. It also requested the federal government to terminate rent controls next April 1.

The Association went on record as deploring "the lack of good faith" shown in reassessment as a means of imposing higher taxation rather than of obtaining uniformity of assessment. It urged the province to give serious consideration to the curtailment of municipal taxing powers.

Another resolution urged restriction of powers given the province under 1950 amendments to the Highway Traffic Act to order removal of obstructions to view along highways. Charles MacConkey, living along the Queen Elizabeth way near St. Catharines, said his home was 500 feet from the highway but he could not plant a shrub without permission from the Highway Department.

Allowed to Sell

"The department prosecutes some people for selling fruit on the highway but one big concern, with hundreds of thousands of dollars to put into a big place, is allowed to sell fruit," he said.

In his welcoming address, Mayor Hiram McCallum of Toronto told delegates that it often was difficult to get qualified men to run for public office because "no one wants to take the abuse that we in public life are forced to take from some sections of the press and radio."

He added, without further elaboration: "There must be some protection from the lies, the slander, the insinuations and the innuendoes that appear in some newspaper reports and on the radio."

Jamieson Bone of Belleville, Ont., chairman of the dinner meeting, agreed with the mayor's remarks and added that "the abuse that public men have to take is a scandal."

A. W. Binns of Philadelphia, past president of the National Home and Property Owners Foundation of the United States, said in an address that the U. S. has embarked on a "welfare state policy." He said both political parties in the U. S. are trying to outdo the other in providing social services.

PICTON

Couple Injured When Horse Runs Away

Picton—A runaway horse yesterday sent Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Poste to Prince Edward County hospital here. Mr. Poste suffered a broken leg. Mrs. Poste suffered abrasions of the leg and both were badly shaken up. They were driving down the steep Chuckery hill just east of Picton on Glenora road. The horse became frightened and ran away. Mr. and Mrs. Poste were hurled from the buggy as it struck a guard rail on the highway and were thrown into the ditch. Dr. C.R. Richmond is in attendance.

TO QUELL GUERRILLAS

Hong Kong, Oct. 25. (AP)—A dispatch from communist China said yesterday the communists have "recruited" 1,157,000 men to help quell guerrillas in Central and South China. The pro-communist newspaper Ta Kung Pao said the men formed a "civilian defence" to/help suppress bandits and gangsters.

HARVEST HALTED

Grain harvesting in parts of Saskatchewan has been held up, possibly finished for the season, by heavy snow fall. After being soaked by rain, thousands of acres of grain were battered by the snow. Farmers fear there will be no more harvesting unless there is a lengthy spell of warm weather. — (CP Photo.)

WHEN ROK TROOPS ENTERED NORTH KOREAN CAPITAL

Wildly cheering citizens of Pyongyang, former North Korean capital, are shown as they greeted victorious United Nations troops when they entered the city. The scene shows ROK troops marching into Pyongyang with rifles ready as residents liberated from the red yoke wave South Korean, American, British and United Nations flags. 200-Page Manual On Assessment Now Distributed

Toronto, Oct. 25—CP—The Ontario Government hopes that its new manual on property assessment will make happier taxpayers.

The 200-page manual, called a guide to establishing a system of values, was distributed recently to all municipalities. In an accompanying letter, Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar emphasizes that its use is not compulsory.

But, he adds, the government hopes its general use will lead to a more uniform system of assessment.

The manual says that assessment values should be closely related to actual values, which it defines as the amount a willing purchaser will pay to a willing seller for a piece of real estate in the average year chosen from a period of so-called good and bad years. It discusses all types of building from commercial to residential to greenhouses.

How could the manual make taxpayers happier? The government says the average taxpayer has been baffled by methods used in determining his property assessment. Even on appeal, he had no recognized system of values to refer to. The manual's aim is to establish them.

It will make the government happier, too, if adopted generally. It would equalize assessments throughout the province, thus elimanating the government's main headache in calculating the payments of annual grants for civic services.

Order to Arrest Every Hoodlum In New York City

New York, Oct. 25 — (AP) — Memory of a four-year-old election-day murder sent police swooping down on dives and gang hangouts last night and today under orders to arrest every known hoodlum in New York City.

About 700 detectives took part in the roundup and by early morning 160 persons had been booked on vagrancy charges. Most of them were gamblers, vagrants and petty criminals.

The orders came from Acting Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, who said he had "alarming reports" that strong-arm methods were being planned to intimidate voters in the red-hot city campaign.

"There must not be another Scottoriggio case while I am mayor," he told his new Police Commissioner, Thomas F. Murphy.

Impellitteri referred to the unsolved murder of Joseph Scottoriggio, a Republican campaign worker who was beaten to death in East Harlem on election day in 1946.

Murphy issued his own orders immediately last night to the 19,000-man police force. His officers said "thousands" might be caught in the dragnet.

SENTENCED FOR ROBBERY

Toronto, Oct. 24 — (CP)—Two youths were sentenced today for the $1,300 payroll robbery of a North Toronto construction company Oct. 8.

George Young, 21, was sentenced to 4½ years, Robert Lea, 19, to 3½ years.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 25 (AP) —The fire department at nearby Jacksonville decided to do something about motorists who get in the way of fires.

What it did was to put on a fake fire alarm.

When motorists started driving over fire hose at the "scene" of the non-existent fire yesterday, the firemen started squirting water—at the motorists.

One man took a punch at a fireman. It cost the puncher $10 in court.

The fireman had a black eye.

Self-Control Best Guard Against Higher Prices

Toronto, Oct. 25 (CP) — Self-control is the best guard against higher prices at this time, Robert Drummond, president of the Canadian Construction Association, said today.

In an address to the Toronto Kiwanis Club, he urged that private industry as well as governments postpone projects which are not essential, so as to allow for the extra demand of the defence program.

He suggested that labor cooperate in making government controls unnecessary, as price controls would require wage controls.

He expressed the construction industry's appreciation of the release of dollar control and relaxation of import controls, "which should be a real help in the effort to stabilize construction costs."

Mr. Drummond stated that the real test of the Canadian economy should come next year when the defence program will be well under way and draining labor and materials from the civilian economy at double or treble the present rate.

"The danger at present is that because of the knowledge of next year's program and the fear of its possible inflationary effects, consumers and business men are placing orders today and feeding fires of inflation when they should only be smoldering.

"When it is realized that our gross national product is around $17,000,000,000 and that the defence program will claim only six to 10 percent of this, it seems foolish to suggest that we as business men and consumers can not postpone sufficient of our less essential demands to make it possible to carry out the defence program in stride."

CHILD'S SULKY SPELLS WORRIED HER UNTIL...
If your child has moody, cross, irritable spells for what seems to be no reason, watch for "hidden" constipation. Oftentimes, youngsters' bowels, altho moving regularly, do not move completely. As a result, harmful wastes remain in the intestines, making the child listless, peevish and not feeling like eating. What may be needed is Children's Own Tablets. They help give the thorough evacuation that quickly helps make most children feel like their usual happy selves. Steel Expected To Rise $6 to $10 Says Iron Age

New York, Oct. 25 (AP) — Steel prices in the United States will go up $6 to $10 a ton and steelworkers will get wage and "fringe" benefits—vacations pensions etc.—totalling 17 1-2 to 18 cents an hour, The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, says today.

The publication says the price increase will average somewhere near $8 a ton or about 10 percent.

This "will take care of raw material advances, labor increase (including white-collar workers), uneconomical production due to defence orders and expansion cost, most of which has to come from profits."

Unless something entirely unforeseen occurs, the publication adds, the price-wage change in steel will happen soon.

Steel production this week was placed at 102.5 percent of rated capacity, another record high for steel melted in a single week.

PROPERTY FOR SALE
The Victoria Trust and Savings Company Administrators Of The Estate Of Arthur Clarke Frost Offer For Sale By Tender

The Valuable Real Estate located on Herchimer Ave., and Dundas Street, East, in the Township of Thurlow, adjoining the City of Belleville, formerly owned by the late Arthur Clarke Frost.

To facilitate the sale of the property, it has been divided into three parcels (according to a plan which may be inspected at 160 Front St., Belleville) as follows:

Parcel (1)—On the west side of Herchimer Ave. (south of Bridge St.,) Frontage 115', Depth 288'. On this property stands a solid brick, slate roofed, 8-roomed dwelling which will be open for inspection from 1 to 5 p.m., on Saturday, October 21 and 28.

Parcel (2)—A vacant plot 112' x 221' running in a southerly direction from the rear of Parcel (1), and being in the rear of the Stapleton and McCoy properties on Herchimer Ave.

Parcel (3)—The North-Westerly corner of Dundas St. East, and Herchimer Ave.
Frontages—Dundas St. E., 290'.
Herchimer Ave., 279'.

This parcel containing nearly two acres and adjoining Parcel (2) is located on No. 2 Highway. It would be an ideal site for a service station, large garage, transport terminal, motel, super-market, or for light manufacturing or other commercial enterprise.

Tenders will be received at our office for any or all parcels until November 4th., 1950.

The highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted. Successful tenderers will be notified by registered mail that their tenders have been accepted, but the notice of acceptance shall not constitute a contract for sale. The successful tenderers will be required to execute an Offer to Purchase, in standard form, and to pay 10% of the tender price in cash as a deposit and the balance in cash on delivery of the deed.

Gold-Mining Fever Hits Railroad Town

Sioux Lookout, Ont., Oct. 25—(CP)— Gold-mining fever has hit this railroad town in northwestern Ontario.

It has the town of 1,750 inhabitants teeming with excitement. Stewart Staunton, veteran prospecor, started it when he sruck gold this month on Neepawa Island in Lake Minnitaki, seven miles southeast of here.

Ontario Mines Minister W. S. Gemmell Monday said "this is one of the most significant gold discoveries in many years."

Mr. Gemmell said the formations are 40 miles long and that careful prospecting can unearth other gold showings.

Mining men here say the strike has uncovered one of the greatest surface showings they have ever seen.

During the last few weeks an endless stream of prospectors have been filing claims.

Claims have been staked all around Minnitaki Lake and in Laval, Brownbridge and other townships as far as Newlund mine, 20 miles east and scene of a development rush this summer.

The ground has been optioned by Central Manitoba Gold Mines Limited, and a general flurry in trading of Central Manitoba stocks has swept Sioux Lookout.

Staunton, his wife and partner Dan Craemer worked near the site of the find all summer.

When they came to Sioux Lookout looking for gold, all islands in Minnitaki Lake were closed for prospecting. But government geologist E. O. Chisholm persuaded the government to open them.

Residents expect the rush to continue until all available property within miles around is staked. By that time Sioux Lookout should be a modern boom town.

PRODUCERS FIRED

Moscow, Oct. 25. (Reuters)— Two of Moscow's vandevilla producers have been fired for "failure to provide worthy direction" in their shows, the all-union committee for Soviet art announced yesterday. Two actors were also banned from the stage for one year for "a moral conduct disgraceful to the high calling of a Soviet artist."

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

Her startled eyes followed his. Something was moving near the boulder on which they had been sitting. It looked like [illegible] figure of a person be[illegible] brown as the rocks, be[illegible] it was scurrying. As if [illegible]ced he was safe from observation the man stood up and leaped to a rock below. Fran's heart was pounding, she could feel the hard beat of Myles Jaffray's against her shoulder. She opened her lips to whisper. He shook his head. His arm tightened. It seemed hours they stood motionless before they heard the scrape of a boot being drawn across a sandy beach.

"We can go, now," Myles whispered and relaxed his hold.

"Who was it?" Her voice was as hushed as his.

"I don't know who the eavesdropper was, but something tells me that the song was a signal."

An eighteenth-century oval mirror, its gilded rocco frame a mass of leaves, shells and scrolls, at one end of the small gallery reflected the slender girl in dark amber crepe, gave back the broad gold girdle that cinched her waist the glint of gold at throat and ears and in the waves of her short bronze hair the delicate color in her cheeks excitement had set there, the red of her lovely mouth, even the appraisal in her brown eyes as they regarded the lace-covered round table.

The silver bowl in the centre filled with pink peonies was flanked by crystal plates of paper-thin sandwiches. Others displayed one-bite iced cakes. A tall silver urn, a large silver hot-water kettle, were surrounded by gold banded pink cups and saucers and the trimmings for coffee and tea.

Everything under control. Fran's ghost of a sigh expressed relief. She had been given full responsibilitity, plus a budget, to provide the social side of the preview of the one-man show. As a rule the Sargent Galleries didn't go in for teas. The artist who was exhibiting had asked for one and Henry Sargent, who was the gallery, believing him to be a painter with a sold gold future, had consented.

The cloud of apprehension in which she had lived since she heard of her brother's dangerous mission, which had lifted while she was absorbed in preparations for the tea, settled down again over her spirit. How could she go on without betraying her fear for Ken's safety?

She thought of Ken's message, "Tell Fran to believe that I will come through safely, to believe it hard." She remembered Myles Jaffray's eyes as he had looked down into hers, the feel of his lips. Had her brother told him to kiss her? What had he meant by "something tells me that song was a signal?" Were the words connected with Ken's mission?

Standing here reliving those tense moments wasn't playing the game as Ken wanted it played. She pushed 'fear' into a safety-deposit box in her mind, turned the key on it and looked about the small gallery. She had been here three weeks. What had she learned? She checked: to recognize the style of the painter of the six small pictures by different artists hung against the soft-brown walls; that the Washington above the fern-banked fireplace was a Gilbert Stuart, Vaughan-type portrait of the Father of his Country; that the marquetry cabinet was Louis XV and that the jewel-toned enamels on gold behind its glass doors were Byzantine, that the gift-frame chairs and sofa were covered with Regence needlepoint. The work was intensely interesting, the contact with outstanding achievement stimulating. Keeping in step with this job would leave no time for fear.

"Here you are dear."

Mrs. Sargent approached with her Queen Maryish air of invincible superiority, trailing the scent of choice perfume. Two gardenias gleamed high against the left shoulder of her black sheer frock, her matching turban revealed one side of her white hair. A handsome woman and a determined one, Fran decided.

"You are looking very special, Mrs. Sargent," she complimented honestly. "Black is most becoming."

"Nice of you to tell me, dear. I never get a build up from my family now that my son Ben is gone." The hard blue eyes misted. "I always wear black on the street in the city, as the socialite Spanish and French women do. The table looks very nice, Gene was right when she told her father you were the perfect answer to his search for an assistant. I wish she would show as good judgment in her selection of the men with whom she plays. Sorry to criticize a friend of yours, dear, but I neither like nor trust that Blake Sinclair who has been her shadow for the last few days."

"I don't know why he came here, Mrs. Sargent. I told him before I left home that I wouldn't see him if he did come, and I won't, except as I meet him casually."

"That explanation encourages me. Perhaps he is working on Gene's sympathy to console him for your hard-heartedness. I had hoped that she and Myles Jafray —Oh well, I can't live my daughter's life for her though I am sure I would make a better job of it than she is doing at present. She plays cards for large stakes and —Are you comfortable in the apartment upstairs?

It took an instant for Fran to adjust her mind to Mrs. Sargent's lightning change of subject. She had been thinking of Gene's boast that her parents knew nothing of her card playing. Was Blake encouraging her? She had warned Gene that it was a pretty stupid parent who didn't know what its child was doing.

"Very comfortable, thank you. I have called it home for twenty-four hours only, but already I love it."

"Have we time to look at the exhibit before the guests arrive? Mrs. Sargent consulted the jeweled watch on her wrist. "We have. The majority will stroll in late to make sure they are present when the society news photographers flash their bulbs. The art critics will appear after the crowd has thinned. Come with me, dear."

They entered the large gallery. The subjects of the twenty paint-amount of space between them were bits of shore or sea or country rich with green and blues, sharp thrusts and glowing patches of lemon and orange sunlight. Mrs Sargent's eyes traveled from painting to painting and made the rounds a second time.

"Good. Very good, in fact remarkable. The man has what it takes a miraculous achievement when one considers his background. He grew up in the poorer section of a large western city, sold gasoline by day and attended school by night, managed two years abroad studying the great painting of the world, before this last war, of course, and here he is hung in a Sargent Gallery, in itself an acknowledgement that he has arrived—all of which goes to prove my belief that you can accomplish anything you set your heart on — matrimony excepted —if you want it enough to work like—"

"Here you are, Mother," a voce boomed.

Short, plump Henry Sargent charged toward them and interrupted what Fran knew would have developed into a discourse on willpower. In the few weeks since her arrival she had learned that her employer moved always as if jet-propelled, and spoke as if megaphoning to a distant ship.

"Like the exhibit, Mother?" The tone of the question indicated a profound respect for the opinion of his wife.

"Yes. The canvases show up here. I'll confess that when we viewed them in that artist's slovenly studio I doubted if they warranted the expenditure of your time, Henry."

"He's good." Sargent rose on the tips of his brilliantly polished black shoes and settled back on his heels, a motion so habitual that now Fran rarely noticed it. He has imagination, also an inflated idea of the value of his work."

"Why not? He knows he has arrived or he wouldn't be here. I hope you sell a number of the pictures, Henry."

"The Sargent Gallery places pictures, it doesn't sell them, Mother," her husband instructed in the resigned tone of one who has made the correction many times. "You have the catalogue with prices, Miss Phillips?"

"Yes. I shall be thrilled if I sell—place one, Mr. Sargent."

"Not so thrilled as the artist will be. Come along mother. I want your opinion on 'Country Lane.' Gene wants me to buy it for her. Who's prowling round the small gallery Miss Phillips?"

"A man named Barth who was sent by the caterer to keep the tea table supplied."

"He looks as out of place in that swallowtail and trimmings in the gallery as he would passing a collection plate in church. I don't like it. I don't want a person working here of whom I know nothing. There is a fortune here in objets d'art small enough to slip into a man's pocket. Keep an eye on him, Miss Phillips."

Fran had time only to wonder how she could keep an eye on the waiter and take orders for the paintings before he demanded:

"Wheres Gene mother? thought she was to pour tea this afternoon?"

Tin Miners Don't Get Pimples

Because Cornish tin miners appeared to avoid skin blemishes, British chemists suggested the use of tin in treating Boils, Acne, Pimples.

Now convenient, tasteless tablets containing 42.5% metallic tin are available under the brand name "Tinoxid." Rapid, satisfactory results are claimed for this inexpensive treatment.

Tinoxid Tablets are sold without prescription at all drug stores, 75c.

CANADA AND U.S. SIGN PEACETIME PACT

New UK Commons 'Sign to World Of Faith in Freedom'

King Speaks in Westminster Hall, Leaders in New House

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 26—CP—The King described the new House of Commons which held an offical housewarming today "as a sign to the world of our faith in freedom."

The King spoke in Westminster Hall, another section of the great palace in which Parliament meets, because one of the freedoms of the House of Commons—that of meeting without interference from the monarch—banned him from the building itself.

"In other places liberty has perished but the voice of true democracy is still heard among all our peoples and is a comfort to all those who love and believe in the unfettered expression of honest opinions, noble aspirations, and sincere human feelings," the King said.

In the Commons itself, Britain's political leaders paid homage to Parliament and the Commonwarming for the new £2,000,000 ($5,900,000) chamber.

In a short ceremony, Prime Minister Attlee and Conservative leader Winston Churchill, warmly applauded by both sides of the house, welcomed 28 visiting Commonwealth speakers or presiding officers to the new chamber.

"Today will indeed dwell in our memories," Attlee said solemnly in a speech which stressed some of Britain's strongest sentiments—the feeling for Parliament, Commonwealth and the past.

Commonwealth Relationship

Churchill, spicing his address with light-hearted sallies, said he hopes the tolerant, flexible yet enduring relationship among Commonwealth members may some day be extended to cover all the world in "a friendly, sensible and unbreakable association."

Members roared with laughter when Churchill recalled that the last time he had been in what now is the new chamber he had been on the Government front bench as wartime Prime Minister. That seemed to him to be a "good and satisfactory arrangement" and he didn't see why he should be on the opposition benches now.

Parliamentarians and members of the public queued before dawn for admission to the grey-green, seven-story chamber which gets down to real business next week. The present building is on the site of the old one, reduced to rubble by four German bombs May 10, 1941. Construction took five years.

After the session, crowds of lawmakers and their guests moved on to Westminster Hall to hear the King.

"Not for us the silence of suppression," said the King.

"Of all the bonds which unite my peoples," the King said, none is stronger than our common devotion to the ideals of freedom, justice and toleration which, in the political sphere, find their supreme expression in our parliamentary system."

London, Oct. 26 — (CP)—The Speech from the Throne at the prorogation of Parliament today commended the British people's sacrifices for the nation's economic recovery.

It cited "generous help" from Canada and the United States as contributing to the upturn in Britain's fortunes.

The speech, read by the King, singled Canada out for a special tribute for helping train RAF pilots and navigators in RCAF establishments.

It said "This measure of co-operation which will materially help to advance training, has been warmly welcomed by my government in the United Kingdom."

The speech noted that increased production at home had been "most satisfactory."

"At the same time," it added, "there has been continued restraint in claims for increases in personal incomes of all kinds.

"The efforts which my people have made, not without sacrifices, have enabled us to maintain a healthy internal economy and to achieve a great improvement in the balance of overseas trade, notably with North America."

The speech referred to Commonwealth meetings in Australia and London on Southeast Asia problems and said that Commonwealth ministers discussions in London had "afforded a valuable opportunity for an exchange of views on general trade and economic questions."

British in Malaya

The speech said Britain's forces "continue to assist the peoples of Malaya and the civil administration in their task of restoring law and order."

It recalled "important steps" taken by the British government for peace and stability in the middle East and spoke of the Council of Europe as a "new and important development in international co-operation."

The speech welcomed the accession of the German Federal Republic as an associate member of the Council of Europe and the conclusions reached on Germany by the foreign ministers meeting in New York last month.

PAYROLL ROBBERY

Toronto Oct. 26 (CP) —Police said today a $200 payroll owned by Scanlon's bakery was stolen from a truck parked in suburban North York. The money in 12 envelopes, was removed from the glove compartment but the thieves did not take the truck.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—Synopsis—Temperatures dropped to near or below freezing throughout Ontario this morning. Skies are generally clear over the province but considerable cloudiness has persisted in eastern sections.

A disturbance over the prairies is pushing steadily eastward and will move into Northern Ontario on Friday causing occasional rain with some snow likely at first in extreme northern sections. Generally cloudy and milder weather is expected over Southern Ontario on Friday.

Hobbies for Engineers

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP)—Canadian engineers can supplement the scientific side of their training by reading good books and pursuing worthwhile hobbies, Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University at Kingston said last night.

Some non-engineers have complained that scientists are "culturally uneducated," he told the 71st annual dinner of the University of Toronto's Engineering School. But he saw science itself as a culture.

"A good command of English is important to the Canadian engineer. It is in this that good reading habits show."

BODY RECOVERED

Hull, Que., Oct. 26 — (CP) — The body of Wilfred Costello, 55, of Pakenham, Que., was discovered yesterday by Hull police from Brewery Creek, on the western outskirts of the city. Mr. Costello had been missing from his home for four or five days.

Comic Books Oust Nursery Rhymes In Entertainment of Children

Toronto Oct. 26 (CP)—Roberta Langtry, specialist in dealing with school children who have speech defects or reading problems, says comic books are ousting nursery rhymes in the entertainment of children—and the change is producing bad results in the classroom.

She found in a recent survey that children nowadays have little sense of rhyme or rhythm, and it takes longer than it used to for them to learn to read. They cannot recite traditional nursery nursery rhymes, and often find it impossible to complete a rhyming sentence such as "his led sled is green and . . ."

Mrs. Langtry, who believes her survey in suburban East York revealed a condition that is general, in an interview yesterday blamed parents for the situation. She said that instead of teaching little Johnny nursery rhymes, a parent will give the child a comic book and let him amuse himself.

CHINESE COMMIE FORCES CROSS TIBET'S FRONTIER

East German Paper Makes Announcement

Berlin, Oct. 26 — (AP)— The Russians announced today that Chinese communist forces crossed Tibet's frontier early Tuesday.

"In the early morning hours of Tuesday, a formation of the Chinese people's army crossed the Tibetan frontier," an announcement in Taegliche Rundschau, official newspaper of the Soviet control commission in Germany, said today.

It was the first word that the Chinese reds actually had entered Tibet.

The Peiping radio yesterday announced that Chinese communist forces in south China had been ordered to advance on Tibet. The Chinese reds had been hinting at an invasion of Tibet for several months.

Taegliche Rundschau said:

"In the summer of 1949, reactionary authorities of Tibet under pressure from their English and American advisers had proclaimed their detachment from China. This was not the wish of the Tibetian people, but was designed to serve Washington in its efforts to convert Tibet into a military attack point against the democratic peoples of the Republic of China.

Must Be Freed

"The command to the Chinese people's army is clear. Three million inhabitants of Tibet must be freed from imperialistic oppression and the national defence on the western frontier of the Chinese people's republic must be strengthened."

The Soviet mouthpiece said that "English imperialists" had "succeeded in quartering a political mission in Lhasa (the Tibetan capital city) where today it controls all internal and foreign policies of Tibet on instructions from London and Washington."

This statement indicated that the chief Russian claim regarding Tibet would be that it was to be an invasion base of the Anglo-Americans in the future.

The official Russian daily added: The Tibetan people have repeatedly written to (Chinese communist leader) Mao Tse-Tung requesting their liberation. They have built roads in the border region to facilitate the entrance of the Chinese people's army. . ."

Pravda Gives Version

In Moscow, Pravda said the communist Chinese "liberation" army ordered to march on Tibet will bring freedom, peace and democracy to the 3,000,000 inhabitants.

A special correspondent for the communist party organ reported from Peiping, capital of communist China, that the second field army has been directed to advance on Tibet.

The Pravda writer said that "the heroic sons of the Chinese people will fight at an altitude of 4,000-5,000 metres above sea level and at a severe time of the year, for winter is ahead.

"But they are supported by the entire population of the country, filled with determination to carry out the battle order."

Lightning Ground Advance Saves 50,000-Man Amphibious Operation From Death Trap

By STAN SWINTON

Wonsan, Korea, Oct. 26 (AP) — A lightning ground advance by South Korean troops — faster than United Nations commanders dared expect — probably saved a 50,000-man amphibious operation from running into a death trap.

Today that 50,000-man force, spearheaded by the United Nations 1st Marine Division, began prosaic landings at Wonsan, more than 100 miles behind those still-advancing South Koreans.

It now can be revealed that only a military miracle prevented what might have been the blackest page in U. S. military history.

The Marines and 20,000 tough U. S. 7th Infantry Division troops were to have stormed ashore Oct. 20. The miracle happened when the South Korean 3rd Division, in a breath-taking advance which strategists believed impossible, captured Wonsang Oct. 9.

Those troops immediately discovered that Wonsan was a death trap set by the reds, who had anticipated landings from the sea.

An estimated 3,000 floating mines guarded the sea approaches. A shifting sandbar would have stranded the assault boats off shore. On the beaches was an elaborate network of trenches. In front of these were barbed - wire fields.

Gen. MacArthur, Rear Admiral James H. Doyle, commander of the amphibious operation, and Vice-Admiral Arthur D. Struble, U. S. Seventh Fleet commander, decided on the Wonsan invasion at a Tokyo conference. They realized it was a calculated risk.

Incorrect Intelligence

But American officers now concede the landing place was selected on the basis of inadequate and incorrect intelligence. The task force, which included Canadian ships, was at sea before the full threat of the death trap could be appreciated.

And why did an estimated $6,000,000 amphibious operation proceed with Wonsan already in South Korean hands on embarkation day?

Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the 10th Army Corps, said it was too late to choose another landing place. The U. N. needed military might in northeast Korea for strategic reasons. And mountain roads to Wonsan from the west made land movements impossible.

The 1st Marine Division made the Sept. 15 landing at Inchon which led to the liberation of Seoul and crushing defeat of the North Korean reds in South Korea.

The Marines were pulled out of combat Oct. 7 and loaded at Inchon. The amphibious fleet then began the 830-mile trip around the peninsula to Wonsan.

It stopped at Pusan to pick up the 7th Infantry Division, which had gone ashore at Inchon, then pushed south to link up with the U. S. 1st Cavalry Division from the old Pusan perimeter. That link-up broke the back of red resistance in South Korea.

For six days the flotilla of the United States, British, French, Canadian, New Zealand, Australian and South Korean ships waited at sea while minesweepers cut a channel through the mine-field.

When Admiral Doyle gave the go-ahead today, some of the troop-crammed landing ships were almost out of food.

13-Year Boy Who Claims To Have Accidently Shot And Killed Chum, Released

Madawaska, Ont., Oct. 26 — Inspector Thomas Cousans of the provincial police said today that Alex Yankovitch, 13, who claims to have accidentally shot and killed 10-year-old Ted Rose during a hunting trip last Sunday, has been released.

The inspector said the boy will not be charged in his companion's death. However, he will be a witness at an inquest at nearby Killaloe next month. He was returned to custody of his parents.

Inspector Cousans quoted the boy as saying:

"He was my best friend. I didn't mean to shoot him. I tripped over the root of a tree and the rifle went off. I was scared when I saw he was dead, so I hid his body under the stump of a tree."

The Rose boy's body was found yesterday after 400 persons, including 200 soldiers and several police officers, had spent three days searching for him through rough bush country.

Dogs and airplanes were used in the hunt, which ended when Ambrose O'Malley of Madawaska discovered the body partly burned under a stump. The Yankovitch boy earlier told police that he and Ted Rose had a minor quarrel and the Rose boy decided to go home alone.

The boys went into the bush together Sunday, with young Yankovitch carrying a .22-calibre rifle he had bought a week earlier for $9.95. They were looking for partridge.

When the Yankovitch boy reached home alone, he said Ted insisted on going farther up the river but he had wanted to start back. He said he was tired of shooting and it was getting dark and he was hungry.

Hours later, when the younger boy did not arrive home, a search was started. Neighbors dragged the river and combed the surrounding bush.

Young Yankovitch went to school while the search continued this week. He was playing ball when police found him at his home last night. He calmly dropped the ball and went with the officers for questioning in Killaloe.

Truman Knows Of But One A-Blast Set off in Russia

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)— President Truman has no information that the Russians have ever produced more than one atomic explosion, he said today.

Truman told a press conference that insofar as he knows, there has only been one atomic explosion in the Soviet nation. On Sept. 23 last year he reported that one.

Truman made his comment today during questioning about a press conference Tuesday in which chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said that "the President hasn't seen fit to make any more announcements" and "I'll leave it to you to guess on that basis."

Truman also told the press conference it is his understanding that only South Korean troops will occupy the north frontier of Korea in the final drive to victory. He said he understands Korean divisions occupy the Korean border on the Korean side.

Under further questioning, he said that would apply to the whole northern border. It is his understanding, he said, that American troops will not go to the border.

Without elaborating Truman said he does not expect trouble in Western Europe this year.

MISTAKEN FOR DEER

Kenora, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP) — An American hunter, believed to have been mistaken for a deer by a companion, died yesterday of wounds suffered in a shooting accident.

Frank Wilson, Jacksonville, Fla., was fatally wounded Tuesday near Ghost Bay, in northwestern Ontario's Lake of the Woods region. He was brought to hospital here. An inquest will be held.

CANADA SENDS EQUIPMENT FOR FULL DIVISION

Move is Only Part Of European Effort

Ottawa, Oct. 26. (CP)—Announcement yesterday of a shipment of equipment of arms sufficient to equip a Dutch army division was the first definite large-scale move Canada has made in her program of assisting Europe under North Atlantic Treaty arrangements.

However, more moves are expected before long, and these may include air and ground forces.

The donation of a division's arms stems from a $300,000,000 vote passed through parliament last Spring for assistance to Europe. Announcement of the Dutch consignment came after a Cabinet meeting late yesterday, amid indications that a similar shipment will be made later.

The arms to equip the Dutch division will go in two lots, one leaving Montreal about mid-November and the other leaving Halifax at a later date. There is no indication of the value of the shipment to The Netherlands; this will not be fully known until Canada replaces—mainly from U.S. sources—the arms taken from her own stores for the assistance to Europe.

No mention was made in yesterday's announcement of sending troops to Europe. However, there has been speculation that the 9,000-man special brigade trained to fight in Korea may wind up in the European area. Prime Minister St Laurent has given strong hints of this in recent speeches, and while parliament's approval might be required for such a move, there is little doubt parliament would grant such approval if the United Nations requested it. The special army force was built primarily for use as the U.N. requires.

Squadron Will Go Over

Meanwhile. Canada's interest in Europe is shown in the fact that a squadron including the aircraft carrier Magnificent has been exercising in North Atlantic waters and in the recent announcement that an R.C.A.F. fighter squadron will head for the United Kingdom for exercises there early in the new year.

In addition, Canada has been training North Atlantic personnel.

This was the first step the dominion took in its North Atlantic Pact program, and involved some army and air force personnel.

The United Kingdom, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Norway and Italy are participating in the training plan. Portugal may be the next to participate.

This plan calls for the training of about 150 army officers and other ranks a year at various camps in Canada. About 10 officers and men from France, Italy and Holland already have arrived and are training in Canadian camps.

The R.C.A.F. is training about 100 student pilots and navigators from Norway, The Netherlands, Belgium, France and Italy.

First of about 200 student pilots and navigators from the United Kingdom are expected to arrive toward the end of January. Some of the R.A.F. pilots are expected to train at a new training school being established at Gimli, Man. The R.A.F. navigators are expected to go to Summerside. P.E.I.

Resources, Skill And Economics To be Co-ordinated

Trade Minister C.D. Howe Witnesses Pact Signing

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 26 (CP) — Canada and the United States, in an unprecedented peacetime step, formally agreed today to co-ordinate their resources, skills and economies for the "common defence" of both countries.

Trade Minister C. D. Howe of Canada, who witnessed the historic signing ceremony, said in an interview that the agreement marks a new advance in peacetime economic co-operation.

"It was the sensible thing to do," he said. "It will simplify our job and indicate to all concerned that we really are working together."

Six economic principles are embodied in the agreement, signed at the State Department by Hume Wrong, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, and State Secretary Dean Acheson.

They go into effect immediately and will run indefinitely. No terminating date is mentioned.

Doing in peace what the Hyde Park agreement of 1941 did in war, the agreement indicates that both countries will remove "as far as possible" all barriers which impede the flow of arms and materials between Canada and the United States.

There are virtually no barriers to the import of American goods to Canada. However, Canada has experienced some trouble in getting U.S. arms orders. This hindrance stems from high U.S. tariffs on foreign arms and restrictive legislation, only recently rendered inefective by executive action.

Shot in Street In Dispute Over Letter

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP) — Mike Bortnick, 52, was shot in the back on a west-central street corner today by a man who then summoned police and surrendered.

John Picca was taken into custody. Police said he and Bortnick had been arguing over "an income tax letter from the government."

Bortnick was taken to hospital, where attendants said his wound was serious.

Detectives said the dispute, at the intersection of Queen and Cameron streets, lasted only a few minutes. They quoted Edward Clark, one of two passers-by who witnessed the shooting, as saying Bortnick turned away suddenly.

"He had half-turned his back," Clark said. "The other man pulled a gun and fired point-blank."

Investigators said Picca surrendered a letter and a gun to them.

The letter was in a foreign language and police did not disclose the letter's contents.

Ross Casey, auto supply company clerk, said he heard the shot. When he looked out, he saw Picca trying to pick up Bortnick, he said.

"He came into our store and asked to use our telephone. He told us to stay out of it, as it was a family affair."

Receipts Down In Intercounty

Galt, Oct. 26 — (CP) — Gate receipts for playoff games in the Intercounty Senior Baseball Association dropped $3,000 this year, imperilling league finances.

The decrease, estimated at 45 per cent, was reported by President Otto Manske, at an executive meeting of the eight-loop league here Tuesday.

Club operators indicated they hope for a rebate from the provincial government of the 15-yercent entertainment tax on gate receipts to lift them out of debt. Amounts returnable from this source were estimated to range up to $5,000.

Board Sets Price Milk for Producers At $4.20 Cwt.

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP) — An arbitration board today set the price of milk for Toronto producers at $4.20 a hundredweight, an increase of 2½ cents.

The producers were originally given a 10-cent increase by the Toronto Milk Distributors' Association when the retail price was raised one cent to 20 cents a quart. They asked for a further increase, and the arbitration board was appointed to hear their appeal.

J. E. Houck, secretary-manager of the Distributors' Association, said he did not anticipate any further increase in consumer milk prices "unless labor is granted more than the $3 weekly increase we have voluntarily given."

Following the retail boost, dairy employees were given a $3 weekly raise. They expressed dissatisfaction with this and asked a $4 increase. A conciliation board is expected to hear the case in a few weeks.

First Patient Rewards Group, Which Assured Him Normal Life

Montreal, Oct. 26—(CP)—The first patient to come under the care of the Quebec Society for Crippled Children now is back helping the group that gave him a chance for a normal life.

Cheerful athletic Tony Shorgan is assistant to the executive secretary of the society. Made helpless by polio when only 18 months old, he was treated at irregular intervals. Then after two operations he was able to get around aided by braces.

With the death of his mother he found himself alone in a world that had little more than pity to offer to a nearly helpless cripple. The Society for Crippled Children was founded on Oct. 1, 1930 and nine-year-old Tony became the first of thousands to be taken under its wing.

At the Society's summer camp Tony learned to swim, dive and take part in other sports. He became a camp leader and now heads the recreation department.

An artistic talent which had shown itself in his earlier years led him to take a four-year course at the Academie Des Beaux Arts, and this in turn led to a position as assistant art director in one of Montreal's large department stores.

But earlier this year he gave up this job to return to the Society, this time as an executive.

NOT WATCHING ROAD; CRASHES INTO POLE

Watching for house numbers on West Bridge Street and failing to realize where his truck was headed, William Anderson, 159 Church Street, driver for Belle Cleaners, crashed into a telephone pole on Wednesday.

Anderson told police that he was driving west on West Bridge St. when in looking for a house number he failed to see the telephone pole at edge of the north curb. The truck was damaged to the extent of approximately $45.

Dr. F. Minkler Will Address School Teachers

Public and Separate Schools of Belleville will be closed tomorrow while the teachers meet for their annual convention. The meetings will be held in the Queen Alexandra School ~~on Ann St.~~

On previous years, the public school teachers have visited other cities to study their educational program. This year the new curriculum will be studied by means of various workshops which are conducted by the teachers themselves, and by a visit from a leading educator.

The guest speaker is Dr. Frederick Minkler, B.A., D. Paed, who is a leading educationlist of York Township and who has done much work in research of the reading of the junior grades.

This year's session of the Teachers' Convention will be in charge of the president, Miss Olive Elson.

Civil Marriage Performed By Judge Anderson

The second civil marriage to be performed in the county and the first by County Judge J. C. Anderson was performed at the county court buildings in the Judge's Chambers this morning. Two weeks ago the first civil marriage in the county was performed by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Principals in this morning's civil marriage were William David Alsnauer, of Pittsburgh, a member of the U.S.A. navy, and Miss Catherine Docherty, a Scotch girl who in recent weeks has been living with her sister in Trenton.

Judge Anderson said that although this had been his first civil marriage he had acted as a witness during many marriage ceremonies performed by his father, a United Church minister.

Night Intruder Takes Trousers Leaves Mackinaw

The old adage that "a fair exchange is no robbery" must have been the belief of a night intruder who Wednesday night broke into the City Cleaners on East Moira Street and stole two pairs of trousers.

In the place of the two pairs of trousers the intruder left two shirts, one of them a mackinaw.

But even so the thief tried to get the better of the deal but dropped a station wagon coat belonging to the cleaners as he made his escape through a window. Entrance to the building had been gained by a back window, police stated.

One other break-in at the Halloran Bros. garage on Cannifton Road, and an attempted break-in at College Motors on College St., were also reported to police. The intruder got nothing at Halloran Bros. garage but some cancelled cheques, while they failed to make an entry at the College St. garage.

All three premises are in the same district and police believed the break-ins were the work of the same party.

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP) — An official of the United Electrical Workers (Ind.) Wednesday claimed $100,000 damages from two Belleville business men who he says libelled him.

Glenn Bedell, chairman of a U.E.W. bargaining committee at the Belleville Lock Company filed a writ asking $50,000 each from D. L. Storey, company president, and Herbert D. Willerton, another company executive.

Bedell charged Storey libelled him in a letter written Sept. 29 and that Willerton distributed it to the public.

The union has been on strike at the Belleville plant for a month. The company has sued members of the U.E.W. for unstated damages, claiming the strike has injured business.

Senior Hockey Club to Meet

Important business will be discussed at a special meeting of the Belleville senior hockey club being held in the Y.M.C.A. tonight at 8.30.

The directors, honorary directors and players desirous of trying out with the club are requested to attend.

Belleville Stamp Club Shows Signs Of Growing Pains

'Philately', according to the Encyclopedia Americana, is the avocation of stamp collecting, embracing the study, manufacture, and postal history of the nations of the world, both past and present. It originated with the appearance of the first postage stamp in Great Britain on May 6, 1840, when ladies of fashion collected the cancelled stamps to paper their boudoirs, screens and candy bowls. Later, when more than twenty other nations had copied England's use of these tiny adhesives to indicate postage paid, teachers encouraged children to collect and mount them in books as a means of learning the geography of other lands. This interest gradually spread to the parents and friends who pursued the hobby as a pastime.

The first stamp shop was opened in 1861 at Birchin Lane, London, and in France, Madame Nicholas sold foreign stamps in her Paris bookshop about the same time. In 1865 William P. Brown sold them on Nassau St., New York City, which became in later years the centre of the American Stamp business.

World-Wide Popularity

Today the popularity of stamp collecting has spread practically round the world; and the pastime has given place to a more scientific, intellectual pursuit, providing an avenue of information on art, history, geography, industry and commerce of other lands. In Canada it is one of the outstanding hobbies, with groups or clubs of collectors working through each other, exchanging and selling stamps both in books and singly.

Fifteen years ago a stamp club was formed in Belleville. Today 28 members belong, with an exhibit being held once a year, after the Christmas holiday, in the Corby Public Library, on Pinnacle Street. Among those who are actively engaged in this pleasurable hobby are Mr. E. A. Greenleaf, whose collection consists of stamps of the old world; Mr. Percy Geen, druggist, has a fine array of Canadian and American stamps; while Mr. Nicolaus Mika, one of Canada's new citizens, has a large collection of stamps denoting famous people, including inventors, doctors, scientists, and artists. Others have collections depicting trees, flowers and fuana.

Interesting Lectures

The Belleville Stamp Club is anxious to enlarge its scope; to enter into stamp exchange with other stamp societies in other cities; and to find cheaper stamp markets.

Beginning next Tuesday evening, lectures will be given, relative to the various collections, at each general meeting throughout the year. Mr. Mika will address the meeting this Tuesday on a famous Canadian, Alexander Graham Bell.

Plans Completed for Visit Of Prime Minister to City For Unveiling Ceremony

Final plans for the unveiling of the monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell on the Armouries lawn Saturday by Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Prime Minister of Canada, have been formulated. Mr. St. Laurent's six hours in Belleville have been carefully planned by a city council committee headed by Alderman C. D. Tice, and barring foul weather, there should be no hitch in the proceedings.

Mr. St. Laurent and party are due to arrive in Belleville at the North Station at noon, and will immediately inspect a guard of honor from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Following that, the Prime Minister will place a wreath on the cenotaph. He will be escorted to that point by the Belleville Municipal Band, the Kinsmen Boys' Band, Boy Scouts and B.C.I. Cadets.

The Ottawa party will then proceed to the Hotel Quinte for a luncheon at 1.30 p.m. Madame St. Laurent will be entertained at a private luncheon at the Queen's Hotel at the same time. The Prime Minister will also be accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Mathieu Sanson, and his assistant, Mr. J. W. Pickersgill.

Extend Civic Welcome

After the luncheon, and immediately preceding the unveiling of the monument, a civic welcome will be extended the Prime Minister by Mayor H. J. Allin. He will present Mr. St. Laurent with a gold key to the city, and a bouquet of flowers will be given Madame St. Laurent.

On the platform on the Armouries lawn will be civic dignitaries, the Ottawa party, and others taking part in the program.

Immediately after the civic welcome, Mayor Allin will make the opening remarks of the unveiling, and Alderman Claude Tice will introduce Mr. Fred M. Landon, chairman of the Historical Sites and Monuments Board. Mr. Landon will review Sir Mackenzie Bowell's career as an editor and statesman.

Frank Follwell, M. P., for Hastings South, will then introduce Mr. St. Laurent, and the Prime Minister will unveil the monument. He is expected to make a short speech right after he unveils the plaque to Sir Mackenzie. After the Prime Minister's speech, Rev. F. R. Harback, president of the Belleville Ministerial Association, will say a few words in prayer.

Represents Ont. Govt.

The Hon. George H. Doucett will represent the Ontario government for the occasion. An invitation was sent to Premier Leslie M. Frost, but he was unable to be present, and Mr. Doucett is taking his place.

After the unveiling, which is scheduled for 3 p. m., a civic reception will be held in the officers' mess of the Armouries, restricted to invitation only. In the event of foul weather, the whole program will be switched to the Armouries floor, and appropriate replicas of the cenotaph and the monument will be provided for the ceremonies.

Plans are underway to take the Ottawa party on a tour of the city before the departure time of six o'clock. Earlier plans to have a public reception were discarded when it was decided to have a civic welcome before the unveiling.

93 Million Young Fish Placed In Lakes for Glenora Hatchery

Over 93 million young fish have been planted in suitable lakes and streams from the Glenora hatchery this year since the fish distribution project started on April 15th.

Pickerel and white fish fry formed the bulk of the stock, the latter being replanted in Lake Ontario, and the Bay of Quinte. Pickerel was placed in Hay Bay as well as a number of inland lakes and streams.

Upwards of 340,000 fingerling trout of the lake, brown and speckled varieties made up the balance and permitted good coverage throughout the district.

Yet to be distributed are 100,000 young speckled trout which will be transferred to the White Lake ponds for rearing to yearling size. 140,000 of these youngsters have already been transferred to White Ponds.

Two Hydro Linemen Injured Fall 25 Feet When Pole Snaps

Falling 25 feet to a gravel driveway when the hydro pole on which they were working snapped off at the base, two hydro linemen working out of Belleville were injured this morning at Roslin and are in Belleville General Hospital.

In hospital with undetermined injuries are: Bill Arnott, 55 Baldwin Street, and "Des" Fisher, 90 Great St. James Street. They were taken to hospital in Bush's ambulance.

The accident occurred at the side of No. 37 highway at the driveway of the Roslin cheese factory one mile south of Roslin. A hydro line crew with Bill Phillips of this city as foreman were taking cable and transformer from a pole when the pole broke at the ground hurling the two workmen to the driveway.

Nearby farmers who saw the pole break assisted others of the hydro crew in extricating the injured men from the twisted cross-arms. Details of injuries suffered by the men were not obtainable at the hospital but it was believed that both had suffered broken limbs. They were attended by Dr. Russell Bateman.

A new section of hydro line had been erected north from the cheese factory where the highway had been changed, and linemen were engaged in removing the old section of line.

Stockholm. (CP) — Sweden's stock of automobiles has become old and worn and a survey here showed at least 40,000 new cars and 10,000 trucks will be needed annually. As much as 69 per cent of all private cars in Sweden are more than ten years old.

C. N. Nicholson Re-Elected Pres. Scouts' Assoc.

The importance of scouting in training boys to be future citizens and the need for trained leaders to further the education of Scouts and Cubs was stressed last night by W. H. J. Tisdale, Provincial Commissioner for Ontario Boy Scouts as he addressed the annual meeting of the Belleville Boy Scouts Association.

The annual meeting was held in St. Thomas Parish Hall at which trophies for the most progressive Cub Pack and Scout troop were handed out and officers for the new year were elected.

Mr. Tisdale in his address to the meeting complimented the Belleville Scout Association and its officers on their contribution to scouting in this city.

"No one knows all about scouting," he admitted, "but we all know what scouting does for boys."

He went on to point out that there are very few paid workers who work hard to advance scouting with most of the work being done by volunteers. It takes training for a leader to conduct a successful Pack or Troop.

Need Trained Leaders

"So we need trained leaders to further the education of Cubs and Scouts to make finer citizens of Canada," Mr. Tisdale said. "Scouting is for the boy."

Although trained leaders were in demand, group committees can help in many ways, even though they know little about scouting itself. There was an appeal in scouting which would not let a person get away from it. To see a boy's character moulded before your eyes gets a grip, which will not let go.

The Follwell Scout Trophy to the most progressive troop was presented by Mr. E. E. Follwell to the 1st St. Thomas Troop while the Follwell Cub Troph was presented by Frank Follwell M.P., to the 8th Cub Pack. Both trophies are for annual competition.

District Commissioner Angus Duffy presented certificates of preliminary course for scout masters to Fred Churchill, Don Allan, Harry Smith, and Kent Smith. Part one Gillwell course certificates were presented to Betty Smith, Mrs. Ashley and Mrs. Tice.

Mr. C. N. Nicholson was re-elected as president of the association for another year. Other officers are A. S. Lewis, secretary; F. Lancaster, treasurer and O. Owen, vice president. Officers and the incoming executive were asked to take the Scout promise.

Reports of the various officers and on various activities received and adopted. C. N. Nicholson introduced the speaker with Mr. Jack Deacon expressing the appreciation of the association.

Obituary

LATE JOSEPH AKEY

Campbellford, Oct. 26—Funeral services were held in Campbellford yesterday for Joseph Akey, who passed away at his Maple Street home on Sunday. He had been in ill health for some time. He was over 90 years of age at the time of his death.

Surviving are his wife, two sons, William of Madoc, and Clayton of Campbellford, two daughters, Mrs. Kelly of Foxboro and Mrs. Hugh McMillan of North Hastings county.

Captain McIntyre of the Salvation Army in Campbellford conducted services from the family residence on Tuesday afternoon.

Pall bearers were Walter Lowe, James Parcels, Henry Tyler, Sandford Chard, Walter Cole, Geo. Parcels. Interment was in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

Druggists Hear Address On Drug Addiction

An interesting address on "Some of the Social and Economical Aspects of Drug Addiction" was given to the Quinte District Druggists Association at its annual fall meeting here last night.

The speaker was Mr. Kenneth C. Hossick, chief of the Narcotic Drug Division of the Federal Department of Health, Ottawa, who spoke to some 50 members of the Association in the Town Room of Lattimer's Drug Store.

Mr. Hossick discussed at some length the present and proposed regulations regarding narcotics as they affect drug stores. He showed a motion picture film on his subject that proved highly educational to the meeting.

Special guests were Chief of Police Walter Probert; Police Inspector Clare Hayes, Corporal Hancock, R.C.M.P. and several pharmaceutical travellers.

Mr. Frank Fillon, Trenton druggist, president of the association was in the chair and extended the official welcome to the guests. The speaker was introduced by Harold Seldon. Following the meeting a buffet supper was served.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 26 — (CP) —The entire market became depressed with strong losses as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

A wide list of industrials showed losses up to a point and a half. Utilities suffered the most with practically every issue down. Papers, steels, constructions, liquors, refining oils and manufacturing companies showed a majority of losses in the groupings. Retail stores and textiles were mixed and banks and agricultures managed to show small gains.

Base metals also sagged with leaders declining up to 50 cents. Quebec Manitou was the most active base metal, losing pennies.

Junior and senior gold producers showed a wide list of small losses and western oils continued their losing streak with key issues down as much as 30 cents.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Oct. — 26 — Produce prices quoted on the spot market here this morning:

Creamery prints: First grade, 58 cents.

The egg market was steady with a firmer trend on all A graded eggs. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free: Grade A large, 61-62; A medium, 52-53; A pullet, 44-45; Grade B, 43-44; Grade C, 29-33. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 65-66; A medium, 56-57; A pullet, 47-49; Grade B, 48-49; Grade C, 33-34.

Butter solids: First grade, 56¼ cents, second grade, (nominal) 53 cents.

90 HUNGARIANS RETURN

Budapest, Oct. 25 — (Reuters) —Ninety Hungarians returned to Hungary from Canada Tuesday. Most of those repatriated were workers and farmers. Some of them left Hungary after the Second World War, and returned under the provisions of an amnesty. The 90 crossed the Atlantic in the Polish liner Batory.

RUSS CHOICE FOR U.N. SECRETARY

PADILLO NERVO

Acceptance of Padillo Nervo of Mexico for the post of secretary-general of the United Nations was indicated by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky. PRICE GOES UP

London, Oct. 26—(Reuters) — Food Minister Maurice Webb has achieved an aim he publicly set himself when he took office last spring—a better sausage for Britons. Pork sausage will in the future have a minimum content of 65 per cent meat instead of 50 per cent as in the past, he said yesterday. But the price will go up and there may be fewer sausages available.

Three Affected By Escaping Gas Fumes

The ringing of an alarm clock at 6:30 this morning is credited with saving three persons at 45 College Street, East, from being asphyxiated with coal gas fumes escaping from a coal stove.

Affected by the fumes were Mr. and Mrs. Nee and 14-year-old Billy Wilson, a son of Mrs. Nee by a previous marriage. Mrs. Nee took violently ill after being wakened and firemen were forced to use the inhalator to give her oxygen.

With the ringing of the alarm the son awoke and starting for the bathroom collapsed on the floor when overcome by gas fumes. Mr. Nee was also affected but not as seriously as his wife and the boy.

When firemen arrived on the scene the house was still heavy with gas fumes which apparently had been escaping from the stove during the night. The stove had been checked as usual for the night, but firemen thought the damp air may have retarded burning of the coal and caused the fumes to escape into the house.

White Cane Club Holds Enjoyable Meeting at YMCA

The White Cane Club held their monthly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday.

During the meeting a moment of silence was observed in memory of a former club member, Mr. Frederick Wilson, who passed away recently.

A delightful program was provided for the club by Mrs. J. Kingston who played a guitar and harmonica together and sang. Mr. Ed Brown accompanied by Mrs. M. P. Duff at the piano rendered several vocal selections which were much enjoyed.

Dainty refreshments were served by members of the Kinette Club of Belleville, after which Mr. Towner gave a hearty vote of thanks to those who had made the evening a success.

WEATHER-CONSCIOUS

After a summer and early autumn somewhat out of e ordinary people are becoming more weather-conscious. he course of the autumn has hence been watched more tently by people who with their enlarged experience ave a means of applying a measuring rule to the weather.

October is one of the year's fine months in a land of enerally fine autumn weather. Canadians can now ppreciate weather in its more pleasant phases at least. ctober has given a taste of regular autumn conditions at is stage of the year and there has been little of which to omplain, at least not to the extent to which many felt a ievance over the sort of conditions which prevailed in e summertime when it is usually hot but this year was irly cool.

October however is making progress towards the end, hough a good share of the autumn remains, actually early four weeks.

The colder weather is slowly putting in an appearance nd more and more casual references are paid in street emarks to the advance of the chilly season.

Canadians know what the usual autumn season head is like and generally are prepared for it. Homes are eated now, new heating systems are broken in and more han chilly comfort awaits those who step in doors after eing outdoors for a part of the day.

Looking ahead the weather prospects appear good. It a few days yet to the end of the month and November es ahead, often not too severe.

JAZZ SINGER PASSES

One of that numerous and famous class who entertain as gone, Al Jolson. Back recently from the Korean war ront, where he entertained U.N. troops he died suddenly n Monday night in New York.

There probably never was an age with so large an udience as that which has favored entertainers in recent ecades. The beginning of movies opened the door wider to his class, then came sound motion pictures and in this adio age Jolson and many others have given their talents o the audiences which number millions. No artist of earler ages had such opportunity for popularity as the phonoraph, talking picture and the radio, virtually made the creen figures live and brought them into every home. How ar this will go on with the advance of television only the uture can show.

Jolson became a type of the immigrant from other ands who found in a sensitive and kindly Western World n audience of vast proportions and a state of society which rovided him and them with the opportunities such newcomers found waiting for them. On the screen, the stage, n record and film there has been everywhere the opporunity. Over these agencies came to the Western World ntertainment in jokes and in song to millions of people who delighted in their entertainment. No age has been so rivileged as this one to have these agencies put at the rtists' disposal and talents to make their audience worldwide and extend the fame of those artists which became really as wide as the world.

Jolson is referred to as a war casualty. He had just returned from a tour of the Orient during which he entertained the troops from the Western World on their mission to redeem Korea from aggression.

Typical of the spirit of Jolson who had delighted millions by radio and on the stage and in the movies, he cracked a joke when he was told that the end was near.

The world famed entertainer and jazz singer came by his great gift of minstrelsy and music by birth, his father being a Jewish cantor who emigrated to America when Jolson was an infant. He himself had been trained for the synagogue but went on the stage at the age of thirteen.

The United States was amply rewarded by the emigrant boy who rose to great fame and became in a very real sense a voice that spoke the spirit of the New World and amply rewarded the people of the west who gave the jazz singer his great opportunity and his boundless audience.

In another age without modern inventions, Jolson would have no doubt risen to heights in his chosen field but his audience would have been naturally limited. And in an early age his influence would have been smaller as compared with the audience of millions who harkened to the modern troubador and master of jazz. He was typical of this age in his chosen field.

The voice of conscience is so delicate that it is easy to stifle it; but it is also so clear that it is impossible to mistake it. — Mad. de Stael.

FAME AND FORTUNE

Said Fame to Fortune, "We're a pair
That have been honored everywhere
And still are honored, hailed and cheered;
Much loved, although we should be feared.
For notwithstanding all our charm
The ones we help we sometimes harm

"We fancy we've discovered one
Whom we may safely smile upon,
But when our favors are bestowed
And lightened is the toiler's load
When next we see the man again
We find him arrogant and vain.

"All think that easy it will be
To get along with you and me,
But still it cannot be denied
We sow the seeds of foolish pride.
Grown rich and famous some forget
The friends that once they gladly met.

"There's many a man that you and I
Had better blindly journey by
For we've discovered much too late
He was not able to be great
For with the gifts we thought were good
He lost the touch of brotherhood."

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AT THE BEGINNING

Psychiatrists today frequently complain that their patients are afflicted with a sense of guilt.

As a matter of fact, this sense of guilt is evidence that the patient is trying to cure. This guilt is the first step in the direction of repentance, and repentance is that purging of the soul which is necessary before one starts to live a full and purposeful life. A neurotic person, therefore, overcome by a sense of guilt, is simply stalled or bogged down in his attempt to achieve a full and healthy personality.

So if you are filled with a sense of guilt about some particular matter, or about your life in general just be sure that your face is at least turned in the right direction. A sense of guilt is not unwholesome unless one remains in that mood. Let it be a springboard, a beachhead—anything you want to call it, provided it means pushing forward to a wholesome and purposeful objective.

Realization of guilt is the first step toward the correction of a disordered personality. The full connection will be achieved through repentance and faith.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INFLUENCE

Influences are what make us what we are. Especially are they potent and lasting if adhered to in youth. Luther Burbank, the famous California breeder, left great influence behind when he left this world. He once wrote: "This is what fixes traits in plants—the constant repetition of an influence."

In youth the child is influenced by his parents and environment more than at any other period of his life. Impressions then become stamped upon his brain and remain throughout life. Whether we realize it or not, every contact each day of our lives, has its influence upon our subsequent life. As each cut of the sculptor's chisel gradually reveals the artist's dream, so does each character.

A daily association with those who inspire, and an early love of good books, both keep repeating their inflence, enriching our mind and experience. The early influence of a good and happy home has set the foundation for very successful life. We then form the habit of seeking our kind, continually augmenting influences that keep feeding us, giving to us strength and growth.

The influence of an outstanding character is limitless, yet in every community there are those who live quietly, unboastfully who influence everyone who comes in contact with them. The smile and cheer of many shut-in radiate afar. And how potent is the influence of those in great organizations, like the Salvation Army, who so unselfishly search out for those who mostly need their kindly help.

Most of us can look back and recall the fine influence of many a teacher, in our school days, that influence following us through the years. Someone is always watching us and, being influenced by what we say or do. And each of us is forever being inflenced. We never know how far the light that we may throw out may influence the lives of others. Influence is one of our most precious possessions.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The kitchen is the heart of any home. Yet if you visit some of the newest houses being built, you will be shocked at the small size and general lack of comfort of the kitchens. To be sure, these modern kitchens are equipped with every conceivable gadget. They are functional in the highest degree. But so is a dentist's office.

You have the impression, as you look at these 1950 kitchens, that the mistress of the house will merely pop in for a few minutes to throw together a meal, the way she might pop into the bathroom for a quick tub.

This may be all very well for newlyweds. But for the vast majority of mankind, the kitchen is truly the heart of the house; and the whole house should be built around it. For sixteen hours of every day, there is usually nobody in the bedrooms; and for the other eight, anybody that is in them, is unconscious. For almost twenty-two hours of the day, there is nobody in the dining room. But there is hardly a moment of the entire day from dawn to midnight that there is not somebody in the kitchen. In a great many of the happiest homes in this land they eat in the kitchen, they gather in the kitchen, it is the favorite spot in which to loaf. It is the workshop of the house. The life of the house emanates from it. It is the heart. The old word hearth comes from almost the same root as heart.

There are no hearths in kitchens anymore. But it is a pity the architects as well as the building industry have fallen victim to the twentieth century craze for what they call "the package."

Make a house look good Never mind how it 's to be used.

If houses are merely for looks, then we have all been evicted from an ancient and hard-won thing called home.

MacKenzie's Column:

Chinese Finally On March To Take Over Tibet

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Asia, still tense from repercussions of the Korean War, has a fresh worry in the radio announcement from Peiping that a communist Chinese army finally is on the march to take over Tibet — "roof of the world."

The broadcast from the communist Chinese capital said the purpose of the expedition was to free the Tibetans "from imperialist oppression." Precisely what is meant by "imperialist oppression" isn't clear, since the Tibetans for untold centuries have lived in near-isolation in their aerie among the world's highest peaks.

We shall be more precise — if more prosaic — if we say that Peiping apparently is in process of reinstating Tibet under Chinese rule. The country was incorporated in the Chinese Empire during the Mongol conquest in the 13th century. She declared her independence after establishment of the Chinese Republic in 1912, though China never has recognized that status.

Boast of Liberation

Recently the Chinese communists have been boasting that they have liberated all China, excepting Tibet and the Island of Formosa, which is seat of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Nationalist government. And now Peiping apparently proposes to remove Tibet from that category.

True, there is a Tibetan delegation en route to Peiping to discuss the status of their country with the communists. So naturally it is given to wonder whether the Peiping broadcast might be calculated merely to put high pressure on the mission and get its members into a frame of mind for concessions.

However, it should occasion no surprise if Chinese troops are moving on Tibet. Should the invasion take place, its main significance would lie in the fact that another country had become a victim of armed force, even as in the case of Korea.

Great Repercussion

The repercussion on Asia in particular and the world in general would be great.

From the military standpoint, Tibet isn't a great plum, because of its isolation among almost impassable mountains. However, Indian officialdom is said to be uneasy over the prospect of communism taking over another country on India's borders. The threat, if any, would be political rather than military.

Knitting Textbook To Aid Girl Guides

Toronto,—(CP)—From now on, Canadian Girl Guides and Brownies should find it easy to qualify for their knitter badge.

A booklet, "Wool 'Round the Year", now being distributed to Canada's 70,500 English-speaking Guides and Brownies, contains a complete course in knitting. For those who have already learned to knit, there are illustrated instructions for knitting several articles of clothing, including sweaters, stockings and scarves.

It is to be used as a textbook in the earning of the proficiency badge for knitting. By following its directions, a guide or a Brownie can knit the badge itself.

In addition, it tells how to make woollen toys and gifts and explains the use of wool felt, yarns and fabrics in fashions, as well as giving shopping hints, notes on selection and care of woollens and the story of a trip through a woollen mill.

The 63-page booklet is a gift to the Guides and Brownies from the wool bureau, an information service operated by wool manufacturers, which also has made available a display of samples of garments described in the booklet. The display will be shown in Guide centres across Canada this fall.

CHILDREN INJURED

Genoa, Italy, Oct. 26—(Reuters)—Nineteen deaf and dumb children were injured last night when their bus crashed into a wall near Rapallo, south of Genoa. The children, all Dutch, were returning to Holland after a Holy Year visit to Rome. Two priests and four nuns accompanying the children were also hurt. Doctors said none of the injuries was serious.

MALNUTRITION AND RHEUMATISM

Malnutrition occurs in all classes of people, perhaps even more frequently in the well-to-do than in the very poor. It is not a question of getting enough to eat, but simply a question of getting adequate daily amounts of the elements required to maintain good nutrition. These essentials are protein, fat, carbohydrate (sugars and starches), vitamins and minerals.

Everyone gets enough protein, fat and carbohydrate from the everyday diet followed by most of us, but few if any can get enough vitamins and/or minerals from the standard refined diet. Anyone who follows refined everyday diet for years without supplementing it by eating in one form or another is bound to suffer from malnutrition.

The national malnutrition manifests itself in various ways, depending on the particular deficiencies in the diet habitually followed, and upon casual or circumstantial factors, such as the amount of ultraviolet light absorbed through the skin.

The physical degeneration of joints commonly known as chronic rheumatiz is a common manifestation of malnutrition, in the opinion of the writer of this piece. If this strikes you as bolderdash at first, don't go away mad; just turn to something else and let it lie there for a while—you'll find it gradually worming its way into your inner consciousness whenever you consider the riddle of rheumatism.

And so may I recommend that the victim of chronic rheumatism supplement his or her diet with a daily ration of calcium and phosphorus combined with enough vitamin D to insure utilization of the minerals, this for at least ten weeks in the spring and again for at least ten weeks in the autumn. In addition, for the year around, one who fears he is developing or knows he has chronic rheumatiz should eat every day as a supplement to his or her diet a palatable preparation containing the three minerals and three vitamins in which the modern refined diet is usually deficient — calcium, phosphorus, iodin, thiamine, riboflavin and D.

Theoretically it should be possible to restore all of these essentials to the everyday diet by merely correcting the chief faults of the modern refined diet. But right at the outset this attempt to revise the diet clashes with ignorance, popular custom and commercial influence—a combination hard to overcome. Why, 99 out of every hundred believe real whole wheat flour, from which nothing is removed in the milling, is not quite fit for human consumption and that refined white flour is "purer" or better suited for our delicate digestion. And the arguments or objections raised by the malnourished against the prescription of not less than 1½ pints (three glassfuls) of milk daily for each person, range from misunderstanding to absurdity. Milk "disagrees," forms "mucus," is too "binding." Trouble is these poor geeks know so much that isn't so.

It seems that we're stuck with the nice refined inadequate American diet and we must just supplement it as well as we can.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Boy Has Knock-Knees

Son, 5, seems knock-kneed. Is this from any vitamin deficiency? Can we do anything to correct it? Also he breathes through his mouth continually. Doctor says tonsils should be removed. (Mrs. T. W.)

Answer — Sometimes knock-knee is due to D deficiency. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Young Folks and old Folks. If the child's breathing is obstructed the obstructing portion of the tonsil or tonsils should be clipped or sliced off with the tonsillotome.

Night Cramps

Husband has chewed tobacco for 37 years. He gets painful cramps in his legs at night. Is tobacco the cause? He is 66. (Mrs. T. M.)

Answer — No. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains.

Milk is Health Food

Lot of talk here about milk being of no benefit to adults. Chiropractor lectured here, saying milk causes (never mind the symptoms) and formation of mucus. (Mrs. G. S. P.)

Answer—Old stuff. Every adult should consume not less than 1½ pints of milk daily.

CANARIES GIVEN POPE

Vatican City, Oct. 26—(Reuters)—Pope Pius last night added two canaries to the tens of thousands of gifts he has received from pilgrims during this Holy Year. The canaries were among more than a dozen presents given to him by 1,000 Spanish women who, with about 35,000 other pilgrims, attended a mass audience in St. Peter's Basilica.

ACQUITTED OF KILLING

London, Oct. 26—(Reuters)—Victor Boyle, 53, was aquitted here yesterday of the razor killing of Pat Beard, pretty 15-year-old London girl who was slashed across the throat with a razor in a back street of London's Brixton district Aug. 9. The jury first reported it could not agree, but retired again and then found Boyle innocent.

CAMPBELLFORD

Local Business Men May Form New C. of C.

Campbellf[illegible] — Mr. James Fraser, m[illegible]f the Peterborough C[illegible] Commerce, will [illegible]e in C[illegible]ellford on Monday evening, [illegible]ober 30, at which time a meeting of the local business men will be held with a view to forming a Chamber of Commerce in Campbellford.

Mr. Fraser will describe the workings of the Chamber, and will answer any questions the local men may have on their minds. The meeting will be held at Edgewater Park.

A large turnout is expected, as the local business men have voiced their opinion of being very much in favor of the formation of a local Chamber of Commerce, and will likely take this opportunity to see that it comes into being.

Duck Migrations Will be Photographed

Portage La Prairie, Man., Oct. 26 (CP) —Ducks migrating to this area are going to be "shot" —but they won't mind it.

The shooting will be done by Julian St. George, a cameraman with the National Film Board. He will also photograph the annual duck shooting season.

Guest Speaker

George Mensik, former Chicago big-time gangster is now telling the story of how he gave up the gang wars and the beer-running business to practise and preach the Christian Gospel. His purpose of life now is to steer well-meaning youth in right channels as well as reclaiming many who have fallen into wrong. He tells of the evil of his own past; delinquency, reform school, prison marijuana smoking, gambling, etc., and thus knowing the folly of these, is able to prove to others the strength and power of the Christian life.

Since 1937 Mr. Mensik has done extensive Christian work among prisoners and also caring for many of their families in their unfortunate circumstances. For more than a year now he has been devoting himself to a full-time Christian laymen's ministry travelling widely throughout the U.S. and Canada, telling the remarkable story of his life before and after his acceptance of the Christian faith. He is speaking in Belleville this week-end at the Alliance Tabernacle.

Scout Movement Needs Leaders

Vancouver—(CP)— The main problem facing the expanding Boy Scout movement is not lack of boys but insufficient number of leaders.

Twice as many boys could be in Boy Scouts, Wolf Cubs and Rovers if enough leaders could be developed to meet the need.

This is the opinion of Maj.-Gen. D. C. Spry, chief executive commissioner for Scouting in Canada. He was here for the quarterly meeting of the executive committee of the general council of the Boy Scouts Association.

Maj.-Gen Spry said a systematic search for adult leadership material is in progress.

There now are 115,235 scouters in Canada, a bigger total than the cadet movement for the three armed services.

More than 50 nations foster the movement with a total membership of 4,860,000.

Timber Operators Expect Peak Year

Port Arthur, Oct. 26 (CP) — Bushworkers from scattered sections of Canada— some from as far away as Newfoundland —arrived here at the rate of 20 a day early this month. They will provide the labor force for what is expected to be a record year for timber operations in this area.

Dyer Hurdon, assistant manager of the Port Arthur office of National Employment Service, says 14,000 workers were needed in northwestern Ontario.

The fall harvesting delayed their arrival here early this month but Mr. Hurdon says after harvesting is completed they will come "in droves."

Sentenced for Abduction

Barrie, Ont., Oct. 26 (CP) — Wilfred Coull, 25 of Victoria, was sentenced yesterday to four months definite and four months indeterminate after pleading guilty to a charge of abducting his 13-year-old sister-in-law from her home near here.

The girl disappeared Sept. 29. She and Coull were picked up by police several days later at Cornwall, Ont.

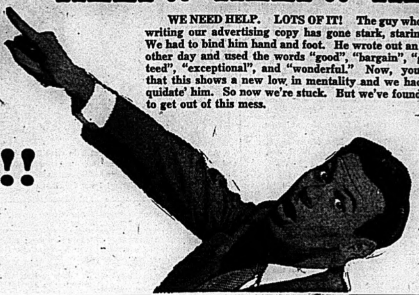
HELP!! HELP!! HELP!! HELP!!

WE NEED HELP. LOTS OF IT! The guy who's been writing our advertising copy has gone stark, staring mad. We had to bind him hand and foot. He wrote out an ad. the other day and used the words "good", "bargain", "guaranteed", "exceptional", and "wonderful." Now, you know that this shows a new low in mentality and we had to 'liquidate' him. So now we're stuck. But we've found a way to get out of this mess.

HELP!!



. . . . YOU

Are Going To WRITE Our Advertising Copy For Us!

WE THINK IT'S A GOOD IDEA because it's easier to believe what YOU say about our cars than what we say. That we know is the best type of advertising.

We'll Pay You For Your Work! . . .

This Is The Way It Works!

- Below is a list of our stock (without descriptions).
- If you like, you can come up and look over our cars, so you'll know what you're writing about.
- Then, write what you consider an appropriate description of any or all of the cars.
- It can be serious, or it can be humorous, but it must be TRUTHFUL.
- It can be a complete layout with punch head lines.
- You can either draw or paste on appropriate pictures that might go with the ad. It doesn't have to be a work of art. We'll do the rest.

White Shrine Holds Dainty Tea, Bazaar

A dainty tea and bazaar was held yesterday afternoon in the Oddfellows' Hall, Front Street, under the auspices of the White Shrine of Jerusalem. Receiving at the door were Mrs. H. Reid, Worthy High Priestess, assisted by Mrs. L. Grey.

At one side of the spacious assembly hall, were little quartet tables, each with its snowy cloth and centrepiece of russet-tinted baby 'mums, the long, tea table, attractively appointed with its ecru lace cloth, its shining silver services, flanking the tall, silver candelabra with their green and yellow candles, and crystal bowl of russet chrysanthemums.

Across the room were ranged at intervals, the autumn-colored tables with their various commodities of needlework, aprons, candles, flowers, and homecooking. And here and there at strategic points were the draw cards, consisting of a lovely, wine-colorde candlewick bedspread; a pot of gorgeous colored mauvey-pink baby 'mums, and near the entrance a gem of an angel cake, sparkling with silver dots atop the snow-white projections; the whole surrounded with golden baby 'mums and topped with a cluster of the same. This cake is one of a long line of royal cakes that now and then grace these festive bazaars, all made by the same unmistakable hand which many months ago ushered in the "Queen of cakes", done in misty pink. Much appreciation is extended to the maker for her kindness and for these things of beauty.

Those Presiding

Those who presided at the tea table were, Mrs. E. Follwell, Mrs. E. Sandercock, Mrs. H. Allin, Mrs. G. Baker, and Mrs. M. J. Barlow; while those who served were, Mrs. R. Fleming, Miss V. Kindred, Mrs. H. Baragar, Mrs. H. Calnan, Mrs. F. McCrae, Mrs. H. Sargent, Mrs. C. Ironside, Mrs. J. Baker, Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. V. Lough, Mrs. L. Adams, Mrs. M. Stratton, Mrs. T. Kilpatrick, Mrs. M. Herns, Mrs. M. Pattrick, and Mrs. V. Harkins.

The general conveners were, Mrs E. Nayler, with the co-convener, Mrs. V. Slavin, assisted by Mrs. D. McGlashon, while Mrs. E. Harrison and Mrs. M. Adams convened the tea room; Mrs. A. Calnan, the glorified angel cake; Mrs. E. Murphy, the potted mauve pink baby 'mums; Mrs. T. Lloyd, the table of Christmas, birthday and general purpose cards, and Mrs. M. Elliott, the wine-colored candlewick spread.

Variety of Articles

In charge of the fancy-work table, which was prettily decorated with loops of purple were Mrs. I. Clapp, Mrs. M. Elliott, assisted by Mrs. O. Marvin, Mrs. E. Reid, Mrs. M. Yorke, Mrs. E. Evans, Mrs. E. Broad and Mrs. C. Adams. Here one could buy shopping bags in vivid reds and yellows; babies' bonnets in soft, fleecy wool; flower pot holders; sockees; tea cloths; chair sets; baby smocks; hand dusters; and wine-colored satin cushions, and little dolls with fancy crocheted dresses. All dainty and just the thing for some nice person for a Christmas gift.

On the apron table were several kinds of print aprons, all tastefully made, and of the useful variety. This was convened by Mrs. M. Cherrie, Mrs. H. Darvell with their assistants, Mrs. M. Armstrong, Mrs. Z. Gee and Mrs. C. Briens.

Tempting Homecooking

As usual the homecooking table with its red and green runners drew many customers for the tempting cakes, pies, cookies, Chinese chews, raspberry tarts and taffy tarts; chocolate cakes, and cocoanut cakes, apple jelly, and relishes of beet, cucumber, and sweet pickles The flowers consisted of potted parsley, so handy to add just the needed touch for many a savory dish; little plants of cacti and pink pansy geraniums also added their color. Here Mrs. E. Stevens, Mrs. E. Murphy, assisted by Mrs. D. Westover, Mrs. H. Archard, Mrs. J. Wessels and Mrs. M. Miller were kept busy attending to the customers.

The treasurers for the afternoon were Mrs. G. McEwan and Mrs. M. Moorman.

Miss D. Boulton Showered With Gifts, Confetti

On Tuesday evening, about 20 friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Gray, Dundas Street, to honor Miss Dorothy Boulton, bride-elect of this month, with a miscellaneous shower.

The evening was spent in the making of a bride's book, and a general get-together, after which Dorothy was given the seat of honor, a prettily decorated chair underneath an inverted pink and white umbrella from whose points tiny umbrellas were suspended. At frequent intervals, as the bride-to-be opened the gifts which filled a pink and white basket, the tiny tots of the company showered her with deluges of confetti.

After the gifts had been unwrapped and admired, and their donors graciously thanked the hostess served refreshments, assisted by friends of the bride-elect.

Quintena Rebekahs Install Officers

The installation of officers of Quintena Rebekah Lodge for the year 1950-51 took place on Tuesday night in the Oddfellows Hall, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion with flowers.

Sister Eva Turvey introduced Sister Vera Graham, D.D.P., of district No. 4, and Sister Annie Rose introduced Br. George Kerr, P.G.P. Both were welcomed, as well as other members present.

A gift was presented to Sister Graham, D.D.P. by Sisters Bessie Boldrick and Rhea Mitchell on behalf of the Lodge, for which Sister Graham graciously expressed her appreciation and thanks. The 4 Square Club presented a corsage to Sister Mitchell on her retirement from the chair.

Sister Vera Graham was in charge of the installation assisted by her installing officers and Dep. Marshal Blanche Countryman, with officers as follows: Noble Grand, Sister Marjorie Large; Vice Grand, Sis. Bessie Boldrick; J.P.N.G., Sister Rhea Mitchell; Chaplain, Sister Helen Miller; Recording Secretary, Sister Irene Aman; Financial Secretary, Sister Lena MacMillan; Treasurer, Sister Eva Turvey; Warden, Sister Verna Oliphant; Conductor, Sister Helen Bunton; Inside Guard, Sister Mary Jordan; outside Guard, Sister Margaret Govier; Musician, Sister Clara Ironside; R.S.N.G., Sister Georgina Charlton; L.S.N.G. Sister Irene Muir; R.S.V.G., Sister Jean Fitzgibbon; L.S.V.G., Sister Vera Wycott; Color Bearer, Sister Helena Darvell.

Sister Large received gifts from her family and the 4 Square Club, presented to her by Sister Irene Muir and Sister Vera Wycott.

After the installation ceremony, all partook of a pot-luck supper in the upper lodge room.

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon W.M.S.

Rawdon—The regular meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society was held one week later at the home of Mrs. Herbert Smith on Wednesday last.

There were 12 members, five visitors and six children in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Roy Thrasher, presided. Mrs. Ross Hoard played quiet music and all sang a hymn of thankfulness.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen read this excerpt from a personal letter she had received from Mrs. James Laughland, Guelph, president Dominion Board, as her roll call. "Have you ever stood by the ocean watching the waves pressing relentlessly forward? Little waves, big waves, all tumbling, hurrying to reach the shore. If so, then you have an idea of what happens when women from all sides unite in a common cause to reach a common goal."

The treasurer's report was read and the amount to date is $174. The day's offering of almost $10 also $7.50 was received by Marguerite McMullen and dedicated. Mrs. F. Smith read an invitation to visit Salem W.A. and bazaar on November 8th with Mount Pleasant to give the devotional and this was accepted.

The regular November meeting will be held one week later in the evening on November 15th at the parsonage. Each member is to invite her husband and take refreshments for this gathering with Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik.

Thanks Extended

Mrs. Jeffs and Mrs. Thrasher extended thanks for sympathy letters received.

Mrs. John Holmes, who is ill, sent her greetings and the president asked all to remember Mrs. Holmes during her illness.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs read a letter of thanks from Mrs. Shewman, Morris, Manitoba, for the parcel of four quilts and a blanket which had been received and given to needy people in that area.

Several ladies renewed their subscriptions to the "Missionary Monthly" and to "World Friends" and Mrs. McConnell hopes to send the order soon.

Mrs. Will Potts gave a reading on the subject "Stewardship of Your Spare Time". The only wealth worth having is found in human hearts. There are many phases of stewardship and all should be practised. One missionary has said "Let me die working and giving."

Thanksgiving Message

Mrs. Milford Wrightman read a message written by Dr. V. T. Mooney, treasurer of United Church which said "Thankfulness is an essential Christian grace." Let this season of harvest thanksgiving incite in us the art of being thankful for all the mercies and blessings which we receive daily." Mrs. Frank Smith read the 130th Psalm, "Bless the Lord, O my soul."

Full Report

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a full report of afternoon session of the recent rally held at Tabernacle, Belleville, and she also read a report of the morning session which had been prepared by Mrs. Blake Sharpe. A vote of thanks was rendered for the reports of Mesdames Jeffs and Hoard. At a later date, some way is to be planned to raise money for supply work.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen gave a splendid paper on "Thankfulness". She said "Being thankful makes life worth while"; It takes two people, the giver and the re- she outlined a fund of experiences of people who had been notably thankful for mercies received.

Mrs. Frank Jeffs outlined the study chapter "The Empire is No More". For a country that was not invaded by land, Japan suffered terrific damage and over 250,000 people perished because of air attacks while some 2,500,000 buildings were burned, as though this were not enough, fire flood and earthquake have ravaged the land since the end of the war.

Many Churches Destroyed

Christianity emerged from the war with many churches and other mission buildings destroyed. Japan has free religious teaching now, and Christianity has its supreme and possibly last chance to win this nation for Christ.

Mrs. Will Hubble gave two violin selections, "The Lost Chord", and "Sweet Genevieve", she was given piano accompaniment by Mrs. John Mulheron.

Thanks were extended to program committee; to the hostess and to all who gave of their talents to carry out the interesting items.

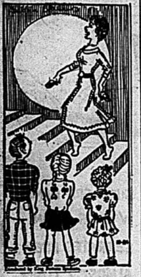
BEAUTY

Reducing over-developed legs.

One special agony of the heavyweight is her fatted calves. In the line-up of beauty-wailers she feels that she plays the role of the prodigal daughter. Certainly she is recklessly profuse with her adipose upholstery. She wishes she could turn back time, that she had started fighting fat cells when they were young and weak and there weren't many of them. Such are the lamentations of the plumpies.

If she will stop feeding her fat cells, they will live on themselves and gradually evaporate. As long as she continues to consume more than the required amount of fats, sweets and starches, she will increase in weight and measurements. Dieting is no hardship. She may have to deprive herself of some of her favorite dishes, but there's plenty of good food to be had that will help to carry on the campaign for slenderness. She can have lean meats, poultry, sea food, vegetables—especially spinach, asparagus, lettuce, cabbage, endive and string beans—and fruits. She should take tea and coffee clear. Buttermilk and unsweetened lemonade are recommended.



Walk upstairs on your tiptoes.

There are special exercise for leg reducing. One can pursue this project at home, or, if the the balance in the cheque book permits, patronize a reducing salon where exercises will be done under the supervision of a specialist. These establishments do wonders in the way of remodeling feminine forms—rounding out the skinnies, slimming down rotund figures.

A favorite stunt is to do running movements while standing in the same place. Hands extended out at the sides to give balance, come up on your toes, and run like everything. If you are not to touch your buttocks with your heels. Pause now and then, place hands on the hips and take deep breaths. Do not permit yourself to get over-tired.

Here's another one; walk five steps on tip-toes. Place the feet fairly wide apart; lower your body until you touch your heels, then go up on the toes slowly. This upward movement pulls hard on the leg muscles. When these muscles become strong, the adipose tissue will disappear.

Swimming, running, skating and high-kicking are good exercises for reducing thighs and legs. When you walk up stairs, walk on your toes.

Massage, if heavy enough and if prolonged for some time, may nip off the inches. Sit with one leg on a low stool. Anoint your palms with cocoabutter. Place both hands on the calf of the leg, then pinch and roll the flesh between thumb and fingers.

In most countries cakes are eaten for celebrations. In Denmark the act of mixing the cake becomes a celebration in itself. When preparations are made for birthdays, all members of the family gather around the mixing bowl and together stir the cake batter.

A Danish family with an electric mixer would probably be in a dilemma. There's no doubt, however, that the mixer would do a better job than the combined efforts of the entire family working by hand.

Not only is an electric mixer faster than the hand but it does a more thorough creaming and blending job all around.

In today's cake recipe no milk is required. The four beaten eggs supply all the liquid required. Powdered sugar is used in place of granulated for lightness. The sugar should be sifted to remove any lumps.

The cake pan may be greased and floured before pouring in the batter, or the bottom may be lined with wax paper. The latter method makes the removal of the cake easy ,and eliminates the floury taste sometimes present in the cake crust.

Lemon Lunch Cake
8 Inch Square

1 1-2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons double action baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup vegetables shortening or butter
1 cup confectioners' sugar sifted
4 eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1-2 teaspoon lemon extract

Preheat oven at 350 degrees

Grease and flour an 8 x 8 x 2 inch cake pan or line bottom with wax paper.

Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt.

In a mixing bowl work until creamy the shortening or butter. Gradually stir in the sugar, beating until light.

In a separate bowl beat the while eggs until light and fluffy.

Add the dry ingredients and the eggs alternately to the shortening mixture, starting and ending with the dry ingredients and beating well after each addition. Add lemon rind and lemon extract. Turn batter into pan. Bake 40 to 50 minutes or until cake shrinks from side of pan. Cool on cake rack.

When cake is cool, cover with lemon butter frosting.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Answers invitations "in kind"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to acknowledge a written invitation by telephone?

Adah L.

No. A basic rule of etiquette. . . and a most important one to know and to remember and to abide by . . . is that an invitation should be acknowledged "in kind". That is, a formal invitation. . . an invitation in the third person . . . should be acknowledged formally, in the third person. An invitation written on a visiting-card or an Informal may correctly be acknowledged by a reply written on a visiting-card or an Informal. An invitation written on note-paper or letter-paper should be answered by a note.

Taking one's leave at a large reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I always thought it was not necessary for guests at a large tea or reception to go back to the hostesses, who were still receiving, to say good-bye and express thanks for the hospitality. But yesterday I went to a large reception where there were several hostesses, and I noticed that some of the guests did return to the hostesses to say good-bye. Is this just a question of one's preference?

G. C.

This is more a question of convenience. Generally at a large party of this kind, when there is a receiving-line, the guests do not make a special point of returning to the receiving-line to say good-bye to the hostesses and to express appreciation. Certainly they don't if the hostesses are still receiving, for this would be inconvenient to all concerned. The departing guests merely says good-bye to those nearby to whom they have been talking, and not calling attention to their departure.

But if you leave after the receiving -line has been dispersed, you may, if you wish and if it seems convenient, go to the hostesses, or to the one whom you may know best, who may have been responsible for your invitation, to say good-bye and to say what a good time you had.

When groom's family want to entertain for wedding party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our son is being married in December in a city quite a distance from here. Our only other child, a daughter, is to be one of the bridesmaids. We three are planning to arrive in the bride's city several days before the wedding date, so that our daughter can be present at some of the pre-wedding parties and the wedding rehearsal. The bride-to-be and our daughter know each other, having attended the same summer camp in their teens; but my husband and I have never met the bride or her family. The bride's family have very kindly made arrangements for us to stay at a hotel as their guests. But my husband and I are seriously concerned as to what our obligations may be as to planning some entertaining for the wedding party, or for them and the bride's parents, who are our thoughtful hosts. Will you advise us, please?

F. P.

There are no "obligations" on the part of the family of the groom. But, it is proper and a very charming gesture for you and your husband, if you wish, to give a party. . . . perhaps a luncheon or a dinner . . . . in honor of the bride's parents and the members of the wedding party. An excellent occasion for this is the wedding rehearsal dinner (before the rehearsal) or supper (afterward) . . . and very often the groom's parents ask the bride's parents if they may give this party. (You should write at once to the bride's mother to see if this arrangement may be made, or, if this has been taken, ask about any other possible "open" date for a luncheon or dinner.) And you will probably be able to make the arrangements for the party at the hotel where you are to stay. And since your daughter is to be in the bridal party her co-operation in your plans will be most helpful.

CONVICTED OF MURDER

Aussie Experts Get Big Reward In Unusual Jobs

By LOUIS L. LECK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — People earn money in many odd ways in Australia, and the rewards are fairly substantial.

An expert chicken sexer, for instance, may earn $45 a day and a good dingo hunter, going after wild dogs, can make just about as much.

Chicken sexing of course is practised everywhere, but to earn $45 a day in Australia the expert must be able to examine 60 to 600 day-old chicks an hour, and separate the pullets and cockerels with 98 per cent accuracy.

The art, or science, was developed by the Japanese and in 1934 a Japanese taught a class of 20 Australians how to sex chickens. Only four gained proficiency certificates and one of them was Frank Evans, 19 years old at the time.

In 1936 Japs were forbidden to enter Australia and Evans became an instructor — the only one in Australia and New Zealand.

Only about one learner in 10 acquires the necessary skill. It takes about three months. The instructor's fee is about £25 and most of the 15,000 to 20,000 chicks needed for practice have to be post-mortemed to check accuracy.

The sexing season in Australia lasts about five months but Australian sexers are in demand in Britain and the Continent and farmers there will pay travelling expenses and good pay to sexers who will go abroad.

POTENTIAL PEER

Arthur Charles Plunkett, 64, of Vancouver, may become the 16th Lord of Louth, a title originated by Henry VIII, according to an announcement from London. Engineer for the Canadian National Railways at Port Mann, B.C., he told reporters he was too busy to discuss the matter when his picture was taken. — (CP Photo.)

Dingo Damage Heavy

Dingo hunters earn good money because dingoes do big damage in Australia. In New South Wales and Queensland, graziers estimate stock losses from dingoes at nearly $4,000,000 since the war.

In western Queensland towns, bank clerks, shop assistants, solicitors and other professional men sometimes spend their entire weekends hunting dingoes.

But the job isn't easy. It calls for hard work, patience and ingenuity.

Dingoes breed most rapidly in large tracts of thinly populated rough scrub country. The average litter is four to six pups.

They usually hunt in packs of six to 14. They attack sheep or calves at the break of day or during the night.

One dingo will kill as many as 30 sheep in a foray, while a pack of 14 will destroy and maul hundreds in one night.

They have been known to attack people, but generally they are afraid of human beings and retire quickly if chased.

"Doggers" (dingo killers) study the movements of their quarry before laying traps. These are carefully concealed and invariably placed near trees.

Veteran trappers include "Lightning" Jack Heffernan, who at 68 it still one of the best doggers in N.S.W. Heffernan, working near Casino, kills four to five dingoes a day on an average. The government pays him £3 a scalp.

Native Composers Developing Music In African Bands

Johannesburg — (CP) — Symbolic of the speed with which African natives are adjusting themselves to city life is the rise in a single decade of a "Tin Pan Alley" in the native townships and squatters' camps of the Witwatersrand.

Before the last war there were practically no modern African bands. Instruments were far too dear and there were no big jazz-loving communities which could support professional musicians.

Today there are five leading and many smaller African bands on the Rand. They are much in demand. They have engagements at African night clubs and at location dances. They use such names as "Maniacs," "Blackbirds," "Flying Fortresses" and "Sentimental Sentimentalists."

There are about 10 men to each band — saxaphone players, trombonists, pianists, violinist, 'cellists, drummers, singers, trumpeters and so on. The leaders have little function beyond beating time — their bandsmen are strong individualists and each is inclined to play his instrument according to his own lights. Criticism is hotly resented and walk-outs are not uncommon.

Native Composers

Several African composers and arrangers have sprung up and cater for the growing demand for music for dancing, recording and broadcasting.

Enjoys Modern Jazz

The African of today enjoys modern jazz, particularly if he is a city slicker type. The more conservative stick to the traditional airs handed down from father to son through the generations. The songs of the crops, of sowing, and reaping are sung by the Africans in the towns as they were in the fields.

But a new music, African jazz, is growing out of the conflict between the old way of life in the country and in the urban areas. It was explained by Percy Hlubi, a 40-year-old African radio announcer, who broadcasts in eight languages and has taken African bands under his wing.

The new dance music is music in the traditional style with a very strong European influence. It appeals particularly to the semi-civilized African, the African born in the country but living in the towns today. He is torn between two ways of life and the mbubi music is expressive of his confusion.

It is called mbubi, meaning lion, because the music is sprinkled with sudden crescendoes resembling the roaring of a lion. This lion roar is found in all African music. Its greatest difference from the traditional music is the change from the barbaric-sounding five-tone scale to the tonic solfa, introduced to Africa by the missionaries.

In mbubi the old and new combines in a fascinating counterpart of the short, monotonous, rythmic African themes typical of traditional African music, and sweet, free-running melodies showing a marked missionary influence. The themes are original and catchy.

Historic Figures Created in Store

Toronto —(CP)— Undisturbed by the roar of today's automobiles four great figures of Canadian history stare stonily down on the bustling north-south traffic artery of Queen's Park Crescent.

Nine-foot stone sculptures of Champlain, Wolfe, Simcoe and Brock stand perched on the limestone walls of the new University of Toronto archives building. Inside, history books record their part in the moulding of Canada.

The figures, one of the biggest single sculpture commissions ever undertaken in Canada, are the work of Josephine Jones of suburban York Mills. They took 11 months to create, not counting long months of research to provide authentic likenesses and dress.

Before starting actual work, Miss Jones set about studying the character of each man, sorting out proved material from the doubtful. She was aided by the Dominion Archives, the Ontario Archives and the Chateau de Ramezay in Montreal.

The figures seem to grow out of the wall. They project one foot, and are half round. Carefully-selected pieces of Queenston limestone were used.

Samuel de Champlain, the founder of Quebec, holds a plan of the first habitation of Quebec in his right hand. The other holds a pair of dividers.

James Wolfe, who conquered Quebec City for the English more than a century later, clasps a closed telescope, just as he might have while planning his famous attack.

John Graves Simcoe is portrayed in his role as a serious governor of the young colony. He holds a cane in his right hand and looks sternly out into space.

Gen. Isaac Brock, the hero of Queenston Heights in the War of 1812, is sculptured as slim and athletic.

Descendants Honor Famous Canoe Trip Of Pacific Maoris

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Whakatane, N.Z. — (CP) — A voyage more remarkable than that of Columbus and made over 100 years earlier, has been celebrated at this town on New Zealand's east coast.

The epic was the arrival of the Maoris in New Zealand in 1350, after they had voyaged from a homeland far to the north across the Pacific. This place now is believed to have been the Society Islands.

The first natives journeyed in small open canoes without navigation instruments of any kind. They arrived safely after many perilous adventures, their only sailing directions coming from ancient legends handed down by still earlier navigators who made the journey to New Zealand and back.

The Maoris had no written language until after the arrival of Europeans a little over a century ago, but their traditions were so accurately handed down by word of mouth that the date of arrival can be fixed fairly close. The landing places of the canoes are still known, as are many incidents connected with the voyage. Many Maoris can trace their descent in an unbroken line back to the crews of the canoes.

For the re-enactment of the arrival, a vessel 150 years old was used. Though it had been moored in a remote spot in a stream and overgrown with weeds for many years, the solid hull of the canoe is still well preserved.

Episode Re-enacted

Five thousand Maoris assembled at the meeting-place to watch the ceremony. The canoe, with its decorated prow and high sternpiece, glided to the beach and the tattooed warriors leaped ashore where their ancestors had landed 600 years before.

Miss L. Hohapata, a lineal descendant from Wairaka, heroine of the canoe, re-enacted a famous incident after the landing. The canoe's mooring broke in high seas, but the vessel was saved by Wairaka, who in the absence of the men uttered the famous words "tu whakatane" (I must act like a man") which gave the present town its name.

Cabinet ministers and Maori leaders greeted the "voyagers" after the landing, and the insignia of the tribes descended from the historic canoe flew from a flagstaff set in a massive piece of granite reputed to have been brought to New Zealand by the early arrivals.

Maoris and Europeans are using the celebrations as a means of bringing still closer relations between the two races and of setting a future course for the Maori people. Their aim is to fit the Maoris more fully for life in a western civilization while preserving the finest traditions of the native race.

TOO PRETTY

This is a copy of the passport photograph sent by 21-year-old Gertrude Broda, of Vienna, to a British domestic servant agency in her search for a job. Back came the photograph with a message that Gertrude is too pretty and that if she really required a job to send a less attractive photograph. Now Gertrude is wondering where it is possible to get a less attractive photo than the passport variety. — Central Press Canadian.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

B[illegible]ATRICE FAIRFAX

[illegible]out her son's romances

[illegible] H. is worried about her [illegible]ear-old son. She is even more worried about June, the girl he has been going with for three years.

Before he went with June, he had been seriously interested in another girl, Mary. At that time, he was in service, and while Mary was eager to marry, he did not want to get married until he was discharged and home again to stay. So, just "to show him," Mary turned around and married another man.

Soon after, she thought better of her impulsive gesture, left her husband and started a campaign to renew her friendship with Mrs. H.'s son by correspondence. Now she has moved to the city in which he lives has enticed him from June and is breaking the [illegible]'s heart. Mrs. H. says that J[illegible] calls her on the 'phone every day to ask if there isn't something she can do to influence her son.

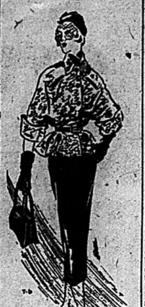
"I want to have a talk with him," this mother writes, "and would like to know what you think of the situation. My own opinion is that Mary is the girl he loves, but because of what she did to him, he is afraid to trust her."

I think this mother has almost certainly sized the situation up clearly. What she might have added is that Mary, no doubt, is also in love with her son. She is not the first girl who has hurried into a foolish marriage for no better reason than to "spite" another man. And it doesn't follow that just because she did this, he can never again be trusted.

It is very unfortunate that she was so childish as to do a thing ike that, but it is quite possible hat she may have learned something as a result of it, and this s the point about which the young man will have to make up [illegible]ind. If she has grown up [illegible]h so that she could be ounted on to stop and think in uture, before taking an impulive step, the marriage might very ell work out happily. If she as not changed, however, but s still the same immature girl he was several years ago, then e had better not take a chance n her, as their marriage would ot be likely to last. All this is hat the mother should point out o her son if she does decide it ould be useful for her to disuss the matter with him. Then e must be allowed to make up is own mind.

What I don't think she can do, s to urge him to give Mary up n favor of June. Of course she is orry for June, who is being bady hurt. But for a man to marry girl for no better reason than erely to save her feelings, ould be a rash thing indeed. It s far better that he should be onest with her than to jeoparde the happiness of both of them y making an unwise decision. [illegible]ry girl has her heartbreaks [illegible] she finally marries and ettles down. But the sensible irl realizes, in spite of her bitter isappointments, that there is no ne man in the world for anyody, and that if the first is lost, another, whom she may like much better, will eventually come along.

Beige Jacket Of Broadtail



Fur coat with velveteen skirt

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BEIGE American broadtail is the fur used for this bulky jacket. It is a nice choice for the season just ahead. Two slant-wise high-placed pockets are bound with black suede, to tone with the black suede belt that clinches the waist above the flared peplum. There are deep turn-back cuffs that can be worn down to extend the sleeve. The coat is shown with a black velveteen sheath skirt.

OTTAWA STREETCARS

The privately-owned street railway system in Ottawa was taken over by the municipality in 1948.

Fashion Flashes

A WONDERFUL job has been done on raccoon, sheared and handled to simulate nutria. Charming for a college girl or careerist is a sheared raccoon coat done on straight lines, with notched revers, pocket flaps and huge turn-back cuffs.

OUT FOR THE afternoon is wool jersey, popular this season for smart afternoon wear. Black wool jersey, cut on very slim lines, for a frock detailed with a collar and square yoke and sleeve edge of brown crochet shot through with gold metallic thread.

NEVER SO MANY novel and new ideas as there are this season. Very different—and, oh, so smart—is a coat of scarlet wool with draped collar and huge cuffs of navy. Coat has flat back and side fullness; the slanting pockets and detail on the sleeve is welted.

OF INTEREST to the careful shopper who likes a small wardrobe to go far is the softly tailored woollen suit with velvet detail. Black or navy blue worsted, cut on slim lines, makes a nice suit. The jacket has a generous collar of black or navy velvet, braid edged. Pockets are braid edged, too. Jacket fastens with two braid-covered buttons.

EACH SEASON the clothes for mothers-to-be are smarter and better looking. Wool makes a good suit with a generously flared black and red shortie coat that can double as an occasional coat or belted jacket after the event. Square gilt buttons accent double-breasted effect. Skirt has modified peg tucks.

SURPRISE linings mark many of the new coats, and offer something new. A handsome ensemble consists of a slim suit of gray flannel and a full-length coat of fleece in the same gray. The coat is lined in gold and black plaid, which is also used for the deep cuffs.

State Medicine Proves Costly In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Wellington, N.Z. —(CP)— New Zealand's "free" state medical, drug and hospital service, which has been operating since 1941, appears to have reached a critical stage. Senior officials state that ever-rising expenditure has reached a point where drastic changes may be necessary.

Dr. Duncan Cook, Director of the Division of Clinical Services, said in his annual report that increased cost of the medical service and pharmaceutical supplies has been of such magnitude as to lead to serious doubts that state medical insurance was practicable. Unless recently-introduced reforms provided remedies, the present system would have to be modified or replaced by a more readily controllable procedure. Private insurance companies, he said, had protected themselves against financial loss by limitation of policies both for the nature of the illness and its duration.

Dr. Cook showed that general medical services last year cost about $7,000,000 for less than two million people. They represented more than three individual consultations by doctors for every man, woman and child in the country. The free medicine service cost $6,130,000 — nearly four prescriptions for everyone in the country.

Difficult to Check

Dr. C. A. Taylor, Director of the Hospitals Division, said in his report that the upward spiral of expenditure would be difficult to check as long as hospital and associated services were devoid of direct financial responsibility. One could not but feel, he said, that as with other forms of insurance an element of franchise should be retained as a safeguard and that the insured should be required to carry some of the risk.

New Zealand's state health scheme has brought high salaries to doctors operating as general practitioners. As a result there is a grave shortage of doctors for salaried posts in hospitals or as public health officers. With people flocking to all doctors for state-paid consultations, even young men just through their training can make much more in private practice than in jobs involving fixed salaries.

In an effort to check abuses of the service, the government, in consultation with the medical profession, has recently brought in new regulations intended as a check on doctors and patients alike. Disciplinary committees have been set up and on their recommendation the Minister of Health can exclude from the service doctors found to be paying excessive numbers of visits to patients (and recovering fees from the state for each visit), conducting an unduly large number of consultations, or revealing negligence in their duties.

Provision is also made barring patients from making unnecessary demands on doctors, but how this is to be enforced has not been made clear.

As a check on the free medicine scheme, inspectors have recently been visiting homes to find whether druggists have been supplying the articles for which they claim payment from the state.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN "CANADA UNLIMITED"

McGill University was matched with Harvard at Boston, Mass. During the warm-up period Harvard noticed to their amazement that McGill's team were kicking and carrying the ball. That was something new to Harvard in 1875, so the two captains got together.

They discovered they were playing different games. McGill had come to play rugger. Harvard was ready for soccer . . . but liked the Canadian game. The result was the United States' first "football" match—ending in a scoreless tie.

First! from Canada Unlimited

Close teamwork and sportsmanship have won many firsts for Canadians. And teamwork, with sportsmanship, helps you, too: Together they keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

High Employment Expected in Ont. In Coming Months

Toronto, Oct. 26. (CP)—A boom in employment with many industries looking for workers to help them hit expected new levels in production was forecast Wednesday.

A survey of Ontario industries showed that, barring major steel shortages, prospects point to high employment in the coming months.

The boom appeared to extend through construction, hard metal mining, logging, the aircraft industry and manufacturing, with firms scouting the country for skilled men to fill the jobs.

The latest Labor Department report, issued at Ottawa October 23, showed 133,100 registrations for employment on hand in National Employment offices as of Sept. 28. The figure was 18,500 lower than at Sept. 1, and 10,000 below the total at the end of the same months in 1949.

Labor demand continued to increase throughout the month, especially in the forest industries and in manufacturing, the report said. Demand for skilled workers was particularly strong.

The Massey-Harris, Co., Ltd., farm-implement makers with plants here and at Brantford is reported geared to full production compared with last year when production was curtailed slightly and some men were laid off.

Employment prospects also are reported bright in industrial Hamilton where work on an order for 2,000 railway boxcars is expected to extend into 1951; at rubber plants here and at Kitchener; and in London where construction of the $4,000,000 Fanshawe dam on the Upper Thames river is slated to start soon.

The Ontario Unemployment Insurance office reported that factory job opportunities in September were estimated at double the number on file in the same period last year.

Conservatives Hold Riding

Glasgow, Oct. 26. (CP)—Winston Churchill's Conservative opposition retained the Scotstoun seat in parliament in a by-election Wednesday. The Labor party's working majority in the Commons remains at seven.

Col. J. R. H. Hutchison polled 18,949 votes against 17,175 for William Bargh, Labor candidate, and 680 for David Gibson, Independent Labor.

The Conservative plurality over Labor was 1,319 compared with 239 in the general election last February when Sir Arthur Young won for the Conservatives. His recent death resulted in the by-election.

WINNIPEG MAYOR WINS

Winnipeg, Oct. 26. (CP)— Jack Blumberg, who was 58 Wednesday, got a left-handed birthday present from Mayor Garnet Coulter, 68—a licking in the two-man Winnipeg mayoralty race.

Mr. Coulter won his fifth consecutive two-year term in convincing fashion. He polled 52,357 votes against 28,835 for Mr. Blumberg who was sponsored by the C.C.F. Mr. Coulter ran as an independent.

PICTON

Junior Farmers Of P.E. County Visit Ottawa

Picton—A group of Junior Farmers left by bus this morning for a trip to Ottawa. Those chosen were the two top persons in each club, with those who had made the trip last year being ineligible. The party was joined at Belleville by Hastings County Junior Farmers. The trip includes a visit to the Ottawa Winter Fair, the Dominion Experimental Farm, Parliament Buildings and other points of interest.

Going from Prince Edward are Bob Denard and John Barber; Hillier and Ameliasburg Calf Club, Colin Kotchepaw and Alfred Gannon; Sophiasburg Calf Club, Wilma Miller and Archie Kerr; Milford Calf Club, Tom May, Marilyn Reynolds,, Picton Calf Club, Robert Williams, Larry Huff, Picton District Grain Club; Tom Barber, Theresa Johnston, Hillier and Ameliasburg Grain Club; Jack Hicks and Margery Dulmage, Picton District Poultry Club.

Picton—William Cantelon was elected president of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Prince Edward Wing 415, at the annual meeting held in the Legion hall here Tuesday night. Desmond McDonald is past president; Len Foley, vice-president; with Robert Byers, Harry Hince Gordon Nourse and E.J. Bateson members of the Board of Directors. A secretary and treasurer will be appointed by the Board at a later date.

At the time of the Picton Fair, and in conjunction with the Fair Board, the Wing sponsored a model airplane competition and flying tests. Those taking part and others interested in model planes are to be entertained at a social evening in the Legion hall, Friday night, Nov. 10 at 7.30. Trophies and prizes are to be presented and refreshments served. An R.C.A.F. motion picture is to be shown.

A letter from Branch 78 congratulated the Wing on sponsoring organized dances for teen agers.

President MacDonald was in the chair and was given a vote of thanks for his leadership. During his term, the Wing was organized and presented with its charter.

HAVE TO INCREASE PRICE

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP) —Toronto milk distributors said Wednesday that they cannot pay more to farmers and labor unless they increase the price of milk.

High taxes and high labor costs make the net profits of Toronto dairies lower than in any other Canadian city but Winnipeg, the distributors said in a brief to a government arbitration board of milk prices.

The brief was submitted to Judge J. A. McGibbon of Lindsay, sitting as an arbitration board to set a new price that dairies will pay to producers.

Weekly Papers Praised by Mayor Of Outremont

Quebec, Oct 26 (CP)—Mayor Romuald Bourque of Outremont, Que., told the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association convention Wednesday that Canadians need wise counsel and that a great many of them are dependent for it upon their weekly newspapers.

Canada today is in the position the United States was in at the beginning of the century. "Our frontiers are being rapidly pushed back; our cities are filling up; our industries are growing ..", Mr. Bourque said. The United States appreciates that development and is investing heavily in Canadian resources.

"Don't you think it would be a good thing if some of the dividends from there tremendous developments should drift into your communities?..I read somewhere the other day that approximately 60 per cent of the dividends from our big development industries now are going to the United States.

"...that wealth is ours should trickle down into every town and village, every small hamlet, in order that all of us might benefit from the resources which lie under Canadian soil," Mr. Bourque said.

Another thing to tell readers about was Canada itself and its people. "Canada is an internationally-minded country, but it knows practically nothing about itself...Anything that happened anywhere else in the world was more interesting and important than anything that happened right here at home. In the narrowest sense that has not been true of the weekly press. Weekly papers have thrived on the home-town news—but they have seldom thought in terms of all Canada as a neighbor."

Six Canadians Share in Prizes Of Sweepstakes

(By The Canadian Press)

A Toronto shipping-room packer and a Manitoulin Island creamery clerk held Irish Sweepstakes tickets on Kelling, whose victory in the Cambridgeshire Stakes Wednesday brought them each $73,750.

A Canadian Press survey shows four other Canadians held big prize-winning tickets—two on second-place Zina and two on Valdesco, third.

All six winners are unmarried and five said they plan trips in the near future.

George Hall, 66-year-old Toronto bachelor, said first prize money will assure a return trip to his native Scotland and pay the mortgage on the house he occupies with his sister.

Jean Burns, 31, quit her creamery job at Manitowaning, Ont., when told Kelling won. It was the first sweep ticket she ever bought.

At Moncton, N.B., railway clerk Alponse A. Leblanc said the $29,500 he won on Zina will be used to "make a little girl very happy."

Beside getting married he said he may build a house.

S. A. Longhurst, 58, secretary-treasurer of a Peterborough lumber company, lives with his widowed sister and her five children. He said he may open up his own business with his $29,500.

A widow for 12 years, grey-haired Mrs. Effie Clay continued her work as a seamstress at a Toronto clothing factory when told she had won $14,750 on Valdesco.

"I need the money," she said, "and I'll just put it in the bank. After all, $14,750 wouldn't last long if I went on a bust. Besides, I'm just a quiet soul."

Doreen Hodges, 22-year-old stenographer with a Toronto law firm, said her third prize money will take her home to her native Middlesex, Eng., "in time for Christmas."

She plans to stay six months and then hopes to get her job back here.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

EAST SIDE, WEST SIDE

[illegible] hauled our home on wheels [illegible] New York City today. [illegible] older man for it. You've heard of people whose hair turned color overnight? Call me 'Whitey.'

All the trailer tourists we'd met advised us to give New York a wide berth. We laughed gaily at this and plotted a course on a large and detailed map of the city.

It looked so neat and so simple on the map. We'd simply follow the route down the Hudson, zip across the George Washington Bridge, zoot through Jersey City and roll merrily on southward to de lan' of cotton. We did, in fact, follow this route. But when we emerged from the ordeal we were glazed of eye and broken in spirit.

Our first mistake was in abandoning the map and taking one of the "parkways." It was like being sucked into a vacuum cleaner. Here was a magnificent six-lane highway leading directly to George Washington Bridge. When we began to roll smoothly along it we chuckled and smirked at each other. We did, at any rate, until a large sign loomed up bearing the sad news that this super-highway was for automobiles only and positively closed to trucks, taxis, hearses and trailers.

I turned off at the first exit and here we were in the heart of Yonkers. As far as my sense of direction was concerned we could have been in the heart of the Belgian Congo.

Our poor old lumbering tin box was embedded in platoons of traffic. Life suddenly became a mad montage of red and green lights, barking klaxons, shrill whistles of traffic cops, hordes of citizens lining the curbs looking at us with open curiosity.

And well they might. The two kids had climbed in the front and were gazing out with terror and delight. Brown Eyes was frantically unpleating maps and shouting directions. I, alone, maintained an appearance of savoir faire, puffing fiercely on two cigarettes.

In The Maze

In their order of appearance the first crises were the cop and the "El".

I defy any logical man to interpet the hand signals of a New York traffic cop. This one was the large ferocious type. He stood directly in my path, yet seemed to be beckoning me to come on. I crept up on him until the radiator was nuzzling for a lump of sugar in his pocket. With each inch the cop waved more frantically. His head seemed to settle down between his shoulder blades.

I couldn't understand why he didn't step aride.

"Where d'ya think you're goin'?" he bellowed. He put his whistle between his lips and gave several penetrating blasts that stopped all traffic.

I dimpled wildly at him through the window. This seemed to infuriate the mug even more.

"BACK UP!" he commanded.

Now, if you've ever tried to back a trailer you know how confusing life can sometimes be. I got into reverse. The caravan began swinging away out to one side. There was a great din of horns somewhere to the rear. Glancing forward I saw that the cop's head had now almost completely disappeared between his shoulders.

He strode up to the window. Slowly, in a voice just above a whisper he grated, "Get this thing outta here! Fast!" I blinked at him to show my Canadian independence and we crawled away.

Almost immediately we were confronted by the maze of posts and girders of the elevated railway. Trains crashed along overhead and what seemed to be a solid wall of traffic rushed at us from the shadows of this overgrown Mecanno set.

I got into low gear, gave her the gas and we began weaving slowly through the posts. All three females were now shouting instructions and warnings. In defiance, I began to pick up speed. The onrushing traffic parted as if it had been combed aside. "Geronimo!" I cried in a hoarse whisper. My wife buried her face in her hands.

We trundled out from under the tracks and there was the sign: "George Washington Bridge". For a moment I thought we were safe. But I had reckoned without the Holland Tunnel. We were being drawn inexorably to the Holland Tunnel!

In A Rut

From the moment you hit that great bridge the mystery is to find your right lane. The traffic sweeps along at an icredible rate of speed and one must edge his way into whichever lane will get him to his destination. With a two-ton trailer dragging at your britches this is something of a feat. But if you miss that funnel you could easily end up in Michigan.

We were headed for Washington, D.C., but each time we peeled off from the main flow of traffic brought us closer to the Holland Tunnel. I had visions of the headlines: Trailer Stuck in Holland Tunnel, or Lost Caravan Collapses in Times Square.

This anxiety was deepened by the occupants of the cars flowing past us on all sides. Everyone seemed so sure of where they were going! Only we yokels dragging this strange tin box were lost, forever lost, speeding along to God knows where. Kalamazoo, perhaps. Or Terre Haute.

Again another lane and again the great signs: "Holland Tunnel Ahead." Brown Eyes begun eating the maps. The children huddled in the back seat.

Then we were soaring over the tops of buildings and factories, racing along the Pulaski Skyway in a traffic tidal wave, five abreast with all these confident-faced natives, some glancing at us with what I could only interpret as disdain. "Pipe the peasants," their eyes seemed to say. "Doomed to die in the Holland Tunnel."

And then suddenly, the signs split. The Holland Tunnel was that way, Washington this. I swung over into the right lane, nearly decapitating a week's output of the Detroit factories. The traffic had thinned suddenly from over a million to only a hundred thousand cars. The road ahead was straight and with a mere four lanes.

We began looking for a new sign. One that said "Bar".

Baptist Workers Isolated Says College Teacher

Toronto, Oct. 26 —(CP) — A Baptist Association here was told Wednesday that Baptist missionaries in Quebec are subject to severe difficulties and, in some cases, persecution.

Alfreda Hall told the annual meeting of the Toronto Association of Baptist Churches that in Quebec centres where French-Canadian Baptist Churches are located that members of the congregations were subjected to mysterious disturbances.

Miss Hall, a teacher at Moulton College, a girl's private school said sometimes property was destroyed and there were mysterious fires.

She said that Baptist missionaries in Quebec "have to suffer" for their work and "there are no easy ways out." Radio broadcasts are forbidden and so is the distribution of pamphlets."

(Spokesman for the association said it is not affiliated with the union of regular Baptists which conducts mission churches in northwestern Quebec. Some union of regular Baptists missionaries have been given jail sentences for holding religious meetings on street-corners in violation of municipal by-laws forbidding street-corner meetings without a permit.)

Miss Hall told the meeting that Baptist workers in Quebec are virtually isolated and it was necessary to spend more money to support them. She suggested that young couples should move into French-speaking areas of Quebec.

"Let us emulate the methods of the Roman Catholic Church," she said. "When their young families move to new areas, new parishes soon spring up."

OIL FROM COAL

Capetown. (CP) — The South African government has decided to guarantee financing of the first company to manufacture oil from coal here to the amount of $39,000,000. The Industrial Development Corporation will be asked to make an immediate provisional grant of $600,000 to the Anglo-Transvaal Consolidated Investment Company which has been doing spade work on the project for 15 years.

Nort[illegible]lantic Pact Leaders Expected to Recommend U.S. Head For Combined Force

By MAX BOYD

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP) —A Key United States official predicted today that North Atlantic pact military men will recommend that an American be appointed without delay as supreme commander of a combined Western European defence force.

This action was forecast as the North Atlantic Military Committee prepared to resume this afternoon the momentous implementation session begun Tuesday.

There was fresh speculation in advance of the meeting that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower may become the supreme commander. The Columbia University president, supreme allied commander in Europe during the Second World War, told reporters at Indianapolis yesterday that he was coming to Washington within a few days to talk with defence department officials. He did not know what the department wanted, but "I'm happy and pleased, of course, that the people of Europe have suggested me to head their defence army."

An American official in close touch with the military committee expressed belief that it will recommend immediate appointment of a supreme commander, instead of delaying such a step while first setting up a chief of staff to organize and train collective forces.

Immediate appointment of a full fledged commander would achieve centralized command — one of the goals set by the North Atlantic council of foreign ministers in September—without an interim period under a chief of staff with more limited powers.

The proposed supreme commander would have a chief of staff to assist him. His staff, designed to knit the combined force together and direct its operations in case Western Europe is attacked, would include representatives of the 12 North Atlantic treaty countries.

President Truman has given no public indication as to whom he will select for the job if called upon to do so. Presumably, the other Atlantic pact governments will be consulted in advance as to whether the man he wants is agreeable to them. There is little doubt that either Eisenhower or Gen. Omar Bradley would be welcomed.

Cannot Anticipate Role Canadians To Play in East

Tokyo, Oct. 26 —CP—Brig. F.J. Fleury, Canadian Liaison officer in Korea, said today he cannot anticipate the role that Canada's Korea Force will be required to play on arrival to the war zone. The Canadians' duties would be assigned in Korea.

The Canadian officer added that "the swift turn of military events" does not permit him to say what percentage of the unit will remain in Korea or for what length of time.

Fleury said that a fully-equipped Canadian advance party of 400 left Seattle for Korea last Monday.

(A report from Seattle Saturday said the Canadian troops had already embarked at that time.)

The advance party is part of a special force of 9,000 Canadian army men which will form the world military group to be placed at the disposal of the United Nations, Fleury said.

He said the expenses of the Canadian brigade, including equipment, will be paid by Canada. But the United Nations Command would provide field supplies like food and fuel.

Fleury said:

"The swift turn of military events in Korea do not permit me to anticipate the role the Canadian Army Special Force will be required to play upon arrival and what percentage of the unit will remain in Korea and for what length of time.

"But the brigade will continue in force at the disposal of the United Nations ready to serve wherever the United Nations may require its services."

The Special Force wears the regimental Canadian army uniform with a maple leaf shoulder patch surrounded by the white olive branch of the United Nations emblem.

Credit-Tightening Jolts Retail Sales in U.S.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The government's credit-tightening blow against inflation has severely jolted retail sales in the United States, a country-wide spot-check by The Associated Press disclosed today.

A highly-variegated impact on sales resulting from stiffer installment-buying terms imposed last week by the Federal Reserve Board was noted.

One main fact stands out—Americans have cut back their heavy buying because they haven't got the ready cash for higher down payments or because their incomes are too low to meet the new stepped-up monthly payment terms.

That is exactly what the Federal Reserve aimed at with its new regulations Oct. 16, which tightened up the previous controls of Sept. 18 requiring heavier down payments and a shorter time to pay.

After less than two weeks of operating under the new controls, however, the picture is far from uniform. Most heavily involved in sales declines are automobile home appliances, television sets and furniture.

And the situation is complicated by such things as war-scare buying, automobile-model change overs, color-television uncertainties, war shortages, and just plain custom confusion.

For instance, television set sales in New York are reported to be on the skids, with some merchants cutting prices to encourage customers, while on the west coast in San Francisco buyers are rushing to beat the Nov. 1 federal 10-per-cent excise tax.

Burlington Man Wins Truck Rodeo

Toronto, Oct. 26 (CP)—Donald Fitzpatrick of Burlington, Ont., won the truck-driving title last night at the fourth Canadian roadeo championship sponsored by the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario.

It was an upset win for the 18-year-old youth who has been driving heavy trucks for only two years.

Two other veteran competitors, Frank Bell of Toronto, and Cpl. R. D. Pettinger of the Canadian army at Camp Borden, retained their titles in the tractor, semi-trailer and armed forces divisions respectively.

For Cpl. Pettinger of Courtland, Ont., it was his third straight victory.

Windsor Police Force Begins New Regime as Result Of Dismissal of Two Officers

Windsor, Oct. 26 — (CP)—The Windsor Police Force starts on a new page today following the dismissal of its two top officers — Chief Claude Renaud and Deputy Chief W. H. Neale.

Reporting for duty as acting chief is Edwin V. McNeill, a provincial police inspector for the last year and a member of the provincial force for 23 years. On loan to Windsor, he succeeds Renaud on a temporary basis.

In the first major step of its reorganization of the city's police force, the Windsor Police Commission yesterday announced that Renaud and Neale were "retired" immediately. The city was asked to put both men on full pension.

The reason for their dismissal, which followed five weeks of extensive probing by the Commission into police administration, was given in general terms.

Test of Leadership

The commission had examined Renaud and Neale to see if they had shown the "alert and aggressive leadership" needed in Windsor "where policing tasks are particularly difficult."

"The conclusion has been reached that the interests of the force will be best served by the retirement of these officers," the commission said in its formal statement.

The statement, issued by commission chairman Judge Archibald Cochrane, had the "full agreement" of the other two commissioners — Magistrate Roland Harris and Mayor Arthur Reaume.

Renaud, a policeman for 36 of his 58 years and chief here since 1935, had acted "honestly and to the best of his ability," the commission said. It asked Board of Control to retire him honorably with full recognition of his service.

The 53-year-old deputy had been "indiscreet" in operating a company which sold $2,500 worth of equipment annually to the police department, the commission added. However, it recommended that he be given 'full recognition' for 32 years' service.

Neale's connection with the Police Equipment Company, Ltd., described by him as a family concern, was brought out in the commission's probe. The commission noted, however, that the 27-year-old police force regulations did not bar outside business enterprise.

Neither Renaud or Neale would comment on their dismissal.

Any further reorganization of the police force and its methods will be taken either by the commission, which meets Acting Chief McNeill at its next session Monday, or by the department head himself.

McNeill was Provincial Police Inspector at Peterborough before going to Toronto as staff inspector, and was previously on provincial detachments at Cornwall, Pembroke, Ottawa, Kitchener and Mount Forest.

Formation of Commission

The present commission was formed in a reorganization last September following a report by two provincial poplice inspectors who said that Windsor officials must have known about widespread vice and gambling in this border city.

Magistrate Angus W. MacMillan resigned as commission chairman and Judge Albert J. Gordon resigned as member. They were replaced by Judge Cochrane and Magistrate Harris. Mayor Reaume remains as the only member of the previous commission.

Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey was dismissed at the same time, and replaced temporarily by Crown Attorney Alex C. Hall of Whitby. Mr. Hall still holds the post.

Fire in Turret Of British Cruiser

Devonport, England, Oct. 26—(Reuters) —Fire broke out last night in a turret of the 9,000-ton British cruiser Newcastle, refitting here.

The fire apparently was caused by some cotton waste which had ignited. The blaze was brought under control in 20 minutes. It caused little damage, but an inquiry will be held.

Security regulations in ports used by the Royal Navy have been tightened as a result of a series of "incidents" on board warships this year.

Several ships were damaged, and the possibility of sabotage was investigated.

CLEAN-UP-CANAL OFFER

St. Catharines, Oct. 26 (CP)—St. Catharines area planning board last night recommende that its members municipalities accept a transport department offer to clean up the old Welland Canal.

The offer of $586,300 for repairs and alterations was made several months ago. The board said necessity of referring the offer to the municipalities delayed acceptance.

The board's motion pointed out that costs of such a project have increased since the offer was made.

GOES NATIVE

FLYING CLERGYMAN

Elton, Northants, England (CP)—Rev. Arnold Morralee, 40, believes he is the only clergyman in Britain owning and piloting his own plane. He says "all the choirboys want to go up, and some of my parishioners are just as keen."

HEROIC BISHOP

Oslo, (CP)—Eivind Berggrav, Bishop of Oslo since 1937, has asked to be retired to make way for a younger man in Norway's largest bishopric. During the war he was the leading figure in resisting Nazi attempts to influence Norway's religious life.

Seek Fixed Price For Fish Catches Off Newfoundland

By RUPERT JACKSON
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

St. John's, Nfld. — (CP) — Newfoundland fishermen, stymied in attempts to market their salt cod in European markets, have asked the federal government for price support to stave off hardships.

The price support request followed meetings in St. John's early in October attended by fishermen, exporters and government representatives, when the price to be paid fishermen for the 1950 catch was discussed.

It was decided, however, that the marketing situation was not sufficiently clear to warrant the setting of a definite price and other villages held public meetings, when they sent messages to Ottawa asking for assistance.

Exporters, not sure of markets, won't promise fishermen a set price for catches. The fishermen have been offered $4 a hundredweight for Labrador cured fish. They want twice that.

The in-shore fishermen want $10 a hundredweight for their fish, while exporters say they can pay no more than $9. Now the fishermen want the federal government to make up the difference between the exporters' price to fishermen and what they demand.

Europe is Market

While the fishermen were paid for fish on hand from the 1949 catch by the Federal Fish Prices Support Board, the exporters were not. This year the exporters do not intend to be caught as they were last year with cod on hand and no markets.

Trouble with the industry is that 40 per cent of the catch usually is marketed in the sterling area. Before union with Canada last year Newfoundland accepted sterling which was placed in a special fund in London, while fishermen and exporters were paid in dollars out of the government's surplus. The federal government has handled the exchange issue in a similar way since confederation.

Common Supply

The principles, besides indicating that the United States will do what it can to remove the obstacles, do these other things:

They provide for a common supply of strategic materials through the interchange of technical knowledge and productive skills, creation of allocation and priority controls, and consultation on problems of finance and foreign exchange that may develop as a result of the agreements operation.

Howe emphasized that though the agreement calls for joint allocation and priority controls it does not signify the immediate creation of priority and allocation controls in Canada.

Though these are in effect in the United States, they are not yet needed to any extent in Canada, he said.

Compulsory channelling of materials from civilian to defence factories would not be ordered unless materials became so scarce that civilian production interfered with defence progress.

However, he disclosed that voluntary allocation controls now are in operation in the Canadian nickel industry, being carried out by the industry itself "in consultation with the department."

Howe said he sees no immediate need for control of other Canadian metals. Though there appeared to be a tightening in the supply of steel, he could not indicate whether this actually would mean any great interference with civilian production in 1951.

The six principles, as outlined in the agreement are:

Produce For Defence

1. Canada and the United States will develop a co-ordinated program of requirements, production and procurement "in order to achieve optimum production of goods essential to defence."

2. As it becomes necesary, both countries will institute co-ordinated controls over the distribution of scarce raw materials and supplies.

3. Before either of the countries institute controls which may affect the other country, consultations will be held.

4. In the development of essential production, the technical knowledge and productive skills involved and available in either country "shall, where feasible, be freely exchanged."

5. Barriers which impede the flow of arms and goods between the two countries should be removed "as far as possible."

6. Through "appropriate agencies," the two governments will consult on financial and foreign exchange problems "which may arise as a result of the implementation of this agreement."

In the preamble to the pact, the two countries referred to the 1941 Hyde Park agreement and expresed that the "field of common action" should be further extended in the interest of "mutual security" and to help them fulfill their obligations under the United Nations charter and the North Atlantic Treaty.

Ottawa, Oct. 26—CP—The Bank of Canada reported that in the first eight days of the Canada's Savings Bonds Campaign 277,113 purchasers have bought $74,831,800 worth of bonds.

The total combines the result of sales through the payroll savings plan for eight days and reports of sales to the general public for five days. On the average, applications are for larger amounts this year.

Sales through the payroll savings plan for the first eight days of the campaign stand at $57,614,000 compared with $59,097,350, for the same period last year. The average purchase per employee so far is $235.58 compared with $222.28 for the entire campaign last year.

The number of individual applications from employees is now 244,560 compared with 264,130 a year ago.

With the campaign approximately at the half-way point, various regions are closely grouped. The Prairie region is slightly ahead at 53.09 per cent of last year's sales followed by Quebec with 53.04 per cent. Following are British Columbia with 51.33 per cent and the Atlantic region with 45.72 per cent and Ontario with 44.31 per cent.

Rescue Plane Picks Up Injured Workman

Halifax, Oct. 26 — (CP)—The RCAF reported today a rescue plane picked up an injured Transport Department employee at Port Harrison, on Hudson Bay, yesterday and headed for Churchill, Man.

The man is J. O. Garvey, radio operator at Port Harrison, injured when a 15-foot radio tower he was standing on toppled over in a high wind. The rescue Canso, from the air force base at Greenwood, N. S., left there Tuesday and stopped at Goose Bay, Labrador, en route to Port Harrison.

Two CNR Employees Injured in Collision Of Scooter, Handcar

Sudbury, Oct. 26 — (CP)—Two Canadian National Railways employees are in hospital here today as a result of a head-on collision Wednesday between a motor scooter and a handcar on the C. N. R. main line at Bayswater, 15 miles south of Burwash.

Injured were William Wilson of Toronto and Leo Morin of Capreol. Wilson suffered scalp lacerations and bruises and Morin an injured left shoulder.

Wilson and Morin, employed with a telegraph gang, were riding the motor scooter when it collided with a hand car carrying three men of the bridge crew. None of the latter was injured.

Tape is Used To Record Evidence

Preston, Oct. 26 — (CP) —A tape recorder was used to record courtroom evidence yesterday for the first time in a local court.

The recorder was used along with stenographic report in the trial of Gerald C. Fisher of nearby Galt on a drunk driving charge. Fisher was sentenced seven days and his car pounded for three months.

The machine has been chased for use in all Water county courts under the ju diction of Magistrate H.R. P son. They cover Kitchener, W terloo, Galt, Preston, Hesp and Waterloo township.

andon, B.C. — (CP) — An man sits alone in this aband- d town high in the West otenay Mountains of interior tish Columbia, waiting for an- er boom.

ohn Harris, now 89, was a th of 23 when he found silver this narrow, maple-covered ge.

ear the turn of the century re were 23 hotels in Sandon 2,300 miners were feverishly ging for silver ore in the loose ks of the surrounding hills. o railroads built long spur s to haul out the wealth.

andon is more than just a m town. It was the capital of a vast silver empire which l flourishes though in a more dued manner. It is in the ter- ry mining men call the very Slocan, bordered by the can and Kootenay lakes.

Harris discovered silver here in 4. One of his mines yielded valued at $200,000 during one ek of operation. He built two tels and organized the machin- y that makes a city from a col- tion of transient shacks.

Lives Alone

Now John Harris lives alone amid the decaying ruins of the once-bustling town tucked away in the cleft of a mountain range where travellers seldom go. The big mines are empty tombs. A perilous road follows the old stagecoach route from New Denver.

Harris still keeps open one of his hotels despite the fact guests are infrequent.

Harris came originally from Virginia. He was a young real estate operator in 1884 in Idaho when a prospector just down from Canada brought a glittering piece of ore into his office.

It was one of the first pieces of ore to come out of the Slocan Valley, which a few years later was to become one of North America's greatest treasure troves of high grade silver ore.

Harris packed up and headed north. He traced Sandon creek back to its source and began digging.

When Harris amassed a moderate fortune, he went back to Virginia and built a mansion. But he returned a few years later.

The Klondyke gold rush and the decline in silver prices finished off Sandon. Operations continued on a minor scale for years and then died altogether.

"There's still plenty of ore here," Harris says. "It's a little hard to find but when big money starts rolling again, Sandon will come to life with a bang." Until that happens, John Harris is loathe to leave the familiar ghosts that inhabit this silent city.

This view of the entire brink of Niagara Falls was taken from a helicopter. Usually much of the brink and cataract is obliterated from view of tourists because of the mist generated by the falling water, but when this aerial photograph was taken the mist was negligible, allowing one of the best shots ever taken of the Canadian falls. — Central Press Canadian.

Manitoba Growers Net Two Millions From Sugar Beets

Winnipeg — (CP) — A huge processing plant in suburban Fort Garry is working on a 24-hour schedule to turn 150,000 tons of sugar beets into commercial sugar.

The crop will net Manitoba growers about $2,100,000. The company (Manitoba Sugar) had about 20,000 acres of beets under contract this year, its 11th year of operation.

Sugar produced at the plant supplies much of Manitoba's requirements. The factory operates about three months each year.

An average of 12 hours is required from the time beets are carried into the plant by an underground flume to the stage where white sugar crystals are transferred to a warehouse for bagging and shipment.

The process involves removal of all foreign substances and impurities, slicing, purification and evaporation of water content.

Final Stage

Vacuum boiling precedes the final stage in which centrifugal machines — operating at 1,600 revolutions a minute — spin away the syrups, leaving white sugar adhering to an inner screen.

The processing is a continuous operation, marked throughout by rigid laboratory tests.

Heavy rain and snow delayed harvesting this season and temporarily interrupted the essential steady flow of beets, by train and truck.

During the growing season, 2,500 men are employed in the fields of southern Manitoba. Four hundred workers man the factory, exclusive of a year-round staff which includes executives, office help, and field, warehouse and maintenance men.

Sugar output from this year's crop is expected to be about 35,000,000 pounds of sugar — about the same as yast year. This does not take into account various by-products, such as 15,000 tons of molasses and dried beet pulp. These find a ready outlet as cattle feed and in industry.

PICTON

Picton—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Williams have returned from a trip to Nebraska.

Mrs. (Capt.) D. B. Christie had the misfortune to fall at her home on Bridge Street, breaking her hip and is now confined to Prince Edward County hospital.

Mrs. James Hicks, Main Street, is a patient in Prince Edward County hospital.

Mr. David Walton, of Ottawa, and small daughter, are spending the weekend with his parents Dr. A. H. and Mrs. Walton, Grove Place.

Mrs. Kerr F. Albertson is making preparations to leave soon to spend the winter in Florida.

Miss Muriel Stark and friend of Toronto, spent the weekend visiting relatives in Picton.

Mr. Lawrence Comrie has returned from a visit with his parents in Fort William, Ont.

According to a radio announcement on Monday, the venue of the second Fosbraey murder trial has been changed from Napanee to Picton. Mr. R. E. Nourse of Picton is the lawyer for the defence. The trial begins here on Nov. 6th.

Four Cleveland businessmen recently purchased a ten acre wooded lot near the water at Black Creek. They have built about a quarter mile of road into the property and have had rural hydro extended there. Now their fine modern log cabin is nearing completion and a dock at the water's edge is soon to be built for their yacht. Next year they are to be joined by ten friends of a business men's club in Cleveland who will erect other cottages on the property.

Scenic beauty spots in Prince Edward County are fast being bought up for summer cottages

A surprise thunderstorm awakened Picton residents at five o'clock Monday morning. The storm, followed by some rain, lasted for over an hour. No damage was reported.

A number of teachers from the town attended the Women Teachers' Regional Conference in St. Thomas Hall, Belleville, on Saturday. At noon dinner was served to approximately 180 at the Kiwanis Centre.

MELVILLE

Melville—Miss Ida Pike, Mr. George Pike and Mr. Earl Pike of Bloomfield were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Root and Larry. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Root were Sunday supper guests.

MARMORA

Sir Knight, Allan McCoy, Confers Red Cross Degree

Marmora — Fifteen candidates were raised to the Red Cross degree in Queensboro Orange hall on Monday evening by the degree team of Queensboro preceptory, Royal Black Knights of Ireland. In addition to the nine advancements from that preceptory there were three candidates from Marmora, two from Eldorado and one from Lakefield.

Grand Preceptory Officer James Diamond, was in the chair, apart from the conferring of the degree, when Sir Knight Allan McCoy of the degree team took over.

In attendance at this gathering of over 70 Sir Knights, was Associate Deputy Grand Preceptor, Roland Darling, of Lakefield, who gave a stirring address in which he complimented the degree team on their fine exemplification of the degree and exhorted all present to be mindful of the lessons taught and their obligations in the various degrees of the great order to which they belonged.

Appropriate remarks followed from various representatives of the preceptories present. Refreshments were served and a social half hour spent before the gathering dispersed.

ELDORADO

Eldorado—A number from here attended the funeral on Friday of the late Mrs. Richard Reid and the late Mrs. Wesley Reid, of Ivanhoe.

Mrs. Fanny Fraser has been confined to her bed through illness.

Mrs. Weart spent a few days with Mrs. Gibson Bailey of Hazzard's.

Mr. E. Post of Port Perry, was the tea hour guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shaw on Friday evening.

Miss Betty Boyle spent a day recently with Mrs. Glen Boyle.

Mr. and Mrs. John Post are spending some time with friends at Kingston and Gananoque.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fox and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann spent Sunday with friends at Point Anne and Belleville.

Miss Lamone Post spent the weekend at Brockville and attended the Young People's convention of the Standard Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pigden and Dewayne spent Sunday afternoon in Picton.

Mrs. Ken Thompson of Belleville was a weekend guest of Mrs. Douglas Pigden.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Broadworth and family of Madoc were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Post.

POT SHOTS

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 25—CP—Two youths admitted in court Tuesday they took pot shots at one another in a game Monday in which Donald Sears, 22, of Windsor, was shot in the leg. Ronald Infanti, 19, of Windsor, and George Jackson, 23, of Detroit, pleaded guilty to aiming guns at Sears and each other. Magistrate J.A. Hanrahan noted the case was possibly "one for a psychiatrist" and remanded them for sentence Thursday.

OWL STRIKES PLANE

Fort William, Oct. 25—CP—A large Snowy Owl, with a wingspread of more than five feet, came out second best Monday when it collided with a Trans-Canada Air Lines plane taking off here. The aircraft was not damaged but the bird, one wing almost severed, fluttered to earth. It was killed by airport personnel.

MARSH HILL

Marsh Hill—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle attended the funeral of the late John Townsend of Holloway, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Robt. Campbell and Mrs. Frank Finkle are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Finkle and girls of Belleville.

Why not first of all make an appointment with the "Y" and take an Aptitude Test? That might give you some guides to where your talents lie. There are night classes in display and advertising work at the Ryerson Institute, at the Technical Schools and at the University. You could, if you are ambitious, enrol in one of these classes, work at night and still keep your day job to keep you in bread and butter. And stop hating your work! That's bad for you and bad for your employer.

CHRISTMAS CANDY: "Please give me your best recipe for foolproof Christmas candy."

Measure three cups brown sugar, 1/3 cup corn syrup, 1/3 cup milk, 2 tablespoons butter and ½ teaspoon salt into a heavy bottomed saucepan. Stir gently over low heat until dissolved. Boil without stirring until candy reaches soft-ball stage. Remove from heat; cool until lukewarm, beat until creamy; pour into oiled pan 8 inches by 8 inches; mark in squares while still warm. This gives you 1¼ pounds delectable Christmas candy

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

[illegible] modern additions will greet the hockey [illegible] when the doors of Memorial Arena swing [illegible] on the 1950-51 hockey season.

One will be a brand new public address system which will replace the antiquated conglomeration of tubes, pieces of wire, tin cans, hunks of corrugated paper which emitted raucous squawks whenever asked to perform and which sounded like a cross between a nag with the heaves, the midnight brawl of a pair of fighting tomcats, a punctured steam whistle and a jack-hammer.

The new system will carry announcements to every nook and cranny of the arena. Microphones will be placed in various spots in the building and music - lovers will be glad to hear that a brand new set of records has been acquired for their 'tween-period entertainment.

* * *

From now on "Good Night, Irene" will take the place of the "Robert E. Lee"; up-to-the-minute popular melodies will be heard instead of "When You and I were Young, Maggie", and "Seeing Nellie Home". The strains of "Come Josephine in My Flying Machine" will no longer be heard. "Come Into the Garden, Maud", that famous invitation has been placed in a museum. The record "Three Blind Mice" is being retained for special occasions. Teddy Roosevelt's "Charge of San Juan Hill" has been benched for Spike Jones' "Wacky Warhicky Battle Song". And the soft strains of "The Skaters' Waltz" will soothe the feelings of rabid fans in place of "On a Bicycle Built for Two."

The new system will mark the introduction of announcements of goals, assists and penalties which were impossible to make before due to the patriarchal wheeziness of the old device.

Radio and press boxes will be combined and an intercommunication system between these spots and the office installed.

The second up-to-the-minute device, one that was long needed are the new Ross goalnets. These are the last word in homes for the cage-cops and, it is understood were installed last night or early today. The net custodians can now relax in peace against the top bar without any danger of falling in a heap with posts and nets. The new cords will eliminate charges of attacking teams that "the puck went clean through it, Are ya blind?"

In all probability loud-speakers will be installed in the refreshment canteens, and other spots where patrons can be paged at a moment's notice.

Speedy St. Louis, who is still singing the praises of the New York Yankees, has given the ice-surface gates a new winter garb. At least he had a pair of them looking spick and span yesterday afternoon, and would probably have finished the job if some rabid Philly fan hadn't dropped in and started rehashing the fourth game of the season.

Genial Wes Evans, Mrs. Evans and staff will be back at their usual spots behind canteen counters, so with good hockey the fans should enjoy this winter's arena pastiming.

Broda Scores Third Shutout As Toronto Beats Detroit; Boston and N.Y. Rangers Tie

By The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs lead the National Hockey League today, thanks to the goal-tending prowess of the circuit's oldest active player—Walter (Turk) Broda, alias the "fat man."

The 36-year-old goalie, who last year was hauled up on general manager Conn Smythe's carpet for being too fat, registered his third straight shutout last night as the Leafs blanked Detroit 1-0.

The triumph enabled Toronto to take a one-point lead over the idle Montreal Canadiens, who have a chance to regain the pace-setting chore tonight when they clash with the Black Hawks in Chicago.

In last night's only other game, Boston Bruins recorded their third tie game of the season, holding Rangers to a 1-1 deadlock in New York's home-season opener.

Lanky Cal Gardner scored the only goal at Toronto. It was a solo effort midway through the third period, and ran the Leafs' unbeaten string to five games.

Broda, now down to a trim 187 pounds and getting better as he grows older, earlier had registered shutouts against Boston 2-0 and Rangers 5-0. He was given a rest last Sunday in Chicago, Al Rollins substituting for him as the Leafs won 5-3.

If the erstwhile "fat man" has an eye on cracking the N.H.L. record for consecutive shutouts, he has three more to go. Alex Connel of Washington Senators set the record for six straight blankings back in 1928-29. But in those days scoring was lower because forward passing was not permitted in attacking zones.

Martin Fractures Cheek

Apart from losing the game, the Wings also lost defenceman Clare Martin for probably four weeks. He suffered a fractured cheek bone in the second period when he body-checked Sid Smith.

At New York, the Rangers used silver sticks to mark their 25th anniversary in the N.H.L., but it didn't help their goal production. However, the one point gained in the tie enabled them to move into fourth place ahead of the idle Hawks.

Buddy O'Connor shot the Rangers into the lead early in the middle session, ending a three-game goal famine which had extended through three hours, three minutes and 59 seconds of play.

Johnny Peirson got the equalizer four minutes later while Alan Stanley of New York was in the penalty box for high-sticking. The Bruins still haven't been able to crash the victory column in five games. They've tied three.

At that rate, the Bruins this season could crash the record book for tie games. By coincidence, Boston holds the record for the fewest ties in one season —one—back in 1929-30.

Rickey Expected To Make Break With Dodgers

Brooklyn, Oct. 26—AP—Branch Rickey, father of the farm system and other baseball inovations, is scheduled to make a clean break with Brooklyn Dodgers today.

The Brooklyn baseball club announced an afternoon press conference at which the bushy-browed executive is expected to announce his resignation as president and general manager.

He has already agreed to dispose of his one-fourth share of Dodger stock for $1,025,000. This is being snatched up by Walter O'Malley and Mrs. John L. Smith, each of whom already holds 25 per cent of the club.

O'Malley is slated to become president. Fresco Thompson, director of the Dodger farm system, is figured to have an inside track for the general managership.

Meanwhile, Rickey's own future in baseball remains a mystery. It became a bit more clouded with the disclosure yesterday of the terms under which he sold out.

It was learned that Rickey had agreed to accept payment of the $1,025,000 for his stock in instalments covering a 10½-year period.

Major League rules forbid anyone who holds stock in one club to have financial interest in another.

Thus if the unpaid part of Rickey's own holdings in the Dodgers could be interpreted as a financial interest he woudn't be permitted to line up with another Major League club.

Reports have had him ready to join Pittsburgh Pirates in an executive capacity or buy into St. Louis Browns of the American League.

Rickey himself, who is conceded to have one of the sharpest minds in the business, says he doesn't see any conflict in his deal and the Major League rule.

"I do not have any ownership or interest in any club right now," he said.

Rickey could easily solve the matter by selling his rights to the debt to a bank or other agency through discounted notes. Then he would be free of any club ties.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Oct. 26 (AP) —Second-best second-guessing games, after trying to guess where Branch Rickey is going, is figuring who'll become the Dodgers' general manager under the O'Malley-Smith regime. . .popular choice is Fresco Thompson, with Buzzy Bavasi and Mel Jones getting a few calls. . . Branch, Jr., apparently isn't being considered though he might be a good choice. . .the twig is about ready to step out for himself. He knows all the angles of his dad's business and he'd surely offset the O'Malley theory: "For the next seven or eight years Mr. Rickey will be credited with the victories of the Brooklyn club and someone else will be charged with its losses." . . .When Penn State's football team flew to Nebraska last weekend, its plane passed the Notre Dame campus. . .a coach pointing out places of interest—the stadium, playing fields, etc. when a kid exclaimed: "That can't be Notre Dame. No one is practising."

This and That

Tony Janiro, who'll be trying about his umpteenth "comeback" against Rocky Graziano tomorrow, will celebrate his 23 birthday the same night. Tony had to fight a lot of top-flight rivals at eight rounds because he was too young to be allowed in 10s. . . New York Rangers travelled some 4,000 miles for exhibitions and National League hockey games before they got a look at their "home" rink. . . who said that club isn't going anywhere? . . Note from North California says a briefcase containing a William and Mary scouting report on the Tar Heels, found in the stadium, was returned to its owner unopened. Yeah? How did they know what was in it?

Joe DiMaggio Is Not Thinking Of Retirement

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe DiMaggio isn't thinking of retiring from baseball. At least not right now, reports and speculation to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Yankee Clipper, in fact, is ready to talk 1951 contract terms with his bosses any time. He doesn't expect to hear anything on this subject, however, earlier than next month and possibly going into next spring.

Joltin' Joe, home in San Francisco from this year's campaign, is poised for a trip to Japan. He and Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, manager of the San Francisco Seals, will leave by plane next Monday.

The professional clubs of Japan are sponsoring the tour, O'Doul and DiMaggio will conduct baseball clinics and Joe will give exhibitions of long-distance clouting.

DiMaggio said yesterday he anticipated no difficulties in his contract negotiations with the Yankees for next year. He sidestepped the question of whether he would settle for the $100,000 he is reported to have received for last season.

For the first time "in a long while," Edmonton coach Annis Stukus expects to have his starting team intact as the Eskimos invade Regina Saturday for a vital gridiron battle with Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Big Stuke said last night he figured Lady Luck would smile on Eskimos in the sudden-death game of the Western football semi-final.

"The breaks beat us in our last two games with Roughriders," he told reporters. "It's time for the law of averages to even up and send the breaks our way."

World heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles plans a one-a-month title defence campaign next year that may start at San Francisco with Joey Maxim.

Jake Mintz, Charles' co-manager, said in Pittsburgh yesterdey he is giving "serious consideration" to an offer from William P. Kynes that would match the Cincinnati Negro and Maxim in the Golden Gate's Stadium on Feb. 22.

Mintz said Kynes has wired him a $100,000 guarantee offer for the west coast scrap.

Donald Rabuke, 16-year-old high school centre, died Wednesday at Janesville, Wis., the second fatality in the state attributed to football this month.

Physicians said death was due to a cerebral haemorrhage. The boy collapsed Saturday during a school game. He attended practice Monday and Tuesday but collapsed again in the dressing after Tuesday's session. He was taken to hospital this morning and died shortly after arrival.

Frederick Fairchild, 15-year-old member of the Sheboygan squad, died Oct. 14 after suffering a head injury earlier in the day against Oshkosh.

Ottawa Rough Riders have selected Don Loney veteran snap, and Bill Stanton, outside wing who has doubled as fullback, as their nominees for the Jeff Russel Memorial Trophy.

The trophy is awarded annually to the most valuable and sportsmanlike player in the Big Four football league. Loney is a Canadian who is playing his fourth season with Riders after helping Toronto Argonauts win the Grey Cup. Stanton, formerly of Buffalo Bills, is playing his first season in Canada.

A 14-year-old boy who rode to fame almost overnight was banned Wednesday by the Jockey Club.

Pink-cheeked, fair-headed Lester Piggott said the club had banned him from all British tracks for the rest of the season.

The boywonder—his 15th birthday is Nov. 5—has ridden 57 winners in his rise to fame.

He appeared before the stewards of the Jockey Club Wednesday.

Th club has been making an investigation after a race last week which Piggott won— his 58th. After an objection, Piggott's horse was disqualified and the race was awarded to the second horse. The stewards suspended him for an infraction of riding rules but they did not elaborate.

Piggott said the club had allowed him to ride in the Cambridgeshire turf classic at Newmarket Wednesday. He placed second with a horse called Zina.

The ban means that the boy wonder will not be allowed on British tracks until the current season ends Nov. 18.

Robinson Puts Middleweight Title on Line

Philadelphia, Oct. 26 (AP) — Sugar Ray Robinson puts his Pennsylvania version of the middleweight boxing title on the line tonight with little likelihood there'll be any change in his top rating among United States fighters.

Sleek Ray from Harlem, also holder of the world's welterweight crown, meets 22-year-old Carl (Bobo) Olson of Honolulu in a 15-round engagement at Convention Hall. Robbie's welter crown is not at stake.

Robinson has outgrown the welter class in more ways than one, and will be operating tonight at his best fighting weight approximately 158 pounds. He'll be giving away four pounds and eight years, but the 30-year-old Robinson is the top-heavy favorite.

In 11 years of leather industry, Robinson has lost only one fight in 120 trips inside the squared ring. The defeat was way back in 1943 to Jake LaMotta, recognized everywhere except Pennsylvania is the middleweight ruler.

Since that setback, Sugar Ray has trounced LaMotta four times. And he has been promised a shot at LaMotta's crown next February in Chicago.

Until such time as he gets LaMotta inside the ropes, Robinson plans to clear the ring of all possible and plausible challengers. In Olson he'll be meeting a fighter who has won 49 of his 52 bouts, 32 via the knockout route, but who never has appeared in the east.

Olson has won four bouts this year, losing only to Dave Sands, the British Empire titlist. He defeated Tommy Yarosz, a high-ranking light heavy; drubbed Otis Graham of Philadelphia and thrashed Henry Brimm, who once drew with Sugar Ray in Honolulu rings.

The dark-haired Bobo is said to be a slow beginner and may prove troublesome if he can bypass the peril of Robinson's booming left hooks and combination punches in the early rounds.

AT THE BELLE

"The Happy Years," in Color, and "Holy Year 1950"

Based on the American boyhood stories about Lawrenceville Academy, made famous several decades ago by Owen Johnson, the technicolor photoplay is filled with delightful humor, tender touches and heartwarming characterizations.

William A. Wellaman, who achieved great success with his direction of the soldiers in "Battleground", proves himself equally adroit with the almost as tough youngsters in "The Happy Years" and has given his story a delightful human quality. As in "Battleground", he has also assured complete authenticity of local colt by filming much of his new picture directly on the Lawrenceville Academy campus. The result is a picture which stands out as one of the screen's rewarding efforts. Everyone, young and not so old, will capture its infectious spirit.

"Holy Year 1950"

Through the magic of the motion picture camera all the solemn ceremonies and colorful scenes which have taken place in Rome during the 25th observance of Holy Year will be shown on the screen for the first time in 17 years in "Holy Year 1950," a Twentieth Century-Fox feature production, shown on the same program. Pope Pius XII is the central figure in this demonstration of faith of millions of pilgrims who have been going to Rome these many months and the picture shows scenes in St. Peter's, Vatican City, St. Paul's, St Mary Major and St. John Lateran as well as the famous Sistine Chapel, the Catacombs, the fabulous Vatican library, and the magnificent St. Peter's piazza filled with countless thousands of worshippers for the solemn ceremonies observed on Christmas Eve and Easter.

The first evening performance nightly starts at 6.30 p.m.

Hollywood, Oct. 26—AP—Joan Crawford, mother of four adopted children, today assailed adoption laws which she said "are keeping children from finding good homes."

The question arose when the actress was asked for comment on the recent state investigation of a Tennessee adoption agency from which Dick Powell and June Allyson and other Hollywood stars had received children.

"All I know is what I read in the papers," Miss Crawford said. "But apparently the whole thing was manoeuvred for political purposes."

Politics had scared a lot of people out of adopting children, she added. She cited the California laws as being unreasonable and unfair.

"Most people have to go out of the state to adopt children," she said. "That means lawyers' fees and in the other state, plane fare, nurse's salary, etc. Most people are discouraged by the expense."

Miss Crawford won't disclose where she obtained her four kids.

"I figure it's nobody's business," she said. But she admitted she did not get them in California.

"Under the California law. I couldn't adopt a child," she said, "Because single persons are not allowed to. I think that is wrong. There are a lot of single men and women who would like to have children and could give them good homes.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking to himself in is private chair and waiting for na to tell him it was time to go ut and play bridge, and ma said, William, I hope you remember here are going to be 2 tables f players tonite.

How does that alter the situation? pop said, and ma said, When 8 people get together, the ccasion automatically becomes nore or less formal, so you sim[illegible] cant go in those comfortable [illegible]hoes. And please change hem immegditly, so for once in our long experience you'll be reddy as soon as I am, she said.

My dear, one of the many things I admire about you is your consistency, pop said. For years you've been claiming that you're always dressed before I am, while as a matter of fact I'm invaribly reddy ferst and waiting for you, he said, and ma said, Now William we wont argue the point, but I warn you sollemly if you're not reddy I'm going to leave without you. It's an unwritten rule that you mustn't make bridge players wait, and when there are 8 players waiting, the rule becomes positively written, she said

And they both started to get reddy, and ma said, Oh shaw, I'll have to take time to fix this zipper. Now I suppose you'll gloat that you were rite all the time about me never being reddy ferst, she said, and pop said, Fear not, my dear, it's a woman's werld

Now William, dont start making a shambles, ma said, I'll find you a pair of laces, but only on condition that you admit I'm not reddy only because you're sutch a helpless child and I had to st as usual and attend to you, said, and pop said, It's a gentleman's agreement, my dear.

Making him feel lucky.

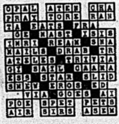
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:



Had Stomach Disorders 3 Years--Always Tired

Nerves on Edge, Got Bad Headaches, Backache, and Awful Gas, Indigestion. "Feel Much Better Since Taking Syntona."

MRS. MARY DALLAS

Here is good advice for all sufferers from common disorders of stomach, kidneys, liver or bowels, backache and fatigued, nervous, rundown condition—Thousands of men and women suffering this way have obtained their best relief by taking Syntona Herbal Compound. For example, here is the experience of Mrs. Mary Dallas, [illegible] known Copetown, Ontario, [illegible]an who said:

"I had stomach disorders so bad for three years that my nerves were all on edge. I'd get throbbing headaches, a dull aching pain across my back, and I constantly felt tired and rundown. At times even the lightest food gave me awful gas, indigestion and heartburn. I'd get a bloated feeling, sour acid risings and just couldn't get any relief.

"One day a friend told me about Syntona and since taking this medicine I feel much better. Especially the gas, heartburn, and belching of hot, sour liquids has cleared up so that I enjoy my meals. Headaches and backache and the other aches and pains I had are now relieved and my nerves are calmed down so I am getting more sound, restful sleep and do not feel tired-out as I did before. I highly recommend Syntona to all who are troubled with gas, indigestion, or tired, fatigued feeling."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

Buffalo Bisons Back on Top In East Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons are back on top of the American Hockey League's Eastern Division—one point ahead of Hershey Bears.

The Bisons drubbed fourth-place Providence Reds 5-1 Wednesday night while Springfield Indians were beating Hershey Bears 6-5 in overtime. Springfield is in third place in the Eastern Section. Providence has only one tie for a single point in six games.

Gordie Davidson was the hero of the Springfield victory. He fired in the winning goal at 2:35 of the extra session. Hershey had to fight all the way to force the overtime. Bronco Horvath, Bill Golden and Harry Pidhirny put the Indians ahead 3-0 in the first period.

In the final frame, Armand Lemieux counted for Springfield but Joe Schertzl again evened things in the closing minutes.

Walter Atanas scored two goals for Buffalo while Stan Maxwell, Sid McNabney and Ab Demarco counted the other Bison markers. Jack Stoddard spoiled the Buffalo shutout in the third.

Henry Bockor and Paul Gladu were the St. Louis marksmen in the tight defensive game against the Pittsburgh Hornets. Their counters came in the middle frame.

Goalie Red Almas stopped the puck 31 times for his shutout.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs were in action Wednesday night, but Tod Sloan failed to pick up a point and today remains tied for the National Hockey League leadership with the idle Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadiens.

Both Richard and Sloan have tallied four times each and assisted in three goals apiece for their seven-point total.

Cal Gardner of Toronto tallied the lone goal as Toronto downed Detroit Red Wings 1-0 to take over sole possession of third place with six points. He has three goals and a similar number of assists.

Max Bentley of Toronto, Gordie Howe of Detroit and Ted Kennedy of Toronto follow with five points. Six players follow with four points.

Turk Broda of Toronto has collected three shutouts and heads the league in that department while Fern Flaman, with 26 minutes in the penalty box, is league bad man.

The Leaders	G.	A.	Pts.
Richard, Montreal	4	3	7
Sloan, Toronto	4	3	7
Gardner, Toronto	3	3	6
Bentley, Toronto	2	3	5
Howe, Detroit	1	4	5
Kennedy, Toronto	0	5	5

(Six players have scored four points).

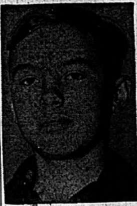
Madawaska Search Ends With Finding of Boy's Body With Bullet Hole in Head

Hope of Freddie Rose, six, shown here with the family pet, that his older brother Ted, 10, would be found, ended when the boy's body was found near the Madawaska River, Ont. — Central Press Canadian.

Searchers are shown setting out on hunt for the boy who had been last seen throwing stones into the Madawaska River. Hundreds of citizens, an R.C.A.F. helicopter and 200 soldiers searched the Madawaska area before the boy's body was found.—Central Press Canadian.



Held for questioning is Alex Yankovitch, 13, who said he last saw Teddy "standing on a rock" near the river where they had gone to fish. — Central Press Canadian.

Slow-Moving King Stops Jones In Eighth Round

Detroit, Oct. 26 — (AP) Slow-moving Arthur King of Toronto, British Empire lightweight champion, stopped Harold (Baby Face) Jones of Detroit Wednesday night in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-rounder.

Jones at 136 3/4 had a quarter-pound advantage.

Jones, whose hopes of a title fight with lightweight champion Ike Williams were pinned to the encounter, did most of his fighting after the bout was halted as the eighth round began because of a cut over Jones' left eye.

He pushed his handlers aside and rushed at King, whose hand had been raised in token of victory by Referee Bobby Watson.

The Detroiter threw a dozen punches at the Canadian before they were separated as 4,043 spectators stood amazed at the surprise turn of events.

Dr. Joseph Cahalan, Michigan Boxing Commission physician, said Jones had suffered an inch and a half cut on his left eyebrow.

Up to the sudden ending, the bout had been on the dull side with King showing just enough stuff to stay ahead of Jones on the cards of the three ring officials.

He had a 6-1 edge on Watson's card when the fight ended.

Teams Battle To One-All Draw

Ottawa, Oct. 26 (CP) —Cornwall Calumets and RCAF Flyers fought to a 1-1 tie with tallies in the middle frame at the Ottawa Auditorium Wednesday night. More than 2,000 saw the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League game.

Bob Greenlaw drew the single for Flyers when he pushed in Bobby Dennison's relay, but Frank Couture got it back for Calumets two minutes and 37 seconds later when he beat MacLeod with a screened shot during a penalty to George Robinson.

Cals had a slight edge in the play but smart netminding by MacLeod in the Flyer nets saved the airmen time after time. Both teams had good chances in the final frame but once again good work between the pipes saved the day for both teams.

Stratford Snaps Winning Streak Of Barrie Flyers

(By The Canadian Press)

Young Johnny Wood of Stratford snapped a four-game winning streak by Barrie Flyers last night.

His three goals—each assisted by Bob Bailey—gave Stratford a 3-2 win over Barrie Flyers in Ontario Hockey Association Junior competion.

In the O.H.A's new major series, Toronto Marlboros made their season debut and whipped Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 3-1 and created a four-way deadlock in the league.

In Friday's senior game, Marlboros are at home to Hamilton Majors. The Marlboro Juniors are at Barrie and St. Catharines is at Windsor in the Junior circuit.

Stratford's win jumped the Kroehlers into second place in the league. They are a single point behind the first place tie of Barrie and Galt Black Hawks.

Chuck Wood and Real Chevrefils scored the two Barrie goals. Each goal tied the score after Wood had put the Stratford club ahead. The winner came with less than three minutes left when the chunky rightwinger got a pass in the clear from Bailey and caught the upper right-hand corner.

Marlies and Dutchmen fought out a scoreless first period in which the Dutchmen had an 11-9 edge in shots on goal. Jack Mackenzie, up from last year's Marlboro Juniors, fired the first goal, early in the second period. A former Kitchener Junior, Eddie Stankiewicz, added one nine minutes later from a scramble.

Right-winger Billy Flick of Dutchmen got the single home-team tally late in the second period while Toronto was a man short but Al Buchanan scored for Toronto in the final period.

England New Power in Horse Show Jumping

Harrisburgh, Pa., Oct. 26—AP—England is living up to its advance notices as a new power in international horse-show jumping competition.

The British team, led by Wilfred H. White, a Cheshire dairy farmer, and his bay mount, Nizefela, has won two of the five international events at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show and tied for a third.

The team, which swept all major events in the British Isles this year, topped its previous performances by winning the relay event here last night.

Mexico, which dominated international jumping since the 1948 Olympics, is running second, copping one trophy and sharing another with Britain. Ireland is the only other team to have won a first place in the show.

However, it's another story in the aggregate scoring, where Mexco is tied by a surprising new United States entry of two women and a gentleman farmer. Both have only 4¼ faults in two events of low-score jumping.

England it tied with Canada with 12 faults behind the two leaders. Following are Chile with 24½ and the Irish team with 40.

PARK ATTRACTIONS

Bombay, (CP)—The first of several National Parks to be established in the State of Bombay now is nearing completion and attracting thousands of visitors each week. The park contains Buddhist caves almost 2,000 years old and is an area of scenic splendor.

ASSURED OF PLAYOFF

Smiths Falls, Oct. 26 (CP) — Glen McKenney, big Smiths Falls end, ran wild with four touchdowns and a rouge as the local Collegiate defeated Perth Collegiate 46-0 Wednesday in a senior Eastern Ontario Secondary Schools Association football game.

The win assured Smiths Falls of a playoff with Brockville Collegiate for the championship of the league. The two teams will meet in home-and-home series with total points to count.

FRENCH UNIT FOR KOREA

Marseille, France, Oct. 25 (AP) — A 1,017-man French battalion, headed for duty in Korea, paraded through the streets today. Strikes and protest demonstrations called by the communists did not come off.

READER'S DIGEST TELLS WHAT LAXATIVES ARE BEST FOR YOU!
Here's how a "lazy colon" can be regulated without pills, salts or drugs
Reader's Digest has dared print the truth about laxatives. It tells about the dangers of cathartics that upset your digestive system. Learn why—especially after 35—it's so important to safeguard your health.
Serutan is the wonderfully effective way to promote waste elimination. It has a mild laxative action like certain fruits and vegetables. No chemical drugs—no salts—no oils. Serutan gives a gentle "push", completely different in action from purgatives.
If you're over 35, read the October Reader's Digest then get a package of Serutan with confidence. What a marvelous feeling when you're regular again! Money back guarantee.
NEW! For more sluggish constipation, try new concentrated powder Serutan. Faster acting! Wonderfully effective!

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"Here she comes. Oh dear," rs. Sargent moaned as her hat- s, dark-haired daughter in a st-gray chiffon afternoon frock th gleaming silver at her oat and ears entered with a n each side of her. "Oh, dear" sighed again as she watched three with harried eyes. "I h she would shake that Sin- ir smoothie. Thank goodness yles is with them. I wonder hich one sent her the bunch violet sweat peas, stuck in her ver belt?"

Fran's face burned from em- rrassment. Had Mrs. Sargent en correct when she suggested at Blake's attention to Gene re a play for sympathy? She responsible for his being here. Was it up to her to break her resolution not to see him and to tell him that he was persona non grata at Rocky [illegible]?

"What's the ma[illegible] Sinclair, Mother?" [illegible]rning "hush-sh" from [illegible]fe Henry Sargent moderated the volume of his voice. "He's darned intelligent, the first man in our daughter's stag line who has known even the ABC of painting. Myles is a grand boy, but he wouldn't know a Gelee from a Claude Lorrain."

"But they were the same person, weren't they?" Fran knew from her employer's chuckle that she had walked into the trap he had set for her.

"Right. That was the test how much you remembered of what I explained to you yesterday, Miss Phillips. Mother, Sinclair told me that he had done more or less trading in paintings. He has picked up a good item I want very much. That's off the record, Miss Phillips."

Fran nodded understanding. She returned to the small gallery in response to the waiter's beckoning finger. He was a good-looking man, one to be trusted not to slip objets d'art into his pocket, she thought as she joined him beside the table. His nose was modeled on Napoleonic lines his black eyes twinkled like beads in his long thin face, which though lined, was youthful for his snow-white hair.

"Is everything O.K., Miss?" he inquired, in a hushed voice. "Mrs. Digby allowed me to use her kitchen for my supplies. There's a very fine woman Miss. The boss said I was to ask if the cakes are small enough."

"Tell him they are perfect. I shall depend upon you to look after the table, Barth. I must be in the large gallery."

"You don't have to worry, Miss For years I was head butler in a big house in Belgium—a palace almost—where they were more fine articles about than I see here. I know how tea parties should be done."

"In Belgium. You were lucky to get out. I had a friend, a U.S. captain, a flier, who was caught in the Battle of the Bulge."

"Had you really, Miss! I hope he came through all right?"

"Yes. Without a scratch. Captain Sinclair is here today. How does it happen that you are serving as a waiter after holding down such an interesting job in that palatial house?"

"The war, Miss. When the Krauts marched into Belgium I sneaked out. Got back to England —that's my country—and into the service in time for Dunkirk. After that, I wasn't much good for hard work; I drifted to the U.S. I'd better fill the coffee urn and light the lamp under the hot water kettle, hadn't I Miss?"

"Yes. Mrs. Sargent and her daughter are coming in now to pour."

The galleries were filling. Large women in slim skirts, slim women in ballerina skirts or the melon type, women who knew the value of the painting and objets d'art so advantageously displayed, women to whom they meant nothing but who knew to a breath the value of a soft caressing voice, the upward sweep of long lashes, the touch of a hand on the sleeve of the man beside them, laughed and chatted their way through the crowd.

In their midst the artist, with bone-rimmed spectacles and crew cut of stiff iron gray hair, in well-cut tweeds appeared like a frightened boy who has set in motion a machine he couldn't stop.

The artist clutched Fran's sleeve as she was passing.

"How's it going, Miss Phillips?" he demanded in a hoarse whisper. "You are Miss Phillips, aren't you? I met you when I came to look over the gallery, didn't I?"

"I am and you did, Mr. Eckhard. The exhibition is going over the top. They like you. They are saying that you have force, taste, integrity and a lot of other nice things you will see in the write-ups tomorrow. The news cameramen are here. They want to snap you standing beside one of the pictures. Select 'Country Lane,' will you. I love it." Her warm approval lighted little lamps in his outsize eyes behind the owl-like lenses.

"No kidding? You have been so kind—making the tea so pretty —even since I began to paint I have wanted a tea like the big shots have—I'll give it to you," he declared eagerly. Fran laughed and shook her head.

"No, you won't give it to me. I think I can sell it. Hurry, the cameramen are waiting."

"What do you think you can sell and what did he want to give you?" inquired Myles Jaffray behind her. She turned almost into his arms, drew back.

"Sorry to appear to crowd you, but the gallery is so full one can't move without pushing someone," he explained. "Had tea? I'll bet you haven't. Beat it to your office, I understand you have one, and I'll bring you a cup. It is part of my trustee job, I suppose, to see you don't kill yourself with overwork."

"Can't. I must stay here to answer questions about prices and take signatures on the dotted line."

"You won't succeed with that voice, no sales hypnotism in that. I intend to buy one of the paintings but not until you have had tea."

"Mean it?" she asked eagerly. She forgot who he was, forgot she disliked and distrusted him, remembered only that he was a possible prospect. "Buy it off me? No kidding?"

"No kidding. Go to your office and drink the tea I'll send you. In ten minutes I will knock on the door, you may return to the gallery and sell me a picture."

"Suppose Mr. Sargent misses me? He won't like it."

"I'll keep an eye on him. If he appears to be looking for you I will explain that I caught you as you were about to pass out from fatigue and hunger and persuaded you to stop for tea. Haven't had lunch, have you?"

"Now that you call it to my attention I haven't."

"I thought you hadn't. Come on I'll make sure you get to your office without being held up, then I'll go for the tea."

"Peace in our time, it's blissful," Fran confided to the room at large as she sank into the chair behind the flat desk in the small office Mr. Sargent called hers. Her sandals felt several sizes too small. She slipped them off.

Someone was knocking on the door which opened into a cluttered room her boss called the repair shop.

"Come in."

The waiter with the Napoleonic profile entered with a large tray.

"Your tea, Miss."

"How did you know I was here?"

"The tall gentleman in gray with the D.S. ribbon in his coat lapel said as how you would be in your office. Mrs. Digby showed me how to get here without going through where the company is. The door at the end of the clutter room, I'd call it, opens into the little hall opposite the door to her apartment, in case you'd like to know how I got here Miss. Wouldn't you like me to draw up the small table in front of the easy chair, and set the tray on that? You'd be more comfortable Miss."

Al[illegible]d Troops Moving Closer To Manchuria Border

Chinese Reds Fighting With North Korean Troops Report

Seoul, Oct. 27 — (AP)—Thinly-clad allied troops trudged over snow and tortuous summits tonight toward Manchuria's communist frontier.

The forward troop movement was from the Korean west across the spiny peninsula to the Sea of Japan.

The shivering troops braved wintry blasts but met few enemy troops near the border.

Behind the forward - most troops, however, communist forces put up a fight.

The Commonwealth 27th Brigade, made up of British and Australian troops, and the U. S. 24th Infantry Division were preparing to lunge toward the Manchurian border on the far western side of the peninsula. Heavy resistance from communist troops today checked the Commonwealth Brigade's thrust.

A U. S. Eighth Army spokesman here said the South Korean (Rok) 1st Division had beaten back an attack by a red force containing "Chinese and North Korean elements" 50 miles south of the border.

The battle raged all day around Unsan, directly south of Chosan, the only Manchurian border point reached by United Nations troops.

At nightfall a U. S. Eighth Army headquarters spokesman said the South Korean 1st Division had beaten back the attacking reds and driven them west of the town.

No Enemy Visible

At Chosan, where the Rok 6th Division was perched on the banks of the Yalu River opposite Manchuria, not an enemy soldier was visible. The river forms the boundary.

But hungry bands of by-passed North Koreans popped up in scattered areas.

Two battalions of U. S. and Rok Marines were rushed south of Wonsan port to stop a marauding band of 4,000 reds striking from the Diamond mountains. That is 30 to 40 miles from the big east coast port where U. S. Marines and infantry and Rok Marines began landing Thursday.

An American Marine battalion from Wonson landed at Kojo. A battalion of South Korean Marines landed farther south to spring a trap around the terrorists, led by a red Korean brigadier general.

A U. S. 10th Army spokesman at Wonsan said the situation was not serious, but added:

"There are more North Koreans behind us than ahead of us. They are coming out of the hills all down the coast raiding towns, holding up trains and generally annoying us."

Doctor Certified Cousin's Wife For Admission

Toronto, Oct. 27 (CP)—Dr. Will Brydon of Brampton, Ont., said in court today that he certified his cousin's wife—Mrs. Gertrude Brydon—for admission to a mental hospital.

"If she had been my own first cousin, a blood relative, I would not have done it," he added.

Dr. Brydon testified in a damage suit in which Mrs. Brydon, 54, seeks unstated damages from an attractive blonde widow she accuses of "enticing" her 54-year-old husband, Andrew Brydon. The case may go to the jury late today.

Both the widow, Mrs. Ruth Abernethy, 33, and Brydon have denied Mrs. Brydon's allegations of secret embraces, familiarities and shared bedrooms. Brydon has said he is in love with neither woman but has "respect with affection" for Mrs. Abernethy.

Mrs. Brydon charged yesterday in her testimony that her husband tried to have her sent to a mental hospital "to get me out of the way." Dr. Brydon said this testimony was "a startling revelation to me." Her general condition, however, was such that he had thought "she ought to be treated, possibly shock treatments."

It was he who had certified her for admission to the hospital, although "if she had been my own first cousin...I would not have done it."

Lewis Duncan, lawyer for Mrs. Brydon, told him:

"I'm instructed the regulations say even a close relative cannot certify."

"Well, I didn't know the regulatons."

"They were on the back of the form."

"I didn't know that. I didn't see any."

"Why didn't you have some other doctor who had been treating her certify her?"

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow interrupted to criticize Mr. Duncan for examining the doctor on his medical ethics.

"You can't do that," the judge said. "You know the rules."

Membership Of Unions Passes Million Mark

Ottawa, Oct. 27. (CP)—Union membership in Canada went past the 1,000,000 mark for the first time in 1949, the Labor Gazette reports in its current issue.

Membership of 1,005,639 reported to the Labor Department was almost three times the pre-war high according to the Gazette, official publication of the department.

In 1948, the membership was 977,594—the previous high. The pre-war peak was 383,492 in 1937.

Among the Central Labor bodies, the largest membership was in the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, which had 459,088 members in 2,865 locals.

The young Canadian Congress of Labor was shown with 301,729 members in 1,175 locals.

In third place was Quebec's Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor, listed as having 80,089 members in 424 locals.

ENDORSED BY UNION

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 27 (CP) — Mayor Arthur J. Reaume, controller Ernest Atkinson and Alderman W. C. Riggs were endorsed for re-election Dec. 6 by a general membership meeting last night of Local 195 United Automobile Workers (CIO).

The mayor has not yet officially announced that he will be a candidate, although he has been voted the support of several large labor groups in Windsor, including the 11,000-member Ford local of the U.A.W. and the Windsor Trades and Labor Council (AFL-TLC).

Child Buried Alive Playing in Ditch

Detroit, Oct. 27. (CP)—A two-year-old girl was buried alive yesterday when a bulldozer shoved several hundred pounds of dirt into the narrow, shallow ditch where she was playing.

The body of Iris Ash, youngest of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ash, was found 50 minutes later by neighbors.

Drug Acts Like Wonder Hormone In Arthritis, Rheumatics, Some Cancer

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

Boston, Oct. 27—AP—Discovery that an inexpensive drug seems to act like the wonder-hormone Acth was announced today to the American College of Surgeons.

The drug, an old one named Furacin, may become a plentiful new medicine against arthritis, rheumatic fever and perhaps some kind of cancer. Tests on humans are just starting.

Furacin is derived from Furfural, a by-product in milling flour and soybeans. The new discovery is that it apparently prods the adrenal glands to produce cortisone. This prodding is what Acth does.

Acth (Adrenocorticotropic) hormone come from the pituitary gland at the base of the brain. It acts on the adrenal glands, which lie over the kidneys.

Both Acth and corticone bring dramatic relief from rheumatoid arthritis, knock out rheumatic fever, and have temporarily helped against some kinds of cancer.

The hormone-like action of Furacin was reported by Dr. Charles E. Friedgood and Dr. Charles R. Ripstein of Maimonides Hospital and the State University Medical Centre, New York.

They gave it to mice with Sarcoma, a cancer of connective tissues. Mice ordinarily die of this cancer in 21 days. When they got Furacin, they lived nearly twice as long. When given Cortisone they lived about 45 days. The cancers grew slower and some cancer cells died when either drug was given.

TRAPPER DIES IN LONELY CABIN FROM GUN WOUND

Woman Companion Unable to Save Life

Latchford, Ont., Oct. 27. (CP)—A trapper died in a lonely bush cabin near here Wednesday despite efforts of a woman companion to stem the flow of blood from an accidentally-inflicted gunshot wound in his left arm.

The story came to light today when provincial police set out from nearby Haileybury to take out the body of Jack Adair, 36-year-old trapper, from his cabin on isolated Lady Evelyn Lake, some 70 miles north of North Bay.

Land Department officers said they first learned of the accident when they called at the cabin Thursday during a routine inspection tour of the area.

Mrs. Lola Shawera of Latchford, told them she and Adair went duck hunting in Adair's canoe Tuesday. While Adair was reaching for his shotgun, the weapon was accidentally discharged. Adair took the full force of the blast in his arm.

Bleeding profusely, he paddled to shore, where he helped Mrs. Shawera apply a tourniquet. But the tourniquet and crude bed-sheet bandages were insufficient to stop the bleeding.

Mrs. Shawera said that, as a signal, she placed a tent on the roof of the cabin. No planes came by.

She tried to build a fire outside the cabin to attract the attention of forest rangers to Adair's plight. The fire would not burn, because all the sticks and brush she could find had been soaked by recent rains.

Adair lapsed into unconsciousness. He died Wednesday, nearly 24 hours after the shooting.

The Lands Department men took Mrs. Shawera to Haileybury.

Adair, an army veteran, was considered an excellent bushman. He had trapped in the Lady Evelyn Lake area for many years and was as familiar with firearms as most city dwellers are with the telephone.

New Safety-Fuse Lighter Produced

Brownsburg, Que., Oct. 27 — (CP) — A new type of safety-fuse lighter designed to eliminate blasting accidents caused by miners and other blasters delaying too long at working faces has been developed here by the Canadian Safety Fuse Company, Ltd., it was announced today.

Known as "igniter cord," this product is said to overcome the need for blasters to light any more than the equivalent of a single fuse when blasting a multiple-hole round.

Prior to its introduction, the blasting of a multiple-hole round with safety fuse and caps required the blaster to remain at the working face long enough to light an individual fuse for each of the holes to be blasted. Now the individual fuses are connected.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN DIES

Hamilton, Oct. 27 — (CP) — An elderly man, James B. Scott, of Campbellford, Ont., died suddenly in the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo railway station it was reported today. The body was removed to the morgue at the general hospital where it was identified by his son.

Combined Military Force For West Europe Defence May be Headed by American

By ELTON C. FAY

Washington, Oct. 27 — (AP) — The combined military force for defence of Western Europe may be a going concern, headed by an American as supreme commander, within the next two months.

The military committee of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization last night completed a set of recommendations to be handed to the defence ministers of the 12 treaty powers when they meet here Saturday. Canada will be represented by Defence Minister Claxton.

The blueprint prepared by the chiefs of staff composing the military committee provides: creation of an integrated force for the collective defence of all the North Atlantic Treaty area (both Europe and the Western Hemisphere group of Canada and the United States); an integrated force for protection of the European area; establishment of a supreme headquarters for the European force; appointment of a supreme commander.

There are broad hints that the nucleus of the European force, together with a supreme commander, will be functioning by January.

Neither the official communique nor an American spokesman who discussed it gave any hint on two points of major interest—the size of the collective force and its components or the nationality of the supreme commander.

Nevertheless, most speculation centres on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of Allied Forces in Western Europe in the Second World War. Those who guess it will be Eisenhower point significantly to a scheduled meeting of the general with President Truman Saturday.

The military committee abandoned a previous plan to name a chief of staff to do preliminary organizational work. Instead, it proposed the integrated European defence force be started off with a supreme commander at work. This decision reflected the spirit or urgency evinced throughout the meetings of the committee.

However, there seems to be no specific cause for urgency, just the general belief that the combined armies, air forces and navies should begin to come into existence as early as possible. Indeed, Truman told a press conference yesterday that there is no expectation of trouble in Europe this winter.

Protection From A-Rays Possible, Says Consultant

Washington, Oct. 27—(AP) — Radiation from an atom bomb is "something like liquor—a little bit won't do you any harm but a lot of it will," a government consultant on civil defence says.

He adds that protection against these dangerous rays is entirely possible.

That's one of the points in a new book "How to Survive An Atomic Bomb," written by Richard Gerstell, Ph.D., a consultant to the civil defence office of the National Security Resources Board.

Describing the book as "the first complete, autoritative handbook on atomic defence designed especially for the layman," three publishing firms have joined in an effort to "blanket the country" with it.

The books says "the atomic bomb is a terrible weapon BUT not as terrible as most of us believe" and that proper precautions, based on knowledge of the capabilities—and limitations— of the bomb, can greatly reduce the number of casualties from blast, heat and radiation.

"No book an help you much if you're close to the middle of an explosion and in the open," Gerstell concedes, "but if you're alive a few seconds after an atomic bomb goes off—and the odds that you will be alive are all in your favor—this book will keep you from further risking your life."

The volume gives down-to-earth advice such as having rubbers ready for the whole family —for any neccessary walking in areas possibly contaminated by radioactive after the raid. However Gerstell urges everyone who can do so to remain in the house —preferably in the basement for at least an hour after a raid.

Farmers caught in the open field are told to drop flat in a handy furrow.

Some other tips given in the book:

Begin thinking about sending the children to the country.

If you have a big yard—and no deep cellar in your house—have an underground shelter built in your back yard.

If you're caught out in the open street, dive into a gutter—or even into the nearest sewer entry.

It's safe to touch the dead or injured who may have been affected by atomic rays.

The book is being published by Combat Forces Press, Rinehart and Campany, Incorporated, and Bantam Books, Incorporated.

Canadians Least Affected by U.S. Screening Order

Montreal, Oct. 27 — (CP) — The percentage of politically "unreliable" Canadians is small, and Canadians are among the least affected by the current screening of all applicants who seek entry visas into the United States, American Consul Ernest Mayer said in an interview today.

In Canada, he said, there are relatively few persons who have signed up or have been members of any communist or fascist party or organization.

"Our screening of visa applicants under the new regulations is not directed at Canadians. As a matter of fact, most Canadians go to the U.S. for a short stay only and do not need visas."

The screening regulations were put into force Oct. 13 following the passing of a special U.S. "comnibus" bill.

YOUNG HEIRESS WEDS

Montreal, Oct. 27 — (CP) — Beverley Van Horne, young heiress and granddaughter of railroad builder Sir William Van Horne, was married here today. Some months ago the new bride hit national headlines when she left home, was reported missing, and turned up in Vancouver where she was working as a waitress.

The groom was James Robert Beattie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Beattie of Ste. Jovite, Que.

The couple said they planned to motor to St. Andrew's N. B., and then settle in Ste. Jovite.

Dr. R. Boyer Said to Have Disappeared

Toronto, Oct. 27. (CP)— The Star says today in an Ottawa dispatch that Dr. Raymond Boyer, who served two years for espionage, "has disappeared and is being sought by Department of Justice officials."

The newspaper said it is informed that all ships leaving Canadian ports are being checked and that immigration officers today went over the steamship Empress of Canada from stem to stern. The 43-year-old scientist's Ottawa house is deserted, the Star says.

Boyer was convicted of giving Russia information on RDX explosive. He was released from penitentiary in July, four or five monhs before his sentence was due to expire.

Following his arrest during Russian spy ring investigations in Canada in 1946, R.C.M.P. agents found $1,000,000 worth of negotiable securities in safety deposit boxes belong to him in Montreal.

He was divorced by his wife, Montreal girl, in June, 1947. She later married Frederick Vanderbilt Field, said to be a contributor to community party organs in the United States.

Dr. Boyer received his doctor's degree from McGill University on Montreal in 1933. In the years that followed, he studied at Harvard, University of Vienna and the Sorbonne in Paris.

LABOR CONGRESS CALLS FOR ACTION TO HALT PRICES

Says Business Proposes Hoarding, Profiteering

Ottawa, Oct. 27. (CP)— The Canadian Congress of Labor called on the government today for action against unwarranted price increases and profiteering.

In a letter to Trade Minister Howe, the 360,000-member Congress said some sections of Canadian business are proposing policies of hoarding and profiteering.

It quoted an editorial from a fashion - industry publication which it said urged the industry to hoard goods now to profit by later price increases.

The editorial was from the Canadian reporter, described as the National magazine of the fashion industry. Headed "Lay it in, friend," it advised the trade:

". . . the merchant who takes some part of the risk involved in buying ahead of staples will also make the most money as soon as the market moves up; and unless there's a cataclysm coming (of which no sign appears), it's simply a matter of months before you feel the first upward price pressure in every field where you may buy goods."

The editorial also said Labor was shooting for higher returns and management had virtually given up the struggle to hold the price line. This added up to only one answer: "Prices must go up."

Clear-cut Example Claim

The C.C.L. letter described the editorial as "a clear-cut example of the hoarding and profiteering policy which some interests are advancing as a means of taking avantage of present circumstances, and thus bringing about a far more serious situation."

The clothing industry was "being urged to hoard goods now to make a killing later. This, of course, is precisely the way to push prices higher.

"No doubt these subsequent increases will be accompanied by the well-worn explanation that they have been caused by wage increases, whereas as a matter of fact the goods were purchased and higher prices anticipated months before."

"We are also concerned," the C.C.L. said, "that at least a measure of support is being given by some officials of the government. The Daily Press of Oct. 20 carried a Canadian Press dispatch from Ottawa quoting government officials who were described as 'financial planner' and who predicted a brief levelling-out of prices followed by another inflationary spiral in the spring."

The congress said there is urgent need for a clear declaration of policy that "neither unwarranted price increases nor profiteering will be countenanced by the government of Canada."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 27 (CP)—Synopsis—Frost occurred during the night in most sections of Central and Eastern Ontario. Skies are cloudy in western sections and scattered showers or thunderstorms are occuring with the approach of a disturbance moving eastward from the mid-western states.

Milder weather will continue over Ontario on Saturday. Showers and scattered thunderstorms will end in western sections of the province tonight and in Eastern Ontario by Saturday afternoon.

Tramp Ship, Laden With Chinese, Monkeys Takes 10 Months for Voyage

By STANLEY RICH

Hong Kong, Oct. 27—AP—Almost with a sigh, the troubleship Tamara eased into harbor and dropped her hook.

It was the end—or near the end of an unlucky cruise. Ten months it took her to sail from Australia. Three weeks is par.

The Tamara is a Honduran-registered ship of 1,160 tons—a tramp if there ever was one, and a ship with a temper akin to that of a King Cobra.

Her crew members are of six nationalities—all volatile.

Her cargo is a group of Chinese deportees from Australia, seven dogs, four cats, two monkeys and a gorilla from Borneo.

Her destination—well, anywhere there is peace and quiet.

The Tamara left Newcastle, Australia, last December for Portuguese Macoa on the South China coast. It was to be a leisurely three-week cruise.

Two days out the Tamara's temper flared. She blew a boiler tube. The Chinese all became seasick. She limped into Brisbane for repairs.

But even in port her baleful influence was felt. Three of her South American crew fell in love with the same girl. Knives flashed.

The result: one jail and two hospital cases.

Seven weeks and several court hearings later she put out again. More trouble.

The officers and crew got into a donnybrook. Don't know what it was about.

Result: a bosun and fireman hurt badly: 12 of the crew quit.

Canada Will Match Building Controls Set by U.S.

Ban is Proclaimed on All Amusement Construction

Washington, Oct. 27 — (CP) — The controls that are launched in the United States today may end up in Canada tomorrow.

That, in a nutshell, is the policy that will be followed under the new Canada-United States Economic Pact, embracing six economic principles, formally agreed to in a historic signing ceremony yesterday.

All of the controls in the cards for both countries — controls on use of scarce materials for non-essential production — are keyed to a common blueprint for joint defence planning.

Thus, with the United States yesterday proclaiming a ban on amusement construction, affecting 44 types from football stadia to pool halls, it appears likely that Canada will soon follow suit.

Trade Minister Howe of Canada who witnessed the signing ceremony in the U. S. State Department, indicated that in a statement to reporters.

It was only the "end result" that had to be similar in both countries. How Canada achieved that result was a matter to decide by consultation between the Dominion and the United States.

If Canada found that amusement construction was using up stocks that should rightly go into defence programs, that amusement construction soon would be halted.

Steel, like nickel and aluminum said Howe, are gradually becoming scarce items in Canada. Some industries, such as nickel and steel, are voluntarily rationing supplies to buyers.

If this voluntary rationing proved insufficient to provide enough supplies for defence production, then compulsory controls would follow.

(American manufacturers were told yesterday that a tentative plan under consideration calls for a cut of 20 to 30 per cent in the non-military use of aluminum, copper and nickel.)

In the same way, Howe said, if the United States decides to curb automobile production to conserve steel, it would indicate that the supplies of steel in both Canada and the United States were inadequate for defence production. In that case, Canada would likely follow the U.S. example and also cut automobile production.

Howe told reporters that it must be remembered that Canada is a far more compact country than the U.S. and scarcities do not strike as rapidly in Canada. Therefore controls were not so frequently required in the Dominion.

Canada already has legislation on the books by which controls can be set up to cover materials considered essential to defence. The Essential Materials (Defence) Act, passed at the recent special session of the Canadian parliament, gives the Dominion government power to control and regulate production, distribution and use of "essential" materials and services.

Murder Charge Laid After Man Shot in Street

Toronto, Oct. 27. (CP)—A big Australian-born railway worker was charged with murder Thursday when his friend Michael Bortnick died of a bullet wound inflicted during a street-corner argument about communism.

The 52-year-old Bortnick, a .38-calibre dum-dum slug in his back, was taken to hospital and died a few minutes later.

Police said the arugment began when Picca accused Bortnick, a native of Russia, of intercepting mail from his wife in the Ukraine. Picca pulled out a revolver, shoved it in Bortnick's back and pulled the trigger, detectives said.

Witnesses said Picca leaned over the wounded man, took what appeared to be a letter, and tried unsuccessfully to lift him to his feet.

He then telephoned police and waited calmly until they arrived. He handed over the gun and letter without a struggle.

Police said Picca and Bortnick knew each other for 10 years. Bortnick was receiving mail from the Ukraine and Picca wasn't. Picca claimed it was because Bortnick favored the communist regime there.

The letter taken by police contained three pictures of Bortnick's wife and son, now living in Alberat.

Police said they searched Bortnick's room and found a number of letters from the Ukraine, none of them addressed to Picca. A picture of Josef Stalin hung over Bortnick's bed, they said.

Police said Picca obtained the gun, a special model with dum-dum bullets from Mexico. When arrested he had 17 bullets in his pockets. One shot had been fired from the gun.

WOMAN AWARDED $450

Toronto, Oct. 27. (CP)—Mrs. Marie Thompson, 43, who claimed she suffered a broken arm when "pushed" from the downtown Colonial tavern Sept. 2, 1949, today was awarded $450 including costs in a damage action. She sought $10,000.

The tavern operators claimed she had previously been ordered to stay off their premises.

Gun-Totin' Padres Ready for Hunt At Brighton Bay

Operation Sky Pilot gets under way at Brighton Bay next Tuesday at crack 'o dawn.

Storm signals have been hoisted at Duck Headquarters and all squadrons on patrol duty have been ordered to stay on course.

This order has been promulgated in order to reduce personel casualties to the minimum.

In other words the ducks are under strict instructions to "forget to duck". It is felt if they maintain flying formations and hold to course they will be reasonably safe from "enemy" gunfire.

Meanwhile on the ground, the Padre Platoon has made extensive preparations for its second onslaught on the feathered enemy. A year ago, during the inaugural operation, the score was a tie. The platoon counted three enemy dead and the ducks reported eighteen shots (gun, that is) and six slightly deflated, but happy hunters.

The Padre Platoon personnel is composed of six Anglican ministers, former classmates at Trinity College, all of whom saw service with the armed forces overseas, and now connected with the Reserve Army in their different communities.

Included are Ven. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas Church, Belleville; the Rev. A. S. McConnell, Trenton; the Rev. Serson Clarke, rector St. Luke's, Ottawa; Canon E. H. Costigan, Niagara Falls; Rev. E. H. Brillinger, St. Catharines, and the Rev. Hope Swayne, Picton.

It's going to be a great day—for the ducks.

Bowell Monument Designed, Built By Government

Much criticism of the city council and others connected with the project has been heard "on the street" regarding the size, type and construction of the memorial erected to the memory of the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell, former Prime Minister of Canada.

In fairness to the city fathers and others under verbal fire, it must be said that they had nothing whatever to do with the type of monument that stands on the northwest corner of the Armouries lawn.

For the enlightenment of the "street" critics, it is pointed out that the Historic Sites and Monuments Commission of the Federal Government, has the last word, in fact the only word as to what will be erected to the memory of individuals, events, or anything of a historic or political nature which is to be so honored.

In fact, this commission has designed certain types of monument which are used for memorials of similar nature. In other words, a "stock pattern".

And it so happens that the monument approved by the commission to honor the memory of the late MacKenzie Bowell, is the type set aside for use all over Canada where those who have been prominent in the historical and political past of the Dominion are to be honored.

'Ham' Operator Given Award

"It really is a small world," was the opinion voiced today by J. E. Warner, who operates a federally-licensed amateur radio station with the call VE3ADJ at his home at 28 Dunbar Street, Belleville. He has been awarded the coveted WAC (worked-all-continents) certificates of the International Amateur Radio Union for having communicated with at least one amateur station in each of the six continental areas of the world: North America, South America, Africa, Europe, Asia and Oceania.

To qualify for the award, Warner was in two-way radio-telephonic contact with amateurs in Australia, South Africa, Cuba, Portugal, Chile and Turkey and has the Q.S.L.'s—radio jargon for contact-confirming postcards—proudly displayed on the wall of his "shack" (radio room) to prove it.

In the early days of "ham" radio an amateur was lucky if he could talk with a fellow-enthusiast five blocks away. Now it is quite possible, through the exercise of perseverance and patience, to talk to amateurs located in the remotest corners of the world.

Conservation Authority Will Probe Cost College Street Dam If Approved by City Council

Subject to the approval of Belleville city council, the Moira River Conservation Authority will investigate the cost of constructing the College Street dam which has been proposed in the conservation survey report as a measure to ameliorate flood conditions in the city.

This was decided at a special meeting of the river Authority held Thursday afternoon to consider recommendations contained in the report released last June.

The Authority members agreed to start a program of reforestation, to investigate the possibilities of the proposed Moira Park gorge northeast of Roslin; to construct a number of farm ponds and to investigate the purchase of the old O'Hara Mill north of Madoc as a historic point of interest.

All Members Present

All members of the Authority were on hand for the meeting which was presided over by the Authority chairman Harry Harrison, reeve of Thurlow township. Mr. A. H. Richardson, chief conservation engineer, also attended the meeting and assisted the members in their deliberations.

With four areas in the river valley recommended as possible sites for reforestation, members voted to deal first with the Hungerford area and recommended that up to 1,000 acres of abandoned farm land in the area be purchased. This area already contains the Hastings County and Hungerford Township forests and is the easiest area from a soils standpoint to plant.

It was agreed that Mr. Harrison with assistance from the Department of Lands and Forests should investigate land values and secure options on a sufficient number of lots so that work could be undertaken in the spring.

City Would Bear Cost

As the city of Belleville would stand to benefit almost 100 per cent from the construction of the College Street dam, the city would be called upon to bear practically the entire cost. Construction of the dam was included in the Authority program but the "go-ahead" signal for the preliminary work in preparing plans and estimating costs as well as for the actual construction will have to come from the city.

Purpose of the dam would be to trap a certain portion of the ice above the city proper. The dam would not create a reservoir of any appreciable size but would form an ice trap to hold back a proportion of the ice from becoming lodged in the channel. It was pointed out that such a dam might not prevent all ice jams but sluice gates would reduce the possibilities of ice damage. Cost of such a dam was estimated in the report as approximately $140,000.

Provide Park Area

Authority members voted to investigate the proposed Moira Gorge park between Roslin and Thomasburg. This park would contain 156 acres at a point where the river runs through a deep gorge. The matter of acquisition and final approval of the plan was left for a subsequent meeting.

The Authority will investigate the possibility of building three farm ponds. Chairman Harrison said such ponds were very useful and beautiful. They afforded a water supply for stock and for fire protection and in some instances could be stocked with fish. The ponds would be located where they would be of the most educational value.

Historical Site

The old O'Hara Mill, northwest of Madoc, where a century ago an upright or "Muley" sawmill was operated, will be considered as a historical site and investigations will be carried on with the view of purchasing the property. The final decision on the matter will be made at a later meeting.

The Authority chairman suggested that the mill site would be an ideal location for a museum where old types of farm equipment and other machinery used in the watershed could be set up. Mr. Richardson said that the importance of the historical aspect of a watershed was frequently forgotten.

Another recommendation to be considered by the Authority will be the construction of two small dams at the outlet of Stoco Lake at Tweed. These dams would serve to raise the level of the lake and would increase the river flow during the dry season. Cost of such work would be assessed against the municipalities benefiting.

All approved projects adopted by the Authority would be subject to provincial and federal grants to assist in construction costs.

Rev. George Kelly, assisted by Rev. I. Walsh, conducted a short service at the chapel and a second service at the Standard Church. Mrs. Charles Brown and Mrs. H. Green sang a duet, and a quartet of Donald Brown, Charles Brown, Harry Green and and Carl Green also sang.

The bearers were H. Green, Charles Brown, Donald Brown, Robert Devolin, William Austin and George Cummings. Interment in Belleville Cemetery.

MRS. FREDERICK KETCHESON (Moira)

Mrs. Frederick A. Ketcheson died in Belleville General Hospital Thursday, October 26 in her 74th year. Born in Moira, Ontario, she was Helen Melissa, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster. She had lived in Moira all her life and had been in failing health for the past year.

Mrs. Ketcheson was a member of Moira United Church, and was active in the church when her health permitted. She was a life member of the Women's Association.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, 27 Campbell Street. The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

MRS. EDWARD ZIMMERMAN

Picton—In failing health for some months, Annie Leary, wife of the late Edward Zimmerman passed away at the family home on Main St., on Wednesday morning. Her early life was spent at Waupoos but after the death of her husband the family moved to Picton. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Jack Cole, Mrs. Leo Storms and Miss Nettie Zimmerman. A member of the Anglican Church, the funeral will be held at her late residence on Friday afternoon with interment in Black Creek Cemetery.

CHARLES W. JULIEN (Trenton)

Trenton — Charles W. Julien died in Belleville General Hospital on Wednesday, October 25. His home address was 225 Dundas Street E., in Trenton, and he had lived in that town all his life. He was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Julien, and died in his 87th year.

Mr. Julien was a retired lumber scaler who had worked with the Gill and Fortune Lumber Company and the Gilmour Lumber Company. He was a member of St. Peter's Church, and belonged to the Knights of Columbus of that church.

Mr. Julien rested at the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, until this Friday morning for solemn requiem mass at St. Peter's at 9 a.m. by Rev. Fr. O'Donnell. The bearers were James Armstrong, E. T. McFall, E. R. Hill, Dr. J. B. Byrne, James Lafferty and Byron Edmonds.

Interment in Mount Calvary cemetery.

Benefits Seen in Moira Valley Watershed Conservation Told Plainfield Men's Club

Conservation in all its various aspects and means whereby a balanced conservation program could be expected to benefit residents of the Moira River watershed, were outlined to members of the Five-Circle Men's Club at Plainfield, Thursday evening, by A. H. Richardson, chief conservation engineer.

Mr. Richardson was the guest speaker at the opening fall banquet of the men's club from the United Church at Plainfield, Zion, Roslin, Bethel and Mt. Pleasant. The banquet, attended also by wives and children of the members, was held at the Plainfield Orange Hall.

The speaker said the conservation included soil, water, forestry, wild life and recreation. No one item could be considered without the other as all were tied in together.

Contour Plowing

Mr. Richardson noted how contour plowing could do much to prevent soil erosion. Older farmers accustomed to plowing "straight" were hard to convince of the advantages of contour plowing but younger farmers were beginning to understand its value. Such farming in many cases resulted in a 20 per cent increase in production, he said.

Forestry was also touched on, the speakter emphasizing the importance of cattle being kept out of farm woodlots. If cattle were allowed to run in woodlots, the tender young shoots would be eaten off making it impossible for a new crop of young trees to get started.

Forest Cover for Wild Life

Desired wild life would multiply naturally if sufficient forest cover was provided.

Mr. Richardson referred to the Moira Valley Authority survey report which was released last June and stated that what was now done was up to the Authority officials.

"Recommendations for a conservation program in the Moira Valley have been made but what action is taken rests in the hands of the people living in this valley," he said.

There are 13 river valley authorities now set up in Ontario with conservation projects costing between 12 and 13 millions now underway. It was pointed out that provincial and federal grants were offered to help pay for such work.

Views of Watershed

In addition to his talk Mr. Richardson showed colored slides of many beautiful views taken along the watershed during the survey two years ago. Farm buildings of many district farmers were also shown, as well as methods of preventing soil erosion.

The speaker was introduced by Harry Harrison with Roy Sills expressing the appreciation of the men's club.

Special guests at the banquet were five students from the Foxboro public school who won this year's forestry competition for the second year in a row. They were accompanied by their teacher, Mrs. Hayton.

President of the men's club, Mr. Chas. Treverton acted as chairman. Entertainment for the al numbers. evening included Frank Tummon, of Foxboro who was heard in several solos and Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kerr and Mrs. H. Harrison who gave several instrument-

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 27 — (CP)—Industrials staged a strong comeback from their heavy losses of the last three days as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Gains ranged to a point and utilities, agricultures, foods, papers, refining oils and manufacturing companies showed a majority of gains in the groupings. Steels, liquors, and banks were mixed. Retail stores, textiles and constructions declined. Massey Harris featured the list by adding $1 to its $2 gain yesterday to touch a new high at $44.50.

Base metals were mixed. MacDonald was the most active issue, adding 7½ cents. Western oils continued their losing streak with a wide list of leaders down.

Senior gold producers were lower. Junior producers brightened with quite a few of the more speculative issues gaining pennies.

Two are Jailed For Possession Of Explosives

Hamilton, Oct. 27 — (CP) — Of the seven persons arrested Oct. 20 in the roundup of a $500,000 safecracking ring, two were sent to jail today by Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins.

Charged with having in their possession explosives illegally, William Ferguson, 27, carpenter, Toronto, pleaded guilty and Allan Dixon, 25, chef, of Hamilton, was convicted.

They were given their choice between Burwash Reformatory and the penitentiary. Ferguson took reformatory for two years less a day and Dixon the penitentiary for a two-year term.

Eight others, including two women, appeared in Dundas on Oct. 24 before Magistrate John E. Robinson. They were remanded until Oct. 31.

Prime Minister Receives Degree

Toronto, Oct. 27 (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said today that a totalitarian state such as Russia must, by its very nature, remain a threat to its free neighbors.

"In the case of a totalitarian state wth the population and resources of the Soviet Union, such a threat is, in fact, a menace to civilizaton itself," he said in an address prepared at a University of Toronto convocation ceremony.

During the ceremonies, Mr. St. Laurent and Dr. J. E. Wallace Sterling, President of Stanford (Calif) University, received honorary degrees of Doctors of Laws.

Mr. St. Laurent told his audience that the "enslavement of the minds of human beings is not an incidental feature of totalitarianism, whether it takes the form of facism or nazism or communism.

"The very essence of the totalitarian state is the regimentation of all aspects of human life and all forms of human expression. I am sure all of us are convinced if the human mind is enslaved, civilization will eventually disappear.

"I think most of us would agree that, given time, any totalitarian structure would be bound to collapse because no organized society can hope to endure indefinitely without some means of training independent and truly educated minds.

St. George's Guild Holds Afternoon Tea and Bazaar

Bright sunshine and cloudless skies ushered in the afternoon tea and bazaar and sale of home cooking yesterday afternoon, held in Christ Church under the auspices of St. George's Guild, where the many patrons and guests were cordially welcomed by the president, Mrs. P. Welch, Mrs. George Pepper, Mrs. Symons, and the treasurer, Mrs. Trump.

Arranged around the assembly room in pleasing positions, were the guest tables, each with its white cloth, daintily worked in satin, cross-stitch, or Italian cut work and centred by a vase of autumn tinted baby 'mums; while across the lower end of the room, was the large tea table, resplendent with its white satin damask linen cloth and sparkling silver services. Flanking the silver basket of bronze and golden 'mums, were silver candle sticks, holding white and green tapers.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. J. B. Creeggan, Mrs. E. Hickey, and Mrs. G. G. Wright. Those who served included Mrs. H. McFee; Mrs. W. Beare; Mrs. F. Askey; Mrs. W. Colman; Mrs. Wenzell and Mrs. H. Woodley, and those who replenished the plates, Mrs. Button, Mrs. McLeod, Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. H. Rainbird.

The home-cooking table was replete with tarts, both taffy and lemon, and raspberry, chocolate cakes, cocoanut cakes, jelly rolls, lemon pies, apple pies and little chocolate gems topped with walnut meats. All so good it was hard to select. In charge here were Mrs. J. Collings; Mrs. L. Gazley; Mrs. Rowbotham and Mrs. Domosley.

On the fancy work table were many lovely articles including men's knit socks in diamond pattern and plain; baby's sacques and bonnets in sets of pink and of white; little socks, mitts, and dainty aprons for every occasion, knitting bags; shopping bags, pot holders, a black-faced Diana, with a hulu-hulu skirt; tiny berets and dolls' sets in brown knit and snow-suits in green and little colored pheasants for lapels. Mrs. W. R. Collyer; Mrs. F. Markle, Mrs. George Webb and Mrs. Clegg, the conveners, were kept busy wrapping up the numerous sales.

The candy table fairly groaned with 'goodies' of many varieties, maple creams, chocolate fudge, almond creams all in prettily decorated holders adding zest to the tempting array, and gracing the far end of the table, were little pots of tiny plants, and one large pot containing a lovely African violet. Those in charge here were Mrs. W. Perry and Mrs. George Beare.

At the "Touch and Take" table were sundry packages, some square, some round, some long, and some flat. All were prettily wrapped, and asking to be "touched." Over this tempting section were the conveners, Mrs. H. Armstrong, and Mrs. H. Dewery.

A nice bazaar, and tea, pleasingly convened.

SWEDISH KING COLLAPSES

Stockholm, Sweden, Oct. 27 — (Reuters) — King Gustav of Sweden, 92, collapsed at a cabinet meeting at Drottninghold Palace this morning.

A communique issued by the royal doctors later said the King was "extremely tired" and had "pronounced difficulty in breathing."

Courtiers were gravely worried about the King's condition.

The doctors reported that the King had been suffering from a cough. This had now increased and the King was having "more pronounced difficulty in breathing."

Y's Minettes Organized By Y's Men's Club

A new club was born in the fast-developing program at the YMCA this fall, when the wives and lady friends of the Y's Men's Club, at a special ladies' night, organized the Y's Minettes with Mrs. Doris (Bud) Trill as president. Other officers elected were Mrs. Mabel (Wilf) Richardson, vice-president, Mrs. Ardith (Bryson) Leslie, secretary and Mrs. Barbara (Ron) Cass, treasurer. An induction ceremony was performed by Y's Men, Gerald Hyde, Bud Trill, Bryson Leslie and Ross Booth. The Y's Minettes are pledged, as a service club to the Y's Men and the YMCA.

The toast to the ladies was a clever poem written and given by Linton Read, to which Mrs. Jewel (Bill) Holway replied.

Head table guests included Mr. and Mrs. Ross Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald B. Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Al. J. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Robbie Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Bryson Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Reed; Mr. and Mrs. Don Williams and Bud Trill.

Robbie Clarke, as chairman and master of ceremonies, provided a series of games and contests which kept the audience in roars of laughter, and all contestants were winners.

Participating in the diamond and gold nugget were Max Maguire, Ed Littlejohn and Willis Hutchinson.

Mrs. Fred Barton as a gentleman and Les Reid as a lady won rounds of applause as a charming couple.

Mrs. Gerald Hyde was able to identify her husband's feet among those of Ron Cass, Al Davis and Bud Trill.

By a natural method of touch Miss Ruth Denton was able to decide the smoothest skin of Archie Boyd, Bill Holway, Austin Watkin or George Wonnacott after a tonsorial performance by Mrs. Morley Lovelace, Mrs. Tom Hutchinson, Mrs. Linton Reed and Mrs. Bryson Leslie.

In the hat trimming contest Miss Alyce Matthews, Mrs. Al. Davis and Mrs. Austin Watkin performed on models Ralph Black, Don Williams, Jack Wilson and Ron Cass.

In the knitting contest Ross Booth, Morley Lovelace, Oscar Wagar and Frank Nichols performed with Mrs. Vern Weir, Mrs. Archie Boyd, Mrs. Garth Sine and Mrs. Wilf Richardson.

The evening concluded with dancing to Wareham's orchestra The YMCA auditorium was beautifully decorated in fall flowers for the occasion.

Rev. Sidney Larman Addresses Club On "Thankfulness"

Bright sunshine alternating with cloudy shadows lent a lovely autumn atmosphere for the October meeting of the Prince-Edward-Belleville Club which met at the home of Mrs. F. Lent. Beautiful flowers adorned the spacious rooms, and afforded a pleasing atmosphere into which the guests were welcomed by their gracious hostess, rivalled only by the gorgeous colorings of the out-of-doors with its shrubbery of gold, brown and crimson.

Mrs. M. B. Weese presided, and after the usual opening read "A Creed for the Optimist," and during the business session, it was decided to withdraw the November meeting owing to the Belleville area W.I. convention on the 8th and 9th. An invitation was accepted to attend the service of St. Margaret's on-the-Hill for the dedication of the altar in memory of the late Miss Beatrice Jones, one of the club members.

Thanks were read for cards and flowers, and Mrs. George Spencer expressed appreciation for the gift and many cards she and Mr. Spencer had received on their golden wedding anniversary Two new members were accepted.

Mrs. Osborne presided for the program. Three excellent readings were given, all bearing on the theme "Thankfulness." Accompanied on the piano by his mother, Mrs. Calnan, Mr. Jack Calnan, sang two fine selections.

The Reverend Sidney Larman, of Holloway Street United Church, was guest speaker, and spoke on the subject "When God Speaks Twice." "From the beginning," said the speaker, "when the men and women to whom God spoke in the voice from the cloud, or the hill-top, or the prison wall, He emphasized the call by repeating the name twice. This was symbolic in the annals of the New Testament, most vividly portrayed in the story of Martha and Mary. Our Lord still calls—in a still, small voice."

Following the address, Mrs. H. Parliament conducted a contest, and appreciative thanks were expressed to Mr. Larman, to Jack Calnan, and to all those who had assisted in the program, by Mrs. Stears.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. McCoy; Mrs. Schryver, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. Clinton Calnan, Mrs. Skeggs Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Millar.

MADOC

Most Rev. John Lyons Archbishop Ontario Holds Confirmation

Madoc.—Last Sunday, the Most Rev. John Lyons, Lord Archbishop of Ontario, held confirmation services in St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, and St. Oswald's Church, Millbridge.

At St. John's there was a large congregation and the church was almost filled to capacity.

At St. Oswald's, Millbridge, there was an overflow congregation.

The Archbishop expressed his delight at seeing such good attendance and complimented the people and the rector on the fine work they are doing and the splendid fellowship there is among them.

The candidates for confirmation who had gone through a thorough counsel of study and lectures were presented by the rector, Rev. T. H. Good.

Madoc.—Mrs. Harry Hulin, of Stirling, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hulin.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brett have been spending the past two weeks with their son, Rev. Gordon and Mrs. Brett, at Tabinstac, N.B.

Mrs. Harris is spending the winter months with her son-in-law, Mr. Bruce Hennessey in Prince Edward County.

Trinity Church Club

Trinity United Church Club held their October meeting in the church parlors on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Ken Holmes, the president, conducted the business portion of the meeting.

An interesting program had been arranged by Mrs. P. H. Nayler and in her absence, Miss Annie Holmes took charge. The topic chosen was "Stewardship" and Miss Holmes read some selections from the book "Study and Stories of Stewardship".

Mrs. Archie Adams contributed a solo and this was followed by readings on "Stewardship", which provided much food for thought; Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Bennett taking part.

A piano solo was given by Mrs. Murray and a short skit was presented entitled "Community Friendship".

A pleasant social hour followed the close of the meeting.

FLYING TREES

In an effort to re-create lost forests in Iceland, 280,000 young fir trees have been flown from Norway.

DRUG ACTS

Both Cortisone and Furacin made the mice's adrenal glands grow larger and become more active.

But the Furacin didn't help mice whose adrenal glands were taken out. This was the hint that Furacin works on or through the adrenal gland, much as Acth does.

Cortisone and Acth temporarily help some humans suffering from Leukemia, cancer of the blood, and cancer of lymphatic tissue. A few humans now are being given Furacin to see what it may do to their cancers, Dr. Friedgood said.

The drug can be given by mouth, of by injections into the muscles. The only bad effect noticed so far is that it makes people nauseated, of causes vomiting. What it may do to cancers isn't known yet, but any good effects are expected to be only temporary.

Other humans will get Furacin for rheumatoid arthritis and for rheumatic fever. If Furacin works, it may become a far-cheaper drug for these diseases than the hormones, which still are scarce.

BRITISH "FAITH IN FREEDOM"

A great day was marked in London Thursday when His Majesty spoke in Westminster Hall, according to tradition, and said that the new Commons was "a sign to the world of our faith in freedom. In other places liberty has perished but the voice of true democracy is still heard among all our peoples and is a comfort to those who love and believe in the unfettered expression of honest opinions, noble aspirations and sincere human feelings."

In the new Commons replacing the old Commons which was destroyed during the German blitz in the Second World War, there was a brief ceremony in which the political leaders welcomed the speakers or presiding officers of the Commonwealth Nations.

It was a memorable occasion, signifying as it did not only meeting in the new Commons but marking as well British economic revival for which the Motherland thanked in good measure the United States and Canada for "generous help" and co-operation.

With the members of the British Commons back in their historic setting there cannot but be a sense of intense satisfaction at the course of British revival.

The occupation of the new Commons has a rich significance for the British peoples and for the world of friendly nations.

ARMS FOR NETHERLANDS

Comments on the decision of the nations under the North Atlantic Treaty, to make the first contribution of arms to the Netherlands has brought favorable comment in Canada. The people of the Netherlands are held in high regard by the Canadian people, who have welcomed since the Second World War a good many Netherlands citizens as desirable immigrants.

The Dutch people have a high regard for Canada as they were brought during the last war in contact with the fine representatives Canada had sent to the theatre of war in Europe to defend democracy and freedom from Nazi tyranny. They recall the liberation of their country from Hitler occupation. In that revival of freedom Canadians had no small part to play. During that struggle the people of Canada had the pleasure of having members of the Royal Family of Holland living in this country.

Hollanders feel their responsibility as a free people to play their full part in the strengthening of the nation to guard the democratic way of life.

COMMUNISM BEATEN IN KOREA

Communism in picking on Korea for a demonstration of its aggressiveness made a grave error in calculation. What has happened in the past months in the liberation of Southern Korea and the driving of the reds back far into North Korea has been a smashing blow they did not anticipate.

The opinion of United Nations leaders is said to be that the red defeats in Korea have thrown farther into the future the possibility of war on a great scale. The communists picked South Korea expecting it a soft spot for aggression but have been forced to retreat and have lost face in the rapidity with which their forces were smashed by the United Nations.

Communism, of course, is regarded as a sinister force which remains a threat. There is general opinion that the reds will batter away wherever they think opportunity offers.

However the Korean developments have been one of the heaviest blows it was possible to deal an aggressor. The unity of the UN spirit is something the North Korean reds have had to recognize.

The United Nations world has faced with resolution the crisis which came with the decision in Korea and is stronger for the very demonstration of their determination and their power.

WIND POWER

Use of the wind to manufacture electricity is not new. Especially out on the Prairies one sees the windmill contraptions which provide power for the farmstead, says the Windsor Star.

The Republic of Ireland, however, is going in for wind-produced electricity on a wholesale basis. Surveys now are being made on the west coast of County Donegal. If the results are satisfactory, the study will be extended all along the west coast of Ireland, from Donegal to Kerry.

The country should be suitable. The strong west winds have blown over the rugged coast of Ireland down through the ages, bringing little of value to that land except rain—and usually too much of it. There are plenty of high hills upon which to erect the electricity-making mills.

Southern Ireland is largely agrarian. If it is to be industrialized it needs power, more than can be provided by its rivers and by peat. Wind and water are the cheapest sources of electricity.

Rich as we are in biography, a well-written life is almost as rare as a well spent one; and there are certainly many more men whose history deserves to be recorded than persons able and willing to furnish the record. — Carlyle.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

MEN

Men are all that women say.
Selfish with their joys.
Always running off to play
Just like little boys.

Ducks and geese are flying now
Over lake and bay.
Many a man is wondering how
He can spend three days away.

With the season for the deer,
Anxious for his "one"
Many a man will disappear,
To the north woods gone.

Men at heart are little boys
Sports will lure to roam;
Always chasing selfish joys
Taking them from home.

MacKenzie's Column:

Fifth Column Powerful Weapon In Soviet Armory

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press News Analyst)

The United States is employing one of her earliest defences against communism is joining five other United Nation members to label fifth-column aggression as among "the gravest of all crimes against peace and security throughout the world."

A resolution to this effect has been placed before the Assembly's political domination in answer to the Russian peace project calling for armaments reduction and branding as a war criminal the first government to use the atomic bomb.

The grouping of the bomb with fifth-column activities may seem far-fetched at first blush. However, the fifth column is by far the most powerful weapon in the Soviet armory. The red empire is built largely on the strength of these underground works.

One of the earliest of the world's statesmen to recognize the dangers of the fifth column, and to take action against it, was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1933, Roosevelt invited Russia to confer on recognition. The Russians responded by sending Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinoff. A conference with the president resulted in agreement and formal recognition was extended

Read Riot Act

However, before agreement was reached, the president read the riot act to Litvinoff and exacted sweeping pledges from him. The foreign minister guaranteed that his Embassy in Washington would refrain from propaganda against the social or political order in the U. S. and would restrain any agency, under direct or indirect Soviet control, from interfering in American internal affairs.

Well, things ostensibly quieted down for a while. The Soviet Union joined the League of Nations in 1934. The Communist International—or general staff for world revolution — shifted the character of its propaganda in many countries. Radical revolutionary demands were shoved into the background, and the communists sought "alliances" with socialists and other political parties.

Radical Change

Then in 1939 came another radical change. Litvinoff, advocate of collective security, was relieved of his post as foreign minister and dropped into obscurity. Molotov, hard-boiled old Bolshevist, took over.

Communism was on the warpath in full strength again. Fifth columns were working overtime. Stalin signed the non-aggression pact with Hitler, thus enabling the Fuehrer to launch his world war.

The rest of the story is fresh in everyone's mind. The world revolution is in full swing.

OLD BURYING GROUND

Dublin, Oct. 27 (CP)—Local archaeologists have reported finding a burial place in County Meath, 20 miles from Dublin, reputed to be 3,500 years old. Excavations have produced samples of work similar to pieces found in Spain and findings associated with megalithic times in India. Carved stones and bones were found.

THWART SOVIET ATTEMPT

Gifhorn, Germany, Oct. 27 — (Reuters)—West German border police thwarted a Soviet zone attempt to snatch a plot of western soil yesterday. They moved back to the border several demarcation signs which eastern police pushed 550 yards into the British zone earlier this week.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

DOWN WHERE THE WURZBURGER FLOWS

A beery little letter showed up in the mail today from a man in Milwaukee, and if you'll pull up a chair and help yourself to the pretzels I'll be glad to let you look at it. . . .

Dear Mr. Rose:

There's an old German couple in our neighborhood named Otto and Lena Brenner, and something happened to them not long ago which you might mention in your column.

Otto had been a gateman at one of the local breweries for longer than most of us can remember, and ever since he got married in 1910 he's been turning his pay check over to his wife who cashes it at the grocer's and gives him a couple of dollars off the top for spending money. About 30 cents of this goes for smoking tobacco and the rest for beer at Stegmeyer's Social Club, a saloon where Otto drops in regularly for a little talk with the boys. Lena, of course, has never approved of the club, and has always said that Otto's friends were a bunch of bums.

Last month Lena got word that her sister in Racine was sick and needed her, and so, not knowing when she'd be back, she gave Otto permission to cash his pay check himself, warning him, however, to stay away from Stegmeyer's where the boozers could only lead him into evil ways.

The following Friday night when Otto cashed his check he took the $37 in bills, rolled them into a wad, put a rubber band on it and shoved it into his pants pocket, along with an odd quarter left over from his previous week's spending money. Then he went home, ate a little dinner and stretched out on the sofa for a nap.

For the best part of an hour he turned and tossed, but finally he gave up, put on his hat and headed for Stegmeyer's. A few doors from the bar, a panhandler gave him a hard-luck story, and it was so convincing that Otto dug down and gave him the quarter. Then he went into the beer parlor where, of course, he got his usual warm reception and had himself his usual fine time. That is, until it was his turn to buy a round—when he reached for his money it wasn't there.

"What's the trouble?" said the bartender. "You look like you lost something."

"My pay," said Otto.

"Don't worry," said the bartender. "Your credit's good."

"It ain't that," said Otto. "This is the first time my old lady has let me cash my pay check and I'll never hear the end of it if I don't have the money when she gets back. I gave a panhandler a quarter before I came in and that's when the bills must have fallen out of my pocket."

Well, practically everybody in Stegmeyer's went out to look for Otto's money, but there was no sign of it so he finally went home, plenty worried about how Lena was going to take it.

An hour later there was a knock on the gateman's door and it was Little Stevie, the kid who works for Stegmeyer. "The panhandler came in right after you left and gave us this," he said, handing Otto a roll of bills with a rubber band on it. "He says he picked it up right after you gave him the quarter, but his conscience started to bother him on account you was so good to him."

Otto counted the money—it was $37.

When Lena got back from Racine, the old boy handed her the dough and that might have been that, except the following night, while tidying up, she found a roll of bills wedged behind a cushion on the couch.

"Look," she said to Otto, "money! Thirty-seven dollars!"

"It must be my last week's pay," said Otto.

"You mean you got paid twice last week?"

Otto knew he wasn't worth a darn as a liar and so he told Lena everything.

"It means only one thing," said his wife. "Them bums at Stegmeyer's saw you was in bad trouble and they took up a collection."

A few minutes later, Lena went to the closet and got her coat. "Put on your hat and let's go," she said.

"Go where " said Otto.

"To Stegmeyer's, of course. First I'm gonna apologize to those bums for saying they're bums. After that the drinks are on me!"

Sincerely,
Louis Stegmeyer

Road Construction Falling Behind Motor Car Production Says Head of Association

By FORBES RHUDE

(Canadian Press Business Editor)

A striking picture of how much building is going on in Canada is given by Robert Drummond, president of the Canadian construction association. Says he:

If each housing unit built during the last five years were erected on a 50-foot lot, the lots would cover both sides of a road stretching from Toronto to Vancouver.

That was 40 per cent of all construction, and at the same time hydro-electric power and engineering projects of various kinds, factories, churches, hospitals, schools, roads, were filling the other 60 per cent.

"It was the biggest program ever carried out by a country of our size and it represented an investment of private and public funds of more than $11,000,000,000."

Mr. Drummond gave his outline in an address in which he stated that highway construction is not keeping pace with automobile registration.

"Our present vehicle population would more than fill two lines of traffic on a road reaching from Halifax to Vancouver. Can we afford not to enlarge our highway system at a faster rate than before? The Trans-Canada highway agreements between the federal and provincial governments are an encouraging sign."

Exporters to Meet

The Canadian Exporters' Association announces that Prime Minister St. Laurent will be the annual dinner speaker at its annual convention in Ottawa Nov. 6-7. Other speakers during the sessions will include Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, United Kingdom High Commissioner at Ottawa; Herbert E. Gaston, chairman of the board of the Export-Import Bank of the United States, Washington; and Frank Stratton, member of the United Kingdom Dollar Exports Board, London.

T. H. Weatherdon of Hull, Que., chairman of the national convention committee, states that some 400 exporters from coast to coast will attend.

Talks by M. W. Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce, and other officials of the department will be followed by an informal gathering to allow delegates to meet members of the Department's personnel with whom they have dealings.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In villages and small towns, it is not altogether a pity that most of the young people have left for the cities and big towns. For that leaves plenty of work for the older people.

In villages, the store keepers are mostly oldish. The man who delivers the groceries is in his sixties. The fellow who looks after the rural telephone repairs might be close to seventy. In the service station there may be a young man in his thirties, but his assistant—probably his father or his uncle—is away up in years and wears his official service station cap very jaunty on a bald head above a wrinkled roostery neck.

To be sure, you see a few elderly men loafing around the village; but they are the retired farmers, and there is no telling what they may be up to in the way of private enterprise, such as raising mink or bees in the backyards of their pleasant frame cottages back up the street.

Villages are a better place to be elderly in than cities and large town. As the years mount up on a city man, he grows anxious. Into cities is always flowing, with a pressure as cold and relentless as a glacier, an endless weight of youth from the villages and towns. And this weight pushes and shoves against the city folk who grow old.

You cannot get a job when you are sixty, in a city groceteria. They are all kids there. Telephone repairs are not as frequent in cities as they are along the rural routes; and they are too complicated, too high in the air, too deep in the ground, in cities, for old men to handle.

You can't keep bees or mink in a city back yard.

Nor can you keep a hound, or, say, a lady hound with five lively pups. In fact, what can you keep in a city that would be of interest to a gentleman who was getting along to what you might call the years of discretion?

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address:

DO HAVE SOME MORE WHEAT

It is pretty well established, I think, that the everyday diet of most American children, youths and adults is deficient in from three to six of these essentials of good nutrition: thiamine (B1), riboflavin (B2) calcium, phosphorus, iodin, vitamin D.

Deficiencies of these vitamins and minerals through a period of years account for a great many minor ailments of children, youths and adults which in most instances do not come under the care of a physician unless some accident or acute illness requires medical care.

Refined white flour in bread, cake, pastry, puddings, and refined white sugar in cake, candy, sweet "desserts," ice cream, syrup and sweetened beverages supply more than half of the calories in the everyday diet of these children, youths and adults. Both flour and sugar have been robbed of the vitamins and minerals that grow with them, in the process of refining, and it is practically impossible to get enough vitamins and minerals from the inadequate amount of fruit, fresh vegetables, fresh meat, fresh milk, fresh eggs the namby-pambies to make up for the deficiency of the refined carbohydrate diet.

Without being a faddist, a nut or a crackpot on the subject of health one should have a better conception of what good health means than not complaining or not needing treatment.

Readers collaborating with me coined a word for it which, I find, is cropping up in popular speech and writing these days. The word is V-i-t-e—it was made to order to fit this definition:

Preservation of the characteristics of youth, better-than-average nutritional condition as manifested in lower death-rates, better growth and development, extension of the prime of life in both directions, material improvement of life expectation of adults, higher average level of positive health throughout the life cycle, greater pep, more vitality, the highest degree of natural immunity, an adequate fund of reserve power to tide over emergencies and strains, the resiliency of the untamed animal or the primitive savage.

In the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite I give directions for the pursuit of any of these components in which you may be interested. For a copy of the booklet send 25c and stamped self addressed envelope.

In talks to follow we'll endeavor to indicate how a competent domestic engineer—mother, that is—may wean the namby-pambies—you know, father and the young'uns — away from their cheat-foods to a regular diet calculated to build vite. Lest the namby-pambies rebel against radical reform it may be wise to let 'em have it in installments, that is, replace only about one-third of the white flour used in their food with whole wheat meal or flour—wheat ground in your own coffee mill or wheat flour freshly ground every day by your neighborhood health food store, baker or feed store.

By now, I imagine, many manufacturers suppy hand or power mills for us in the home or store or hotel in grinding whole wheat fresh every day. (It doesn't keep long—which is the reason why the shippers and stores can't handle in wholesale.)

U. S. Department of Agriculture Bureau of Home Economics, Washington, D.C., will send on request instructions for preparing plain wheat for the everyday diet. The whole grain boiled, steamed or cooked in pressure cooker makes an ideal breakfast food for children or adults. Fuel and time may be saved by cracking the wheat in a hand grinder or small power mill. The Straub Company, 4059 Ridge Avenue, Philadelphia 29, Pa., and Landers, Frarey & Clark, New Britain, Connecticut, supply such grinders.

Some practical suggestions for the use of plain wheat in the everyday diet of the well fed family, offered by readers who know what's good to eat, are available in the pamphlet Wheat to Eat—ask for it by name (no clipping) and inclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

Wheat as it comes from the thresher or cracked or ground to meal or flour from which nothing is removed, is the richest natural food source of vitamin B complex and in addition a good source of vitamin A and vitamin E. Indeed wheat germ oil is the richest source of vitamin E. The whole grain or cracked wheat or freshly ground wheat meal or flour from which nothing has been removed supplies child or adult with 200 times more minerals than refined white flour — minerals indispensable for normal growth, development, functional efficiency, vite.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INTELLIGENT CURIOSITY

More than anything else, I believe, intelligent curiosity is what has created more useful inventions, and broadened the mind, than almost any other factor. Fabre was intrigued by the life of insects, so he devoted his life to them. Edison's intelligent curiosity is what led him into so many successful inventions.

In Woodrow Wilson's inspiring little book, "On Being Human," he said: "Keep but your eyes alert and your ears quick, as you move among men and among books, and you will find yourself possessed at last of a new sense, the sense of the pathfinder.

Intelligent curiosity is what has caused the building of the greatest telescopes which have revealed new worlds to us, and opened up speculation as to the stars and planets that lie far away in our heavens. Who can guess what will be discovered next. We would know nothing of the precious minerals and gems, hidden away in the earth, had not men been curious.

It was the curiosity of Charles M. Doughty that made possible his great book, "Travels in Arabia Deserta", and an endless number of other books have been written about religions, countries, and peoples, initiated by this intelligent curiosity to know and to learn. We would have none of the fascinating books on the ant and bee had not men been curious. The law of gravitation was thus discovered—and to the curiosity of Columbus we owe the discovery and development of this western world.

Nature has always been a storehouse of knowledge, and men have drawn copiously from that great reservoir, enriching all life. Nature is our greatest text-book. Anyone, who will read intelligently from it may learn more than any college could teach, in fact the majority of college text-books are those which had their inception in nature.

About twenty years ago, Holbrook Jackson, published two large volumes, called "The Anatomy of Bibliomania," one of the most fascinating sets of books about books, lovers of books, and the habits of book readers, ever published. Just because the author was curious, I suspect!

POWER

"What's the matter with me?"

Many people keep asking this question and then at last they betake themselves to a specialist. "Brother," says the specialist, "what you need is a new set of spark plugs and piston rings." Then the surgeons begin removing what we are not supposed to have, and the specialists in internal medicine begin filling us with vitamins and other things which we are supposed to have. Last of all, the fanciest specialist of the lot goes to work on us—the psychiatrist. He tunes up our motor.

After it is all over, we find we cannot get going any better than before, and the reason is th there is no gasoline in the tank— no money in the bank, no gasolin in the tank.

Religion is power. It's gasolin in the tank. The promise of Jesu to His disciples when He left the was: "Ye shall have power."

Briefly stated the position o the Christian church is that th fundamental problems of life can not be settled apart from religiou faith. Surgery, medication, psy chiatric treatment play an impor ant part in modern life. We ma need new equipment and a tune up of our motor, but above every thing else we need gasoline in th tank before we can get going. Re ligion is power.

Prime Minister Welcomed At St. Catharines

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 27—Prime Minister St. Laurent believes that United Nations forces in Korea are speaking a language aggressor powers can understand.

Freedom-loving nations, he said yesterday during a series of speeches on his first official visit to this city in the Niagara peninsula, are telling the aggressor that "this time we are sticking together."

As a result, the prospects of averting a third world war were brighter than they had been for some considerable time.

Mr. St. Laurent left today for Toronto where he will receive an honorary degree from University of Toronto. Saturday, he will speak in Belleville, Ont., at the unveiling of a monument to Mackenzie Bowell, Canada's fifth prime minister.

During his busy round of activities here, Mr. St. Laurent made seven speeches—four of them to school children of various ages, various schools and various denominations. In all the speeches he used as his theme the advantages of Canadian citizenship and referred to United Nations.

He spoke at city hall, at a gathering of school children in a city park, at a luncheon meeting of elected representatives of the area, at Ridley College, the St. Catharines Collegiate and vocational school, at a township school and at a public meeting sponsored by the board of education.

U.N. Shows Better

His speech to the collegiate students was the first in a series to be delivered by Canadian political leaders in a course on citizenship.

At the public meeting, he said that as a result of its actions in the last three months, the U.N. has shown up better than it had in the first four years of its existence.

He believed there was reason to hope that a third world war would be averted. If a third war did come, he was sure the democracies would win. But he asked his listeners to think of the cost of the last two wars in terms of human life and suffering. Victory was better than defeat, but even victory in modern war was disastrous.

Dealing with domestic matters, he traced the fight of early Canadians for responsible government, and expressed belief that Canada has responsible government in a more responsible fashion than the United States.

E. W. McCready, Outstanding Newsman, Dies

Saint John, N. B., Oct. 27 (CP)—Death came last night, after a long illness, to Ernest W. McCready, 81, who had been outstanding for many years in Canadian and United States newspaper work.

He died in a nursing home at Hammond River, Kings County, where he spent much of his time since ill health forced his retirement in 1929. He is survived by a son, John, of Fredericton. The funeral will be held Saturday, with burial in Fernhill Cemetery.

Mr. McCready became widely known as a New York Herald correspondent in the Spanish-American War. His brilliant war stories included a world "scoop" when the Spanish fleet emerged from Santiago harbor and was destroyed.

He began newspaper work on the Saint John Daily Telegraph, of which his father, J. E. B. McCready, had been editor. After working for the Boston Post and New York Herald, building an enviable reputation, he returned to Saint John in 1902 and held important positions with newspapers which finally merged into the Telegraph - Journal and the Evening Times-Globe.

For 27 years he was associated with the development of the newspapers in his adopted city, and witnessed many transitions in journalism.

Mr. McCready was born in Ottawa. His father, the Dean of Canadian newspaper men and last survivor of the Confederation Press Gallery, died at Charlottetown in 1930.

PICTON

Hunter Brings Down Four Birds With One Shot

Picton— While many hunters find duck hunting poor, Elmer Minaker yesterday brought down four with one shot. He was hunting near South Bay when he noted five ducks on a pond in a field where they had been feeding. They were close together and one shot got four of them. The birds were displayed in town yesterday.

Hunters report ducks scarce on the lakes but many flocks have been seen feeding in fields.

Canada May Take Similar Action on Building

Washington, Oct. 27. (CP)—The United States government Thursday imposed a sweeping ban on all amusement construction to save materials for rearmament and Canada's Trade Minister, C. D. Howe, indicated that the Canadian government would take similar action, if necessary.

The U.S. National production authority forebade, as of midnight last night, the start of construction on 44 types of construction, ranging from football stadia to pool halls.

Howe said that if such controls were necessary in Canada to obtain materials for defence production, the controls would be brought into force. However, the only controls required at the moment were those on nickel which were on a voluntary basis directed by the industry in consultation with the trade department.

English Schoolgirl Publishes Textbook

Gravesend, Kent, England, (CP)—Twelve-year-old Hazel Salter, a pig-tailed schoolgirl, has written a school text book which has been accepted by a publishing firm. Young Miss Salter thought that children's alphabets and counting books were "dull", so she decided to write her own. She has been writing stories and poetry for quite a while, but this is the first time her work has been accepted.

Talented Hazel also shared first prize for a piece of music with lyrics which she composed for a contest arranged by the Gravesend Council's Entertainment committee. The other half of the prize went to a married woman.

FOUR KILLED

La Palmas, Conary Islands, Oct. 27 (Reuters)—Four people were killed and several injured here yesterday when a balcony collapsed into a crowd watching a parade to honor the arrival of Generalissimo Franco. He arrived aboard the 10,000-ton cruiser Canaries, with an escort of three light cruisers and five destroyers, after touring Spanish possessions in West Africa.

Five Arrested After Wildcat Strike at Plant

Montreal, Oct. 27—(CP)—Five men were arrested last night when about 250 employees of the Hochelaga plant of the Dominion Textile Company staged a 30-minute wildcat strike.

One of the men was identified as Paul Croteau, an organizer of the United Textile Workers (A.F.L.-T.L.C.). Police declined to name the four others until they are arraigned in court. Police would not say under what charge the men are held.

The strikers delayed entry of the plant's night shift through demonstrations in front of the company's gates.

There was no apparent reason for the strike. One company official said he knew of no cause for it. Madeleine Parent, U.T.W. organizer, said the work-stoppage was not called by the union.

Union and company officials at present are negotiating for a new collective agreement.

Late last night normal operation of the plant was restored.

Canal Traffic Reaches Record Total in August

Ottawa, Oct. 26. (CP)—Freight passing through Canadian canals reached a record total of 3,681,939 tons in August, an increase of 20 per cent over the August, 1949 tonnage of 3,063,408.

In reporting this Thursday the Bureau of Statistics said that the nine-day rail strike at the end of August "probably contributed to the increased tonnage."

Oil and gasoline, corn, soft coal, iron ore, pulpwood and paper all were moved in greater volume.

Freight tonnage on the Sault Ste. Marie canals—Canadian and United States locks—rose to 16,457,540 tons, an increase of 1,696,261 or 12 per cent over August, 1949. Both eastbound and westbound traffic increased.

On the Welland Ship canal, 1,841,495 tons of freight were moved, 119,825 more than in the corresponding month last year which the St. Lawrence Canals tonnage increased 48 per cent from 978,223 to 1,451,270 tons.

Says Woman Cannot Manage Two Careers

Montreal, (CP) — A woman cannot be a complete success both as a houswife and career-woman. That was the theme of an address by Dr. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., at a recent meeting of the Montreal Business and Professional Women's Club.

"No woman's job and no woman's home can be balanced or subdivided, and each receive a woman's best," Dr. Whitton said. "One or the other is going to be short-changed."

If in the pursuit of her career a woman entrusts the care of her home to another woman, then it remains a house, not a home. Yet it is the "standard of the day" for a woman to be both mother and bread-winner, she said.

Dr. Whitton also spoke on discrimination against women in the business field. She noted that in spite of women's importance in the consumer market, few women could be found on the directorates of banks or corporations which deal with the Canadian market.

There is definite need for women in the business world "for leadership of women," she said.

Club Activities

ENERGETIC CLUB

The Energetic Club held their October meeting in the League room, Holloway Street United Church.

The Worship Service had as its theme "Going to the Father", a beautiful memorial service for Earl Fox was conducted by Rev. S. Larman.

After business, the meeting was turned over to Jean and Bill Townson, group leaders, and the following program, was enjoyed. Dorothy Dobbs gave a lovely piano solo.

The guest speaker was Miss McGary, chief of Victorian Order Nurses at Belleville, who spoke of the Order in an interesting way.

Mr. Cumming also brought an interesting display of Indian relics. The group served refreshments and the meeting closed in the usual way.

Women's Activities

CANNIFTON W.A.

The October dinner meeting was held in Sunday School rooms and was in charge of Mrs. D. Milton, Mrs. Calvert and Mrs. H. Farnham. The rooms were in festive garb, done in Hallowe'en colors and effect with the two long tables done in keeping with the decorations of orange and black crepe paper tablecloths, and orange and black candles as well as vases of orange colored flowers. A delicious fall menu was served to a large number.

At 2.30 the president, Mrs. H. Farnham, opened the meeting after which the reports were read. Mrs. J. Williams had charge of the worship service. The theme being "Thanksgiving." Mrs. B. Bedell read the scripture. A reading was given by Mrs. D. Brenton entitled "Faith" Mrs. F. Furmidge sang a solo, "My Task" accompanied at the piano by Mrs. H. Farnham. All were delighted to have the minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Merrick with them again. He was the pastor a few years back.

After discussing the plans for the bazaar, to be held in November, the meeting closed.

Quilting was the order of the day.

C.G.I.T. Girls Enjoy Meeting In Picton

The meeting of the Belleville presbytery was held in Picton United Church with C.G.I.T. girls from Picton, Trenton, Deseronto, Wellington, and Belleville in attendance, last Saturday.

Registration was held at 10 a.m., and the worship service taken by the Picton group. Reports were read, including that of the Camp Council and an address on "Turkey" by Mrs. A. G. MacLachlan, of Kingston, former American missionary to Smyrna, which was both interesting and educational, following which, a sight-seeing tour of Picton was enjoyed, and later a film, entitled "Kyoto's Story" from Japan, which proved quite interesting.

The Quin-Mo-Lac report was made by Skipper, after which Mrs. Showler led in a sing-song followed by games, during which time the leaders were in conference.

There were also different displays from the C.G.I.T. including handiwork crafts, dressed dolls which are to be sent to two hospitals in Northern Ontario, and a Japanese display, donated by Miss Clazie, a former missionary in Japan. The project this year is "Japan".

Mrs. Reed explained the C.G.I.T. Purpose, and after the singing of "Taps", the meeting was adjourned.

The regular meeting of the C.G.I.T. was held in the Tabernacle United Church on Monday last, with the worship period being in charge of Miss Mabel Chapman, which was followed by a brief business period, in which the coming bazaar was discussed.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W.I.

The October meeting of Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Lorne Reid.

The president opened the meeting in the usual manner with 14 members answering the roll call with a "Home Remedy".

During a short business period. It was decided to make baby clothes and collect clothing for overseas.

Mrs. Demille and Mrs. Finkle were chosen as "Area Convention" delegates.

Plans were made and committees chosen for Hallowe'en party to be held in the school house.

After a period of singing the program, conducted by Mrs. Bleecker, followed: a reading, "Autumn Glory" by Mrs. Harry Reid; Mrs. Demille favored with a helpful talk about "Polio". Mrs. Bleecker gave a reading "Breakfast, Road of Health"; Mrs. Osterhout, also a reading, "Today is Your Life".

Dainty refreshments were served and all enjoyed a social half hour.

Queen Victoria H.&S. Holds Annual Card Party

Mrs. J. R. Futcher

The annual area convention of the Women's Institutes of the combined districts of Hastings, Prince Edward, and Northumberland, which will be held on Wednesday and Thursday of next week in the Collegiate Auditorium will have as guest speaker Mrs. J. R. Futcher of St. Thomas, Ontario, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. Mrs. Futcher, whose colorful accounts of her trip to Copenhagen, Denmark, have appeared in the columns of this paper, will tell in detail of the beauties of the Old World, and of meeting with the representatives of the 66 countries who met for the world conference of the Associated Countrywomen of the world.

Miss Anna P. Lewis, director of the Women's Institute, will be showing colored slides, and representatives of the area district will bring interesting reports of their activities during the year. There will be assembly singing, and a happy "camaraderie" bearing out the name, "The Friendly Convention," with its theme of "Going on Growing."

Miss C. Williston Addresses Girls' Rally on "Lives"

Last Tuesday a rally was held in St. Thomas' Parish House of the Girls' Auxiliaries of the three Deaneries of Hastings, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington, with girls present from Amherst Island, Chrict Church, Belleville, Marmora, Tweed, Picton, Trenton, St. Thomas', Belleville, accompanied by their leaders and their rectors. The Rally took the form of a pot-luck supper, and 85 guests sat down at the tastefully arranged tables.

Miss Vivian Fuller, of Trenton, was the chairman of the evening. After grace was sung the members repeated together the G.A. prayer. Archdeacon Smith welcomed the guests and also led in a sing-song which was accompanied by Mrs. Calvert.

The toast to "The King" was followed by a toast to the "Woman's Auxiliary". This was proposed by Miss Shirley Steenburg, of Trenton, and was replied to by Mrs. Leroy Boyd of Kingston, the Diocesan president of the W.A.

Mrs. Boyd impressed upon the girls that they are part of a large organization. stretching across the Dominion from coast to coast, and made up of thousands of members of all ages.

A toast to the Girls' Auxiliary, proposed by a member from Marmora, was replied to by Miss Kay Neilson of Amherst Island.

Guest Speaker

Miss Sheila Kells, of St. Thomas', Belleville, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Constance Williston, who is the Girls' secretary for the Dominion of Canada.

Miss Williston gave a splendid address basing her talk on the study of "lives", "those necessary for a well-balanced life, and those which can best be omitted, such as lives of prejudice; jealousy and intolerance."

Miss Williston was suitably thanked by a member from Christ Church, Belleville.

Mrs. Platt, of Kingston, the Diocesan Girls' leader spoke to the girls on "Service".

The thanks of the guests were expressed by Miss Faith Swayne, of Picton, on behalf of all those present.

Moving pictures, both Missionary and otherwise were shown and the program closed with square dancing led by Miss Williston.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson was in charge of all arrangements and was ably assisted by the leaders of St. Thomas' G.A., Mrs. B. Feather, Mrs. L. McBride, and Miss Florence Bate.

The Experts Say . .

Shape of Your Foot Should Decide the Shoe

By KAY REX

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 27—(CP)—Just as the shape of your face should determine the style of hat you wear, so the shape of your foot should decide the shoe.

And take it from the people who know — The Shoe Manufacturers Association of Canada— milady should know her foot type when she goes shopping for shoes.

A slim foot requires a shoe long in the vamp with high-walled last but a stocky one needs a shoe broad in the vamp.

A high arched foot should have a shoe which fits well across the instep; a combination last—broad in the ball, snug at the heel—is best for a foot low in the arch.

The association also has a few tips on styles. Long slender shoes increase the length illusion of feet and legs whereas short, stubby footwear decreases this illusion.

Wide horizontal lines such as straps give width illusion to ankles and feet; intricate arrangement of cross straps, bold single colors, multicolors, ornamentations and contrasting textures centre attraction on the feet.

If she wants to appear taller, the short person should stay away from light-colored shoes. They lessen the illusory height of the figure.

On the other hand, opera and V-throat pumps give length to the foot and figure.

The girl with big feet will find they appear smaller when she wears a full skirt. Pronounced colour contrast between shoes and costume make the feet seem larger and the figure shorter.

Ever try dressing up an old garment with new buttons? It's one of womankind's oldest tricks for brightening a wardrobe. A row of tiny pearl buttons will emphasize a garment to the skies. Flattery is made by a large jeweled button strategically placed.

Christmas may seem a long way off, but it's never too soon to begin present-making. The housewife who's handy with her needle should find plenty of gift suggestions between the pages of her favorite knitting book.

A doll, complete with hand-knitted wardrobe, would be an ideal present for one's favorite niece—and easy-to-make too.

Socks are always welcomed by a young nephew. He would feel particularly proud if they were diamond socks "just like dad's." These could be easily made from left over wool arranged in a suitable color scheme.

CROFTON

Crofton—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray, Bill and Gordon, of Deseronto spent Saturday afternoon and evening with their mother and sister, Mrs W.J. Gray, Mrs. Leo Lefort and Mr. Lefort and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doolittle and Adriene of Belleville spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Crook.,

Glad to report Mrs. B. Jones much better after being quite ill all week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Luke returned home on Friday after a motor trip through the States.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Eley and Beverley of Ameliasburg were Sunday guests of their mother, Mrs. Eley, Mr. Hutchins and Albert.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's Church Bayside, Observes 109th Anniversary

White's District — White's Church, Bayside, observed its 109th anniversary last Sunday, with many visitors from the surrounding districts . The front of the church was tastefully decorated for the occasion with baskets of autumn flowers. English ivy, flowering maple, begonias, geraniums, and large desert cacti.

The Rev. William Lloyd, B.A., of Smithfield, took the services. In the morning he chose as his text, "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God", from Micah, Chapter 6:8.

The choir rendered "The Road of the Lonely Heart" in parts as an anthem, and Mrs. Kilpatrick, of Belleville, sang as a solo, "The Holy City", accompanied by Mrs. Floyd Dudley. Mrs. W. A. Jeffrey was pianist for the service opening with quiet music. The music, singing and fine sermon produced an atmosphere of well-being and profound devotion.

Evening Service

For the evening service, Mr. Lloyd chose as his text, "Honor all men, love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the King", from 1 Peter 2:17. He gave the congregation a fine message to carry away with them. The large choir assisted by members of Colborne choir, added much to the enjoyment of the service. They rendered as an anthem "I Love to Tell the Story", with Mrs. Lord taking the duet part assisted by Mrs. Irvine, of Colborne.

Mrs. Frank Sandercock was the pianist for the service opening with quiet music. The Misses Jeanne Arkles and Shirley Irvine, of Colborne, sang "Come Holy Spirit", as a duet, and with Mr. Allan Redner and Mr. Glen Irvine, of Colborne, formed a quartet to render. "Fairest Lord Jesus". Mrs. Irvine, of Colborne, was their accompanist.

At the conclusion of the service, the members of the choir were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord.

SHANNONVILLE

Home & School Assoc. Holds Public Speaking Contest

Shannonville—The Home and School Association met on Monday last in the school room with president, Mrs. Arthur Kilburn presiding.

The treasurer, Mr. Walter Brant, gave a satisfactory report. He was given permission to purchase chains for the swings. The date of the bazaar was changed from Dec. 2nd to Dec. 8th. Plans were made for a Hallowe'en party to be held on October 31st. The membership and Card Convener had sent out one sympathy card and reported three new members. The next euchre party is to be held at the home of the vice-president, Jerry Dafoe, on November 10th.

Public Speaking Contestants

Mrs. Bert Spencer invited the serving group to her home for their next sewing. The November meeting will be open night for teachers and parents. The president then welcomed the teachers, parents and children, and the meeting was given over to the public speaking contest with the following contestants competing: Juniors—Shirley Green, Margaret Lewis, Donna Mondeville, Peter Caldwell, Billy Brant, Clare Brant, Norman Maracle, Earl Spencer, Ruth Angevine, Barbara Caldwell.

Seniors—Shirley Brant, Jeanine Mondeville and Roger Hill

Those who won first and second were given silver dollars, these were awarded to: Juniors—Barbara Caldwell and Clare Brant; Seniors—Jeanine Mondeville and Roger Hill. The two youngest contestants, Peter Caldwell and Billy Brant received 50 cent pieces.

The judges were Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, Mrs. Irene Raney and Miss Eliza Bell. Mrs. Phillips thanked all those who in any way helped to make the evening a success.

Community singing was enjoyed by all, after which delightful refreshments were served by the convener and her assistants.

CONSECON

Bowerman's W.A.

Consecon — Bowerman's W.A. October meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Maxwell, and Mrs. Claude Maxwell with the president, Mrs. Ferguson in the chair.

Mrs. Ferguson gave the scripture lesson and devotional. Nine members and 11 visitors were welcomed. Collection for the day amounted to $9.70. Plants sold brought in $2.40.

It was decided to hold the anniversary service November 12th at Bowerman's Church and the following Wednesday night, November 15th, an anniversary supper to be served at the Orange Hall, Allisonville. Plans were made for this supper and a date set for a bazaar Dec. 6th.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and their assistants. The November meeting will be at Mrs. Broadbridge's

GOOD MANNERS

By [illegible]KMAN

Lieutenant [illegible] on formal weddi[illegible]vitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance is a lieutenant in the army (not reserve). What is the correct way of engraving his name on our wedding invitations and announcements?—Vera H.

There are two correct ways of engraving an army officer's name on wedding invitations and announcements. The first is:

George Alan Clark
Lieutenant, United States Army

Also correct is:

Lieutenant George Alan Clark
United States Army

(The first form is the one usually chosen nowadays. "Mr." is now usually omitted before the name. And it is not correct to use abbreviations.)

Proper for "mere member" to wear a corsage?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other day a group of us who belong to the same organization were discussing whether or not it is proper for a member of the organization to wear a corsage to a dinner where the guests of honor wear corsages sent to them by the organization. In other words, when the corsages worn by the guests of honor would signify that they are the guests of honor.—Myra L.

This is very often a problem, particularly to women who especially enjoy wearing a corsage, feel that a corsage is a natural addition to their costume, or a festive accessory. At the organization's dinner it is proper for a "mere member" to wear a corsage, if she wishes it. . . .but it must definitely be a very simple one, so that it will not compete with the more or less elaborate corsages worn by the guests of honor at the speaker's table.

Bride's mother should not wear black

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married at a 10 o'clock Mass. She and her attendants are to wear ballerina-length illusion dresses and the men in the wedding party are to wear dark blue suit. Since it is not a formal wedding, would it be bad taste for me (bride's mother) to wear a black dress? I have a lovely black dress, and feel well-dressed in it. The dress is black net, full skirt, tight bodice, trimmed in velvet. The style of the dress is very new—it is the color that is my problem.—C. D.

You, the bride's mother, should not wear a black dress. It is not the type of wedding that establishes this rule, but the fact that we do not associate black with weddings, particularly for the hostess of this festive occasion.

Velvet gowns for attendants at January wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be proper for bridesmaids to wear pastel velvet gowns [illegible] a January wedding?—A. B. [illegible]es.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking ?

Some apples have integrity. Some go to pieces. Good greenings, for instance, will hold their shape and remain in slices after they have been cooked.

Other kinds of apples like McIntosh disintegrate when cooked, and turn into sauce. While McIntosh are delicate and tender, they also have a delightful tartness and sweetness which is not found in many other varieties.

If you use McIntosh for making apple pies, it is a good idea to make a lattice top crust rather than a closed one. This permits steam to escape during baking and keeps the apples from becoming too mushy.

Fried apple pies are dumplings made with a biscuit dough and then fried in deep fat until brown. The edges of the dumplings must be firmly sealed or they will break open in the intense heat.

Since fried apple pies are cooked only 4 to 5 minutes, tender McIntosh apples are the best kind to use as they will quickly become soft.

When cutting apples for pastry, place the pieces in a bowl of cold water to prevent discoloration.

Fried Apple Pies—Serves 8.

Measure 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour. Sift flour with 1-4 cup sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt.

Add 1-3 cup vegetable shortening at room temperature. Cut in shortening with two knives or a pastry blender until pieces of shortening are the size of rice grains.

Stir in 3-4 cup milk using only enough to form dough into a single mass that follows fork around bowl. Knead dough about 20 strokes. Roll out dough on well floured board to 1-8 inch thickness. Cut dough into 8 circles about 4 inches in diameter.

On each circle put 2 tablespoons chopped fresh apples and 1 teaspoon sugar. Sprinkle with cinnamon.

Moisten edges of dough with water. Press firmly together to form half circles.

Fry in deep fat heated to 370 degrees, 4 to 5 minutes or until brown. When cool, sprinkle with powdered sugar.

BEAUTY

Tinting the eyelids

Commercial blushes and the lipstick do a color duet. The eyes and the lid shadows do a sister act. The colors need not be the same, but they must harmonize. When lid pigment appears on feminine facial scenery, the blush must disappear or do a discreet fade-away; lipstick must not be vivid. The facial canvas can carry just so much coloring and no more, if it is to appear delicate and glamorous. Powder, of course, forms the background. It should be used neatly, be a shade darker than the skin to give it character and a velvety surface.

Eye shadows impart a come-hither look.

When you go on a pilgrimage to a cosmetic counter, consider eye shadows if you have never used them. Many women fear that they are tricky, that they do not know just how to apply them. Once you get the habit you'll find that they are intriguing, that they "do something". They impart the mysterious, come-hither look. If you have a way of dashing on the high lights without due regard for blending, you had better pass them by. They are not for you. Mend your ways and you can indulge yourself in this trickiest of all complexion decorations.

It may interest you to examine some of the metallic shadows that are worn by exotic-looking lovelies who like to march in the front ranks of the fashion parade. As one would surmise, they are worn only on the grand occasions when one flaunts exquisite and expensive dry goods. They come in powder form, are usually used in conjunction with some color.

A blue shadow, guaranteed to transform any pretty blonde into a Helen of Troy to break men's hearts—they aren't launching ships these days—can be combined with a silvery substance that imparts a ravishing glitter that is supposed to make the eyes look dewy.

Bronze powder added to brown shadows gives them a little more life and color. Neither one must be dark. This combination is said to be the good-looks dish of the red-headed girl, though green shadows also have a way of accenting the flaming thatch.

Mauve shadows are the happy choice of the woman whose hair is white, whose skin is delicate and transparent. When they are worn, a mauve powder completes the make-up picture. No rouge is used; the lipstick is a natural tint.

For women who shun lid pigment, there is an excellent substitute; they should pass the rouge pad over their lids and touch the flesh at the temples.

SUFFERS BROKEN JAW

Windsor, Oct. 26 — (CP) — Arthur Hale, believed to be a Detroit man, is in hospital here with a broken jaw today following a brawl in a Windsor house early today.

Police said they are holding two men for questioning after finding cases of beer and liquor on the premises. Hale had lost all his money when police arrived, officials said.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Who wants a sponge for a boy friend?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and in love with a young man of 25. We went together for about six months and then, for no reason at all, he suddenly stopped coming around. I know he did care for me, but lately he has been going with a girl who pays for everything he buys. My friends tell me that is the only reason he goes with her.

I hope you can give me some advice on how to win him back. I know I should forget him and find someone else, but I can't enjoy myself going out with any other men.

D.B.

Dear D. L.:

What you really believe you should do, and what you really want to do, are two completely different things, aren't they? But which do you honestly think would be smarter in the end?

It certainly doesn't show this young man up in a very good light for him to leave you to sponge off another girl. Can you really respect a chap who would let a girl spend money on him all the time? Would he be the kind of man you could depend on? It certainly doesn't sound as though he would make any girl a very thoughtful and considerate husband.

I'm quite sure you can do better than this, and if you really want my advice, it is for you to look elsewhere for romance.

Don't show a tease you care

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend goes with a very nice boy. Lately he has been necking with her girl friends in front of her, just for fun. At first she didn't think anything about it, but now she things it is going too far.

How can she tell him about it without his thinking she is jealous?

K.

Dear K.:

Tell your girl friend—or is it really your own problem?—that she'd be very foolish to let this boy think she cares what he does. If he is doing it just to tease her, why should she give him the satisfaction of showing him that he has succeeded in getting a rise out of her? He's much more likely to stop his clowning of she pays no attention.

Club Activities

BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH Y.P.U.

A brief sing-song opened the weekly meeting. The business meeting which followed was not so brief, but amongst other accomplishments, a Hallowe'en party was planned. Jim Bailey, as recreation convener, is to head a committee for planning it.

Mrs. McLachlin, of the Children's Aid Society, gave an informative and interesting talk about her work and the challenge that if some parentless child could be helped in any way, it would be indeed a Christian Act.

Mrs. McLachlin mentioned the stigma of the word 'Shelter,' and said that there was discrimination against these children, which should not be in this country.

Miss Eunice Cooney, convener for the evening moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. McLachlin.

Miss Beatrice Snider served refreshments and 'Taps' closed the meeting.

Fashion Flashes

JUST THE THING for a youthful dress is a two-piece design of middy top and knife-pleated skirt, both in dark blue wool jersey.

DISTINGUISHED coats abound this season. Black woollen for a tubular, slim, full-length coat with a collar that curves high about the throat. One sleeve is embellished with an enormous cuff of black fox.

SIDESWEPT lines dominate many of the newest designs. Black velvet for a handsome dinner gown, the snug bodice with deep U neckline and moderately wide, curved shoulder straps. At one hip, triple godets of fine black lace merge into a rippling side cascade to the hem, where it borders the deep slit and form a flounce.

THE NEAT NOTE is the theme of much of the newest millinery, be it budget or French room. Snug, but high, is a peak-crowned, profile cuff turban in sea-green velour. The narrow, close brim swings low to a point, and the back brim turns up at the same side and is caught by a rhinestone and jewelled button.

WE'VE BEEN MISSING the fox-trimmed casual or travel coat, so it's nice to see this favorite old fashion well to the fore again. Cream-colored wool fleece for a full three-quarter length topper with pale beige fox for the big cushion collar that works to a point in back to complement the V-shaped, welt-seamed yoke. The collar, in front, wings out to rippling tuxedo stoles. Slit pockets and push-up sleeves.

ATTRACTIVE coats of black Alaska seal are in brisk demand, say furriers. A full-length coat, on wrappy lines, has a deep, puffy, cushioned collar, and cape-like sleeves that are held by big fur-covered buttons.

Regional Meeting of C.W.L. Held at St. Michael's Academy

On Sunday last in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy the first regional meeting of the [illegible] was held by the Catholic Women's League of Canada. Representatives from the following sub-divisions were present, Batawa, Belleville, Picton, Trenton, Tweed, Marmora, Madoc, Read, Stirling, Deseronto and Napanee. It was a record meeting.

On arrival the guests were greeted by Mrs. D. V. Doyle, president, and Mrs. J. E. Boyd, 1st vice president of Belleville sub-division.

On the platform were the Diocesan president, Mrs. M. F. McGlade, of Smiths Falls; the hostess- president of Belleville sub-division, Mrs. D. V. Doyle; Mrs. Frank Barry, convener of regional meetings and chairman from Trenton; Mrs. James Black, Marmora, convener of Social and Child Welfare; Mrs. Wilfrid Lesage, Tweed, convener of "Our Lady's Missionaries"; and Mrs. C. J. Brennan, convener of Finance, from Deseronto.

Mrs. D. V. Doyle opened the meeting with the League prayer followed by the singing of "O Canada". After welcoming the guests most warmly Mrs. Doyle turned the meeting over to the chairman, Mrs. F. Barry. Little Miss Donna Doran then shyly and sweetly presented a beautiful bouquet of red roses to the Diocesan president, Mrs. McGlade, and corsages to the others present on the platform.

Prayers Offered for Departed

The chairman then called on Mrs. M. F. McGlade to address the meeting and her first remarks were expressions of sympathy from the Diocesan executive at the great loss the parish of St. Michael Archangel and Belleville sub-divisions of C.W.L. had sustained in the death of the beloved pastor, the late Rt. Reverend Monsignor J. F. Nicholson. Also at the loss of a valued League member, the Immediate Past President, Miss Margaret McAvoy, who is so keenly missed as publicity and magazine convener of the Diocesan executive. Mrs. McGlade recounted how Miss McAvoy had brought the magazine circulation up to its present high standard and had spared no effort in executing her office on the Diocesan executive. A further loss in the death of another Past Sub-division and Diocesan president is felt in the passing of Miss Helena M. Lynch. The assembly stood and offered a prayer for the repose of their departed souls.

Mrs. McGlade observed that this, the first regional meeting of the Catholic Women's League of Canada in the Archdiocese of Kingston in Holy Year, was being held on Mission Sunday, in the month of the Holy Rosary and on the approach of the definition of the dogma of the Assumption. Mrs. McGlade continued, that before the year is over, in fact on November 12th., the Holy Father would announce a beatification of another Canadian, Venerable Marguerite Bourgeoys, founder of the Convent Notre Dame and she should henceforth be called "Blessed" Marguerite Bourgeoys.

Mrs. McGlade had only shortly returned from the national convention of the C.W.L. held in Halifax, N.S., and had a fund of information to impart, however, she advised she would only give the highlights, as time would not permit her to go into detail. Also her report would include highlights of the provincial convention held in Kingston in September. One of these was the resolution to establish a bursary of $15,000 the income of which would be used for scholarships for the higher education of young girls. $400 was subscribed from the convention floor. Mrs. McGlade outlined the proper procedure and form of making sub-division reports to Diocesan and National Councils. She stressed the importance of giving correct names, initials and addresses and in cases of the clergy, the correct titles.

Named to Vacancy

She informed members that the sub-division president, Mrs. D. V. Doyle, has been appointed to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Miss Margaret McAvoy, as publicity and magazine convener on the Diocesan executive.

Of the $5,260 subscribed from the league sub-divisions across Canada, for the support of "Our Lady's Missionaries", the province of Ontario sub-divisions had contributed $4,000.

Mrs. McGlade dealt briefly with the method of presenting resolutions and the channels through which they go before they are finally approved and put into effect.

Going on to the national convention, Mrs. McGlade told how systematically the trains and buses were met in Halifax and the delegates identified by the league pins and transported to their billets. Those delegates from British Columbia and Alberta were much taken with the beautiful foliage of the trees just turning color from the first touches of frost and as they continued down to the Maritimes were impressed with the grandeur of the scenery. The hostess president of Provincial Council of Nova Scotia, Miss Marguerite Burns had planned a well rounded program, both social and instructional. One of the social highlights was a tea at the residence of the Premier of Nova Scotia, Honorable Angus Macdonald. Among the noted guests at the convention were the Premier of Nova Scotia, Mayor of Halifax, Minister of Health of Nova Scotia, French Ambassador and his wife.

Medal Conferred

The most dramatic moment of the convention was when His Grace, Archbishop McNally, announced the conferring of the medal Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice, the highest honor that is conferred on a lay person by the Pope. Everyone wondered who it could be who would receive it. The Archbishop had been to Rome and he said, "I told the Holy Father about you—about all of you, but particularly about one. About the good works she has done so humbly and with such simplicity." Then he called her name, "Mrs. Rose Neville O'Neill", and just as she had worked and lived, with great simplicity and humility, she accepted this medal of honor conferred on her by the Holy Father, Pope Pius XII.

The National Council asked that the members of the League pray more; if just once a day all 60,000 members of the Catholic Women's League of Canada said the little ejaculation so dear to Saint Theresa, "Oh my God I Love Thee", how pleasing it would be to God.

Mrs. McGlade went on to explain how in each province the work of the league differs. The largest convenership in province of Nova Scotia is immigration. Last year through the port of Halifax 44,000 immigrants passed. 14,000 of this number were Roman Catholics and each one was met by the Sisters of Service. On arrival they are handed a rosary, holy card and medal and the Sisters of Service remain with them until they are screened and allowed to pass through the sheds. They are given food and any necessities they may require to see them to their destination.

Asked Not to Forget

Mrs. McGlade entreated the members not to forget the Sisters of Service and the wonderful work they are doing. To make donations to them as generous as possible. Sister Gillis, who comes from the 10th province, Newfoundland, is in charge of the Sisters of Service in Halifax and with her assistant, Sister Delasca, who speaks seven languages, carries on this great work with Catholic immigrants. She cautions all to keep in touch with them for fear of losing them.

From the National Convention comes the news that the Archdiocese of Kingston is 100 per cent organized: it is the only diocese that is 100 per cent organized in Canada.

Much of the credit of this is due the Diocesan president, Mrs. M. F. McGlade, who works tirelessly to keep this diocese organized. It pleased her immeasurably to see four members from the tiny sub-division of Batawa present at this meeting as it was feared they would not be able to continue when their president, Mrs. Dean moved from there. The population at Batawa is almost entirely Czech and Yugoslav with only a handful of English speaking people to lead them in league work.

Touched on Work

Mrs. McGlade touched on the work the league is doing regarding Girl Guides. This is a comparatively young convenership but is steadily being embraced by sub-divisions across Canada.

She said that the Reverend Sisters are honorary members.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. McGlade by Mrs. J. E. Boyd, 1st vice president of Belleville sub-division.

At this point in the meeting Miss Carolyn Forhan sang most delightfully, "My Sweet Little Alice Blue Gown" and as an encore, "Smilin' Thru". She was accompanied by Reverend Sister Bibiana.

Mrs. Wilfrid Lesage, of Tweed, convener of "Our Lady's Missionaries", read a paper which described in detail "Immaculata House", which is at present the headquarters of "Our Lady's Missionaries". This society was founded by Reverend Daniel MacDonald who saw the need for young Canadian Catholic women in the missionary field. At present there are ten at Immaculata House. It is desirable that "Our Lady's Missionaries" become located in another city, near a university and a hospital as these Sisters must be skilled teachers and nurses.

Of the $4,000 donated to "Our Lady's Missionaries" from Ontario, $557, was from Diocese of Kingston. London diocese was 1st, Ottawa, 2nd, and Kingston, 3rd.

Mrs. Leo Callaghan, 2nd vice president, Belleville sub-division, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Lesage for her splendid paper.

Financial Report

Next to be heard from was Mrs. C. J. Brennan, Deseronto, past diocesan treasurer, and to quote Mrs. Brennan, "present minister of finance". She spoke of the $15,000 bursary that has been established. She asked the members not to forget the diocesan scholarship to Regiopolis College and Notre Dame Convent. Contributions from sub-divisions are voluntary. Each scholarship is $100 and the Diocesan Council sometimes find it very difficult obtaining this money. She outlined in detail the procedure of making remittances from sub-divisions and any sub-division treasurers who were present benefited by her remarks.

A vote of thanks was proposed by Mrs. B. E. Burley, treasurer of Belleville sub-division, for this very informative talk from Mrs. Brennan.

Rt. Reverend L. J. Byrne, D.P., D.D., Ph.D., and Diocesan director of C.W.L., very kindly entertained the meeting with motion pictures in color of his trip abroad this year. The pictures of the Holy City were most interesting and it was most pleasing to see Reverend John Carley, who left Belleville, in 1949 to study in Rome, in this film taken in Italy. It also showed the Fatima, Lisbon, Belgium, Holland, Ireland, etc., and ended as the ship sailed up the beautiful St. Lawrence. Monsignor Byrne's comments at intervals as the pictures unreeled were most amusing and humorous.

Thanked For Film

Mrs. E. D. Finkle, 3rd vice president, Belleville sub-division, moved a vote of thanks to Monsignor Byrne for his kindness in bringing this fine film.

Reverend G. O'Hearn, P.P., of Stirling, Rt. Reverend L. J. Byrne, D.P., D.D., Ph.D., of St. John's parish, Kingston, with Very Reverend Dean L. B. Garvin, Belleville, were present in the assembly.

Mrs. G. Donoghue acted as secretary for this meeting, being record-secretary Belleville sub-division while Mrs. B. E. Burley, treasurer and publicity convener, Belleville sub-division, recorded it for the press.

A pleasant hour of warm hospitality followed this interesting meeting, with the ladies from the different sub-divisions renewing acquaintances over a cup of tea.

The hospitality committee of Belleville sub-division, Mrs. E. Logan, Mrs. J. Boyle and Mrs. J. Cowan, had prepared a most delightful tea.

The tea table was beautifully appointed. The silver centre bowl of white 'mums and red salvia, was flanked on either side by triple silver candelabra holding red and white candles over a handsome lace cloth.

Presiding at the silver services were, Mrs. J. E. Boyd and Mrs. E. D. Finkle. Members of the executive served and they included, Mrs. B. E. Burley, Mrs. G. Donoghue, Mrs. T. J. Flurey, Mrs. W. J. Rupert, Mrs. A. Whalen, Mrs. F. Cowan, Mrs. F. Collyer, Mrs. Jos. O'Connor, Mrs. A. Black Assisting in replenishing were, Mrs. Leo Callaghan, Mrs. T. O. Morrell, Mrs. J. Vinkle, Mrs. L. Quinn, Mrs. F. Cunningham, and Mrs. Alan Meagher.

RAWDON

McFarland Company Completes Nine Miles of Road

Rawdon—The McFarland Construction Company have completed the nine mile stretch of road from the town line between Rawdon and Seymour down to Stirling. The majority of the gravel trucks finished their work Thursday last while the rest of the machinery was moved away on Saturday.

The big crane spent a couple of days raising the heavy stone to a truck after which the stones were carted to a nearby marsh. The one building at Anson was moved on the float Saturday while the other building was dismantled and moved by truck on Monday.

Just recently the road was given a coating of chloride to keep down the dust. Everyone hopes this stretch of road will soon be paved.

HALLOWAY

Halloway — Mrs. Peter McInroy of West Huntingdon, visited at the homes of the Messrs. Blake and Kenneth McMullen recently.

Sympathy of the community is extended to the family of the late John Townsend.

Miss Bessie Spencer has returned home after an extended visit to the west coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holden, to the plowing match at Alliston last week, and also spent a couple of days in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Roth and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Colman Townsend, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McMullen spent Sunday in Lindsay.

On Wednesday evening of last week, Mr. Fred Bunting, of Bowmanville, showed ppictures at the Church. He is a representative for the H. C. Downham Nurseries and his slides were interesting. Mrs. Grant of West Huntingdon was guest soloist, after the program refreshments yere served by the ladies of the W.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison and Mrs. Arthur Wilson were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herb. Townsend on Sunday.

Mr. Norman Snider, of Western Ontario spent a few days recently at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bateman and Mr. and Mrs. Don Bateman of Springbrook, on Sunday.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

We Furnish The Markets

By ROY L. SMITH

A certain business man in one city, a little more candid than most of those engaged in his line, put up a sign over his establishment bearing the words,

We Furnish The Public
With What It Wants

This was a frank declaration of a simple fact. Every individual creates a market for something, good or bad.

It is the lewd and licentious who create the market for the salacious and obscene. It is the pure in heart who create the market for the splendid and the beautiful. Without the lewd who are willing to pay for lewdness a considerable part of our current entertainment would collapse. If the constructive and the creative could have a more adequate support it could displace the vicious and the indecent.

Sex O'Clock

Someone said a few years ago that it was just about sex o'clock on the American stage. Certainly it is past sex o'clock in contemporary fiction.

Official government censorship is not the cure. Indecency and obscenity are not as simple as that. You will always have the bawdy and the bestial as long as the lewd and the low are willing to furnish the market. Every man who buys a dirty piece of fiction or admission to a dirty play because it is dirty is helping perpetuate dirt and protect it from the law.

> The Sunday School lesson for Oct. 29: "Growing Through Reading and Meditation," Acts 17:10-15; Philippians 4:8-9; I Timothy 4:12-16; II Timothy 2:15; 4:13.

The vicious and the perverted are a part of life of course. But so are the lame, the halt, the diseased, and the deformed. But who would furnish the latter as entertainers for the public, or who would portray a monstrosity as though he were noble? Yet that is what good people do when they buy the fiction which exalts the abnormal and glorifies the guady and the debauched.

Scientific Scripture

Long before even the psychologists had ever heard of psychology, a New Testament writer enunciated a good and dependable psychological law. "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report," he said, "think on these things."

Thoughts are things that affect our sanity, our peace of mind, our physical structure and organization and our spiritual states. Upon this fundamental principle the psychologists agree, no matter what their disagreements may be in other matters.

Just as the food we take into our stomach can make or break us, so the thoughts we allow to dwell in our minds will make or break us.

In all the New Testament there is no word of Jesus concerning how to live which has been shown by science to be either inaccurate or mistaken. There is no more scientific piece of literature known to man.

The New Vocabulary

Psychologists, psychiatrists, counsellors, and mental scientists have made current an entirely new vocabulary, and have given sin a variety of new names, but wise teachers of good religion have been well acquainted with the sinners through many hundreds of years.

The new healer talks about complexes, inhibitions, neuroses, and maladjustments. The old time preacher talked about grudges, hatreds, doubts, and rebellion and he had the same things in mind.

The psychologist will talk about draining one's mind, and the old time preacher talked about confessing one's sins and trusting in God. Both understood the spiritual malady in about the same way. The psychiatrist talks about orientation and adjustment and the preacher talked about surrendering to God and accepting Christ. Both had the same sins in mind.

Customers of the Good Are Needed

There is a very great need in our world for those who are ready to furnish a market for the good; for those who will show no interest in a scandal but will cross the town to hear good news about some man who is making a tremendous effort to come back.

There is a very great need for those who refuse to laugh at the filthy and the foul, but who will rejoice in the clean and the conscientious.

We need consumers of inspiring books which tell of the triumphs of decency, of the fascinations of the high minded, and the exploits of the courageous and the righteous. There is something more heroic in the sacrifices of a good mother than in the fulminations of a prostitute, however much she may be publicized. A picture that portrays decency deserves an audience of those who love decency.

Every one of us is a customer of something. Something good or something evil could not survive without our patronage.

FROM A LONG LINE OF TREE PLANTERS

One of the many royal traditions in England is that royalty shall plant a tree at Balliol, and if possible smile in public. Both customs were upheld by Princess Margaret, shown smiling enchantingly during her first official visit to Oxford University. She planted a mulberry tree in the garden quandrangle, to keep company with other mulberries planted by predecessors. — Central Press Canadian.

KIDNEY DISORDERS RESPOND TO CHIROPRACTIC

By JULIUS DINTENFASS, *D.C., B.Sc. F.I.C.C.

Julius Dintenfass *Doctor of Chiropractic

A great deal of mystery has existed in the popular mind as to kidney difficulties, and, to one unacquainted with the facts it might seem that the application of Chiropractic for the relief of such disorders is but another addition to the mystery.

The function of the kidney is that of elimination—to filter out and excrete the excess water and waste products from the blood circulation. This function is made possible by the selective action of the cells of the kidney tubules. After the kidney cells remove the harmful substances from the blood the unwanted materials are washed out of the tubules into the pelvis of the kidneys, down the ureters, into the bladder, and then cast off by the act of urination.

It is easy to see that the function of the kidney is dependent upon the integrity and condition of the epithelial cells that line the little tubules with which each kidney is honeycombed. These in turn depend, for their health upon normal nerve impulses. The nerves that supply the kidney, controlling the distribution of blood to the kidney and the excretory function of the organ can be traced to the centre of the spine where any spinal displacement or irritation will interfere with their harmonious action.

The chiropractor is able to determine by modern diagnostic methods when kidney trouble does exist. He is thoroughly trained to remove any interference or disturbance with the vital nerve supply to the kidneys, restoring the normal health of the organ.

This Space is Purchased by the BELLEVILLE CHIROPRACTIC ASSOCIATION in conjunction with the Canadian Association of Chiropractors to promote a thorough understanding of this branch of the Healing Art. For further information consult the yellow pages of your telephone directory for the Chiropractor nearest you.

4TH SIDNEY

Dr. T. Cullen Honors Stone Church With Anniversary Gift

4th Sidney—The 95th anniversary of Stone Church was held on Sunday evening. The church was beautifully decorated with fall flowers for the occasion. Rev. L. Gilbert of Foxboro, was guest speaker and the choir sang "Just to be Thine", and "Behold I Stand at the Door."

A beautifully etched picture of the church was presented to the congregation by Dr. Cullen, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. Dr. Cullen was a child in the parsonage when his father was minister of this circuit in 1872.

PICTON

A large number from Picton journeyed to Napanee on Wednesday afternoon for a meeting of Prince Edward—Lennox Liberal Association in the town hall Napanee. The meeting was called to order with the president of the Association, Gerhard Kavanagh in the chair. The assistant secretary treasurer, Mr. Don Thomas read the minutes of the last meeting. Dr. Gerald Allison took the chair for the election of officers as follows.

Pres. G. Kavanagh of Prince Edward; vice-president Empey of Napanee and Ross Roblin of Ameliasburg; secretary treasurer James Madden of Napanee; assistant secretary treasurer Don Thomas of Picton.

The following were among the delegates chosen to attend the Liberal Convention in Toronto in November when a leader for the Liberal party in Ontario will be chosen: G. Kavanagh, Jas. Madden, Dr. G. Allison, Mrs. McNaughton, Mrs. Empey and Miss N. McDonald.

Members Heard

The newly elected officers each spoke briefly. Don Baxter, MLA, for Prince Edward-Lennox in an address said that the Liberal party was in the minority in the legislature but that they had been able to find chinks in the armor of the Conservatives. One of these chinks was the terrible waste in the cutting of timber on Crown lands. Trees were being cut indiscriminately, some left to rot where they fell, causing a fire hazard he said. Large areas were becoming depleted with no effort towards reforestation, being undertaken. The Kennedy survey into this situation made its report in 1941 but has not been acted on. One could only infer that big timber interests were blocking any change of policy.

Not Worked Out

In parts of Ontario where a changeover was being made from 25 cycles to 60 cycles, the change so far has not worked out to the satisfaction of the home-owners of electrical equipment and was proving costly. Hydro is not supposed to be in politics but every member of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission is a Conservative.

The speaker touched briefly on the vice probe in Windsor saying that much evidence is still to come to light and no statement could yet be made on affairs there, but that the way this affair is conducted one or the other may have a serious effect on the standing of the Conservative party in the House.

He spoke of the lack of control by the Liquor Control Board. Mr. Baxter gave thumb - nail sketches of the men who were in the running for the leadership of the Liberal party in Ontario.

Following the meeting Mrs. McNaughton entertained many of those attending the meeting to tea at her home in Napanee, where a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

"INDISCREET" . . . RETIRED

Second retirement ordered in Windsor, Ont., police force shuffle was that of Deputy Chief W. H. Neale, 53, who had 32 years' service. The order was made by a police commission shakeup aimed at getting "alert and aggressive leadership." The commission said his connection with an equipment company that supplied the police force was "indiscreet," but not prohibited by regulations. — (CP Photo.)

STIRLING

St. Andrew's Church Celebrates 94th Anniversary

Stirling—The congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Stirling, celebrated the 94th anniversary of the founding of the church last Sunday. Rev. A. E. Toombs, of Campbellford, who has spent several years as a missionary in India, was the guest minister for the occasion. Special music by the choir added greatly to the interesting and helpful messages brought by him.

The church was artistically decorated for the occasion with beautiful baskets of chrysanthemums and products of a bountiful harvest. The collections for the day amounted to approximately $1,000.

At the morning service, Mr. Toombs based his remarks on St. Matthew 28:19-20 emphasizing particularly "Go ye therefore and teach all nations."

In his opening remarks, the speaker pointed out that one of the first essentials when thinking of the church's task was "that we see Jesus". Without that essential all work would be in vain. Go ye therefore and teach all nations; is an imperative command from which there is no turning back. Remember that this is Jesus' last will and testament. He always had the intention of saving all people, and if there is failure to carry His message to the heathen people of the world, "their blood will be on our hands," continued the speaker.

Evening Service

In the evening, Mr. Toombs spoke on the prophecy of Nahum and the wicked city of Nineveh, wherein his robberies, witchcraft and filth prevailed.

There was a proverb in India stated the speaker, "If you tell the truth you starve, but if you lie you get food." This proverb had its counterpart in this country where many believed that "if you lie you will make progress, and if you tell the truth you fail." Because God is spoken of as a God of Love many people believed that they could sin as they pleased and all would be well.

But according to the prophet, God is jealous and the Lord revengeth. "The Lord will take vengeance on his adversaries and He reserveth wrath for His enemies. The wisest thing is to retain our friendship with God," concluded the speaker.

Special Music

The musical contribution made to these splendid services by the choir in the morning, included a solo by William Reynolds, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings"; Samuel Liddle, a solo, "Perfect Prayer"; Oley Speaks by Miss Marilyn Eggleton and an anthem, "Hail to the Lord's Anointed", R. Wilson.

At the evening service contributions by the choir included a solo, "Trust in Him", Bertram Hamblen, by Miss Marilyn Eggleton and a solo "By the Waters of Babylon", C. Howell, by William Reynolds.

Mrs. Mabel Williams, organist, and choir leader, presided at the console of the organ throughout both services and rendered "Shepherd's Morning Song", H. Davis, and "Contemplation", Homer Nearing as a prelude and "It Is Well With My Soul", R. Wilson, at the offertory, and "The Son of God Goes Forth", R. M. Stults, as a postlude at the morning service.

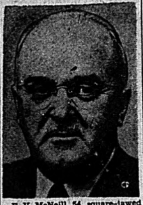
In the evening, she played "Romance Sans Paroles", "Double Chorus", R. Wilson, and "Cantique D'Amour" as a prelude "Traumerei" and "Romanze", Robert Schumann, at the offertory and "Fanfare" as a postlude.

Turkey Dinner

On Monday evening the ladies of the congregation served a turkey dinner in the Sunday School rooms to over 500 persons. The tables were laden with all the good things to eat and were well arranged.

The large crowd was served promptly and with a minimum of confusion. The ladies of St. Andrew's have long been noted for their good cooking and judging from the many fine compliments received on Monday's dinner, their reputation is further enhanced.

POLICE GET NEW BOSS



E. V. McNeill, 54, square-jawed staff inspector of the Ontario Provincial Police, is temporarily chief of police in Windsor, Ont. He replaced Police Chief Claude Renaud, who held the post 15 years and has now been retired by the police commission in a shakeup of the force. — (CP Photo.)

IVANHOE

Rev. B. J. Beckel Speaks at W.M.S. On "Bible Women"

The October meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian WMS was held at the home of Mrs. Alex Fleming on Thursday afternoon and was well attended.

The meeting opened by a poem read by the president. The scripture lesson was read by Miss Sarah Wallace.

It was decided to have a potluck supper November 16th with Mrs. Toombs of Campbellford as guest speaker also to accept an invitation to a bazaar held at White Lake, Nov. 22nd.

Mrs. Milton Shaw, Mrs. Harold Thompson were appointed to bring in a slate of officers for 1951 to the November meeting.

An interesting paper on 'Philip' was given by Mrs. Don Haggerty. A solo with guitar accompaniment was given by Mrs. Milton Shaw and a poem "Do Not Forget to Pray," was read by Mrs. John Hassall. Mrs. Wm. Donnan told of the work on the mission fields in England, Ireland and Scotland.

Guest Speaker

The president extended a warm welcome to Rev. and Mrs. B. J. Beckel and called on Mr. Walker to introduce the guest speaker. Mr. Walker in his remarks spoke of Mr. Beckel's fine Christian heritage.

Mr. Beckel chose for his subject 'Women of the Bible.' He told the story of Ruth, Deborah, Hannah, Mary and Martha, and Mary, the mother of Jesus leading her child and overseeing the lessons to be learned. There is little known about her, but the results of her loving guidance.

The speaker mentioned the outstanding virtues of these Biblical women, Ruth 'fidelity'; Deborah 'Courage'; Hannah, 'Piety'; Mary's willingness to learn and Martha's to work, and ended this fine message on a challenging note as he said it should be the objective of the mothers to produce one son in each generation to become a minister of the church.

An interesting reading 'Road Map' was given by Mrs. John Wright.

Mrs. J. C. Sills moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, who graciously replied. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

GUERRILLA GIRLS ROUNDED UP IN NORTH KOREAN HILLS

A trio of girl guerrillas of the North Korean communist army, are shown happily contemplating life as prisoners of war, after they surrendered to U.N. forces during the advance of the 24th Division. Some of the North Korean girl guerrillas received their training in Manchuria. — Central Press Canadian.

Howe Returns to Canada With Fattest Insurance Policy Canada Has Ever Seen

Washington, Oct. 27 (CP) — He's weary, he's tired, but he has obtained what he wanted.

Clarence Decatur Howe goes home to Ottawa tonight with probably the fattest insurance policy Canada has ever seen.

Canada's Trade Minister doesn't show that he is happy. Outwardly he is still inclined to be crusty and brittle, inclined to brush off questions with a terse "yes" or "no."

But inwardly, Howe, the self-acclaimed "No. 1 optimist,' must be beaming with joy.

The "insurance policy" if the joint Canada - United States agreement on economic co-operation, signed, sealed and delivered in yesterday's State Department ceremony.

It paves the way for the removal of all obstacles obstructing full-blown Canada-United States trade. That will remove some of the hazards of Canada's trade future.

The silver-haired Howe, an American-born engineer who has become a great political force in Canada, did much besides witness the signing while in the American capital.

Talked Two Days

He held enough talks in two days to weary any man, but the important thing was the agreement, which the taciturn Howe has been "pushing" for months.

Just as soon as the signing ceremony was over and as Howe said his "piece" to the movie cameras, he left for a conference.

What these conferences signified he would not say, except that they were "informal talks."

The first was with the American secretary of agriculture, Charles Brannan. Another was held with Roscoe Seybold, U.S. munitions board chairman.

Today he will see commerce secretary Charles Sawyer and Gen. William A. Harrison, administrator of the national production authority. He also will see W. Stuart Symington, his old friend who heads the U.S. national security resources board.

Then he's off to Ottawa, aboard a transport department plane, the "insurance policy" tucked away in his pocket.

Finds 'Terrible Meanness' Was Practised at Home

East Retford, England, Oct. 27 — (Reuters) — Sidney Herbert Clay, six times mayor of this town, amassed a fortune of £125,000 (about $368,000) and left several legacies to charity when he died.

But, said a High Court Judge, he helped build this fortune by "a terrible meanness" at home, where he kept his wife and children on a strict budget while he lived as a man of means.

The judge then increased Clay's £500-a-year-legacy to his widow by £890 a year and a £150 annual legacy to his daughter by £500 yearly.

Clay's 74-year-old widow said last night that her husband "was always smartly dressed when he went out."

"But for the past few years, when he was at home he always changed into his dead brother's clothes, which were much too large for him," she said.

"Whenever he travelled by train, he went first class. The family, on the rare occasions they went anywhere, travelled separately and went third.

"Only once in 50 years could I prevail on him to have the house decorated."

While he "spent money like water outside the home and gave thousands to charities," his family never had enough to live on.

DISCIPLINED FOR BOMBING RUSSIANS

COL. STANTON T. SMITH

Relieved of duty as a disciplinary measure, Col. Stanton T. Smith, Jr., is now identified in a report from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters as commander of the U. S. Air Force group which attacked a Russian airdrome north of the Korean border. The incident of Oct. 8 is described in the report as due to a navigation error and poor judgment on part of the pilots. — Central Press

France Approves Increase in Term Of Compulsory Service

Paris, Oct. 27—(Reuters)—The French National Assembly today approved the government's proposal to increase compulsory military service from 12 to 18 months. Communist deputies voted against the plan.

Under the bill, every fit Frenchman will be available for military service for 28 years—18 months in uniform, three years active reserve, 16 years first reserve and 7½ years second reserve.

Defence Minister Jules Moch has told the assembly that France aims at a standing army of 90,000 men by 1953.

600 Flee Ceremony Of Bell Casting As Metal Spills

St. Florian, Austria, Oct. 27—(Reuters)—Six hundred persons fled to safety yesterday when three tons of molten metal spilled from a mould and flowed toward a stand erected for spectators at a bell-casting ceremony.

The stream of metal spread and set fire to wooden beams supporting the stand. Rescuers working in dense clouds of smoke led the guests out of harm's way. No one was hurt.

The bell, largest cast in Austria since 1711, was intended for St. Stephen's Cathedral in Vienna.

Silviculture Art Must Become More Pratical

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 27 — (CP) — The art of silviculture — care, development and reproduction of timber — must become more practical, the Canadian Society of Forest Engineers was told here today.

B. J. Smith, chairman of the Society's central Ontario region, said he fears Canadian foresters tend to look upon the definition of silviculture as a "textbook one rather than a practical subject."

Some 150 delegates are attending the three-day convention which opened here today.

Mr. Smith said that the farmer who fences his woodlot and prevents cattle from grazing on young trees is practising silviculture "even though he never heard the word."

He suggested logging methods should be altered and cutters educated to the value of assisting young crops.

"Little action has been taken in this regard, though costs are negligible," he said.

Fear Transport Lost With Eight in Lake Poutchartrain

New Orleans, Oct. 27—(AP)—A twin-engine air force transport plane with eight persons aboard was feared lost in Lake Pontchartrain today after it took off in a heavy fog.

The civil aeronautics administration air traffic control tower said it had received a report the plane took off at 2 a.m. CST (4 a.m. EDT) and that shortly thereafter a splach was heard from Lake Pontchartrain.

The tower reported that none of its personnel heard or saw the plane.

However, the navy and coast guard are in the area looking for wreckage.

The heavy fog hampered all attempts at rescue.

CURIOSITY SAVES LIFE

Toronto, Oct. 27 — (CP) — Curiosity of a fellow-tenant was credited today with saving Mrs. Edith Armour, 21, from asphyxiation. R. Weston heard Mrs. Armour's alarm clock ring and when there was no sound of rising went to her room. He found her unconscious from the fumes of a defective gas stove.

Conference Held At Plant Where Scientist Worked

Harwell, England, Oct. 27 — (Reuters)—American and French security agents were reported today to have been called in to talks at the atomic research station here where missing scientist Bruno Pontecorvo worked.

Officials would not confirm suggestions that the meeting behind the station's barbed wire and armed guards is to probe how much information Pontecorvo had carried out of the country.

They would say only that the monthly conference of the atomic energy technical committee, attended by top scientists from Canada, Britain and the United States, is taking place at Harwell the United Kingdom's leading atomic centre

Pontecorvo, 37, a naturalized Briton who once worked at Canada's atomic project at Chalk River, Ont., left in July with his wife and children for a continental vacation. From Rome he flew to Stockholm, Sweden, crossed to Finland, then disappeared.

Favorite, but still unconfirmed, theory is that he and his family now are in Russia.

SMELT RUNNING

Port Stanley, Oct. 27—(CP)—Commercial fishermen thought they knew the habits of fish. But:

Blue pickerel and perch usually run deep at this time of year. Now they're staying near the surface. For the first time in years, smelts are running in the fall. Normally, they're found in nets only in the spring.

SAFE STOLEN

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP) — A safe containing $2,100 in bonds, approximately $50 in cash, and valuable papers, was stolen Thursday night from the office of P. J. Harvey. Thieves gained entry to the building by forcing a window and they made their getaway in a stolen car, owned by A. C. Fraser of Wellington Street which was parked near the window through which it is believed the 250 pound safe was taken out.

Did UK Women Put on Weight Under Austerity

London, Oct. 27—CP—A mass measurement survey is under way to determine whether British women really have put on weight during 11 years of austerity.

One in every 100 women from Land's End to John O'Groats will be measured for Britain's first "figure chart" snce pre-war days. Formerly manufacturers depended on United States research, but this is thought to be misleading since it is generally supposed women have grown bulkier on the starchy diet of austerity.

Experts from the government controlled clothing development council. who are conducting the survey. expect to have present assumptions on women's sizes revised a little.

"It's quite possible we shall find the shape of women of various heights much different from that generally assumed," one official said.

BUILD STEAM PLANT

Toronto, Oct 27—(CP)—A new steam-powered generating plant for the Ontario Hydro Commission is being built on Toronto's eastern waterfront. Its first unit will start operating next September. When the entire 286,000 horsepower plant is operating, it will use up to 1,000 tons of coal and 155,000,000 gallons of water a day, engineers estimate.

SPECIAL FORCE WASTED NO TIME EMBARKING

The United States naval ship, James O'Hara is shown as she sailed from Septtle, Wash., with several hundred Canadians of the Special Force aboard. The boarding of the special force went like clockword. Seventeen minutes after their arrival at the docks, authorities had every Canadian aboard and ready to sail. The special force soldiers were the last to go aboard the O'Hara which was already rmy nurses. Minutes after the last Canadian walked loaded with hundreds of American troops and U.S. a up the gang-plank, the ship was pushed from the quay-side by tugs and then headed west to the open sea. — Central Press Canadian.

SHOT ON BUSY TORONTO INTERSECTION

Shot in the back on a busy Toronto intersection, Michael Bortnick is covered by a blanket by police while awaiting an ambulance. Arrested is John Picca, who, after the shooting, went to a telephone booth, called the police and waited for them to arrive. "It's a family affair," he told spectators. — Central Press Canadian.

IT'S THE ONLY ONE OF ITS KIND

This ferocious, strange looking creature aroused the curiosity of the Mexican City police department when its Japanese owner appeared before them to denounce "unknown parties" for stealing the bird. The owner informed police that this was no ordinary rooster — but a horned rooster considered to be the only one of its kind in the world and valued more than 22,000 pesos (approximately $2,500). Police soon discovered that the valuable fowl had not been stolen but had jumped over a fence into the patio of neighbors. — Central Press Canadian.

'45,000 Pheasants Fluttering All Around' Says Wm. G. Baker Of Two-Day Pelee Is. Shoot

"Terrific, never saw anything like it, and never expect to see again."

That is one hunter's description of the Pelee Island two-day pheasant hunt just concluded.

William G. Baker, formerly of Belleville and now of Wyandotte, Michigan, a son of Mr. Harry Baker, 107 Catherine Street, took a few minutes this morning from plucking fat pheasants to indulge in broad smiles and an enthusiastic verbiage on his experience with a brother hunter on the famous island.

"Imagine," he smiled "45,000 fat juicy pheasants fluttering all around you just begging to be bagged."

"Quota?" Baker's laugh rang over the telephone. "Why we had the official quota of three hens and eight cockbirds before the first day's sun was lukewarm."

Hunters A-plenty

Baker with his brother-in-law Charles Anthony of St. Thomas, stayed at a farmhouse at the lower end of the island. At eight o'clock on the first morning 86 birds had been shot and brought to the farmhouse.

Hunters, "there were millions of 'em", Baker said. Over 20,000 application for licences were filed. There were over 6,000 pheasant-hungry nimrods traipsing in the cover. And the birds were all around 'em.

When Baker and Anthony emerged for the first day's hunt, they rubbed sleepy eyes and stared at the scene in front of them. At least fifty pheasants clouded the air and guns were blazing all over the place.

Plump and Fat Birds

The birds were plump and heavy with fat. "In fact" Baker said, "there were layers of fat on them."

The reason for the excellent condition of the pheasants he said was primarily the fine feeding conditions. Perfect natural cover and excellent climate were other contributing factors.

The birds are protected, and farmers of the district instead of destroying the birds as is the custom in other places, aid in the protection.

The pheasants gorge themselves with soy beans and corn along with other food. The spring chicks get an excellent start from a menu of species of flies which contain large amounts of proteins.

Students Among Hunters

University students from American and Canadian colleges were present in large numbers, studying the birds and examining bands. Baker said that according to one student a pheasant will not fly farther than a mile after being banded. Only one banded bird was shot by Baker and Anthony in the lower island area where they were hunting. In other parts of the island several banded birds were noted in individual quotas.

Baker, a former duck hunter, but who has not pulled a trigger on a feather for a number of years, waxed enthusiastic over his experience.

"It was the greatest hunting experience I ever had or ever will have. I have never seen anything like it. It was terrific," he reiterated.

BCI Juniors Trounce Trenton For Quinte Title

By DON DOLAN

Yesterday afternoon at O.S.D. field, BCI Juniors earned the right to represent the Bay of Quinte in the COSSA playdowns as they decisively trounced Trenton High School 32-5.

At the very beginning of the game, the BCI team showed that they would not be stopped. After intercepting a Trenton pass, the BCI team scored from approximately centre field in three plays. John Thompson was the player who carried the ball into "pay dirt." Also in the first half Nickle ran a poor kick some 30 yards for the second collegiate touchdown which was converted by Philp. John Hagerman ripped off numerous chunks of yardage for BCI to set up many of their scores. Baker and McPartlin each scored a BCI touchdown in the first half.

75-Yard Run

Trenton's lone score came about as the result of a brilliant run by Wannamaker. BCI kicked off to about the Trenton 35-yard line. Wannamaker the Trenton player picked up the ball and galloped the length of the field some 75 yards for Trenton's only score.

Numerous penalties were handed out to both teams for failing to report to officials while entering or leaving the game during the first half of play.

BCI continued its strong offensive in the second half but were met by a strong, stubborn Trenton line. However, before the game ended a pass from Philp to Farmer netted BCI a touchdown which Philp converted. "Salty" Moore scored the final touchdown of the game for BCI.

Wannamaker and Robertson gave their all in a losing cause for the losers while Hewton, Brick, Hill and Defosse stood out defensively.

John Hagerman was the main cog in the BCI offensive machine and was aided by Burroughs, Adamson and Baker. The entire BCI line played good football.

Line Ups

Referee: S. Green; umpire J. Dean.

CROSS IN BOTH DIRECTIONS

Opening Night Pro Tennis Crowd Is Disappointing

New York, Oct. 27 (AP) —It looks like a long, hard winter for gorgeous Gussy Moran, professional tennis' new $75,000 glamor girl.

Things don't appear too bright either, for Jack Kramer, boss man of the mercenaries, as the net barnstormers move into Washington for the second lap of their 100-city tour.

Promoter Bobby Riggs uncovered his 1950 production last night at Madison Square Garden, and the results were hardly what were expected.

Gussy, billed as the star of the show, was cute in couple of different costumes, but she had no tennis shots to match as Mrs. Pauline Betz Addie blasted her aside 6-0, 6-3.

Kramer, the sport's No. 1 appeal the last two years, was little more impressive as he bowed miserably to Pancho Segura, a little bandy-legged guy brought up from the prelims, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

The crowd was 6,526, with the gate $16,960. It's going to take a lot more people than that to keep Gussy in lace panties. Promoters made no bones about this being a disappointing start. In 1948 the tour began with a $50,000-plus gate at the Garden and last year it was around $40,000.

Gussy didn't wear lace in her opening match with Mrs. Addie, four-time National Amateur champion, but she rectified that by coming out for the mixed doubles later in a one-piece blue pique and lace number that fully did justice to her charms.

For the singles, she had on a modest white pique job, with short flared skirt that the gave the customers frequent peeks at panties trimmed in gleaming gold.

Pauline, an attractive blonde formerly of Los Angeles, almost stole Gussy's costume thunder with a pair of satin shorts and cerise sweater that provoked penetrating whistles from the gallery.

The ease with which Segura, wee idol of Ecuador, trounced Kramer in three of their last four meetings—including the U.S. pro championships—lost his service only once. He broke Jack's delivery repeatedly.

Various Hazards Label Past Year For Wheat Farms

Winnipeg, (CP) —Farmers often recall a bygone period with the phrase "that was the year our wheat was rusted," or "that was the year of the bumper crop."

This season will be hard to label so easily. Some might call it "the year of the big frost," but plenty of other happenings will make 1950 stick in the memory of the prairie farmer.

First the wheat crop got off to a bad start with late seeding and early drought in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and floods in southern Manitoba. Then it forged ahead until by Aug. 15 preliminary estimates ran as high as 525,000,000 bushels. The long-time average is about 400,000,000.

Then August frosts struck, night after night. The yield estimates were cut by millions of bushels. Snow came at the end of September with almost half the crop still to be threshed and much of it uncut. More downward revisions in estimates followed.

It wasn't the drop in yield which hurt most, however. It was the low grading. Last year 85 percent of Western Canada's wheat crop graded No. 4 Northern or better. No. 4 is the lowest milling grade. This year two-thirds of the wheat will grade No. 4 and lower, the Canadian Wheat Board has estimated.

Grading Criticized

Farmers complained. They suggested something was wrong with the grading standards.

They were told by the board of grain commissioners that frosted wheat is full of shrivelled, immature and green kernels which make milling costly and produce an inferior flour considered inedible in most western countries.

Some farmers, particularly in Saskatchewan, asked for inclusion of a protein test in wheat grading. The board said frost affects the protein quality of wheat and protein-damaged wheat makes only a poor-baking flour.

Finally, the presidents of two farmers' unions in Saskatchewan and Alberta examined samples approved as standards for the 1950-51 crop and found them satisfactory.

Wider Price Range

Hand in hand with the wheat-grading controversy, farmer debated the Canadian Wheat Board's initial payments and which a 24-member committee price spreads.

During the life of the five-year wheat pool which ended July 31, price spreads remained fairly constant because grades were fairly even. Last year the spread on initial payments for No 1 Northern down to feed wheat was 26 cents. This year the differential is 40 cents, with most of the extra on the lower grades.

The initial payment on No. 1 is down from $1.75 to $1.40.

The miller or buyer starts at the bottom of the scale and looks at the premium he must pay to get a higher grade of wheat. If he considers the premium too great he will buy a lower grade.

Faced with overwhelming supply of low-grade wheat to market this year, the Wheat Board wants to make the discount for lower-grade wheat more attractive so the buyer will by-pass the scarce high grades.

TRAMP SHIP

By mid-March the Tamara was headed for Thursday Island. Then a general shaft snapped, her coal ran low and disgruntled seamen demanded back pay.

From Thursday Island the Tamara plodded toward Makassar in the Celebes. One day she found herself in the middle of a minefield while an Indonesian naval battle raged.

With her luck, you'd think the Tamara would have had her brains blown out.

She escaped unscathed—but once outside the battle zone she blew another boiler tube and her food ran out.

By the time she reached The Celebes her coal was gone. There she took on fresh water, food and wood and headed for Borneo.

At Samarinda she loaded on the dogs, cats, monkeys and gorilla.

On her way out she got stuck on a sand bar.

Weeks later she put into Manila for food, water and repairs.

Sept. 23 she sailed for Hong Kong. Two typhoons blocked her way.

She went back to Manila. The crew was getting tired of it all, They almost mutinied.

Finally the Tamara arrived here today, 10 months late.

Everybody, including the dogs, cats, monkeys and gorilla, was for getting right off the ship.

But port authorities blocked them.

It seems there had been Trouble aboard the Tamara and nobody but the captain could come ashore until things were straightened out.

CARMEL

25th Anniversary

Carmel—Mr. and Mrs. Seldon Homan gave a dinner party on Saturday night in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Ball, who are returning to Magog, Quebec, following their recent marriage at Turner's Falls, Mass. U.S.A. Mr. J. M. C. Duckworth, Halifax, was a weekend guest at the same home.

Misses Evelyn Madden, Helen Griffith and Ruth Brintnell of Albert College were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Brintnell. Miss Anne Tourney B.A., of Albert College, was a recent guest at the same home.

W.I.

The Women's Institute met for their October meeting at the home of Mrs. N. Ross. Plans are being made for the Hallowe'en concert at Carmel school on Friday night of this week.

Miss Mildred Luxton entertained Mr. and Mrs. E. Ball, Miss Kathleen Homan and Mr. J. Duckworth to dinner on Sunday.

Mrs. George Moorman spent the weekend with friends in Toronto, also visited Mr. Roscoe Moorman.

Good Neighbors

The good neighbor policy is truly in evidence today as neighbors and friends from other neighborhoods have gathered at the farm of Mr. Clarence Chambers to do his ploughing. Mr. Chambers was the victim of rheumatic fever this summer and is unable to carry on his farm work.

Mr. Frank Chambers is improving, following a slight stroke which he suffered last week.

RAWDON

Resident Receives Letter of Thanks From Morris Man

Rawdon, —Mrs. Frank Jeffs, Supply secretary, of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Auxiliary, forwarded four new quilts to Morris, Manitoba, in September, as a gift for the folks in the flooded area. Mrs. Herbert Smith, Mission Band leader, sent as her gift, a lovely wool blanket.

Mrs. Jeffs received a letter of thanks last week from Mrs. May Shewman at Morris. She said in part: "The quilts were greatly appreciated. One I gave to a dear little lady with nine children, her baby was born while she was evacuated and she was delighted to receive the quilt.

Thanks for Gifts

Another family, who are elderly, and the wife is nearly blind was so deeply touched. She said she couldn't have received anything more acceptable. There were tears in her eyes as she asked me to thank you so much.

Another elderly couple, who lost almost everything they had as one wall was washed away from their home asked me to convey their heartfelt thanks.

Another couple, over eighty years of age, who had a one-storey home with eight feet of water in it, lost all their bedding and they too were glad of a quilt.

"You can readily understand that those lovely warm quilts were so acceptable. It was most kind of the ladies of the Mount Pleasant Missionary Society to send the box.

"Please thank Mrs. Herbert Smith for that nice warm blanket. I gave it to my next door neighbor, who has a one-storey home and lost all her blankets.

Trying Summer

"It has been a very trying summer, it seems we work and work yet the end is nowhere in sight for many even yet. We are still not settled. We haven't had a bit of heat till this week, October 12, and the weather has been so cold and wet. There are going to be many families not housed when winter sets in unless we have a long open fall. I think we are getting a bit weary now, it has been going on to seven months since we evacuated our homes and we will be very happy to get back to normal living soon. . . .

FURIOUS GALE

San Francisco, Oct. 27 (CP)—A furious gale ripped into the northern half off California yesterday, uprooting trees, snarling power lines, communications and shipping and causing extensive damage. Heavy rain fell and snow in mountain areas blocked some of the less-used roads. The storm whistled on into the Pacific northwest after spending most of its strength in northern California.

STIRLING

Over 150 Oddfellows Attend Testimonal Banquet

Stirling.—Over 150 Oddfellows were in attendance at the testimonial banquet in honor of Charles A. Hutcheson, of London, Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, in Stirling community hall on Monday night, on the occasion of his official visit to Madoc District No. 45.

The Grand Master was welcomed by Bro. Walter Warren, D.D.G.M., and Mrs. Warren made the presentation of a beautiful corsage to Mrs. Hutcheson.

Following the serving of a delicious banquet by the ladies of Bethel United Church, the toast to "The King" was honored after which community singing was led by R. A. Patterson with Mrs. Ray Shortt at the piano.

Bro. William Woods, of Tweed, P.D.D.G.M., proposed the toast to Grand Lodge which was replied to by the Grand Master, Charles A. Hutcheson, in a very instructive address on the work being carried on by Oddfellows, including the cancer, polio, and tuberculosis fund.

Mrs. Walter Warren favored with a solo, accompanied by Mrs. R. Shortt; Bro. Earl Fox, P.D.D.G.M., proposed the toast to the ladies and Mrs. H. C. Vaclavik gave the response.

Presentation of Beatty Shield

A feature of the program was the presentation of the Dr. S. R. Beatty Shield to Madoc Lodge No. 179 for initiating the most new members during the year, by Rev. A. L. Sisco, of Tweed, Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Ontario. This is the 12th presentation of the shield and Madoc has won the award seven times.

Short addresses were given by the Noble Grands of the visiting lodges and Mrs. H. Mumby, Noble Grand of Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, Stirling.

SALEM

Salem —Mr. and Mrs. John Beal, Billie and Bobbie have moved to their new home in Cannifton, having sold their farm to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jones.

Mrs. S. Haight spent a week with with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Badgley at Melrose.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sherman were Sunday guests of Mrs. Walter Carr at Northport.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrott, Kingston Road, called on Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Davis, and pupils of S.S. No. 14 Tyendinaga, entertained the members of the school section on Friday night with the showing of films supplied by the National Film Board, after which refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley at Melrose on Sunday of last week.

DELIVERY ...or DEAD LETTER OFFICE?

Be sure ADDRESS is CLEAR CORRECT and COMPLETE!

You can help your Post Office to give better service by writing the address on your letter or parcel clearly. Full name, street address, Post Office Box number or Rural Route number should be included. Always write a return address in the top left hand corner of everything you mail.

Send a POSTAL MONEY ORDER
instead of cash!
Envelopes can accidentally be broken, torn in handling and money lost. Whenever you send money through the mails, it's safer to use postal money orders. You can get them at your Post Office.

CORRECT POSTAGE
saves embarrassment!
Be sure to use the correct amount of postage. If you are in doubt, always have your letter or parcel weighed because the recipient must pay double the deficient postage. This is especially important on overseas air mail.

Wrap PARCELS carefully!
Avoid possible damage to parcel contents by using strong containers. Protect documents, pictures, etc. with stiffening boards. Tie securely with strong twine or cord.

YOUR Post Office is your friendly servant: Ask for help with your postal problems at any time ... and ask about the various services available, such as: Air Mail, Canada Air Letters, special delivery, registration, Rural Directories, insurance of parcel post, C.O.D., gift parcels for overseas, international and Imperial reply coupons, and the Post Office Savings Bank.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Raising of $4,000 estimated operational expenses of the club over a series of 34 games, occupied the executive, directorate and players of the Belleville senior hockey club at the meeting held in the YMCA last night.

Out of the discussion came two definite plans. One, a dance and second, a Tag Day. Committees were set up and the boys will go into action immediately. The dance is set for November 15 and on November 18.. the lads will seek the much - needed dinero through the medium of the tags.

Two groups of young women, it is understood, will take over the Tag Day effort under the supervision of Walter Bent and his committee. Other media of raising funds will be studied and if acceptable carried out from time to time.

Four thousand iron men is a lot of money. But President Harper McKirath and his committee after studying conditions and paring here and there, announce that it will take at least that amount of money to operate the team through the 1950-51 schedule.

* * *

Much of this amount must be raised in the immediate future for the initial cost of operation is usually the heaviest, what with equipment, uniforms etc., etc. And with the first game scheduled for November 3 with Queen's University no time can be lost in getting the fund-raising activities under way.

McKirath and his executive have a tough task ahead of them. Starting with the proverbial shoestring insofar as finances are concerned, they realize that the trail-ahead is covered with anything but roses. They are to be commended on their intestinal fortitude in taking over the franchise and trying to build a senior team that will be a credit to the city.

They fully realize that the opposition will be tougher this year than last. While Queen's University seniors are as yet an unknown quantity, it can be definitely assured the Gaels won't be any pushovers.

The Kingston Nylons, it is reported, will be considerably stronger than last season, while the Peterborough squads, the Petes and the Eagles (nee Legion) will ice squads with plenty of new faces and additional strength.

But the Belleville mentors are not letting the grass grow under their feet. They have been scouring the legal areas for players and should come up with a good representation. No personnel has been mentioned but a number of familiar faces were present at last night's confab.

* * *

In any event, the Redmen or Maroons, whatever they have been tabbed, will have at least one strike against them when they step on the ice November 3 against the Tricolor of Queens. And the whiff is lack of skating and practice. Queens, like the other group squads have been on the blades for some time now, not to mention exhibition games with outside squads.

* * *

However Coach Gobell has high hopes that ice will be available in Memorial Arena by Monday, or Tuesday, and he intends to whip the boys into shape with as many practices as can be held between then and group-opening time. In the meantime he has called the squad out for a gymnasium workout over the weekend, and that should take some of the softball and baseball wrinkles out of the skating limbs.

* * *

There is one bright side to the senior team picture this year, and that is, it won't take the ice against other group squads as a house more or less divided as was the case last winter. The 1950-51 edition will be a team that is an entity in itself not a composite one from two squads that battled each other one night, and played together the next.

* * *

The current squad, as has been pointed out before, has no affiliations with nor strings attached to any industrial or business organization. It is a team of the people, for the people, and should be supported by the people.

It is a team that will play together throughout the season; be coached as a team by one coach, and have but one objective — victory for the city it represents.

The move to have one team play as a team under one management and one coaching head, was a good one. It will do away with the petty bickerings and jealousies that were plainly apparent last year and should make for player harmony and co-operation. And any team in any phase of sport must have these requisites if it expects to get anywhere.

The 1950-51 edition of the senior club, if it has but little money at the present, doesn't lack for enthusiasm and co-operative spirit. It has a hard-working executive and directorate which are sparing no efforts to place the squad on the highest plane possible.

* * *

The Redmen or Maroons, under one head and one organization will be the standard-bearer of senior hockey here this winter, and as such it should receive the full support of fandom of the city. How about it?

Rocky Graziano Still Talks A Tough Fight

New York, Oct. 27 —(AP) — He's not as vicious in the ring as he used to be, but Rocky Graziano still talks a tough fight.

"I'll knock him stiff," said Rocky, who meets Tony Janiro in a return 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. They drew in their first clash last March 31.

The Rock is a 1-3 choice to win over Tony, a flashy boxer from Youngstown, O.

Tony, however, declares he's in his best shape ever and I'll wear him out. Rocky's slow and easy to hit and I may even knock him out."

If he can turn that trick, Janiro will shoot right up into the higher tax bracket. As it is he'll make a pile out of tonight's show.

The promoting International Boxing Club hopes to equal the $81,049 gate they attracted the last time at a $10 top. This one is scaled to $12. Some 14,000 fans mostly followers of the wild-swinging New Yorker, are expected to show up for the reopening of the Garden boxing season.

Since the Janiro draw, Rocky has hung up five kayos in a row, over Danny Boy Williams, Vinnie Cidone, Henry Brimm, Gene Burton and Pete Mead. Janiro, who celebrates his 23rd birthday, has outpointed his last three foes, Al Guido, Sonny Leavitt and Chico Pacheche.

Chicago Hawks Hit Scoring Stride, Deflate High-Flying Canadiens Under 5-1 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago Black Hawks uncorked some of their vaunted scoring punch last night in deflating Montreal's high-flying Canadiens 5-1, with durable Doug Bentley scoring the 207th goal of his National Hockey League career.

Apart from snapping a two-game losing streak at home, the victory boosted Coach Ebbie Goodfellow's Hawks from the league cellar into a third - place tie with Detroit Red Wings.

The convincing win should bring back some of Chicago's wandering customers. Last night the smallest Windy City crowd in years — 8,207 — saw the Hawks waltz away to a long lead over the second - place Canadiens.

Three of Chicago's five goals were fired past goalie Gerry McNeil by the Bentley - Pete Babando - Bill Mosienko line. Each scored once, and Babando and Mosienko added two assists apiece.

The Hawks coasted to victory once they found the range and clicked for three fast goals late in the first period. Bentley started the rout with his first goal of the season while Bud McPherson of Canadiens was in the penalty box, and Bert Olmstead and Al Dewsbury ran the count to 3-0 near the end of the period.

The middle session was scoreless. Floyd Curry bagged Montreal's lone goal early in the third frame. That one was matched 25 seconds later by Babando's, and Mosienko's effort completed the drubbing.

Wild Shooting

Canadiens made frenzied efforts to get back into the game, but spoiled their chances by wild shooting and even wilder passing as the minutes slipped by.

The loss prevented Canadiens from regaining the league lead from Toronto Maple Leafs, who have a one-point margin.

Here is the schedule of week-end games: Saturday — Boston at Toronto; New York at Montreal; Chicago at Detroit. Sunday—Toronto at Chicago; Boston at Detroit and Montreal at New York.

At Detroit yesterday, the Wings said that defenceman Clare Martin, who suffered a fractured cheekbone in a collision during Wednesday's game at Toronto, will be out of the line-up from two to four weeks.

Goalie Turk Broda of the Leafs, who registered his third consecutive shutout of the season Wednesday, will be given another rest when the Bruins visit Toronto Saturday.

Al Rollins, who substituted for Broda in Chicago last Sunday, will be back in the nets as the Turk temporarily rests on his laurels for the second time this season.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Pete Babando and Bill Mosienko, Chicago, who each scored once and assisted in two other goals as Chicago whipped Montreal 5-1.

Doug Bentley, Chicago, third member of the Babando-Mosienko line who scored once and assisted twice in the rout.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Dr. Frank E. Sandercock, a past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, died 8 years ago today at Drumheller, Alta. Native of Woodstock, Ont., he was president of the C.A.H.A. from 1926 to 1928 during which period the historic Allan Cup was handed over to the C.A.H.A. by Sir Montague Allan.

Major Series Will Include Five Leagues

(By The Canadian Press)

Remember that super-duper major series for selected senior teams that was adopted, then promptly ditched, by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association last summer?

Well, it is very much alive and kicking, although somewhat different from what was originally intended.

Actually, the decision to go ahead with the Major series was made last summer. But it wasn't until yesterday that George Dudley of Midland, secretary-manager of the C.A.H.A., confirmed it after his return from Europe.

The Major series sets up a sort of glorified senior hockey fraternity including the Cape Breton and the Maritime leagues, the Quebec Senior League, O.H.A. and Western League.

A special trophy will be put up—thus relegating the Allan Cup, traditional symbol of senior hockey supremacy in Canada, to minor-league status. From here in, the Allan Cup will be open to weak-sister clubs and leagues who have been clutterng up the senior playdowns for years with little hope of winning the trophy.

The difference between the major series now and as originally planned is that there will be no contracts for players. Originally terms called for a minimum salary of $1000 a yr. and various waiver and draft clauses similar to the N.H.L. These were dropped.

Owen Sound turned out in force last night to honor its crescents—1950 Senior Lacrosse Champions.

The players and the executive of the club were guests of honor at a civic banquet. Later they rode the city's biggest fire truck in a parade from city hall to the arena.

Crescents beat out New Westminster Adanacs in a seven-game series for the Mann Cup.

New Westminster Royals of the Pacific Coast Hockey League are under new ownership.

Fred Hume, New Westminster industrialist, has purchased a half interest in the Royals from W. Gregg, wealthy Fresno, Calif., fruit packer, who bought into the club two years ago. The purchase price was reported to be $25,000.

Hume will be associated with co-owner Ken Mackenzie, manager of the Royals.

It was reported that Coach Babe Pratt may buy into the club at a later date.

The entire racing stable of the late Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark was sold Thursday at public auction at Belmont Park. The 27 head brought $286,300, or an average of $10,804.

Top price of $41,000 was brought by Pictus, a promising two-year-old brown colt by Pictor-Mrs. Ames. Pictus, in the money in 10 of 13 starts this year and winner of three races, was purchased by P. L. Foster as agent for Ralph Lowe, Midland, Tex., oilman. The colt has won $11,275 this year.

There was spirited bidding for all of the Clark horses, with the three-year-old bay gelding Steel Blue going for $36,000.

Guy Fielder, back with Lethbridge Native Sons junior hockey club after a month's suspension for violation of a "C" form ruling, will remain in junior ranks for another year.

The 19-year-old centre had signed a "C" form with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League and was suspended by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association when he refused to turn professional with a Hawks' farm team as required by the form.

He has signed a National League contract with the Black Hawks and will turn professional next fall. Meanwhile, he is to retain his regular centre berth with Native Sons.

Rosalind, the world's champion trotting mare, died Wednesday night at Hanover Shoe Farm, Hanover, Pa. The 17-year-old Rosalind made her record of 1:56¾ for the mile at Lexington in 1938.

Branch Rickey May Not Go To Pittsburgh

Brooklyn Oct. 27 (AP)—Which way Branch Rickey? That's the question puzzling the baseball world today now that the bushy-browed executive definitely is through in Brooklyn.

Pittsburgh had seemed the best bet, but last night Rickey, in Columbus, O., denied reports he would become general manager of the Pirates. And in Pittsburgh Tom Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Pirates, declared "I'm sure no deal has jelled between Rickey and Galbreath because I would know about it if it had." Johnson referred to John Galbreath, owner of the Pirates.

In addition, Johnson said "I know definitely that Hamey (Roy Hamey, Pittsburgh general manager) is not going to leave the Pirates no matter what Rickey does."

This increases speculation over a report that the 69-year-old Rickey has been mentioned as a possibility for president of Depauw University at Greencastle, Ind.

When Rickey announced his resignation as president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, he said he planned to see Galbreath, an old friend "within a few days." Rickey also said he would visit St. Louis.

Galbreath was due in New York yesterday but changed plans. Perhaps they will meet during the weekend. After that Rickey will attend a baseball meeting in Cincinnati Tuesday.

That leaves plenty of time for conservation with somebody.

One thing for sure, Rickey does not want to retire.

In Columbus, where he made his denial, Rickey said it would be "some time" before he would have anything to say about his future connections but he "hoped to be busy."

New Haven Eagles Finally Win a Contest

(By The Canadian Press)

New Haven Eagles finally won a game in the American Hockey League.

The luckless birds had gone for six straight losses until they turned on Providence Reds Thursday night and clawed them 4-3 in overtime.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati Mohawks also broke a losing streak—two games—and beat Pittsburgh Hornets 4-1 in a rough encounter.

Ernie Trigg gave New Haven its victory at 3:23 of the overtime period. The other Eagle goals were by Johnny Holota, Ray Manson and rookie Nick Timiuk. Johnny Chad, scored twice for Providence while Orval Lavaell got the other.

Chuck Blair got Pittsburgh away to a flying start with a goal at the 10 seconds mark. But Cincinnati took over from there and tied the count on a disputed goal at the 19 minute point by Tod Campeau. Fern Perreault scored the winner at 12:45 of the second and got another in the finale. Gil Dube got the other Mohawk goal.

In the only other game scheduled, Indianapolis Caps broke a five-game losing streak to tie Cleveland Barons 1-1 and gain their first point in the standings.

The game put Cleveland into a tie with Cincinnati at the top of the league's western division. Indianapolis is in last place of the division.

The two goals in the Cleveland-Indianapolis game were scored in just over two minutes of the second period. Haldy came right back at 7:56 to tie the count and nobody could score after that.

Ray Robinson Stops Olson In Twelfth Round

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP) — The promoters are still marching in the lambs and Ray (Sugar) Robinson continues to slaughter them in masterly style.

Last night it was Carl (Bobo) Olson who faced the Robinson fists.

Fresh from the Hawaiian Islands, 22-year-old Olson tried to win Robinson's Pennsylvania-version middleweight championship. All he got was his fourth defeat in 53 fights, as Robinson at 158 set him down for the count in 1:19 of the 12th round of a scheduled 15-rounder at Convention Hall.

Olson at 159, never had a chance. One judge gave him a round while the other judge and the referee called one round even and gave Robinson the rest. A low blow cost the champion the 11th.

Robinson had only one trouble with Olson. That was hitting him. The islander offered a unique defense that made him a tough target. He held his hands high and allowed his elbows to protrude in front of his midsection. It's a style to make an opponent work so hard trying to get in a punch that he wears himself out.

Olson, who never hit the canvas before in his career, called Robinson "the greatest fighter I've ever seen. He's awfully smart. I thought he finished me with a right to the head but the way my sides feel there's not much doubt what did it."

In retaining his Pennsylvania 160 pound crown, Robinson won his 118th fight in 121 efforts. Only a defeat by the middleweight champion in the other 47 States, Jake LaMotta, and two draws blot the Robinson record. He has since licked LaMotta four times.

As usual, Robinson and his manager, George Gainford, had a few words for LaMotta in the dressing room.

"I hope he shows up for that Feb. 14th fight we're supposed to have," said Ray. "I doubt if he will, though."

CANNOT PLAY MARSHALL

Guelph, Oct. 27 (CP)—Guelph Biltmores have been instructed by the Ontario Hockey Association not to play centre Willie Marshall until Ken Laufman reports to Toronto St. Michael's College, club officials said last night.

Marshall, subject of a dispute between the two clubs, was awarded Guelph by the O.H.A. in a deal whereby St. Mike's would get Laufman and John Negladuke.

But Laufman has refused to report to St. Mike's and the Toronto team claims he is being held by Guelph who deny the allegation.

Grid Playoffs Start in West, East Lineup

(By The Canadian Press)

Edmonton Eskimos and Saskatchewan Roughriders meet in Regina tomorrow in the first game of 1950's senior football playoffs.

The winner of the sudden-death game will meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers for the western championship.

In the east, senior clubs still face vital games for the season's playoff spots.

With two games left for each club in the tightly-locked big four, Ottawa invades Toronto and Montreal is at Hamilton. Only two points separate the first-place Argonauts from the last-place Rough Riders. Alouettes and Tiger-Cats are tied in second place.

The last-place Windsor Rockets meet both Toronto Balmy Beach and Sarnia Imperials this weekend in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union. Sarnia, two points behind the first-place Beaches, play in Windsor Saturday and visit Toronto Sunday.

In the college circuit, the mighty McGill Redmen go to Kingston to play Queen's University Gaels. McGill is undefeated in three games this year.

The University of Toronto's bruised and battered Blues face another game with University of Western Ontario Mustangs, who drugged the Blues 41-6 in Toronto last Saturday.

Had Better Record

Both Saskatchewan and Edmonton wound up the scheduled season with seven wins and seven losses. But Roughriders got a home game for their playoff because of their scoring record—they scored 207 points with 177 scored against them. Edmonton had 201 for and 197 against.

Winnipeg scotted home in first place with 10 wins and four defeats.

Coach Lew Hayman drilled his Montreal Alouettes overtime all week on pass plays—both offensive and defensive. And he expects to have a stronger club than last week, when Alouettes beat Hamilton 16-13.

Both Johnny Harper and Pete Thodos, plagued by injuries during the season, will be in action as running halves. But they meet a Hamilton club with the reputation of being tougher to beat at home than on the road.

Ottawa and Argos battled to a 21-21 tie in Ottawa last week, with supporters of each club claiming lapses by quarterbacks when their team was in a position to win. Rough Riders will be without halfback Pete Karput and probably without big Paul (Spider) Gibson. Argos sadly miss Billy Bass, their star halfback, who will be out for the season as the result of an injury two weeks ago.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadiens, with a chance to take over leadership in the National Hockey League, faded badly Thursday night, dropping a 5-1 decision to Chicago Black Hawks. It was the only game played.

Maurice Richard also missed a chance to take over scoring honors as he went pointless. Today, Richard remains tied with Tod Sloan of Toronto Maple Leafs, each having seven points made up of four goals and three assists.

In third place is Cal Gardner of the Leafs whose six points are evenly distributed between goals and assists.

Four players follow with five points apiece—Max Bentley and Ted Kennedy of Toronto, Gordie Howe of Detroit and Ken Mosdell of Canadiens.

Nine players come next with four points.

Phil Rizzuto Most-Valuable Player in Loop

New York, Oct. 27—(AP) — Little Phil Rizzuto, brilliant New York Yankee shortstop, won the 1950 most-valuable-player award in the American League by a landslide Thursday.

The scooter capped his best season by polling 16 of 23 first-place votes of a committee of the Baseball Writers Association.

Boston's Billy Goodman, league batting champion with a .354 average, polled four first-place ballots. The other three went to Yogi Berra, the Yankees' fine catcher.

They finished in that order—Rizzuto, Goodman and Berra—in the point tabulation with Rizzuto on top by 104 points. Ted Williams of Boston, most valuable a year ago but sidelined by injuries for half the season, finished way down the list.

Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee clipper and a three-time winner, was ninth.

Back to Rizzuto, Goodman and Berra came Detroit's George Kell, the all-star third baseman, followed by Cleveland's Bob Lemon, a 23-game winner.

Walt Dropo, Boston's powerful first base rookie, took sixth place. Then came Vic Raschi, Yankee pitching ace with a 21-8 record, Cleveland's Larry Doby, Joe DiMaggio and Vic Wertz, Detroit's slugging right fielder.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 27 (AP) — Jean Simmons has seen her first American football game, and she's confused.

Miss Simmons is Britain's brightest young star. She came here to announce her engagement to Stewart Granger; and to help ballyhoo her latest picture 'Trio'. Also, she is taking in some of the local attractions. One of these included last week's grid encounter between UCLA (University of California at Los Angeles) and Stanford.

"I think our own football, or soccer, in England is more exciting," she said. "The players cover more ground and you don't have the long waits between plays."

No Cheerleaders

The young actress wasn't impressed by the cheer leaders. I don't like those people waving their arms to get people to yell," she observed. "Goodness knows, we scream our guts out at soccer matches, but not at somebody else's direction."

She was surprised to find an old friend at the game.

"I went down the aisle for a hot dog during the half," she related, "and coming back, a man accosted me. He wore a wide brimmed rooter's cap, dark glasses, a slight beard and an old coat. I was about to scream when I realized who it was."

He was Laurence Olivier, who played Hamlet to her Ophelia. It turned out that Sir Laurence was a UCLA rooter from his earlier Hollywood days.

That Tax

She leaves in a couple of weeks for Rome, where she'll make Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion." Her contract with Rank lasts two more years. hen she'll come to Hollywood to live with her husband, who has a new seven-year contract with MGM. They'll be married either here or in England, according to when one gets free of film commitments first.

"It's also according to the tax" she added. "If we are married this year our income taxes in England may be lumped together, putting us in a super-tax bracket."

Ah, even love has to worry about income tax.

AT THE BELLE

M.G.M.'s "The Happy Years" and "Holy Year 1950", 2nd Feature

"The Happy Years", new MGM attraction showing tonight at the Belle for the last times, is the ideal picture for every member of the family, and is based on the Lawrenceville School Stories by Owen Johnson, the Technicolor photoplay is filled with delightful humor, tender touches and heartwarming characterizations.

"The Happy Years" was directed by William A. Wellman, whose last film was the sensationally successful "Battleground". It was produced by Carey Wilson, producer of the "Hardy Family" series.

"Holy Year 1950"

What the millions of pilgrims, converged on Rome this year year for the twenty-fifth Holy Year celebration, saw and did has been recorded by Twentieth Century-Fox is a feature motion picture entitled "Holy Year 1950", and is announced as the 2nd Feature attraction at the Belle Theatre today. A special crew spent months in the Holy City filming all the solemn ceremonies and colorful pageantry which has marked the observance of Holy Year from the time Boniface VIII inaugurated it in the year 1300.

Among the colorful scenes in the picture are the Christmas Eve and Easter Day ceremonies at St. Peter's, the solemn corpus Christie procession, the opening of the Holy Door, signifying the beginning of the observance, and the preparations at the Vatican with the laying out of the Triple crown, the ceremonial robes, the Pectoral Cross, the Fisherman's Ring and the revered St. Peter's Key.

Intimate views of the rare art treasures reposing in the famous Basilicas and the scenes in the Vatican Library are shown as well as a trip to the catacombs and the Swiss guard ceremonies in the famed Belvedere courtyard of Vatican City, to name only a few of the colorful highlights.

Showing tonight at the Belle for the last times with the two above Feature attractions is the delightful film of the Quints' recent visit in New York.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was in her room getting reddy to go out with Mrs. Kistring, and Mrs. Kistring rang the doorbell and came in when I opened the door, and I went up and told ma, and she said, Oh dear, some peeple have a positive vice of being excessively prompt. Go down and entertain her a while, she said.

How shall I entertain her, ma? With my box of magic tricks? I said, and ma said, Goodness no. Just talk to her politely till I come down, she said.

Well jimminies, ma, I dont know what to talk to her about, I said. I didn't even hardly reckonize her, she got so fat, I said, and ma said, Yes, the poor thing, I feel like a positive silf next to her. And dont worry, she'll start the conversation rolling, Mrs. Kistring is never at a loss for words, she'll speak three words to your one, I promise you.

And I went down, saying, I told ma.

Good, Mrs. Kistring said.

Being one werd to my 3, instead of the other way around, and she kept on sitting there with her hands folded in her gloves, and I thawt, Heck, ma said she would start the talking.

Which after a while, she did, saying, My how big you've grown.

Being my tern to answer, and I said, You're a lot bigger too.

Is that suppose to be impertinent? Mrs. Kistring said, and I said, No mam, G, it's just the way I thawt you looked.

Then you must need glasses, because I haven't taken on an ounce since I dont know how long, Mrs. Kistring said, and I said, Then I guess I'm thinking of the last time I saw you, and I guess that must of been before you stopped changing.

Oh, stop being rediculiss, Mrs. Kistring said, and just then ma came down and I quick went out feeling glad of it.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"That is the chair Mr. Sargent uses when he comes in to tea. Set the tray on the desk in front of me, please."

"I hope I have brought what you like, Miss."

"Tea, lemon, sugar, sandwiches and cakes. You have thought of everything Barth."

"Thank you, Miss. Leave the tray on the desk and I'll come back for it. The gentleman said to tell you not to worry, he'd let you know when the rest time was up."

Fran unseeingly regarded the door he had closed behind him. Of course the gentleman who had sent him was Myles Jaffray. She had hoped he would bring the tea himself, it would have given her the chance to whisper "any news?"

Perhaps he had anticipated the eager question and sidestepped because there was nothing to report. He had promised to tell her the moment he heard. She must hold to that and not pester him with questions.

"Skip it. Keep your imagination on leash." Myles Jaffray's voice sounded off in her memory. "When you begin to think of Ken's danger force it from your mind. Each time you allow fear to get you it will be more difficult to keep the next crack under control."

He was right. She had this interesting job to help keep her imagination on leash, also her determination to make Myles Jaffray aware that she was in the world. He had known she had had no tea—was that a step toward her goal? Would he buy one of the paintings? Morrison Grove had said that his family had plenty of "the moolah" and she had believed that Ken had given him the trusteeship to tide him over until he had secured clients. Ouch! Suppose he heard of it.

She glanced at the banjo clock on the wall. In thirty seconds the ten minutes allowed her would be up. Amazing how refreshed she felt. He was knocking. On time to the minute. He would be like that. She slipped on her sandals, flinched at the first step and opened the door to the estresol. Blake Sinclair pushed by, closed the door and leaned against it.

"Run to earth. Now you'll listen." His voice was smug with satisfaction.

"How did you know where I was?"

Only half of Fran's mind was on the question. She didn't like being alone in this room with Blake Sinclair and she didn't intend to stay here while he aired his grievance against her. Would she find escape difficult? Was she afraid of this person she had known since he was a small boy?

"I've kept my eye on you. Saw you slip in here. As soon as I could decently shake old man Sargent, with whom I'm putting through a business deal, I followed. Smart fella, what?"

"Granted. I came here for a cup of tea and to rest my sandals for a few minutes. Now I feel like a million. I'll return to the scene of battle."

"Where's Jaffray?"

"Myles Jaffray? Not being omniscient I cant tell you."

"Didn't he come in here to have tea with you?"

"Regard the tray. One cup. You'd get a D minus in an observation and deduction test Blake. Open the door. I must get back to work. I have three tentative offers for paintings. I want to clinch them before the maybe purchasers decide to—quote — think it over a little longer."

"Not a chance, you will stay here till you promise to go out with me."

"Don't be childish, Blake. I told you before I left home that I would not see you if you came. Circumstances have forced me to see you but I won't go out with you. Open the door."

"Not until you give me a date for this evening. I'll be darned if I know what all this is about, Fran. In spite of the fact that you never would let me kiss you, I know that you love me. Why play puss in the corner?"

Had Fran loved Blake Snider or had her feeling been sisterly affection tingled with a sense of responsibility? He was extremely good-looking, had charm, fine manners—until now—was apparently successful in business, though he never had been definite in describing his job —had covered it with the word "investments"—they had been companions since they were children, had fought and made up through the years. She had been troubled by the stories of his "wildness," the neighbors called it.

"Do I get that date?"

His sharp question recalled her attention.

"You do not, period. I asked for time over your proposal of marriage—uninfluenced by your presence. You haven't given it to me, but you have settled the question in the last few minutes. Now—" A knock on the repair-shop door interrupted her low contemptuous reply.

"Who's that?" Sinclair demanded.

"The waiter for the tray, I suppose."

"Did Jaffray slip out that way?

"He did not, but it would be none of your business if he did, Blake." She opened the door.

"Here I am as per schedule," Myles Jaffray announced. He glanced at Sinclair, who was backed against the other door, his fair skin red from anger. "Sorry to interrupt a conference, Miss Phillips, but your boss is on the verge of a nervous breakdown because he can't locate his saleswoman. Come on."

"Fran! Stay—"

She slipped out.

Myles Jaffray shut the door hard on Sinclair's furious protest.

"Sorry, but we can't allow romance to interfere with your business career," he apologized.

In the stuffy, dusky repair shop he guided her between benches, stacked canvases, dismembered crates and a pile of firewood. She ignored his reference to romance though she could think of several telling retorts she would like to make.

"Why did you come this way? I expected you would appear at the entresol door."

"To avoid a one-man traffic jam. Sinclair saw me there when you went into the office. I knew he heard me say "in ten minutes' he figured he would get there first and he did."

"Let's forget him and talk business." They entered the large gallery. "The crowd has thinned. Do you really intend to buy a picture?"

"I do. I will leave the selection to you and my sister, Natalie Andrews. I will it to her. Here she is, golly, with the Terrible Tassie in tow. Now I'm in for it. Miss Trent is determined that I step into the local political fight."

"Will you?"

"More about that later. Nat"—he touched a slender woman in black on the shoulder. "I want you to meet Frances Phillips. She has sold me on the idea of buying one of these paintings for you. How are you, Miss Tassie?"

As Natalie turned to speak to her brother surprise blocked Fran's voice for an instant. Her hair was snowy white. She looked old enough to be Myles mother. She smiled and youth returned to her face and with it sensitivity, tenderness and sympathetic understanding. "I could love you," Fran told herself.

"I am a little envious of you, Miss Phillips," Natalie Andrews confessed. "It must be exciting to be assistant in this gallery."

"If you wanted it, why didn't you make Henry Sargent give you the job?" Miss Trent demanded. Her heavy eyebrows jerked up and down when she spoke. Her dress was sapphire blue. Her height was increased by black hair piled on top of her head. All it needed was a few knitting needles stuck through it to be thoroughly Chinese motif. No winder she was hatless. Nothing would remain perched on top of that hair do.

"I was talking for effect, Miss Tassie," Natalie Andrews confessed. "My days are filled to the brim now. You and Miss Phillips have met, haven't you?"

"Yes, at the Sargent difiner the other evening." Her eyebrows went into their act. "She monopolized Morrie Grove when I wanted to talk politics with him. The young people of today have no respect for their elders."

Fran's lips parted to record an astonished protest.

"Elders," Myles Jaffray repeated before she could speak. "Elders. I never expected to hear that word in regard to yourself from you, Miss Tassie. I thought you didn't believe in being age conscious."

"I don't. I think it is stupid, particularly in this day and age when the scientists claim that a child born now may, with care, easily live to be a hundred. I will admit that some persons are older than others, though. I want to talk seriously with you, Myles.

"Not here, Miss Tassie. Invite me for tea. Once when I was dropping through space and my ripcord release stuck, a vision of you pouring tea, in your stunning drawing room, flashed on the screen of my mind—you'd be amazed at the irrevalent things one thinks of at a time like that. 'Boy, keep your head,' I said aloud. 'You've got to get out of this. You want another go at Miss Tassie's fruit cake, don't you?' And believe it or not, that release came through with the works and the silk spread above me."

Miss Trent sniffed and patted his sleeve with an angular hand sparkling with diamonds in old-fashioned settings.

"Myles, you're the light of my eyes. I'm a romantic ol-almost most said old—woman, I love you. Where is the painting you are planning to buy? If I like it I will select one. Lead on, Miss Phillips. You appear to be the saleswoman."

"I won't have to lead far, Miss Trent. The picture is on the wall behind us."

For a few moments the four stood silently before the painting of a lane patterned in golden sunlight and soft green shadows cast by bordering trees.

" 'Country Lane,' I love it," Natalie Andrews approved softly. "It is soo heavenly peaceful. I knew a spot like that once. I can feel my problems folding their tents like the—"

"Is this the one you want, Matilde?" The man's voice behind her whitened Natalia Andrew's face. Myles Jaffray turned.

"How are you, Hal?" He spoke to the tall man, the classic perfection of whose face was marred by too high color, before he looked at the hatless woman in a beige frock beside him. Her rich auburn shoulder-length hair was alight with gold threads, her eyes were the green of emeralds as they defiantly met his. "I heard you were back again Matilde. Miss Phillips come to your desk and I'll write a check for 'Country Lane.' "

"Don't ignore me as if I were a returned bad penny, Myles." Matilde Sargent's red lips pouted her very long, very black lashes swept up in pleading.

"Why not?" Miss Trent's question lashed. "You are, aren't you?"

"Show me the picture you advise me to buy, Miss Phillips." Miss Trent manoeuvred Natalie Andrews and Myles ahead of them, but not before the appraisal of Hal Andrew's eyes, as they regarded Fran, had changed to eager admiration. Because of the crowd moving up to view "Country Line" they were held where they were.

"Myles has bought the picture I've set my heart on, Hal." Fran heard Matilde Sargent's impatient complaint behind her.

"That's just too bad. Let's get out of this. I've had enough."

"Poor little boy, wouldn't his ex-wife speak to him? Sometimes I suspect that you are still carrying a torch for her, Hal Andrews."

Fran's eyes were wide with surprise as they questioned those of the woman beside her.

"Miss Trent, was that—"

"You've guessed it, Natalie's divorced husband. I saw a movie The Men We Marry; there ought to be one, The Women Men Marry—but—why? Ben Sargent was a gentleman in all that word connotes—why he picked that—"

"They are quite near us, Miss Trent," Fran reminded.

"What if they are, I'm stating facts." Her reply was truculent but in a lower key. "Watch out for him, Miss Phillips, I saw his eyes on you, saw two little devils spring up in them. He's what they call a wolf these days, my dear. If he prowls after you, as he will —I know the symptoms —be dull, talk about yourself, what you think, what you do, every minute, and he'll drop you like a hot coal. That is, unless you want him on your trail?"

"After that description, Miss Trent? Not I."

"That hussy, Matilde, is here to make trouble, I'll bet my diamonds."

"I'm sorry. I like Mrs. Andrews so much, I would hate to see her made unhappy."

"Unhappy? Why? She ought to be beating the tom-tom that she is legally rid of the man. He's rich as Croesus, handsome as a Greek God, but faithless as the come. I'm not worrying about her. It's Myles. If that predatory red-headed hellion tries to rope him in, I'll wring her neck, and I mean, wring her neck."

"She can't rope him in unless he wants to be roped, can she?"

"You look too intelligent to ask such a fool question, my girl. Push through the crowd. Show me the picture you advise me to buy. Introduce me to the artist. If I like him Ill take him home to dinner."

Two hours later Fran sank into a chintz-covered wing chair in the living room of her small apartment. She kicked off her high-heeled sandals. If she were to continue in this job—and she would—flat heels were indicated. Gorgeous sky to be seen through the open west window. A breeze drifting in brought the spicy scent of the pink geraniums in the window boxes.

She was in luck to find a place that was so attractive. If Mrs. Sargent had taken an illustration as a model for the furnishings, she had chosen a good one.

"She plays for large stakes," Mrs. Sargent's voice sounded somewhere. Fran jumped to her feet and crossed to the east window from which she could see a broad expanse of ocean. "Large stakes." Was that why Gene had whispered to her "I must see you Fran. I'll drop in at your apartment after the show." She had helped her out before from the generous allowance Aunt Becky made her.

"What would you like for dinner dearie?" Mrs. Digby plump and smiling stood in the open doorway, a white apron enveloped her peppermint striped dress like a ballerina skirt. Her round face shone with color and friendliness, her blue eyes were bright with interest.

Gen. Marshall Calls For Realistic View Of Situation

Must Face Facts Without Prejudice Says Defence Chief

Washington, Oct. 28—(AP) — Defence Secretary George C. Marshall appealed today to the defence ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty organization to be "realistic in the appreciation of the present critical situation" as they shape the combined force for defence against communism.

"We must face facts without prejudice," the United States defence chief said in an address prepared for the opening of the defence committee session.

He offered some sober words of warning about what can happen if the North Atlantic countries let down in their efforts to build strong defences against communism.

"We must not sink into complacency or over-confidence, for the struggle may only have begun," he said. And then, at another point in his speech:

"What has been done so far, good as it may be, is far from enough."

The potential collective force of the United Nations was not enough to deter the aggressors in Korea. The actual collective forces of the North Atlantic states might not be enough to deter aggression in our North Atlantic area and definitely was not enough to resist attack without serious and critical initial losses.

Must Close Gap

"That gap in our military strength we must close as quickly as possible. Out of this meeting should come definite recommendations that not only will make us stronger to meet present threats but to do so more quickly than past procedure would indicate."

Marshall also proposed that the peoples of the pact members be told what each of the countries is giving to common force. The people "are entitled to a bill of particulars."

"The eyes of the whole world I imagine are focused upon this meeting today," he said. "Our citizens are eager to ascertain what forces are to be raised, how, and when and what every nation under the North Atlantic Pact will contribute. They are clearly entitled to such information."

Prime Minister Arrives in City To Unveil Tablet

Rt. Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Prime Minister of Canada, and his party, arrived in Belleville today shortly after noon from Toronto. With the Prime Minister were Madame St. Laurent, their daughter, Mrs. Mathieu Sanson, and Mr. St. Laurent's assistant, J. W. Pickersgill.

Canada's top statesman was met at the station by a guard of honor composed of members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and immediately moved to the cenotaph to lay a wreath. From there, the party proceeded to the Hotel Quinte for a luncheon. Madame St. Laurent was honored at the same time at a luncheon in the Queen's Hotel.

After the civic welcome, Mr. Fred Landon, chairman of the Historical Sites and Monuments Board, reviewed the life of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and the reason for the monument being erected.

A reception was held in the officers' mess of the Armouries immediately after the unveiling ceremonies and civic welcome.

Manslaughter Verdict Given

Sarnia, Oct. 28. (CP)—A jury Friday found James Walter Clarke 25-year-old Point Edward veteran, not guilty of murder but guilty of manslaughter in the love-triangle slaying of his pretty fiancee, Florence Anderson, last August 13.

The jury, which entered a plea for leniency, deliberated five hours and 45 minutes. It returned once to the courtroom to request a review of Clarke's testimony under cross-examination.

Mr. Justice R. W Treleaven remanded Clark until Thursday for sentence He told the jury, "I accept your verdict without any criticism."

Clarke, neatly dressed in a blue pin stripe suit, heard the verdict without visible emotion.

Earlier today, Judge Treleaven had told the jury they must find the accused innocent if they believed his story that the shooting had been an accident.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 28—(CP)—Synopsis: Skies are cloudy over Ontario and light rain is occurring in central and eastern sections. Temperatures have become unseasonably mild ending the cool spell of the past few days.

The weak disturbance centred near Lake Huron will continue slowly eastward today, followed by clearing skies over southern Ontario. Another disturbance in the mid-west is moving rapidly eastward and will cause a few showers and strong winds over Ontario tonight and Sunday. Temperatures will continue above normal on Sunday.

Former Resident Of 'Y' Shoots Kills Secretary

Atlanta, Oct. 28 (CP) — An evicted and violently disgruntled former Y.M.C.A. resident shot down and killed the general secretary on the "Y" steps Friday, then took refuge in an Evangelistic Crusade office until police came for him.

The victim was William L. Parker, 60, widely known for his Y.M.C.A. work. He died at a hospital with two pistol wounds in the head, one in the chest and two in the side.

As a half dozen stunned witnesses watched, the assailant fired upon Parker in the "Y" doorway.

Police named the pistol-wielding attacker as Ellis Hogan, 36. Police said he was thrown out of the "Y" about two years ago after threatening another resident.

School Making Progress in Study Of No. 1 Suspect in Cause of Cancer

By HAROLD W. BLAKESLEE

Kansas City, Kas., Oct. 28 (AP) —The University of Kansas Medical School is making progress in its study of the No. 1 suspect in the cause of cancer.

This suspect is nucleic acid, a substance present in all living tissues.

Dr. Robert E. Stowell, director of the Kansas University Cancer Research program, described the work yesterday.

"We are looking," Dr. Stowell said, "for the substances that control growth, because cancer is obnormal growth. It is extremely important to identify them, because we could hope to control the growth of cancers.

"The best prospect is nucleic acid and nucleo-proteins, the latter being proteins containing this acid. These nuclear proteins form the genes, which control heredity.

"We have a number of leads. We know there are two types of the acid. And that cancer cells contain excess nucleic acid. Also that X-ray and ultra-violet rays, both of which can cause cancer, alter the acid.

"The viruses that cause animal cancer likewise contain the acid. So do the particles called the 'milk factor' that cause breast cancer in mice.

"When we feed cleaning fluid to mice, the acid in the liver tissue cells decreases and the cells die. But the young cells which replace the dead tissues contain excess nucleic acid.

"Despite the excess, they do not become cancerous.

"We think some now unknown change in the nucleic acid may account for this difference, and we are just getting methods to study these changes."

CANADA SUPPORTS GEN. EISENHOWER FOR COMMANDER

University President Says He Will Accept

Washington, Oct. 28 (CP) — Canada's Defence Minister has come out for the appointment of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Supreme Commander of Allied Forces in Europe.

And, amid a growing belief that the general is slated to receive the post, Eisenhower has indicated he is willing to take on the peacetime equivalent of the job he held during the Second World War.

Brooke Claxton, here to represent Canada at today's meeting of the North Atlantic Defence Ministers, told a press conference yesterday that he knows of no one better than Eisenhower for the job of commanding a combined force to defend Western Europe.

Eisenhower, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe during the Second World War and now president of Columbia University, said that if he is named to the post "I am a soldier and will do as I am told to do."

The meeting of the defence heads of the North Atlantic Pact is expected to propose the country which will provide the supreme commander. The government of that country then would name the man for the post.

While there has been no official word of the country to select the supreme commander, it is generally believed the United States will be named and President Truman will then ask Eisenhower to assume the post.

Eisenhower today will hold conferences with the President and Army Secretary Pace.

Discuss Organization

Claxton disclosed that the defence ministers will discuss organization of the integrated defence force for western Europe and how to bring this force into being as soon as possible.

He also said they will seek ways to insure close-working relationship between the defence committee and member governments not represented on it as well as structural changes aimed at simplification of the military set-up of the organization.

Claxton also told reporters that there is a possibility that Canada's Special Force of 10,000 raised for United Nations use may not be sent to Korea as scheduled but may be trained in the United States this winter.

Because the situation is fluid, no firm decision could be made until later this year.

Asked about the possibility of Canadian troops going to Europe —a move which has been the topic of much speculation — the defence minister said it is a matter for the Canadian parliament to decide and a session is not expected to be called until next year.

Training of Canadian troops in the United States this winter would be less expensive than training in Canada because there would be no need to build expensive quarters or provide winter clothing.

Claxton said the question of sending Canadian forces to Europe will be one of the matters discussed while he is in Washington. He will then report to the Canadian government which "will consider whether it should recommend to parliament the employment of some part of the Canadian force in Europe," the possibility of which has been indicated by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Viscount Alexander's Term As Governor-General Extended For Another Year From 1951

Ottawa, Oct. 28 (CP) — The Prime Minister's office announced today an extension of the term of Viscount Alexander as Governor-General of Canada.

The announcement said the King has approved an extension for an additional year from the spring of 1951.

Viscount Alexander became Governor-General in 1946.

The statement quoted Prime Minster St. Laurent as saying he was sure the people of Canada "generally will share the gratification of his colleagues and himself that Lord and Lady Alexander have found it both pleasing and convenient to agree to this extension of their stay in Canada."

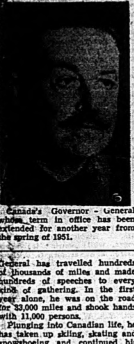
The 59-year-old Governor-General, one of the outstanding military leaders of the Second World War, developed into one of Canada's most popular Viceroys and perhaps the most widely-travelled representative of the King in Canada.

For many months, there have been persistent suggestions to the government that his term should be extended. It was understood the Canadian government took the initiative in advising the British government to recommend this step to the King.

In Office Since 1946

Viscount Alexander came here in April of 1946, a few months after triumphs as supreme allied commander in the Mediterranean theatre, an area in which he had thousands of Canadian fighting men under his command. This helped largely in cementing his associations with the people of the country.

In the 4 1-2 years since arrival in Canada, the Governor-General has travelled hundreds of thousands of miles and made hundreds of speeches to every kind of gathering. In the first year alone, he was on the road for 33,000 miles and shook hands with 11,000 persons.



Canada's Governor - General whose term in office has been extended for another year from the spring of 1951.

Plunging into Canadian life, he has taken up skiing, skating and snowshoeing and continued his other sports such as fishing, tennis and cricket. He has been a familiar figure at hockey and football games.

On occasion, Viscount Alexander has piloted the plane ferrying him from place to place and has taken over the locomotive throttle. He is both a qualified pilot and a locomotive driver getting his experience at the throttle while running trains when the army was called in during Britain's 1925 general strike.

General Assembly Reaches Half-Way Point in Meeting, Decisions Made on Two Tasks

By TOM OCHILTREE

Lake Success, N.Y., Oct. 28—(AP)—The United Nation General Assembly today reached the half-way point in its 1950 session. It has taken decisions on its two main tasks—unification and reconstruction of Korea and establishment of a veto-proof system to combat aggression.

In the view of most of the 60 delegations those two actions place a stamp of success on the last six weeks of debate. There is a general feeling—not shared by the Russian bloc—That the main oblibations of this session largely have been discharged.

The assembly still faces a docket heavily loaded with issues. Many high assembly officials feel that some of these questions will have to be put off until next fall. They are opposed to holding a session in the spring to work through the entire agenda.

Final assembly ratification has been given to the Korean resolution. While the Korean fighting now is drawing to a close, speed was essential at the time the assembly acted since the resolution gave tacit approval for Gen. MacArthur's forces to cross the 38th Parallel and occupy North Korea.

The anti-aggression plan now awaits final approval by an assembly plenary session. That approval is a foregone conclusion. The American sponsored resolution received overwhelming support in the political committee, where all members are represented, despite the efforts of the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Y. Vishinsky, to kill the plan by emasculating amendments.

Efforts Beaten Down

Various Russian efforts to oust the Chinese Nationalists from the assembly and give their seats to the Chinese communists have been beaten down during the last six weeks. The major fight on Chinese representation is still to come, however.

Linked with it are the question of Formosa's future status, an item the United States placed on the agenda, and Nationalist China's charges that the Soviet Union violated treaty agreements by aiding the Chinese communists to power.

It is doubtful whether Nationalist China's accusations will receive an airing at this session. The issue is well down on the agenda, and no other country has come forward to press for a hearing on the matter.

Atomic control is not on the docket this time, but at least one day will be set aside for discussion of the atom by an assembly plenary session. In view of President Truman's suggestion that a new approach be made by combining the atomic energy commission and the commission on reduction of conventional (non-atomic) weapons, the entire problem may touch off a long debate, observers say.

The question of Jerusalem's future, a resolution calling on Russia to give an accounting of German and Japanese prisoners captured in the Second World War and Yugoslav proposals to define aggression and provide a U.N. goodwill commission to mediate all disputes also are pending.

Two are Killed In Collision At Kingston

Kingston, Oct. 28—(CP)—Two persons were killed and one severely injured today when an automobile collided with a truck at a street intersection.

Ernest Gordon, Toronto truck driver and Mary Nichoveau, of Kingston, a passenger in the automobile, were burned to death in the collision.

Dr. H. M. Campbell of Kingston, driver of the automobile, was taken to hospital where an operation was performed in an effort to save his left leg.

Police said Dr. Campbell was driving home Miss Nichoveau, who had been baby-sitting with his children while he and Mrs. Campbell were at a Queen's University dance.

U.S. NAVY PROGRAM

Washington, Oct. 28—AP—The Navy has started a $350,000,000 ship building program and rebuilding program designed to keep the fleet up to date in the changing demands of modern sea warfare.

It was announced yesterday it has ordered construction of two experimental submarines and conversion of 25 other ships including the 27,000 ton aircraft carrier Bennington. The whole program includes some 344 ships.

DR. BOYER TURNS UP IN TORONTO, NOT GOING AWAY

Passport Lifted By Mounted Police

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP) —Dr. Raymond Boyer, wealthy Montreal chemist who once served a penitentiary term for wartime violation of Canada's official secrets act, is here today and says he has no intention of leaving Canada.

Last night, External Affairs Minister Pearson Pearson said in New York that the RCMP had lifted Dr. Boyer's passport two days ago "as a result of information which had reached the government and which led them to believe that Dr. Boyer intended to leave the country."

He did not amplify his statement.

The question of Dr. Boyer's whereabouts was brought up by Toronto newspaper stories yesterday which said he had disappeared and might be heading for Russia. A check with the RCMP in Montreal indicated that Dr. Boyer's passport had been picked up, and a further check with Dr. Boyer's friends indicated he might be vacationing in the Laurentians north of Montreal.

Dr. Boyer last night called the RCMP and announced his presence in Toronto. He also issued a statement to the Toronto Globe and Mail which said:

Did Not Apply For Visa

"I have no intention of leaving the country. I have not applied for any visas. One of the newspapers said I had applied for a visa to Finland. That is definitely not true." Dr. Boyer said he had been visiting friends here and would return to Montreal Monday.

Dr. Boyer's father, Major Guy Boyer, told The Canadian Press that his son had talked of a trip to Europe to visit friends and relatives in England and France.

Reached at his farm home at Terrebonne, Que., a few miles north of Montreal, Maj. Boyer said:

"Why, because he wants a holiday trip in Europe, should his passport be lifted?"

Maj. Boyer added: "I expect to see Prime Minister St. Laurent in a few days and will try and straighten out this situation and find out what's what. My son received his passport only a couple of weeks or so ago. I can't understand why it has been taken up. When the RCMP came here to get the passport they told me there would be no publicity . . .

"Why can't he be left in peace? My son served his time— two years."

ACQUIT GERMAN GENERAL

Paris, Oct. 28—CP—A court of French generals yesterday unanimously acquitted German General Otto Ottenbacher, 61, of war crimes. He was accused of responsibility for murders, looting and arson allegedly committed by his troops during the last weeks of German occupation. The general, who denied he was a Nazi, said he knew nothing of any atrocities committed.

Easy as Pie to Make Flying Saucer, Not Much Harder to Make it Fly

By PETE STEVENSON
Lock Haven Express Staff Writer

Lock Haven, Pa., Oct. 28 (AP)—This flying saucer business is nothing to get excited about.

It's easy as pie to build one. It's not much harder to make it fly. There is nothing mysterious about it. Any boy who builds model planes can put a flying saucer together in a couple of hours.

It took a little invention on the part of the "flying saucer department" of the Lock Haven, Pa., Express but on a recent afternoon a saucer flew over central Pennsylvania. It caused quite a stir and traffic was snarled on Main street. Here's how it's done:

Go to a shop where model planes are sold. Buy some four-foot lengths of quarter-inch Balsa wood strips and some airplane cement. At a grocery store purchase two or three rolls of aluminum foil. Get a ball of kite string and a box of balloons.

Before setting to work order a tank of helium. Then follow these instructions and you'll have a flying saucer.

Lay out a circle of Balsa strips on the carpet. Secure the ends together with string and cement. Now reinforce the circle with a couple of cross sections of Balsa. Repeat the process and you have the top and bottom of your saucer.

Cover the circle framework with aluminum foil. Use cellophane tape to secure the seams. Then fill the balloons with helium, placing them between the two circles like the meat in a sandwich. Keep the balloons inside the two circular sides by lashing the top and bottom together with string.

Make sure there are no trees or wires nearby then let her go and it will rise into the sky. Once the home-made disk is up a 100 feet or so and moves with the wind, you can't tell the difference from a genuine article.

This should settle the flying saucer problem for all time, don't you think?

Bitter Fighting Reported in Northwest Korea

UN Forces Slowed to Walk In Drive Toward Border

Seoul, Oct. 28 (AP) —Tankled North Koreans today slowed to a walk the United Nations juggernaut grinding toward the Manchurian border in northwest Korea.

The communists were fighting with reborn fury. Reports persisted that their ranks were bolstered by Chinese communists wearing North Korean uniforms.

On the northeast coast, South Koreans drove into the port of Songjin, 75 miles southeast of the border.

But more than 150 miles to the south, near liberated Wonsan, 4,000 by-passed Korean reds battled United States Marines. They ambushed one leatherneck company and cut it to pieces.

Heavy and well-organized communist opposition appeared in northwest Korea. A red convoy of 50 vehicles was reported sighted 12 miles south of the frontier town of Kanggye.

A spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said intelligence sources could neither confirm nor deny presence of Chinese communist troops in North Korea. But he said the situation is not considered alarming.

Intelligence officers expressed general belief that the "Chinese" would possibly be Manchurian-born Koreans, possibly trained in Chinese armies.

American, Commonwealth and South Korean forces found it hard going today in the northwest area along a 35-mile front extending from Kasan to Anjong —points 45 to 55 miles from the Manchurian frontier.

Far to the north of Onjong, a regiment of the South Korean 6th Division reached the Yalu River Thursday but had to pull back because the reds cut its supply road.

The Commonwealth 27th Brigade, operating just ahead of the U.S. 24th Division's 5th Regiment was forced to halt near Kasan. Two miles west of the town the British and Australian soldiers came under fire of tank-supported reds dug in on hills on both sides of the road.

Southeast of Kasan at Anju, engineers repaired a bridge across the Chongchon River for a build-up of Commonwealth and American forces.

Twenty-five miles northeast of Kasan, the South Korean 1st Division gouged out gains of three miles north and west of Unsan. But the red resistance, which forced South Korean troops into a withdrawal during a day - long fight Thursday, continued bitter.

Exile Leaves Strong Man Pining for Wives

By MILTON MARMOR

Hong Kong, Oct. 28 — (AP) — Ten months in exile have left Thailand's former strong man, Gen. Kach Songgram, homesick and pining for three of his four wives.

He has the fourth wife, a fine Cambodian beauty, with him.

The 56-year-old general once ruled Thai's army with a mailed fist. He was commander-in-chief.

But last January he was hustled out of the country, unceremoniously. His old friend, Premier P. Pibulsonggram, suspected him of plotting a coup.

Stern-faced General Kach has an ear that appears to have been chewed in a fight. Today it is a sort of reminder of the many fights he has had for his country, his politics and his Siamese way of life.

Once he lived in a fine palace in Bangkok. Today he lives in a three-room flat.

He leaves the flat only for short daily walks. Each is down a different path. Assassination is an old Oriental custom.

Only wife No. 4 is with him. All his other relatives, his three other wives and 11 children, are in Thailand. And there is where Kach's heart and thoughts are.

Kach speaks only of returning to Thailand and resuming his military life. To hear him talk one would never suspect there were any differences between him and Pibulsonggram, the man Kach made premier in 1947 with a brilliant coup.

Kach, firmly anti-communist, has asked his government for permission to fight in Korea with Siamese troops. If that is not granted, he'd like some soldierly job for Thailand, perhaps somewhere with the United Nations.

His only mistake, they say in Thailand, was that he tried to get rid of Pibulsonggram.

BULGARIA PROTESTS

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct 28 —AP—Bulgaria has protested to the United Nations that Greek troops have attacked her territory six times recently with automatic weapons, Prague radio said early today.

The broadcast said Bulgarian Foreign Minister Micho Neychev cabled the protest to U.N. secretary-general Trygve Lie.

St. Andrew's Men's Club Hears D. Baxter, MLA

"Where Are We Going?" a timely topic for United Nations Day, was ably deliberated upon by Donald Baxter, MLA, for Prince Edward-Lennox, before seventy-five members and guests at the first fall meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Men's Club this week. "Should we continue to try to suppress communism with men, ammunition and atomic bombs, through our armies, navies and air forces, or should we try to stamp it out by competing with the communistic doctrines, being meted out to smaller countries and nations, by showing those peoples that we have a better way of life and that we are willing to share that way of life through making an effort to provide them with necessities for better living that do not appear to be forthcoming from their communist sponsors?" This question was the challenge left with the audience by the after-dinner speaker. Mr. Baxter in enlarging on his topic reminded those present that in carrying democracy to less fortunate nations, citizens of Canada and the United States would have to sacrifice in order to share wholeheartedly those everyday comforts which so many countries lack under their present system. He felt that, if such a plan could become effective combating force with force would become less necessary.

Mr. Baxter was introduced to the club by Rod Cameron who briefly outlined the speaker's background, education, associations and accomplishments. Following his address, James Ward fittingly expressed the thanks of the club.

Mrs. Kane's group of the Women's Guild of the Church prepared and served the dinner. Before the speaker started his address, Mrs. Kane and her assisting ladies were asked to come forward while Mr. I. L. Moore expressed appropriately the gratitude of the club for the admirable contribution of this group.

Ron Elmey, baritone, accompanied at the plano by Cliff Templer, entertained the club with two very well chosen and well-rendered solos.

Chairman of the meeting was Wilf Richardson, president of the club. During the course of the evening the chairman welcomed new members of the organization and guests present. He also thanked the members of the executive for their support and work in planning the meeting, and to those who contributed to the program for the evening. A brief outline of plans for a November meeting was presented to those present.

Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary Holds Attractive Bazaar And Dainty Tea

Yesterday afternoon the Kiwanis Centre teemed with activity as the many patrons, friends and guests thronged the different booths of the bazaar, held under the auspices of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary. A riot of autumn colors pervaded every nook, streamed across the front of the booths in ropes, festoons, and frills of russet, gold and green, touched here and there with splashes of red, and mauve on the different tables.

Just inside the entrance sat the taker of customs, Mrs. R. Clapp, bent on extracting the customs dues to the last farthing, while nearer the colorful interior, were the receptionists Mrs. E. Fairman and Mrs. T. Franklin.

On the left, the first place of interest was a stand holding a hamper filled with all manner of food stuffs, soups, canned goods, sugar, flour, soap and almost all one needed to start the week off to a flourish. This attraction might be had by the lucky winner for the mere pittance of ten cents, provided she held the lucky ticket. This was convened by Mrs. C. Hyde and Mrs. A. Lloyd. The next booth to the left, contained anything from match holders to dainty costume jewellery; pendants, beads, earrings, waxed flower centrepieces in blue and yellow, ornamented bridge cards vases, "want" pads; a crocheted basket filled with miniature carnations, plastic trays, and many other oddments whose attractions had paled on their former owners, but judging from the numerous customers, still had power to entice. Convening this was, Mrs. A. S. Robb with her co-convener, Mrs. L. A. Kells, and their assistants, Mrs. C. Whiteman; Mrs. W. L. McDougall. At the far end of this booth sat a pink, rubber doll, dressed in a golden, knit costume, waiting to go to the lucky holder of the drawn ticket. This was donated by Mrs. W. Cook.

Knitting Booth Well Patronized

The knitting booth, convened by Mrs. A. B. Duffy and Mrs. M. Davison, co-convener, and assistants Mrs. R. Keel, Mrs. W. S. Stone and Mrs. C. L. Clarke was well patronized for its mitts, in yellow, green and white, lovely knitting bags in American Beauty with blue satin linings, all fitted up inside with pockets for the different kinds of cotton or wool; several pairs of men's socks, pretty baby bonnets in blue and pink, lacking only the dimpled face within to be complete; clothes-pin bags; bath towels in white with crocheted green lace borders, face cloths and dainty tea towels.

Next in order came the apron booth. Here were dainty tea aprons made from gossamer-like handkerchiefs with satin ties of green; pretty floral print aprons, in overall and half aprons; others were made from Paisley patterned print, and the ever favorite necktie aprons were a drawing card. The busy conveners Mrs. L. Fozard and co-convener Mrs. V. J. White, assisted by Mrs. S. Connolly, and Mrs. S. B. McKenna and Mrs. W. Laporte had few idle moments.

Luscious Cakes

The table of home cooking came next, and as soon as one box of luscious cookies, tarts, pies and cakes was placed it was taken by the eager purchaser. The pies were mouth-watering, with their mounds of meringue, the cakes with their white blankets of fresh cocoanut shreds; nut-topped cakes, short cakes, date loaves, cup cakes, taffy tarts, cocoanut meringues, not to mention the side line carried on of "a bite for 10 cents", plus a recipe of the same, known as the 'graham wafer cake; a delicious moist cake filled with shredded cocoanut, and topped with white frosting. Mrs. E. Finkle was the convener, and Mrs. W. Lockyer, co-convener, with their assistants, Mrs. J. Wood, Mrs. R. Wotten, and Mrs. H. C. Brown.

The candy booth, with its ropes of green, yellow and bronze was doing a thriving business, and the array of tiny baskets filled to overflowing with chocolate fudge maple creams, nut topped chocolates; divinity fudge and other varieties soon disappeared, as well as the larger boxes of the same variety. Convening this was Mrs. W. McCreary with Mrs. J. White as co- convener assisted by Mrs. F. Symons, Mrs. J. Cowan, Mrs. J. McIntosh.

Hard by was the plant booth with its ivy geraniums; African violets, tiny cacti, pink shamrocks reminiscent of the "little bit of heaven that fell from out the sky one day"; lovely red foliages, stately sansavari, baby tears, hen and chickens, and in the centre a bouquet of pretty pink roses, looking very realistic, but needing no water. This was a busy booth, and the convener, Mrs. G. Wallbridge and her co-convener, Mrs. S. E. Vermilyea and their assistants Mrs. W. Anderson, Mrs. F. Creeggan, Mrs. A. E. Wilson and Mrs. Musgrove, had few idle moments.

Attractive Tea Room

Upstairs was the tea room, invitingly garlanded in blue and white, with little guest tables round about the room, each ornamented by a vase of russet mums, atop a snowy cloth. The lovely tea table with its ecru Quaker lace cloth, its ornate silver services, and the gorgeous centre piece of snowy chrysanthemums mingled with the graceful fronds of scarlet salvia, and flanked by red and white candles which rose from their silver holders through lacey collars made from paper doilies, was a symphony of red and white Beyond the tea table, were the two long Chinese lace-covered serving tables, looking for all the world like a flower garden with their plates of ornamental sandwiches, some with shrimp tulips, and others wearing little pumpkin faces, while others resembled miniature pinwheels. The tiny petit fours were dreams of loveliness and object lessons in patience, too pretty to be eaten. Convening the tea table were Mrs. D. Stanton and Mrs. J. E. Logan, while pouring tea were Mrs. R. R. Stiver, Mrs. G. E. Bargar, Mrs. N. E. Edwards and Mrs. J. Marsh. Those who replenished the dainty plates; Mrs. M. Vanner, Mrs. H. C. Argue, Mrs. H. Cross, Mrs. N. Smith, Mrs. H. Trepanier, and serving, Mrs. H. Fox, Mrs. W. Cooley, Mrs. H. Craig, Mrs. T. A. Carruthers, Mrs. W. E. Jones, Mrs. H. Murray, Mrs. W. Powers, Mrs. R. H. Widdifield, Mrs. J. Walton, Mrs. J. A. Jarvis, Mrs. J. A. Sills, Mrs. W. E. Riley, Mrs. G. D. Dies, Mrs. H. G. Emerson, Mrs. G. McIntosh, Mrs. B. Lattimer and Mrs. J. Cooley. In the kitchen, Mrs. W. Cook, convener and Mrs. W. Wonnacott, co-convener, assisted by Mrs. L. Reid, and Mrs. B. Quincey.

Immaculate Cake

Upon a little table in immaculate whiteness, sat a beautiful cake, another of the royal line, gleaming with silver points, and donated by the maker, Mrs. Ross Stiver. Selling tickets on this were three ladies, Mrs. R. Pryke and Mrs. J. Thornbury, assisted by Mrs. H. Carruthers.

Much credit is due the tea and bazaar convener, Mrs. C. A. Mott and her co-conveners Mrs. S. Joss Mrs. R. E. Kuntze for a delightful tea and splendid bazaar so painstakingly planned and so successfully culminated.

Those holding the lucky ticket on the basket of groceries, the golden dressed doll and the royal cake and two baskets of apples were, respectively, Mrs. Jack Shaw, 28 Bridge St. West; Miss Maribeth Follwell, George St., Mrs. Gordon Robertson, 184 William St.; 1st basket of apples, Mrs. Jack Shaw, 28 Bridge St. West; 2nd basket of apples, Mrs. F. Symons, 24 Cedar Street, Mrs. E. Kuntze was in charge of the tea room tickets.

BMB Band Notes

By TREBLE CLEF

By BASS CLEF

Isn't it expensive to live anymore We think so too. Take ferinstance the band grant. The band room costs us $400.00 a year, transportation of instruments, stands, etc., to and from concerts, maintenance of band instruments, bandmaster's remuneration, plus the many other expenses that crop up all to soon deplete the annual grant of $2,200.00 given by the city.

(This isn't a plea for more, but a form of reply to the query, "wonder what happens to band grant.") In return for this amount an average of 30 members voluntarily spend two hours a night each week preparing for the various concerts required. And don't think Ralph Cornish didn't do a lot of work preparing his solo for "Interlude" which he played so ably on last Tuesday's broadcast. Incidently these broadcasts are a free public service feature, the air time donated by CJBQ, the music donated by your Belleville band. Did you hear last Tuesday night's broadcast by the way? Didn't know we could sing and whistle too! El Abanico added considerable variation, we thought.

As was mentioned on the broadcast we often wish television was more universal, if just for the Tuesday night broadcast. No, not for us, we prefer to be comfortable making music, but you'd get a kick out of our bandmaster. We do. What energy, what drive. But it does help us to have an even more enjoyable time even though disciplined by his mighty baton. Say, come on down some Tuesday night and see for yourself. Sit in on the broadcast and see how CJBQ remotely covers an out-of-studio program. Very neat.

Saturday morning we welcomed the Prime Minister.

Next Tuesday being Hallowe'en we don't expect there will be a broadcast as the various members of your band will be playing at their usual dance spots; however, check the newspaper radio column to be sure.

We vainly expected and hoped that requests would be pouring in for the broadcast, but, no such luck as yet. We want to please you, and can do so only if we know what you want. A letter or a phone call (2011W) will do it.

Bass Clef.

P.S. We wonder why the members of B.C.I. band are forbidden to sit in on our Tuesday night affairs? We're sure it wouldn't interfere with their other activities.

Obituary

CHARLES W. CRONKWRIGHT (Trenton)

Trenton — Charles Wesley Cronkwright died suddenly at his son's home, 48 McCann street in Trenton, Friday, in his 76th year. Born the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Cronkwright, his home address was 386 Bridge street, Belleville.

Mr. Cronkwright was a retired farmer, and had lived all his life in the Belleville-Trenton district. He is survived by his wife, the former Annie Elizabeth Woodcock and his family, whose names were not available.

Resting at his son's home, 48 McCann street, Trenton.

Funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Reception Held For Supt.-in-Chief St. John Brigade

Miss Margaret McLaren, superintendent-in-chief of the St. John Ambulance, who has been inspecting Nursing Divisions in the district this week, stopped in Belleville for a day recently.

Miss McLaren was accompanied by the provincial superintendent, Mrs. G. W. Blaikie, the provincial nursing officer, Mrs. Ethel Anderson and Miss Hutchinson, lady superintendent from Ottawa.

Inspection of the local division took place at 4.30 in the afternoon, with a candle-lighting ceremony and a recitation of the Cadet Code of Chivalry. Miss McLaren told the Cadets of work being done in other centres—voluntary hospital duty, baby sitting, knitting and other volunteer services.

In the evening, Nursing Division No. 150 held a reception for the visitors, and Mrs. R. J. McLuskie, lady superintendent of the division, introduced the officers. Home Nursing Certificates were presented to Mrs. Laura Valleau, Miss Bessie Buckley, Mrs. Alice Reid, Mrs. Velma Wager, Mrs. Miriam Marriott, Mrs. Ruth Raymond, Mrs Ada H. MacDonald, Mrs Vera Shier, Mrs. Irene Ketcheson, Mrs. Adeline Haley, Mrs. Helen Wright and Miss Alice Graf.

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of the Priory Vote of Thanks by Miss McLaren to Mrs. L. Ashley, in appreciation of her efforts in the Cadet Division, and for her work in first aid training with youth organizations of the city.

Two films shown by Miss Hutchinson dealt with a visit to England and the Winnipeg Flood. The latter depicted the work done by St. John Ambulance workers during the catastrophe.

A lunch was arranged in honor of the visitors by the members of the Division. Mrs. (Col.) W. N. Ponton and Mrs. Frank Cushing, both former superintendents of the Belleville division, presided over the tea table.

Dr. Minkler Discusses Aims Of Education as Teachers Hold Annual Convention

The Belleville Teachers' Institute held their annual convention at Queen Alexandra School on Friday. The participating teachers were the Belleville public school teachers and the Belleville and Trenton separate school teachers.

After the devotional period which was led by Mr. Allen Boate, the president, Miss Olive Elson, welcomed the members to their convention. Inspector L. A. Kells introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Minkler, who is the inspector of schools for North York.

Dr. Minkler gave a very practical address on some phases of our modern educational system. He commended Inspector Kells and the Belleville teachers for the progress they had made in their curriculum building program. Dr. Minkler discussed the aims of education and later presented some fallacies of modern educational thinking to his audience for their consideration.

Philosophy Always Changing

He stressed the fact that educational philosophy was always changing and that a teacher must be constantly alert to be progressive. Any teacher practising theories of education which were acquired some years ago was not doing his job according to modern standards. The speaker stated that children should be responsible for their actions insofar as their maturation permitted. Children should not be led to believe that successful attainments were either easy or constant but that every person should know success and such success would be more appreciated after a failure.

The remainder of the morning session was devoted to a film lesson demonstration by Mrs. Wanda Sine and a forum on curriculum building by Mr. C. I. Frederick, Mr. E. S. Fairman, and Mr. W. G. Anderson. Mr. Frederick discussed the need of a curriculum building program, and the aims and objectives of the teachers so engaged. Mr. Fairman spoke on primary reading, while Mr. Anderson dealt with a new phase, conservation and map reading.

Mr. J. C. Doyle, inspector of separate schools, expressed his pleasure and the gratitude of himself and his teachers at being a part of the convention.

Discussion Groups

The afternoon session was made up entirely of workshops when the teachers divided into groups and entered into discussion of the various subjects. The workshops conducted with the leaders were as follows:

Visual Aids—Sister Mary Verda, Mr. H. R. Frink; Art—Miss Jean Price, Miss Alice Heasman; Music—Miss Phyllis May; Subject Matter in Primary Grades—Sister Mary Timothy, Miss Bernice Blue; Primary Reading, Miss Norma Arkles; Subject Matter in the Junior Grades, Mr. J. E. Bateman; Health and Physical Education, Mr. F. J. Dier; Conservation, Inspector R. H. Macklem; Map Reading, Mr. W. C. Burgoyne.

The Kiwanis Ladies' tea at the Kiwanis Centre brought the day to an enjoyable end.

Early History of the Moira Valley

From Moira Valley Conservation Report

MILLS AND INDUSTRY

(9th Instalment)

The war had given a stimulus to flour milling, saw milling and distilling. It had increased the demand for lumber particularly for ship building. This demand did not end with the war, although the number of armed vessels kept on the lakes was reduced by 1818 by the Rush-Bagot agreement. The shipyard at Kingston was kept open, private ship-building was increasing and the British demand for timber grew steadily greater.

The extensive programs of refortification, road improvement and canal-building helped to keep the local lumber trade active, even during the inevitable slump which followed the peace. The market for flour, both at home and abroad, also continued to grow on the whole during the twenties and the competition for millsites was strong throughout the period. Soon the "Yankees" were once more competing with the Canadians and newcomers for valuable "mill privileges." Most of those on the lower Moira, however, appear to have gone to Loyalists from the Midland district in this period.

The replies to the "Queries" do not give the number of saw mills and grist mills in Thurlow in 1818; but there seem to have been at least three or four grist mills and perhaps twice as many saw mills. There was still a distillery at Meyer's Mills, though it may now have been under the management of one of his stepsons, while other stepsons and two grandsons were helping to run the mills. In 1821 John C. Striker (probably a son of Meyer's second wife) was licenced as a distiller, while John W. Meyer was only licenced as a "shopkeeper to retail spirituous liquors." However Meyer's goods at his death in 1823 included the equipment of a still house as well as the stock of a store. See Ontario Bureau of Archives Report, 1913, p 298 and Ont. Hist. Soc. Vol. 31. There were two carding and fulling outfits in the township, one probably at Belleville and the other at Cannifton. Cloth was still woven by hand either in the farm houses or by professional weavers working at home. The only other craft mentioned was blacksmithing.

The inhabitants of Thurlow had given the small population and scarcity of money as the factors retarding the improvement of the township in 1818 and 1836 the same reply would probably have been given, at least with regard to the country as a whole, but the gradual infiltration of capital during the period is plainly indicated by the growth of industry along the river. Elmore's map of 1836 shows six grist mills in Thurlow besides the five in the village — 9 grist mills and 12 saw mills in all. The grist mills were Daniel and Joseph Canniff's grist and saw mills on opposite sides of the river above the Cannifton bridge; Read's grist mill at Corbyville; Latta's grist and saw mills at Latta; Thompson's mill at Halloway and Bowerman's grist mill on Number Ten Creek, near Zion Hill. The remaining saw mills were Jonas Canniff's in the second concession, near Lazier's dam; Read's in the sixth, east of Foxboro; Carter's, opposite Latta's Mills and Thorn's above Bowerman's Hill, on Number Ten Creek in the seventh concession. There were no mills on the Moira in Huntingdon, but in Hungerford there was Trumpour's saw mill in the seventh concession, west of Chapman and Munroe's saw and grist mills on the site of Tweed. Mackenzie's mills were still the only ones in Madoc. Altogether eleven grist and fifteen saw mills were running on the Moira in 1836.

There were two carding mills in Belleville, but we have no account of other industries on the river above Belleville, except Prendergast and Seymour's iron works at Madoc, which had been built in 1836. Probably, however, there were the usual number of distilleries, asheries, and tanneries as well as smithies and wheelwrights' shops. The average backlots settler could still supply his family with most of their needs at home, but that dependence on specialists was growing as evidenced by the long list of industries and tradesmen already established at Belleville by 1836.

Villages

P. V. Elmore's Map of the Midland District, published in 1836, shows no villages in the Moira Watershed except Belleville and "Mackenzie's" in Madoc. This does not mean that no clusters of houses had grown up near the various mills which Elmore marks on his map or at the corners of the many roads which are also indicated, but only that none of these had reached a sufficiently advanced stage of growth to be recognized as villages and dignified by a name or a post office. Probably there was some beginning of settlement by 1835 on the sites of most of the villages in the southern part of the watershed, but these settlements cannot yet be considered to have had a separate entity.

Belleville

"Meyer's Creek," however had been definitely a village, though a small one, for some years before the war and now received official recognition. A second attempt in 1812 on the part of James McNabb to get the reserve on Lot 4 removed and a townsite surveyed there had been more successful. The fact that a town of some size was likely to grow up at the mouth of the river was now acknowledged, but any action had to be postponed until after the war.

In 1816 McNabb finally managed to get the survey carried out. More than 150 acres of the reserved lot were laid out in a townplot along the west bank. The basis of the plan was an oblong gridiron with four streets (Front, Pinnacle, Church and "Rear" Streets. Most of the "Rear" Street, which ran along the eastern boundary of the Crown Reserve Lot, has disappeared in the modern layout and the remnant has been named Hillcrest Avenue. When Lot 5 was subdivided the streets were laid out on a slight angle and, since John Street was close to "Rear" Street and gradually converged into it, the southern portion of "Rear" Street has become superfluous, running north and south and a number of short east and west cross streets. This was applied without much regard for the variations of level and modifications were necessary from the first; some streets being cut short and some cross streets omitted altogether, while others were only carried through by using grades of considerable steepness.

About three quarters of the new layout was on the lower ground and at least a quarter was exposed to flooding and "ice shoves" (Robert Gourlay: "Statistical Account of Upper Canada." See also the section "Former Floods" in Part IV, Chapter I of this report.) Probably it was intended that the west side of Front Street would not be continuously built up but be left for wharves and occasional warehouses, etc., as was the case at that time with Front Street at York (Toronto.) However, such notions smacked too much of spaciousness of the Georgian Age to meet with favor in the Victorian, and within a generation this side of the street began to be lined with permanent buildings.

The new plot was divided into 300 half acre lots, which were granted on condition that a stone, brick or frame house be built on each lot within two years. Space was reserved on the hill for government buildings, two churches, a hospital and a schoolhouse. It was evidently expected from the first that Belleville would be the chief centre of the district. (The contract for surveying the village plot of "Fredericksburg on the Bay of Quinte", "Sandhurst", in 1822 mentions "the unusual reservation for public purposes . . that is for an Episcopal church, parsonage and burying ground, market place and public parades." The inclusion of sites for a court house, schoolhouse and hospital mark Belleville as the future "seat" of a district or county. If any "public parades" were laid out at Belleville their location is unknown.) Since there were already several buildings on the townplot with their yards and gardens, the owners had to be confirmed in possession of the area which contained their improvements. These were scattered at random along the line of Dundas Street and the road to Meyer's Mills. The mill road probably fixed the line of Front Street and the need to respect existing properties was responsible for some of the departures from the regular gridiron layout.

The place was first called "the town of Moira," but only for a month or so, for on August 3rd, 1816, Lieutenant Governor Gore, who had been asked to settle the name, signified his pleasure "that the new town on the River Moira shall be called Belleville." "Bell" was then the most usual diminutive of Arabella, the name of the Governor's wife, but the more elegant "Belle" seems finally to have been preferred, and a post office for "Belleville" was opened soon after with James McNabb as postmaster. (Belleville may have been suggested to the Governor by the inhabitants in honor of Colonel Bell. Whoever changed the spelling showed good taste. "Belleville" is much better than "Bellville" or "Arabellaville."))

In 1818 there were about 150 people living in Belleville. Meyer's saw and grist mill was still the only one of its kind, but there was now a carding mill and fulling mill as well. The village consisted of between 20 and 30 dwellings, two taverns and two or three shops. For a few years it grew slowly but after 1825 things went better. By 1829 Belleville was a large village for the time, and during the next seven years it developed still more rapidly. This was to some extent a "boom" period for the Province as a whole and the townships along the Bay of Quinte were among the most prosperous. There was a ferry connecting Belleville with Ameliasburg township in the 1830's and probably much earlier. Belleville was thus in a position to serve as the trading centre for much of Prince Edward County as well as for Hastings.

During the twenties the village gradually acquired the attributes of a town. Churches were the first public buildings to be added to the taverns, stores and houses which had hitherto made up the settlement. A Methodist congregation seems to have been organized very early, but in 1818 there were no resident clergymen in Belleville and both Methodist and Anglicans had to depend on the services of circuit-riders and travelling missionaries.

Decoration Scheme Causes Objections

Lindsay, Oct. 28 — (CP) — Reeve J. C. Kingsborough said Friday the decoration scheme of the courthouse here isn't going to be changed — even, though a judge and several lawyers object to the color of the paint.

Judge J. A. McGibbon said Thursday that the "salmon pink" courtroom "looks like a ladies' boudoir or a beverage room."

Said Reeve Kingsborough:

"The painting is finished as far as I know, there won't be any changes made. Anyway, the color isn't pink; it's orange terra cotta, sometimes described as a restrained red."

HIS PRIDE IN BELLEVILLE

In the death of William Charles Mikel, K.C., there has passed a citizen who never overlooked an opportunity of exalting the City of Belleville in the eyes of the citizens and of the people of the Province and the Dominion. He strove to make the people proud of their community and of its history and never failed to seize an opportunity of bringing the name of Belleville before the wider public of Ontario and Canada, so certain was he of the city's future.

No one knew Belleville and its history as well as Mr. Mikel did. He was ever jealous of its good name and early had visions of its future expansion. He was tireless in impressing upon people everywhere the great foundation this country possessed in the United Empire Loyalists.

Unceasingly he impressed the conviction in his mind of the good fortune of those who were privileged to grow up or live in this district. He helped to encourage local pride and never failed to impress this fact on his fellow-citizens, so intense was his faith in the future of this portion of the Dominion.

Old Boys' reunions always received his tireless support. He loved Belleville present and past and worked in the planning for these gatherings which brought so many former residents back to meet their old friends.

This faith of Mr. Mikel in his native city remained within him throughout his long life.

His career was an active and busy one. He found time to serve the community as alderman and mayor. He was magistrate and latterly he was Local Master of the Supreme Court.

From his knowledge and store of data of local historic interest and records he compiled and published the volume, "City of Belleville History."

Mr. Mikel will long be remembered in Belleville and this district.

ATTRACTIONS IN CANADA

That Canadians should show tourists that they will find in this country a distinctively Canadian atmosphere has been the theme of talks by Mr. Leo Dolan of the Canadian Travel Bureau and of many observers. They say that visitors from other countries during the holiday season are likely to prefer something that is different from what they have in their own land. They want to see everywhere a distinctively Canadian scene.

Canada has many things which will lend her distinction and these it is felt visiting tourists prefer to see instead of things which are familiar to them in their own country.

That Canada has such attractions, Canadians must admit, especially if they tour in Canada with its treat variety of territory which shows itself Canadian on every hand as in her woodlands and in some sections where there are native arts developed to the fullest extent.

Even Canadians do not know their own country as they might know it. It is a country of great and varied appeal from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes and the Forty-Ninth Parallel to the Arctic sea. Those who have taken long journeys in Canada come back filled with wonderment at the extent and range of the country and the infinite variety of its attractions.

It is a fact that every country is largely individual and has distinctive characteristics which set it apart as a land to be admired for its great range or variety of climate, resources and type of country. Indeed Canada is so large and so varied that few if any Canadians thoroughly know it from coast to coast and from the southern boundary to the Arctic north.

To know more of the great variety of attractions in this favored land should appeal to every Canadian.

It is a fact that newcomer immigrants can see distinction everywhere in such a land as the Dominion of Canada. That is natural because it differs so greatly from their own homelands. Seeing through the eye of such folk might well be imitated by Canadians who are so accustomed to their country that they miss great varieties of attractions which have drawn outside settlers to so wide a range of territory.

INTELLIGENCE

R. M. Yearkes of Cornell University, back in 1914, discovered a worm could learn to crawl through a maze, says Ottawa Journal. If it went the right way it found nutritious dirt; the wrong way meant an electric shock. He continued the experiment with other worms, performing the delicate operation of removing their brains to prove they would follow the correct path without them. This leads us to the inevitable question how a scientist engaged in such profound studies would behave if his brain was removed.

It is far more important to me to preserve an unblemished conscience than to compass any object however great. — Channing.

I have often maintained that fiction may be much more instructive than real history. — John Foster.

The officers and members of the 156th Battalion Veterans' Association will hold a reunion dinner at the Manitonna Hotel, Brockville, on Saturday evening, November 8th. A number of former members who now reside in this city will attend the function which promises to be the most successful in the history of the Association. Lt.-Col. C. C. D. Bedell, one of the vice-presidents, is now practising medicine in Bloomfield, while other officers live in the Bay of Quinte district.

Mr. W. A. Jannings of the Department of Education, Toronto, was at Belleville C.I. & V.S. yesterday on his regular inspection visit.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 28th., 1920.

The Navy League Campaign in this city is off to a good start and the canvassers are being well received. The following are the captains of the teams: Corbyville, W. J. Hume; Industries, A. F. White; Foster Ward, E. D. Finkle; Ketcheson Ward, Col. A. P. Allen; Samson Ward, E. Dickens; Baldwin Ward, B. F. Jennings; Bleecker Ward and G.T.R., Ald. Adams; Coleman and Murney Wards, Ald. Hannah. It is expected that $5,000 will be raised in Belleville.

Mr. Fred Watkins of Toronto is visiting friends in the city.

Mr. W. J. Embury of Deloro spent Sunday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Embury, Cedar Street.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 28th., 1910.

Last evening the members of the Ontario Athletic Club held their annual meeting and banquet at James Wallace's restaurant and the affair was most enjoyable. Mr. W. Thomson presided and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, W. Wallace; vice-president, G. Wardrope; secretary, A. McGie; treasurer, A. Moore. The club will enter a team in the Junior Hockey Association.

Mr. R. E. Davis and Mr. C. W. Card of the Farmer's Bank, Trenton, have been transferred to the branch of the Farmer's Bank in this city.

Messrs. Tom Ketcheson and A. Ostrom of this city and G. G. Publow of Kingston, will leave tomorrow for Weslemkoon Lake on a deer hunt.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 28th, 1900.

"A Romance of Coon Hollow" will be the attraction at the opera house on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Harry Carre spent yesterday in town with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carre, Albert Street. He is en route to Winnipeg, having been transferred to the Merchants Bank in that city.

The Rev. W. J. Smith, Toronto, well known in Belleville, has been invited to become pastor of Colborne Street Methodist Church, Brantford.

Mr. J. L. Tickell went to Stirling today on business.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

As a rule you see far more game when you are not hunting than when you are. This is true for several reasons. When you are hunting, you usually go cautiously and slowly. It stands to reason that wild creatures can detect your approach no matter how cautiously you go. And since you are going slowly, they have plenty of time to move away to one side and let you pass.

Another reason lies in the fact that your very stealth suggests danger to the wild creatures. If they are familiar at all with human beings they expect them to be proceeding noisily and carelessly. To detect one of these lords of creation moving stealthily must naturally rouse suspicion and fear in game.

A French-Canadian backwoodsman of my acquaintance never goes short of deer and partridge in the fall. And here is his method. During the summer, he goes for regular tramps across the four mile square area that supplies him with most of his game. He follows regular routes, and walks them openly and without any attempt at concealment, though all the time alert for signs such as the tracks of deer, the dusting spots of partridge.

Every creature in the territory is, therefore, well-acquainted with the sight, sound and scent of him. And they expect him to follow his routine.

When the hunting season arrives, he takes his shotgun or rifle and marches openly and without stealth along the various paths he took in the summer. But at frequent intervals, he abruptly leaves the path, to right or to left, and, walking at his usual gait, thus makes unexpected detours of a few hundred yards into copse, around swamp, through bush.

And the surprised deer or partridge or fox that was lying — as all these creatures lie — in its accustomed place to watch the man go by, is caught unawares, lies low for a disorganized instant or two, then leaps— too late.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HEED TRAFFIC SIGNS

Did you ever by mistake get on a one-way street and find to your consternation that you were running against the flow of traffic

Everybody begins to blow his horn, to point out the right way to you, to roll down his window and give you the benefit of his full equipment of uncomplimentary language. You are going the wrong way on a street that was definitely marked, and you should have known better.

Nobody wants to get into a jam of this sort and practically nobody ever does intentionally. Likewise, when we find ourselves in some sort of trouble in life, the horns begin to blow and the know that we are in the wrong.

Here are simple examples of what happens. We said we could handle our liquor but the day came when we found we could not, and everybody was ready to curse us for our worthlessness. We only meant to borrow a little money from the firm's drawer and put it back later, but things went wrong and our accounts were short. In a moment when we scarcely knew what we were doing, we allowed some passion to sweep us off our feet—and now the consequences.

Watch out for one-way streets. The Bible is full of them. They are definitely marked. The universe will take its revenge on you if you do not heed the traffic

Izaak Walton Dissents

(Hamilton Spectator)

Ohio's department of wildlife has issued a buuletin in which some startling statements are made as regards angling. It classifies fishermen into two types—the keen, simon-pure angler who braves all kinds of weather, and the torpid, eaiy-going fellow who "just fishes."

Based on a statewide survey and questionnaire, the bulletin sets forth the collective viewpoint of the most ardent enthusiasts who claim that it is impossible to catch fish worthy of the name unless an angler fishes, unmindful of the hour and the season, and is prepared to endure some measure of discomfort. The rewards come in landing the fighting and speckled beauties.

These hardy he-mannish angglers do not conceal their contempt for those softies who wait for a nice sunny day, do not rise too early, and pick a turfy spot on the slope of a bank, there to invite the soul and puff on a corncob while the line bobs and drifts where it may. Your real fishermen has no respect for such idlers, implies the Ohio bulletin, but it admits that the "Buckeye State" has a considerable share of the "lazy ones."

It is to be doubted that Izaak Walton would subscribe to the dicta of the modern school who advocate virile and strenuous activity. For Izaak appeared to be a bit selective about the weather, as witness to his amiable hope that the east wind may never blow when an honest angler goes a-fishing. Again he pronounced angling to be like the virtue of humility, which has a calmness of spirit and a world of other blessings attending upon it. It begets habits of peace and patience in those that profess and practise it.

Nothing there about getting your britches wet if you hope to catch trout; no shivering in a small boat before the sun has more than peeped over the horizon. Those "habits of peace and patience" and the "calmness of spirit" all suggest the cushioned sunny bank on a day when the elements are benign and Nature is in her rocking chair.

The lazybones who just smokes and fishes—and frequently dozes —may not go home at evening with a full creel. But he's had a heap of contentment and his feet are at least dry. If his good wife has prepared him a steaming dish of beef and vegetables, he may feel that all his time has been well-spent—and a raspberry to those who prefer the cold, swift waters.

Secret Service Men Requested To Find Scientist

Harwell, England, Oct. 27. (CP) —Britain called in United States and French Secret Service men for conferences today on the search for Professor Bruno Pontecorvo, missing atom scientist whose knowledge could aid an enemy power.

Agents of the three nations met in a locked room at Britain's atomic research station here, 60 miles west of London, to discuss the case of Pontecorvo, who vanished with his wife and three children in Finland, Sept. 2.

The talks were believed to centre around these points:

Extent and nature of the secret information Pontecorvo could have carried out of the country.

A check-up of his movements and the people he knows both in Britain and across the continent.

Methods of finding him.

Most British newspapers and government officials suspect Pontecorvo is in Russia. He held a position of trust and responsibility in Harwell.

The missing atom man specialized in the study of cosmic rays, a field related to atom research which has greatly interested both American and Russian researchers.

Justice Kellock Meets Rail and Union Officials

Montreal, Oct. 28 — (CP) —Mr. Justice R. L. Kellock of the Supreme Court of Canada, government arbitrator in the dispute over railway wages and working hours, met with railway and union officials Friday for the first time.

Judge Kellock was appointed when the two major Canadian railways and non-operating railway employees were unable to reach an agreement in their dispute last August which sent 124,000 non - operating employees out on a nine-day strike.

One of the stumbling blocks during negotiations was the date for inauguration of the 40-hour, five-day week. Neither railways nor unions could agree on this and on how much the wage in-

Mayors Request Govt. to Bear Welfare Costs

Toronto, Oct. 28 — (CP) — The Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves Friday asked Premier Frost to act in conjunction with the Federal government to relieve municipalities of the costs of indigent relief, public welfare, education, housing, civil defence, justice and provincial highways.

"This Association is adamant in its opinion that piecemeal concessions on the part of the province only complicate the situation and afford no permanent or satisfactory solution," the group declared in a brief presented to the premier.

The delegates contended that no solution to financial problems of municipalities can be found without active participation by the province.

New Police Chief Makes Inspection Of Police Force

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 27—(CP)— Windsor's new acting police chief, Edwin V. McNeill, continued an inspection tour of police headquarters and the police force today. His guide was former Police Chief Claude Renaud, dismissed by police commission Wednesday.

Acting Chief McNeill, a provincial police staff inspector, arrived to take command of the force yesterday with the promise that he could do "anything I can do to strengthen the force."

He met the two police officers—Chief Renaud and Deputy Chief W. H. Neale—dismissed by the commission in its drive to get new, alert leadership of the force.

Renaud is expected to remain as an adviser to the acting chief until he becomes acquainted with the workings of the force.

McNeill said he had no "preconceived notions" of what he would do.

McNeill will be present at Monday's meeting of the police commission, when plans are expected to be begun on a further reorganization of the force and its methods.

CHINA SENDS TROOPS

Taipei, Formosa, Oct. 27—(AP) — Pro-nationalist reports from the Chinese mainland today said the communists are sending 30,000 regular troops to aid the Vietminh rebels in Indo-China.

The reports — not confirmed — said the troops are from red Gen. Liu Po-Cheng's army.

FALSE CONVICTIONS TROUBLESOME AND EXPENSIVE

Whatever is, is. What you may think it is does not change the facts. If, a cat has kittens in an oven, you may think of them as biscuits, if you wish to, but they are kittens nevertheless. If you have cancer of the stomach, wishing and believing that you have merely an ulcer, has no effect whatever on the cancer.

If you have pulmonary tuberculosis and it pleases you to think that you are merely overworked or "tired," the effect of your conviction is not registered on the tuberculosis. Physical diseases do not change their character to coincide with one's convictions or beliefs.

If a child has a low grade rheumatic fever and the parents are convinced that the child is suffering from "growing pains", the child has rheumatic fever nevertheless. A disorder which one may conclude "doesn't amount to anything," may actually be the beginning of a very serious malady. Ignoring a disorder does not dispose of it. I you have something the matter with you, it makes no difference whatever what you think about it. Diseases of physical nature are not influenced by thought.

A patient who goes to a doctor with the conviction that he (the patient) understands the cause and nature of his ailment is almost invariably off his rocker. Many persons conceive a certain "mechanism"—one which is perfectly simple to them—to be involved in their disorders, and are very quick to explain their complaint in these terms to the doctor. Very often, their ideas are ridiculous, even if pathetic.

Thus, it is common for a patient who thinks he has a "cold", to explain in some detail to the doctor that he was "chilled," or got into a "draft". That's what he thinks. The patient with a rousing bellyache takes up a lot of time to explain to the doctor that he loves knackwurst and ate too much of it. That's what he thinks. The patient who sprained his arm tells the doctor it is useless to have an X-ray; there is no fracture. That's what he thinks.

The patient with a bowel obstruction, figures all he needs is a "good" physic. That's what he thinks. The man who is getting deaf figures that everybody is whispering to him. That's what he thinks. The diabetic concludes that he can eat all the honey he wants—as long as it is not sugar. That's what he thinks. And thousands of geeks assume that their disinclination to work, their headaches, their aches and pains in general are caused by "poison" which can be routed by taking a laxative which either works quickly or works while they sleep. That's what they think.

One could go on endlessly with this list. My point in mentioning it is this: When one pauses to consider that the most highly educated and accomplished physicians—men who have spent their entire lives in the practice of medicine—live a life of relative anguish because of full appreciation of their own ignorance, what chance does the amateur, the novice, have of trying to understand his own disorders? Or anybody else's?

Many disorders are simple things to thousands of persons. Nothing is simple to a physician. A person will best serve his own interests by not having very strong medical opinions about anything. The man who wouldn't dream of poking into the mechanism of a television apparatus, has no resitancy whatever in diagnosing a disorder in a mechanism a million times more involved—the human body.

Don't monkey with the television and don't monkey with yourself. Call somebody who stands a chance of knowing something about these things. And then, turn the job over to him. You will be paying him for what he thinks. He won't be interested in what you think.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Urinalysis

Please send me one of your pamphlets on urinalysis. Am interested in uremic poisoning and its causes. Can it result from ...? (E. S. W.)

Answer—You're getting in over your head. Better leave that to your physician.

Fine Red Lines Over Face

I am 36. I have just noticed fine red lines interlacing over cheeks and base of nose. I think they are little blood vessels. (Miss T. M. W.)

Answer—They are. Physician skilled in diathermy technique can obliterate them with electrodesiccation or more extensive broken blood vessels may be obliterated by micro-injection, which in miniature is equivalent to the injection treatment of varicose veins. This is tedious for both patient and physician, but what's a little tedium where personal appearance is concerned? Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Cosmetic Blemishes.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

"BACKWARD, TURN BACKWARD"

In the poem by Elizabeth Akers Allen entitled "Rock Me To Sleep," the first two lines are:

"Backward, turn backward,
O Time in your flight,
Make me a child again, just for tonight."

These lines came to me after a summer vacation in the quiet of pines, hemlocks, rocky shores, mossy paths and the serenity of surrounding water. They also made me return in memory to the beauty of the countryside, and to the farm where I worked as a boy and heard the whip-poor-will the night hawk,, the killdeer, and the night calls from the frogs in the pond.

Back in the city, with its heavy traffic and congestion, and its continual noises, those lines by Mrs. Allen kept ringing in my ears. In my memory I returned to the plough, heard the neighing of the horses, the mooing of the cows, and the early cackling of the hens. And I could feel the dew upon my bare feet at early dawn, and get the smell of hay and grain in the barns.

The fragrance of the good earth ,that is all about one in the wide open spaces, is something with which no city dweller is acquainted. Only occasionally does he ever glimpse an early sunrise, or the glory of a celestial sunset. Nature's songs are alien to him. He is a stranger to the quiet and peace of the night. How many of us would like to return to the joy of those days upon the farm, or the little town, where neighbors are friends, and where there is a community of thought and interest!

When I note the increasing number of great apartment houses—hundreds of feet in the air, and housing thousands of people in our large cities, I think such homes lose so much, in contrast to those with all nature wrapping them in its arms! I believe there are thousands like myself who have migrated to the city, who never lose that nostalgic feel for the days of youth on the farm or in the small town.

What multitudes have come from the environment of these farms and small places, taking their places in the cities later as leaders and builders, inspired by those early memories and experiences!

Colored Lights Puzzle Indians At the Pas

The Pas, Man., Oct. 28 (CP) — Stories of a stationary red light in the sky over the eastern section of Hudson Bay have found a parallel near this northern Manitoba town.

A similar phenomenon was reported last week over the Indian reservation just north of here. But there were two lights — and they were variously reported as being green or red.

Chief Cornelius Bignell of The Pas Indian tribe said he saw "two green lights, about half a mile apart, proceeding in a northerly

"The second light overtook the first and, as they came together, both disappeared."

The chief's wife also saw the display, which they said lasted about 10 seconds.

The chief's son, George, was at the other side of the reservation at the same time. He said he saw two bright objects in the sky; but they were red.

A possible solution was offered by the weather station here: Balloons are released at regular intervals and at night they carry a small white light. However, weather officials said no colored lights are released from the station.

Graduates Enter New Phase Of Life, Education Supervisor T[illegible] B.C.I. Commencement

A packed auditorium at the lleville Collegiate last night ard A. G. Hooper, M.A., supervisor of secondary education in the province, tell the graduating class that he had two things to offer them—congratulations and a challenge.

"This is a new phase in the lives of those who are graduating," Mr. Hooper said. "I hope that the success you won in this school will be an indication of greater successes to come." He told the parents of the graduating class that they could be justly proud of their sons and daughters, and reminded the graduates that their parents were "co-partners" with them, and were "entitled to a full share of these congratulations".

He further extended the congratulations to the principal and achers of the school because "in 50 B.C.I.V.S. passed 90 per cent of its grade 13 examinations, and won six Dominion-Provincial bursaries — a very fine record, of which you may all be proud."

Stronger Bodies

Mr. Hooper told the grads that their high school life should have given them stronger and healthier bodies, a mind trained to store facts and reason from them, preparation for public service, an ability to get along in a social fashion, and a training in character.

Mr. Hooper told the grads: "You will have to work and work hard if you hope to succeed." Training in character, he said, will bring with it honor, kindness, consideration, courage, faith and high leals.

"Be men and women of strong dies and sound minds, of high eals and Christian character", said. "Then, and only then, you will be worthy graduates of your school."

Mr. Hooper was introduced by Mr. G. E. Currie, principal of the collegiate, and an appreciation for his address was voiced by James Musgrove.

Valedictorian was Miss Patricia Smith, who told her fellow graduates that "after five years of joy, we say goodbye to B.C.I. We must give up being boys and girls and be full grown men and women." Miss Smith is now attending the University of Toronto.

Spent Happiest Days

"We have spent our happiest days in this school," Miss Smith said. "The disappointments and frustrations fade, and only the joy and memories remain."

Miss Smith said that the graduates would always remember the teachers for their generosity and consideration, and extended "a sincere and heartfelt tribute" for their efforts.

"Tonight we leave B.C.I. & V.S." she said "for an uncertain future in a troubled world."

Mr. Enos David, chairman of the Board of Education, presided over the exercises, and congratulated the graduates on their fine showing. Immediately before Mr. Hooper's speech, a choral ensemble offered "Our Alma Mater," "Bless This House", "The Blind Ploughman," and "Skip to My Lou." Also an instrumental quartet played "The Minstrel Boy" and "The Spacious Firmament."

The exercises were followed by a graduation dance in the gymnasium.

Following is lists of graduates and prize winners:-

ASSEMBLY POSTPOND

Seoul, Korea, Oct. 28 — (Reuters) — Only 62 of the 210 members of the South Korean National Assembly appeared here for a special session today. Many had been delayed by transport difficulties.

This was 43 short of the required minimum for an Assembly meeting, and the proposed session had to be postponed.

About 32 members of the Assembly are believed to have been abducted by the communist forces and taken to the north.

Rev. R. J. D. Morris Portrays Picture of Total Missions

Marmora—At a sectional rally of United Church congregations of Madoc, Marmora, Springbrook, Rawdon and Stirling, held in St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, on Thursday evening, the picture of total missions was effectively portrayed by the Rev. R. J. D. Morris, secretary of Church, School and Youth Work of the Missions and Maintenance Department of the United Church. Mr. Morris has been spending the week in the Belleville Presbytery and his earnest addresses have been creating interest in the Presbytery. The Rev. G. D. Young was in charge of the service.

The Rev. H. E. Beare, Springbrook read the scriptural lesson and the Rev. H C. Vaclavik of the Rawdon charge offered prayer.

The speaker spoke of the disturbing world of today in which one age is dying and another age is being born. What the new age will be is not known, but the prayer is that it be a time of spiritual awakening.

Secular and Materialistic

A sociologist has declared that the world is unravelling faster than it can be wound up again. The people have become secularistic and materialistic.

"There is the tendency among the young to think that a man's life consisteth in the abundance of the things he possesseth. In our practical life we have become as materialistic as communists. We need to recognize the fact that "This is My Father's World" in which we are called to be about our Father's business. Life will not make sense under any terms otherwise than His. More people are in mental hospitals today than in all other hospitals for all other reasons. That is because mankind has been trusting largely to the finite.

Stewardship All of Life

Christian service consists in the stewardship of all of life. Every life intersetting another calls for an adventure that is spiritual. You cannot be a disciple without being disciplined Real freedom is submission to the real laws of life".

Concluding, the speaker said, "opportunities for expansion were to be seen in four departments of the church's work—in home missions, in overseas missions, in Christian education and in evangelism, and social service."

Words of thanks to the speaker were expressed by the Rev. G. D. Young, after which the Rev. A. E. Baker pronounced the benediction.

The W.M.S. of the church served refreshments in the church hall at the close of the service.

MARMORA

Marmora—The Deloro group of the Catholic Women's League sponsored a well attended tea and bake sale at the home of Mrs. Fred Paquet on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Michael Kerby, Miss Helen Kerby and Mr. Angus Johnson of Ivanhoe, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ketcheson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pettingill, Mrs. Jolly and son, John, of Wellington, called on Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ketcheson on Sunday.

Mrs. Arthur Ketcheson attended the C.W.L. regional meeting at Belleville on Sunday. She was accompanied by Miss Helen Kerby, Mrs. John Ryan and Mrs. Long of Stirling.

S. S. Convention

The Rev. G. D. Young and W. J. Cottrell attended the afternoon session of Madoc and Elzevir Sunday School convention at St. Peters, Presbyterian Church, Madoc, on Wednesday, the former being the guest speaker, speaking on "Parental Responsibilities"

Deanery Meeting

Rural Dean, J. M. Brownlie, R. E. Bonter, and W. J. Cottrell attended the joint Hastings and Prince Edward Deaneries meeting at St. Thomas, Belleville, on Thursday afternoon when addresses were given and discussion followed on church extension and an every member canvass that is being undertaken in the Diocese of Ontario.

FULL-TIME JOB

St. Catharines, Oct. 28. (CP)—Robert Byrnes, a merchant marine veteran, has a full-time job as a salesman but two nights a week he holds art classes in his home. He says he can't remember when he didn't have the urge to draw. He faces the same difficulties as most Canadian artists—an inability to find a market for enough paintings to make it a full-time career. He started his classes three years ago and now has a long waiting list.

ALEXANDER TO JOIN PARTY

Owen Sound, Oct. 28. (CP)—Viscount Alexander will arrive here Monday for his Griffith Island pheasant shooting expedition, it was reported by Col. R. S. McLaughlin and J. P. Bickwell, who passed through Owen Sound by automobile on their way to the island hunting lodge Friday.

The tall crown, softly shirred down the back, has a spray of iridescent coq feathers posed at one side of its black silk cord band.

Dr. Charlotte Whitton Deplores Trend of Education in Canada

Toronto, Oct. 28. (CP)—Dr. Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa, said Friday that education in Canada is headed toward materialism and Godlessness—the goals of communism.

The writer and social worker, in an address to the Ontario Public School Trustees Association, deplore the lack of religious principles in non - Catholic schools.

The University of Toronto, she said, is "a Godless provincial university."

The association was told earlier that the Ontario government has been giving "unduly large" grants to Roman Catholic Separate Schools. Representatives of 200 school boards adopted a committee report which said the grants were so disproportionate that "it is becoming almost a public scandal."

Another committee report warned against emphasis on the use of French in Ontario. Leslie Saunders of Toronto, honorary president of the association and sponsor of the report, said English is Ontario's official language "and we should fight to preserve it."

W. J. McCordic, business administrator for the East York Board of Education, said too many mediocre teachers are slipping into the Ontario School systems. He suggested a probation period longer than the present one year.

The Association adopted a resolution submitted by the Ottawa Public School Board, requesting the provincial education department to permit school boards to purchase milk for pupils.

Also approved was a Kitchener proposal to ask the highways department to impose a 20-mile-an-hour speed limit in front of schools or give municipal councils the right to do so.

MEKHLIS RELIEVED

Moscow, Oct. 28 (AP) —Col.-Gen. Lev Z. Mekhlis has been relieved of his post as Soviet Minister of State Control because of illness, it was announced today.

V. N. Merkulov was appointed to succeed Mekhlis, who assumed to office in 1940. Mekhlis headed the red army's political administration during 1941-42. In 1949 on his 60th birthday, received the Order of Lenin.

B.C.I. Teachers Get Pat on Back From Supervisor

Belleville teachers got a pat on the back last night from two sources. Mr. A. G. Hooper, featured speaker at the Commencement exercises at B.C.I. & V.S., told the graduates and parents that Belleville "has been very fortunate in having principals of Mr. G. E. Currie's type."

Mr. Hooper, said that he had known Mr. Currie for many years and had also known his predecessor, and that Belleville could be proud of having men of their calibre to head the high school.

Later in the evening, Enos David, who was chairman for the evening, told the audience that he had read in Life magazine recently that students in the United States preferred not the teachers with the most academic qualifications, but those who taught from the "heart".

He said that Belleville was in the happy position of having teachers who taught "from the heart", and that such teaching was paying dividends for the city.

Women's Institute

Cannifton-Corbyville W.I.

On Monday, at the home of Mrs. A. Eves, the monthly meeting of the Cannifton-Corbyville Women's Institute took place in the form of a Hallowe'en party. Community singing started the party off.

The costumes were many and varied. Madame Laporte and Mrs. J. MacIntosh kindly consented to be judges and the masqueraders paraded past them headed by a bridal party.

Games and contests were played and the following were the winners:

Best dressed, Mrs. Soble; best man's costume Mrs. Latchford; most original, Mrs. Stewart; best comic, Mrs McCall. Contest winners were Mrs. Shorey, Mrs. Hodgson, Mrs. Ellsworth and Mrs. Wannamaker.

Winner of an apron draw was Mrs. Skinner.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eves and her helpers after which a short business period ensued.

The meeting adjourned with a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Eves for a very pleasant evening.

Women's Activities

BETHANY W.M.S.-W.A.

The October meeting of the Bethany W.M.S. and W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. Russell Ritz, with a good attendance.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Frank Walker took charge of the worship service. A reading was given on Japan by Mrs. Frank Walker, and Mrs. Horace Casey. The treasurer's report of the W.M.S. was given by Mrs. George Sills, and the W.A. report by Mrs. Horace Casey.

Mrs. H. Casey invited the ladies to her home for the November meeting. Mrs. William Casey took charge of the program with a reading on "Japan" by Mrs. Casey. Mrs. W. Clarke gave an interesting reading and Mrs. Clayton Eggleton a reading on "Everyday Religion." Mrs. Geo. Sills rendered a solo "I Have Heard my Savior Calling," was followed by a reading "So Large a Heart," given by Mrs. Orval Beer, and a reading "Kurusamys Conquest," and prayer by Mrs. Douglas Tummon.

Mrs. Harry Walker had the cards on display and asked the ladies to place their orders. The hostess served refreshments and a social time was spent.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

When W. H. Smith & Son "booksellers to the world" for over a century, opened their first Canadian store recently, they invited all the Smith's in the Toronto telephone directory to attend on Smith Day. More than 2,500 Smith's are listed. If each Smith family is made up of five persons, there must be around 12,500 people named Smith in Toronto plus all the Smith's who have no telephones . . . It seems that Smith is the most common name in Canada, England, Scotland and U.S. That is why individuals who get into trouble so often give their names as "John" or "Mary Smith" of "no fixed address."

Author H. Allen Smith has just written a book called "People Named Smith." It contains information to startle even the Smith's, they say. And speaking of Smith's, at the bridge table last night a mother told of her husband's disappointment over their new-born turning out to be a girl . . . "He wanted a boy, to carry an the family name," she said. Sounding the Blackwood's call, her opponent exclaimed, "My, aren't there enough Smith's in the phone book now to do that!"

This is the last straw . . . self serve baby sitters. You take your children to the sitter and bring them home from her place. Oh well, it's a good racket. Wish we had a racket.

Canadian government investigations have pried into such things as the price of bread, false teeth and window panes, with some success. Combines are treacherous when they band together to set prices higher than need be. Could the price of typewriter repairs be examined next, Mr. St. Laurent?

For 10 years a brand new portable has been coddled. Never has the little mite been flung out a six-storey window like the one shattered this way on Montreal's St. James Street V-E Day; nor has this portable taken constant pounding by many fingers. In short, it has been reared and should be approaching young womanhood with the best possible chances for a long and useful life.

But some little thing has gone haywire in the machine, completely incapacitating both of us. Taking the portable in to the manufacturer, much as a mother would carry her baby for a check-up, we were startled, we were shocked by the repair man's diagnosis. It appears that several little things are wrong. Asked for an estimate on the minimum of repairs, the company man assured us the baby typewriter could be made to run in some fashion for $29.65.

Then came the sales talk . . . "Why don't you buy a new one? We would allow $10 on yours." . . . Generous, these typewriter manufacturers. Besides, why should we need a new model anyway? This one was sold by the same firm with the hint that it would last a lifetime. Maybe that salesman thought we only looked good for 10 years.

Worst of it is, you are compelled to get a typewriter repaired at the firms who make typewriters because they are the only people with control of the parts and the only people who know how to fix them. Different companies charge similar high rates for such services. So there's no out.

You either pay the price, or buy a new typewriter. They get you coming and going. Until we see our M.P. and get this business aired, we've borrowed friend husband's portable. His still prints, though the estimate on services needed by it amounts to $42.25 . . . This is free enterprise—bearing handcuffs.

Dr. Willard Brewing who has just retired as Moderator of the United Church, spent a day at our house last week. He likes to tell the story of a villager proud of his 75 years who on meeting an even more elderly gentleman on his 96th birthday said: "I certainly hope I'll be able to shake your hand on your 100th birthday." To this, the elder of the two replied, "I think that's quite possible. You're looking very well these days."

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

BLUE-WINGED TEAL

The friendly blue-winged teal, 15½ inches long, is one of our smallest ducks: just about half the size of a pintail. The grey head of the male would be inconspicuous were it not for the a pure white crescent in front of the eye. Only small size and blue shoulders like her mate prevent us from confusing the mottled brown female with several other species. However, any tiny duck with a large, chalky blue wing patch may safely be called a blue-winged teal. When a flock flies overhead, the best distinguishing mark is the contrast between the under side of the body, which is dark, and the under side of the wings, which is white. Just hearing these ducks, you can be fooled into supposing there are two species, because males chirp and peep when on the wing, whereas females give a light "quack."

Migration is made in large flocks, flying very rapidly in compact lines. Their precipitous landing is a characteristic. Apparently feeling the cold more than their even smaller relatives, the green-winged, most of the blue-winged left in September and early October. If the two species have not already combined, they usually do so once they reach their winter quarters in the lower eastern states. When they are flying above eye level, it is possible to distinguish between them. The green-winged have lighter underparts, shorter necks, and larger heads.

The blue-winged commonly breeds through the prairie sections of Canada, north to Great Slave Lake, and right across to the east coast. This is a bird preferring small waters to large. Its home is made on the ground, usually only a few feet from some shallow, marshy slough or pond, in which environment vegetable matter, seeds, water weeds, and other food may be obtained. Depending to a great extent on camouflage, it often nests right beside a path, or even an occupied house. Dead grasses and weed stems are used for the nest, which is lined with feathers.

On leaving home, the canny mother bird carefully covers her eight to twelve pale buff eggs with a blanket of down that she had plucked from her own breast and left ready for this emergency. She always returns stealthily, sneaking up in a round-about way through the grass and weeds amidst which it has been placed. Then, judging that her mottled brown plumage makes her invisible, she remains immoveable, allowing a stranger to come near enough to touch her.

MADOC

Sacred Heart Of Mary Holds Annual Bazaar

Madoc.—The annual bazaar of the Sacred Heart of Mary Church, Madoc, was held in the Armouries on Tuesday and Wednesday and was successful.

On Tuesday evening the annual chicken dinner was held and drew a very large crowd. The usual games following the supper were well sponsored. On Wednesday evening a dance was held with the music being provided by the "Melodies" Orchestra of Picton.

The drawing of the tickets was held with the winners as follows:

Occasional chair, Miss Margaret Tobin, Madoc; table lamp, M. Mallin, Kingston; pressure cooker, J. M. Gerard, Peterborough; electric tea kettle, Mrs. Arthur Pigden, Madoc; electric iron, D. O. Lynch, Kingston; 3 lb. box of Laura Secords, Jimmie Davies, Picton; 1 lb box of Laura Secords, Dorian Stewart, Madoc; a doll, Rita Quinn, Madoc, and apron, Mrs. James Barry, Madoc.

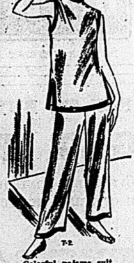
Chinese Influence



Colorful pajama suit.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

CHINESE silk in a luxurious weave, the color a delicate yellow, is the formula for this dainty sleeping pajama suit. Beautifully cut and detailed, the top opens at one shoulder. The Mandarin neckline is of deep blue silk, and armholes and slit hem are bound to match, as are the trouser hems. Embroider an initial or monogram and there you have a welcome gift and something different in sleeping attire.

[illegible] BEECKMAN

Sister [illegible] husband should sponsor bride's wedding invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Both of my parents are dead, and ever since their death I have lived with my older married sister. She is to be my matron of honor at my wedding. Would it be correct to have my wedding invitations sent out in her name? If so, should they read "Mrs. James ——" or "Mrs. Mary ——"?

H. R.

Your wedding invitations should be sent out in the name of your sister and her husband. This is the correct form:

Mr. and Mrs. James Davidson request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their sister Helen Anne Royce
to Mr William Paul Foster
on Tuesday, the fifth of December at four o'clock
Faith Church
Haven, New York

Where to put relishes?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm so often confused when relish, pickles, jelly, and so forth are passed to me at table, to know whether I should put them on my dinner plate or on my bread-and-butter plate. Can you give me some hints that will clear up this confusion?

Peggy

If the relish . . . pickle, jelly or whatever food-item. . .is to be eaten with the meat or whatever the main course is, put it on your dinner plate. Jellies and jams that are to be eaten with bread go on the bread-and-butter plate. Celery, olives and radishes are placed on your bread-and-butter plate, since they do not belong with the food on the dinner plate.

To be invited to bridal shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When giving a shower, is it proper to invite friends of your own who do not know the girl who is to be the guest of honor?

Wondering

No. . . this is not proper.

A man rises when introduced

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I know that a man should rise when he is introduced to a woman. But should he also rise when he acknowledges an introduction to another man?

Bob H.

Yes.

BEAUTY

Watch your mouth lines, lady.

Playing with the lipstick is a favorite diversion with the frail sex. Everybody's doin' it—from little Sweetie-pie, age fourteen, to grannie of the white, white hair. In her young days, grannie was told that face paint looked like sin. She knows better now. She knows she looks better and feels younger with tinted lips, and that there is no virtue in being plain and unattractive.

It is a good idea, if one is chasing beauty rainbows—and who isn't?—to survey the lips in their natural state. They are more expressive than some of us realize, play an important part in the facial composition. It is not enough to apply the rosy glow; the lips should assume a pleasing form. Eyes stay as they are throughout life, but the contour of the mouth can change with a change of thought.

Let's do a little lip-reading. The prude keeps hers tightly pressed together, assuming an expression of general disapproval of the human race and its behavior. The selfish, lazy girl has relaxed lips, soft and full, without charm. She of the radiant face, sparkling eyes, keeps her lip ends lifted, a grand practice that makes for charm and beauty.

The tissues surrounding the mouth are delicat, are subject to change. By continually assuming certain unbecoming expressions—like drawing down the chin and pursing the lips—lines around the mouth will form. The soft underpadding of the skin will relax and soften.

Mouth breathing will cause the lips to become full, take on an unbecoming contour. It dries the surface of the lips, as it dries the interior tissues of the mouth. Mouth breathers often have pale complexions because they do not inhale deeply. Children who have this habit should have medical attention. A throat and nose specialist will discover the cause and correct it.

Before washing the face, the lipstick should be removed with cream. After that soap can be used. If the lips are chapped, use a white lipstick at night.

Facial operator have a special movement to keep lip fibres strong and to prevent little up and down lines from forming. This movement can be used when anointing your complexion at bedtime.

Place the first finger in the centre of the lip, thumb at one end, second finger at the other terminal. Keep the first finger in the centre, draw up the lip ends to form a Cupid's bow.

Playing with the lipstick is a favorite diversion

ATOMIC HEATING

Plans are being made to use heat generated in atomic energy piles to heat buildings at Britain's Harwell atomic centre.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking?

Many housewives who serve steaks these days feel like Heliogabalus. He was the Roman emate dinner guests a gold plate as a at dinner guests a gold plate as a souvenir, Heliogabalus could afford to be generous. Modern housewives find the cost somewhat more painful.

The best beefsteaks cut from the shortloin, called porterhouse, are not only expensive per pound but include fat, bone and flank which sometimes weigh as much as the edible meat.

Semi-tender cuts of beef like chuck steak, round steak or rump steak can be broiled or panfried if they are the "choice" grade and aged beef. Little beef, however, is aged these days because the aging causes shrinkage which dealers cannot afford at present prices.

The semi-tender cut should therefore be cooked as though they were tough—that is browned and then cooked with moist heat until tender.

Braised rump steaks with mushrooms will take from 1 1-2 to 2 hours cooking time. Mushrooms can be cooked quickly in three to five minutes. But in order to give both the meat and the gravy a genuine mushroom flavor, the mushrooms should be added to the saucepan right after the meat is browned.

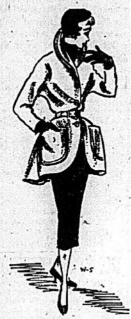
Rump Steaks, with Mushrooms
4 Servings

4 rump steaks, 6 ounces each, 1-2 inch thick
1-2 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
Vegetable fat
1-2 pound fresh mushrooms
1-2 cup finely chopped onion
1 teaspoon finely chopped garlic
1-4 cup tomato juice
1 teaspoon meat extract
1-2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Dip steaks in flour mixed with salt and pepper. Melt vegetable fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in large frying pan. Brown steaks on both sides. Remove steaks to a heavy saucepan.

Wash and cut mushrooms into 1-4 inch thick slices. Saute in frying pan 5 minutes. Transfer to saucepan.

Add 1 1-2 cups boiling water to saucepan. Add the chopped onion, garlic, tomato juice, meat extract and Worcestershire sauce. Bring to a boil. Remove scum. Reduce flame so that liquid barely simmers. Cook covered until meat is tender 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Skim off excess fat from gravy. Add salt and pepper to taste.



Tunic Coat

Taupe topper with leather belt.

By VERA WINSTON

IT'S the tunic that calls the tune of the new coat parade. The tunic coat, it would seem, has emerged as one of the newest trends, and should be very much in evidence when fashions for next Spring are unveiled. In the meantime, this Autumn version is of a hairy-surfaced wool and rabbit's hair fabric in taupe. The bodice is gently cut in one piece with narrow sleeves. The collar, standing or flat-rolled, is stitched at the outer edges as are the patch pockets. The tunic peplum is padded. A matching leather belt completes the picture.

FIRST CENSUS

The first general census of Britain and Ireland in 1801 showed a population of 16,345,646.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Facing blindness, he has family trouble, too.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am married, and love my wife more than words can say. I can't work on account of my eyes, and the doctor tells me I will be totally blind within a year or two. For this reason my wife has to work to keep us going.

We are living with her father, and he is making a great deal of trouble between us. He hates me and I know it. No matter what I say, he makes a big story out of it and takes it to my wife, and before we know it, we are in a fight.

We have been married eight years, and I know my wife loves me very much. We have four children we both love dearly, but because of all the trouble my father-in-law makes, I sometimes feel as though I don't want to live any more. He lost an arm working in the mines, and he himself has only one eye. So you see we just can't leave him to live by himself.

J. H. E. R.

Dear J. H. E. R.:

You surely have a vast amount of serious trouble on your hands, and I don't wonder it sometimes makes you feel as though life were not worth living. It is hard enough to have to bear the affliction of approaching blindness, without being forced to live in the midst of family discord all the time.

No doubt your father-in-law's own handicaps are partly responsible for his antagonistic attitude. He feels helpless and useless himself, which makes him unhappy and bitter, so that his bitterness creeps over into his family relationships.

As I see it, the best thing you could possibly do would be to find a way of outwitting your failing eyes so that you could be out and around again instead of staying home all the time where you and your father-in-law get so much on each other's nerves. You might, you know, even be able eventually to find some sort of work, which would help the whole situation more than anything else. In all parts of the country, many totally blind people earn their own living and take care of themselves in every way, and I'm sure you're just as smart as they are.

If you were earning again, you would feel like a new man, and it can be done. All you need is guidance from some one who knows how, with your handicap, you can go about it. The place in your town where you should go for advice about what to do first is the Red Cross. Stop in at that office some day and ask. And if you have any difficulty getting the information, write me again.

Happy teen-age bride speaks her piece

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am sixteen and a half years old, and I have been married for eight months. I am writing you in the hope that you will print my letter, so maybe some other kids will have a chance to be as happy as I have been.

You are always saying in your column that a teen-ager is incapable of being truly in love. I have been unbelievably happy during my married life. I never really lived until I met my husband. I am expecting a baby in five months, and I am certain that it will only add to our happiness. So maybe you are wrong just once in a while!

K.

Dear K.:

I am sure I am wrong quite often about a lot of things, but I think perhaps you have misunderstood what I have said about teen-agers and love. My stand on that subject is and always has been that I do not believe the average teen-ager —and please accent the word "average"—is mature enough for marriage, but that once in a rare while, some unusual teen-ager has married and made a success of it. You see to be one of the fortunate ones.

Since no girl can be married under 18 years of age in your state unless she has the consent of her parents, I assume that yours must have been willing for you to do so. They also must have thought that you were competent to make a go of it.

I hope things will continue to go happily for you in the future, so that neither you yourself, or anyone else, have any cause to feel that you weren't as mature as you thought, after all.

Briefs From Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

Glasgow — (CP) — Tramway driver George Matheson has just become Scotland's Gaelic bard. His ode on the future of the Gaelic language won the Laurel Crown at the 47th Gaelic gathering at Dunoon.

Ludwell, Wiltshire, England — (CP) — This little village gets the news of its favorite soccer team by pigeon post. C. G. Martin, the village tailor, attends every match and releases pigeons with scores attached at half and full-time.

Dudley, Warwickshire, England — (CP) — A man under the influence of liquor picked the wrong house when he started ringing doorbells. Chief Constable C. W. Johnson opened the door and arrested him.

Tredegar, Monmouthshire (CP) — This municipality has been asked by a local union to provide free shower-baths for grave-diggers.

Leicester, England — (CP) — Thieves who broke into a local dairy got away with a box full of "coins." It turned out to be worthless tokens delivery men had received from customers.

Witham, Essex, England (CP) — Brenda Succamore, 13, is the youngest girl ever to become a member of the County Association of Bellringers. She qualified by ringing 725 traditional changes on the bells.

Edinburgh — (CP) — J. Gibson Kerr has just returned here from Texas with a fat order in his pocket. He sold wealthy Texans 1,000 Shetland ponies to be used as pets for the ranchers' children.

Bury St. Edmunds, England — (CP) — A new by-law here compels vendors to move their stalls after 20 minutes. So the barrow boys move every 19 minutes — a couple of feet or so.

Derby, England — (CP) — A new midwife appointed at a Derby maternity centre feels right at home. She was born in the institution.

Belfast — (CP) — An eight-mile motorcar racing track has been constructed at Dundred at a cost of $300,000. The Northern Ireland government contributed half the cost.

Road Building in '50 Greatest In History, Says Doucett; G. Hyde Heads Conservatives

Gerald Hyde, well-known young local business man and secretary-treasurer of the Association for several years was named president of the Belleville Men's Progressive Conservative Association at their meeting held in the Front Street club rooms Friday evening.

The new president who was chosen over three other nominees, succeeds W. Harry Rollins as the head of the local Progressive Conservative Association. Other officers elected included John Lennox as first vice-president and Ray Grant as second vice-president. Treasurer is Harry Knott with Joseph Shortt named to fill the secretary's position. Mr. Rollins declined to stand for re-election.

Honorary presidents are Mr. G. H. Stokes, ex M.P., Elmer Sandercock, M.P.P. for West Hastings, R. D. Arnott, ex-M.P.P., Col. P. H. Wills, and Col. A. P. Allen.

Guest speaker for the evening was Hon. George Doucett, Minister of Highways for the Province and M.L.A. representative for Lanark county. He was introduced by Elmer Sandercock, with Association appreciation being expressed by president-elect Gerald Hyde.

Minister Pays Tribute

Mr. Doucett paid tribute to former stalwarts of the Conservative party, including Sir John A. Macdonald, Whitney, and Howard Ferguson, all who had come from the eastern section of the province. He also paid tribute to Mr. Sandercock, the present member for West Hastings, whose municipal experience "had served him in good stead at Queen's Park."

Mr. Doucett attacked Walter Thompson, Liberal M.P. for Ontario County, for his recent criticism of Premier Frost and the Ontario government. He quoted the aspirant to the Liberal leadership in Ontario as saying the provincial gasoline tax was too high; that highway contracts needed looking into, and that more money should be spent on the secondary roads.

Declaring that highways were one of the greatest assets that a province can have, the speaker said that no one was asking for less roads. On the contrary there was a continuous demand for more and better roads.

Biggest Road Program

In substantiation that Ontario residents were getting their gasoline tax money back, Mr. Doucett pointed out that 1950 was seeing the biggest road building program in the history of the province. This year 23 millions were being distributed to the municipalities in subsidies, while from three to four millions had been set aside for the rural areas.

"This proves that the Ontario government has not been neglecting the by-ways," he said.

Answering Mr. Thompson's assertion that highway contracts needed looking into, Mr. Doucett claimed there was never greater competition among the road building contractors and that today the province was getting the greatest value in contracts let in the history of its road building."

Grants To Education

Turning to education the speaker pointed out how educational grants had been increased from $7,600,000 in 1943 when the Progressive Conservative government came into power, to $37,300,000 last year and this year would go over the 40 million mark.

Hospital payments had been increased, while the government had greatly expanded the rural hydro development and since 1943 had brought in three quarters of a million horsepower in new developments. When the Des Joachims plant and the La Cave development were completed this would be increased to 1,400,000 h.p.

In closing Mr. Doucett called for increased enthusiasm in party support, stressing that it was lack of enthusiasm in party affairs which could give communism start. Only 45 per cent of the electors exercised their franchise, he said.

"People are losing sight of and forgetting their duty and obligation in getting out to vote," he said.

Hastings Not Forgotten

The speaker was introduced by Elmer Sandercock, who pointed out that Hastings county was not being forgotten by the Ontario Highways Department. He noted that the Belleville-Trenton highway had been resurfaced last year; No. 7 highway had been paved; that No. 62 highway from Madoc to Bancroft would be completed this year and that work was in progress south of Maynooth.

He said also that the Hoard's Station road had been rebuilt this year. "Yes, Hastings County is getting its share of roads and we are happy about it," he said.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., for East Hastings, also spoke briefly to the meeting.

Entertainment for the evening included solos by Jimmy Bankier with Mrs. M. P. Duff presiding at the piano. Harry Knott and Mr. Bankier led in a singsong with Mrs. Harry Rollins at the piano.

Destroyer Sioux Accompanies British Carrier

Tokyo, Oct. 28 — (CP) — The Canadian destroyer Sioux accompanied the British carrier Theseus in a tour of air-support duty along the Korean coast during the last two weeks, it was disclosed today.

The action was made known when Rear-Admiral William Andrewes, commander of the Commonwealth fleet in Korean waters, gave congratulations for the work of the 14,000-ton British carrier.

The Sioux is commanded by Cmdr. Paul Taylor of Victoria, B.C. The two other Canadian ships in Korean waters are the destroyers Athabaskan and Cayuga.

Aircraft based on the Theseus flew 401 sorties in 13 days. The only casualty was a Sea Fury polit shot down by anti-aircraft fire and later rescued by an American helicopter.

During its tour of duty, the Theseus steamed 4,476 miles.

The Australian destroyer Bataan, and the British destroyer Constance also accompanied the carrier.

Swedish King Makes Determined Fight for Life

Stockholm Oct. 28 — (AP) — King Gustaf of Sweden, his tired old heart weakening in the grip of critical illness, was making a determined fight for life today in hushed Drottingholm Palace.

The 92-year-old monarch's physician, Dr. Hjalmar Casserman, said early today that Gustaf was "strikingly tired" though still "clear and lucid of mind." He said the king's heart functions, affected by a bronchial catarhh, showed "no profound deterioration" during the night.

Europe's oldest reigning king who delighted his countrymen by playing tennis until he was 88 and hunting until 91, was stricken yesterday noon. The first medical bulletin spoke of "considerably affected heart functions," and "marked difficulty in breathing."

Alarm spread through the capital. It was not eased by subsequent announcements from the specialists ministering to the staunch old ruler. People clustered around news stands for extra editions, or stayed close to their radios to follow developments.

Reporters hovered near the royal palace during the night, but were barred from the grounds. A faint light from the room of the king's medical attendants was the only bright spot on the dark facade of the palace, just outside Stockholm.

King Gustaf was being treated with aureomycin, the new antibiotic drug first given him in 1949 with good effect. It has since been used on several occasions against the chronic bronchial catarrh from which he is suffering. Millions of his subjects were hoping today it would work again.

Cortisone Helps Heart and Arteries In Rheumatic Fever

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP)—Medical research workers reported yesterday that cortisone gives an important degree of protection against injury to the heart or blood vessels in cases of rheumatic fever and periarteris nodosa (inflammation of the arteries).

A report on the research carried on at Toronto's Western Hospital was presented to the Ontario Association of Pathologists by Dr. C. R. McLean, the hospital pathologist. Co-operating in the research were Dr. John Hamilton of Queen's University and Dr. J. D. L. Fitzgerald of the University of Toronto.

Clinical observation had indicated cortisone would provide some protection for the heart and arteries in these cases.

Some 350 rabbits were tested to verify the observations. The doctors found cortisone did give some protection but it did not protect injury to kidney tissues

BITTER FIGHTING

Last night the division beat off one red counter-attack from the north and another from the west. One South Korean regiment had to fall back half a mile, but later retook the ground.

The stiffest fighting broke out about 10 miles northeast of Unsan at Onjong.

AP correspondent Tom Lambert reported that the reds wrested the town from the South Korean 6th Division's 2nd Regiment and snapped a trap on three battalions.

Two battalions were reported to have broken out of the trap and the third appeared to have scattered its men in attempts to rejoin friendly groups. But the South Koreans had to abandon most of their equipment.

Take Chinese Prisoner

Elements of the 2nd Regiment reported capturing a Chinese prisoner who said he was from a regiment including three Chinese battalions.

Correspondent Lambert said reports spread like wildfire that Chinese had joined the battle, but that no one seemed able to say whether they were Chinese communists. A U. S. Eighth Army spokesman said all reports are being checked but so far two Chinese prisoners have told six different stories.

At liberated Wonsan, far to the south, a big flotilla of United Nations warships poured ashore a 50-000-man landing force.

U. S. 1st Marine Division forces immediately sped 35 miles southwest to the vicinity of Kojo to engage by-passed red guerillas.

The Far East Air Force, which earlier this week had reported a scarcity of targets, said today that planes were busy in northwest Korea strafing and rocketing dug-in red positions.

Chinese Units Have Not Entered Tibet as Yet

New Delhi, India, Oct. 28 (AP) —India's ambassador to communist China today confirmed reports that Chinese army units have been ordered to advance into Tibet, but has no confirmation that any troops actually have entered the country, a government spokesman said.

This was the first word from ambassador K. M. Pannikar since reports of the invasion order circulated.

The spokesman added that no reply has been received from Pelping to the Indian note yesterday expressing regret and surprise at the invasion order.

Referring to Lake Success reports that India would cease her efforts to win communist China a place in the United Nations, the spokesman said the government policy would "naturally have to be reviewed in light of latest developments."

Earlier, a foreign ministry source said India had informally advised Peiping that an invasion of Tibet would "make more difficult" Indian efforts to secure red China a U.N. seat.

It is known that top Indian officials are gravely concerned over the invasion order, particularly since the communist Chinese government assured Prime Minister Nehru a few months ago that it desired a peaceful solution to the question of Tibet's future.

There is speculation here, particularly in diplomatic circles, that Chinese belligerence toward Tibet might push the Nehru government closer to the camp of the west.

Government sources have said privately that they would not be pleased with the prospect of having red Chinese troops along India's northern border in place of peaceful Tibetans.

One official said India probably would give asylum to refugees—which presumably might include the Dalai Lama—but would screen them carefully.

Services on Sunday Mark Assassination of Douk Leader

Brilliant, B. C., Oct. 28 (CP)—The tomb of Peter (the lordly) Verigin, venerated by orthodox Doukhobors, will be the scene of impressive services tomorrow.

At the site of the once-ornate tomb, now reduced to a simple cement slab, the Doukhobors will meet to mark the anniversary of his death.

The Doukhobor leader died in a train bombing near Farron, B.C. Oct. 28, 1924, in which several of his followers died. It remains a mystery. The perpetrators were never captured.

Members of the radical Sons of Freedom, the religious sect often blamed for terrorism in the Kootenays, have not been invited to the anniversary services.

In the last 25 years the tomb has been bombed several times and its massive marble columns have been reduced to rubble. Some of the Sons who confessed to bombing acts explained the tomb was too mouldy, and a God-forbidden idol.

Peter the lordly was the first leader of the Doukhobors in Canada. He came from Siberia, where he had been exiled by the government of the Czar, and directed settlement of colonists first in Saskatchewan, 51 years ago, and later in British Columbia.

Hundreds of Doukhobors, the women in their brightly-colored head shawls and the men in their sombre suits, are coming from outlying communities for the service.

Like other years, it will be simple. Prayers will be said and Russian hymns chanted.

John Verigin, 28-year-old grandson of Peter and son of Peter the Purger, is expected to attend the ceremony. Other spiritual leaders of the Doukhobors will be in attendance.

The Sons of Freedom, a minority group of 2,000 among the 10,000 Doukhobors in B. C., recently signed peace pledges with federal and provincial governments.

Scores were released from prison, where they were serving sentences for nude parading, but others remained behind bars to complete terms for arson.

Bearded Stefan S. Sorokin, who arrived from Germany only a few months ago, is the new leader of the radical group.

He was named to replace the ancestral Verigin leaders "to bring peace to our people."

While in Washington, Claxton will have a round of conferences with top officials of pact members. He will meet with President Truman Monday and during the following three days will visit various U.S. defence establishments.

Must Teach Courage Secret Of Freedom

Lennoxville, Que., Oct. 27 (CP) — John Bassett, president and general manager of the Montreal Gazette, said Thursday that Canadian universities must teach that courage is the secret of freedom, otherwise Canada may become the victim of her anxieties rather than the mistress of her destiny.

Mr. Bassett spoke on the occasion of his installation as Chancellor of Bishop's University.

Universities must also expose the "bitter fallacy that the difficulties of life can somehow be banished if there is only enough organization, enough centralization of our body politic, or enough submission to state authority."

Canada's universities cannot become "merely places of dignified retreat where the storm of the outer world may be rushed or where our youth may be sheltered for a little while before they must face conditions as they are."

Universities must fortify the spirit for life's journey and impart the related aspect of courage and freedom, courage to accept responsibility and discover therein the "only true freedom."

In her progress Canada must seek security as a reward rather than as an escape, said Mr. Bassett.

CRUSHED BY BOULDER

Montauban Les Mines, Que., Oct. 28 — (CP) — Gerard Gregoire, 30, of Lac au Sable, was crushed to death yesterday in a 500-foot-deep mine shaft of the Anacon Lead Company when a boulder detached itself from the shaft and fell on him. Montauban is in Portneuf county near Quebec City.

Five Year Plan Of Economic Aid For Philippines

Washington, Oct. 28. (AP)—The United States proposed today a $250,000,000 five-year economic aid program for the Philippines provided the island republic makes sweeping reforms in its government.

The proposal was sent by President Truman to Philippine President Elpidio Quirino in Manilo. Details of the plan for dealing with an economic crisis were laid down in the long-secret report of a special survey mission headed by Daniel W. Bell, a former undersecretary of the treasury. It was made public today both here and in Manila.

On the basis of its two-month, on-the-spot survey last summer, Bell's mission said bluntly that the Philippine government had failed to deal effectively with its post-war problems.

"Inefficiency and even corruption in the government service are widespread," the mission reported.

The mission outlined a detailed seven-point program based largely on Filipino self-help. It provided for tight U.S. supervision over the spending of the proposed $250,000,000 in loans and grants.

Truman made no mention of the sharp feeling already stirred up in the Islands over the Bell report. Quirino announced in Manila last night that the author of an article accusing Washington of harboring worse grafters than the Philippines had been disciplined.

School Children Enjoy Open Day Program at Y

With Friday an open day for school kids, due to the teachers' convention, a full program for boys was run through by the Y.M.C.A. Friday. At 9:30 a.m., the boys assembled in the gym and were divided into six tribes.

Games, including relays, were played, and the Pontiac tribe led the pack with 86 points The Sioux tribe was second with 76 points. After that, the group was split into two floor hockey teams, with the Montreal Canadiens walloping the Toronto Maple Leafs in two games.

Next stop was the swimming pool, where Queen Victoria School won an inter-school meet. Following the swimming, the boys were given a dinner prepared by their mothers. Afterward, a short track meet was held, and then instrumental boxing, with 22 boxers taking part, took the scene.

The day was closed with a short choir rehearsal.

SAVED ROOMER

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 28—(CP)—Quick action of a roomer saved Mrs. Matilda Delisle, 92, from possible death by gas asphyxiation early today after a faulty stove filled her house with coal gas.

Mrs. W. Carrol called police and two constables found the house filled with coal gas. There was so much, they said, they could see its blue color. Mrs. Dealisle was rushed to hospital in an ambulance.. She was reported this morning to be resting well.

Spectacular Bid In Blind Bowling By Use of Radar

London, Oct. 28 — (AP)—Britain's bomber command chief said last night that blind bombing with the aid of radar is making spectacular progress. In recent tests, the average errors for two squadrons bombing at 20,000 feet were 20 yards and 97 yards, and "our aim is to reduce that error by half."

St. Catharines And East York Win Contest

Toronto, Oct. 28 (CP) —St. Catharines Red Raiders and East York Goliath won the first two games tonight of the annual Interscholastic Red Feather football tournament before 21,000 high school fans.

The Raiders smothered Guelph 52-0 while the Goliaths came from behind with a converted major in the last quarter to edge Hamilton Cathedral High 17-12.

Eight teams are entered, with the Ted Reeve Trophy as the prize.

In tomorrow night's games, Ottawa Tech meets Sudbury High and London South Collegiate Institute plays Malvern Collegiate.

Players from several centres took part in kicking, punting and passing competitions, but due to a complicated system of points-scoring, results were not immediately available.

Semi-finals and finalst in these events will be run off on tomorrow's program.

The big St. Catharines team were held scoreless by Guelph in the first quarter but piled it on with 29 points in the second, 12 in the third and 11 in the fourth.

Max Woolley was the Raiders standout ground gainer, eluding Guelph tacklers to count three majors and help pave the way for a few others. Nearly all St. Catharines backfielders shared in the scoring, with touchdowns being turned in by Fred Martin, Jack Thompson, Jim Shook, Tom Quinlan, Jim Buchanan and Steve Oneschuk.

Oneschuk, whose punting was brilliant, also kicked four converts and a single, while Thompson added two more extra points.

The tournament's eight judges selected Pete Newman of St. Catharines and Mel Wolfand, Guelph fullback, as the standout players of each side.

Broda to Rest as Boston Bruins Seek Season's First Victory In N.H.L., Two Other Games

(By The Canadian Press)

Boston's winless and goal-starved Bruins tonight make their sixth try of the young National Hockey League season to crash the victory column. They'll be tackling the league - leading Toronto Maple Leafs in Toronto and there'll be no Turk Broda around to slam the door in their faces.

Broda, the league's current shutout king with three straight, will sit this affair out as the Leafs go after their fifth consecutive triumph. One of his shutouts was scored against the Bruins in Boston, 2-0.

The Bruins are unlikely to find Al Rollins, the Leafs second-string netminder, a soft touch. He substituted capably for Broda in Chicago last Sunday when the 36-year-old veteran was given his first rest of the season.

In tonight's other games, Chicago invades Detroit and New York Rangers will be entertained by the second - place Montreal Canadiens. On Sunday, Canadiens play at New York, the Leafs at Chicago and Boston at Detroit.

Offensively, the Bruins have appeared weak this season. They have scored but three goals in five starts. However, only six goals have been scored against them, which indicates strength in the defence department. Goalie Jack Gelineau has the best goals - against average in the league.

Bashing Bill Barilko will be back in the line-up for the Leafs, bringing their roster of defencemen back to four. Barilko suffered a knee injury in Boston 10 days ago in a collision with Paul Ronty. Still sidelined, also with a knee injury, is Toronto rookie Hugh Bolton.

The Chicago - Detroit tussle will be a battle for third place, and the Hawks enter the game fresh from a convincing 5-1 victory at home Thursday over Canadiens.

Montreal came out of that game somewhat chastened but without injury. They'll be at full strength and determined to show their large following that the Chicago rout was just one of those things.

That bodes no good for the Rangers, who have been no great shakes offensively in six starts to date. They've scored only six goals while 15 have been poked past their goalie, Chuck Rayner.

CALUMETS WIN EASILY

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 28 (CP) — An Ottawa Army team folded up completely Friday night while absorbing a 12-4 shellacking at the hands of Cornwall Calumets in an Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League fixture.

After holding a 1-0 edge after the first period, the Army defences fell apart. It was 6-1 at the end of the second frame and Army was unable to make headway in the wide-open final period.

Jim Denneny led the Cornwall scoring with three goals, with Pete Payette and Jean LaFortune getting two each. Gillies Genereux scored one and assisted in four others.

Referees Cancel Contest, Award Game to Windsor

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Marlboros Friday night were presented with the Allan Cup they won last spring. Then they promptly won their second straight game of the 1950-51 Ontario Hockey Association major series season—an 8-2 trouncing of Hamilton Tigers.

But the Marlies junior edition took a 9-2 beating from Barrie Flyers in the O.H.A. junior division. The win moved the Flyers into first place.

In Windsor, referees cancelled the Windsor-St. Catharines game in the final period and awarded the contest to Windsor when Coach Rudy Pilous of St. Catharines refused to send a player to the penalty box.

Windsor was leading 5-2 when Referees Len Loree of Windsor and Frank Udvari ordered the game forfeited. Loree had called a boarding penalty against an unidentified St. Catharines player.

He increased the minor to a 10-minute misconduct when no one went to the box. After a verbal clash with Pilous, the two officials ordered the game forfeited under a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regulation.

Erwin Grosse, Jim Anderson, Early Johnston, John Offidani and Eddie Joss had scored for Spitfires in the rugged, penalty-studded game. Pierre Pilotte and Bill Young scored for the Teepees.

The junior games had no effect on league standings. Barrie still is in first place, followed by Galt, Stratford, Guelph and St. Catharines.

Barrie Wins Easily

In tonight's junior games Stratford is at Waterloo; Guelph is at Oshawa, and St. Michael's is at Galt. Kitchener-Waterloo is at Toronto for a game with St. Mike's in the major series.

Barrie had little trouble bouncing the Marlboros. Each scored once in the first period. Then Flyers broke out for three in the second and five in the third.

Doug Towers and Jim Morrison each scored twice. Jerry Toppazzini scored once and got five assists with other goals by Chuck Wood, Bill Hagan, Jack McKnight and Don Emms. Bibber O'Hearn and Bob McFarlane scored for Marlboros.

In the senior game, Tigers threatened only in the first part of the opening period when Fred Liscombe scored on a pass from Harold Hursley. Nick Bangay tied it up three minutes later and Bus Wycherley banged in one more before the period ended.

Red Johnson with two, Don Rope, Jack McKenzie, Scotty Mair and Bobby Hassard got the other tallies for Marlboros with Johnny Conick getting a third-period goal for Tigers.

Mutuels Pay Off On Wrong Horse At Dufferin Track

(By The Canadian Press)

Scores of bettors — some of them angry and some delighted—stormed the stewards' stands and pari-mutuels at Toronto's Dufferin Park Friday when a wrong result was announced in the featured sixth race.

Pennask won the race in a photo-finish. Dud's Worry ran second and Tab Wales came in third. But Tab Wales' number was erroneously sent to the mutuels as the second horse and cashiers began paying off.

When the finish photos were posted, bettors milled around the stewards' stand. The stewards immediately ordered the result changed.

By that time, many spectators had torn up place tickets on Dud's Worry and others had cashed place tickets on Tab Wales.

Dud's Worry paid $10.50 and $5.00. Tab Wales paid $5.90.

Mutuel clerks took the names and addresses of persons who claimed to have torn up winning tickets on Dud's Worry.

Anything can happen in a football game, as was proved in a University of Toronto interfaculty game Friday. St. Michael's College rolled to 23 first downs against the faculty of Engineering junior squad. The Engineers made nary a first down. But they won 7-0.

If for no other reason, the oft-beaten Harvard football team must win against Dartmouth today because they are all out of crying towels at the Harvard stadium. A fire in the Dillon field house laundry Friday destroyed $500 worth of towels that were to have been used after the Harvard - Dartmouth game at Boston.

An offer of $100,000 for Ezzard Charles to fight Joey Maxim "isn't anything at all," the heavyweight boxing champ's handler said in Pittsburgh Friday.

Jake Mintz, co-manager of Charles, was replying to an assertion by William P. Kyne of San Francisco that nobody would guarantee Charles $100,000 to defend his title.

Mintz turned down that figure guaranteed by Kyne for a Charles-Maxim scrap at San Francisco in February.

Said Mintz:

"We can get more than that much for a fight with Maxim right here in Pittsburgh or in Chicago or in Cincinnati.

"The television and radio rights alone would be more than $100,000."

Mintz repeated his claim that the Cincinnati Negro will defend his title once a month "if we get the right kind of offers."

Shareholders of the Calgary Stampeder football club have extended a full vote of confidence in coach Les Lear, president Tom Brook and manager Archie McGillis.

The vote at the club's recent annual meeting dispelled rumors about the status next season of the "big three" of Stampeders, who finished in the cellar of the western football conference after two western championship years.

All French sports federations will observe a one-minute silence at all events held Sunday in memory of Marcel Cerdan, former world middleweight boxing champion who died in an air crash in the Azores a year ago Friday.

Sunderland Friday paid £30,000 (about $90,000) for a soccer player—the highest sale price in the history of English football.

The player involved was Trevor Ford who has completed in international games for Wales and who belonged to the Aston Villa Club of the English Football League.

The previous record sale price was the £26,700 paid last December by Preston North End to Sheffield Wednesday for Eddie Quigby.

Capt. George Eyston of England 13 years ago today shot his motorcar "Thunderbolt" over the Utah salt flats at 309.6 miles an hour but the car broke down on the return spurt, leaving intact the record of 301 mph set by Sir Malcolm Campbell in 1935. A few days later Eyston set a mark of 311. Present mark is 394.2 mph, set by John Cobb in 1947.

Rocky Graziano Defeats Janiro By Decision

By JACK HAND

New York, Oct. 28 (AP)—"I didn't want to be famous. I just want to stack up that old annuity."

Rocky Graziano was talking. The new Graziano who last night barely squeaked past welterweight Tony Janiro of Youngstown, Ohio, in a close 10-rounder at Madison Square Grden.

The Rock flailed Tony. He jarred his mouthpiece loose with looping rights. Once he wrestled Tony through the ropes. But he never knocked him down.

Still there seemed to be some of the old fire missing in Graziano, who used to eat welterweights for breakfast back in the old "rockabye rocky" days. Through the early rounds young Tony made him eat leather from sharp left jabs and hooks.

One fellow walking out of the Garden remarked: "You have to be an accountant to cover Graziano fights any more." He didn't mean Rocky's out-of-town fights, where he scored five straight knockouts. He meant his Garden scraps with Janiro.

Last March 31, Rocky and Tony fought a draw, decided on the vote of the referee who scored it even in rounds, 5-5, and 10-10 in points.

Rematch Close

The rematch last night was close, too. Referee Ruby Goldstein and judge Joe Angello saw it 5-5. Goldstein gave Graziano an edge in points 10-8 and Agnello 7-6. Judge Artie Schwartz found for Graziano 6-4 in rounds.

So it was a unanimous ballot, but two officials had to go to Eddie Eagan's point system to break a draw. On the AP card it also was 5-5 with Graziano a point winner. Graziano lost the fifth round on all cards because of a low blow.

What next for Graziano? Matchmaker Al Weill of the International Boxing Club wants him to fight the Nov. 10 Garden winner between Paddy Young and Laurent Dauthuille. But before that he fights Honeychile Johnson in Philadelphia, Nov. 13.

Janiro, who did a fine job against Graziano until he tired in the late rounds, will be in line for future Garden main bouts.

Graziano, still way off in his timing, weighed 158½. Janiro was 153¼ on the night of his 23rd birthday.

The bout, reopening the Garden to boxing for the fall season, drew 10,461 fans and a gate of $55,370.

Alley Cats Lead Bowling League

Frankford, Oct. 28—The Frankford Bowling League saw plenty of changes in the standing Thursday night. The biggest upset of the night saw the seventh place Royals take three games from the league leading Monarchs, knocking them down into third place. The Alley Cats took over the league leadership by taking five points from the Hornets, while the Screwballs climbed into second place, taking five from the Aces. The Lucky Strikes made it five over the Sharpshooters in the other game.

Next week, at the beginning of the second quarter of the schedule will see the Monarchs and Screwballs tangle on one and two, Alley Cats and Aces on three and four, Royals and Lucky Strikes on five and six, with the Hornets and Sharpshooters on seven and eight.

Standing:	W.	L.	P.
Alley Cats	13	8	31
Screwballs	12	9	29
Monarchs	12	9	28
Aces	11	10	26
Lucky Strikes	11	10	25
Royals	9	12	21

CNR Tips Timbers For High Score In Major "A"

The standing in the Major "A" Bowling League remained unchanged after last night's timber-toppling session at the Bowl-O-Drome.

Northern Electric, loop topslotters, came through with a 5-2 win over Lawn Bowlers to consolidate their spot but C.N.R. finished with the high aggregate of the night, a 3203, to defeat Callaghan's Ice by a 5-2 count.

Tobe's County Gardens eked out a 4-3 victory over Moore's Chiselers with only 12 pins separating the teams. Belleville Golf emerged victors in their tilt with Esquire for Men by a 5-2 score.

Seven keglers topped the 700-mark in three-strings with G. Bellis leading the pack with a 744; M. Callaghan and J. Wardhaugh tied with 734; A. Holway got a 723; B. Yanover, 709; and Walter Moore, 701. Other high scored were: A. Wonnacott 698, D. Tobe 683, S. Halbert 679, J. White 656, J. Legault 652, N. Wilbur 651, and A. Hitchon 650.

Crucial Games On Tap all Round In Big Four

By The Canadian Press

Today's the day that can make or break the Big Four's football machines.

With a single game separating the top and the bottom and two scheduled games remaining for each team, the losing teams will be on the short end of the play-off tussles next keek.

The first-place Toronto Argonauts are at home to the last place Ottawa Rough Riders. In Hamilton, Montreal Alouettes and the Tiger-Cats will try to break out of their second-place tie.

Football playoffs start in the West. Edmonton Eskimos meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in a sudden-death semi-final game. The winner meets the Winnipeg Blue Bombers next Saturday for the right to come east for Grey Cup play.

The last-place Windsor Rockets of the Ontario Rugby Football Union face two weekend games. They play the Imperials at Sarnia today and meet Balmy Beach in Toronto Sunday. Rockets are expected to drop both games. If they do, it won't affect the league's playoff picture.

In the intercollegiate league, McGill meets Queen's at Kingston and Varsity meets Western at London. McGill boasts an undefeated streak, but optimistic Queen's supporters point to last year's games when the gaels were trampled 17-1 n Montreal then came back to win 15-0 in the next game at Kingston.

The battered, tattered Varsity Blues are given little chance against Western. The Blues were beaten 41-6 last week by Western in a game that further crippled the Toronto team by injuries.

Almost all the Big Four clubs will be at full strength or nearly so. And they're expected to throw everything they have into today's game.

A Toronto win would guarantee Argos a playoff spot and eliminate Ottawa. The winner of the Hamilton-Montreal game can be sure of at least a tie for second place. If Alouettes lose, they'll have to beat Argos next Saturday to make the playoffs while an Ottawa loss will eliminate the Rough Riders.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By JEFFREY RYAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 28 (CP)—Britain has bred a new speed baby in a bid for international automobile-racing honors.

This sprightly infant, only just recovering from preliminary teething troubles, is a low-slung, pale-green racing machine which may be the fastest thing on wheels.

It's known as the B.R.M. — British racing motor—and more than £200,000 ($620,000 has been spent on it in an effort to redeem Britain's racing reputation. For a while it was thought the money might be wasted, but now at last it looks as though the B.R.M. will pay dividends.

Two B.R.M. cars will go to Barcelona Sunday for the Spanish Grand Prix. If successful there, against top international racers, Britain's "dream" car will finally have proved its worth.

Foreign Monopoly

It will be about time. Ever since pre-war days, German Mercedes—built in a sky's-the-limit spirit—or Italian Alfa Romeo and Maserti machines have dominated international speed lanes.

In 1945, British racing driver Raymond Mays and designer Peter Berthon approached 160 car-and-component manufactures. They persuaded them to put up money for a racing car that would be sure to end the foreign monopoly.

After much hard work and many disappointments, the B.R.M. — 16-cylinder job with five gears and a new type of pneumatic springing—made its first public apparance three months ago. It flopped. The car refused to start. Mechanics who had toiled day and night to cure an engine defect couldn't get it going.

Reputation Redeemed

But a couple of weeks later, at Goodwood track in Sussex, the B.R.M. got another chance. This time it acted as it sponsors had hoped. Showing powerful speed, it coasted home ahead of the crack Siamese driver, Prince Bira.

Reg Parnell, who guided the B.R.M. to its first victory, commented after the race: "It's the most wonderful car I've ever driven. The acceleration was terrific and I had a lot in reserve."

He said he hopes to reach a speed of more than 200 miles an hour.

The B.R.M. isn't out of the woods yet. Financial troubles are piling up now that the government has refused a grant. But the sponsors hope a clean-cut victory at Barcelona may change the picture.

ONLY TWO WEEKS HOLIDAY

Asheville, N.C., Oct. 28 (AP)—Claude Penland won't be able to stray far from home if he obyes the terms of his wife's will.

Myrtle L. Penland left him certain properties if he:

Ooesn't leave home more than two weeks each year.

Gives her dog, "Boots", a heated room, doesn't let the animal breed and never places it in kennel.

WANT MORE MONEY

Stratford, Oct. 28. (CP)—District farmers want more money for letting power lines pass over their land. They say a farmer who permits placing of four transmission towers on his 100-acre farm gets $112. They think payment should be $500. Directors of the Perth County Federation of Agriculture have decided to protest to the Ontario government.

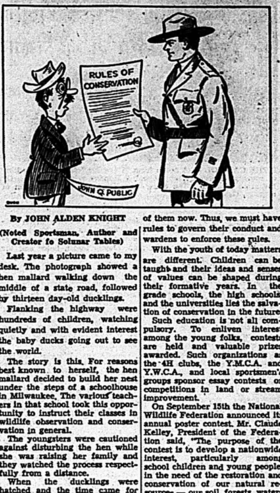
Conservation and Johnny Q. Public



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator fo Solunar Tables)

Last year a picture came to my desk. The photograph showed a hen mallard walking down the middle of a state road, followed by thirteen day-old ducklings.

Flanking the highway were hundreds of children, watching quietly and with evident interest the baby ducks going out to see the world.

The story is this. For reasons best known to herself, the hen mallard decided to build her nest under the steps of a schoolhouse in Milwaukee. The various teachers in that school took this opportunity to instruct their classes in wildlife observation and conservation in general.

The youngsters were cautioned against disturbing the hen while she was raising her family and they watched the process respectfully from a distance.

When the ducklings were hatched and the time came for them to leave the nest and follow their mother to the river, school was dismissed and the youngsters lined up along the roadway. An alert photographer was on hand to get the picture.

New Trend in Opinion

While this is merely an isolated incident, it shows clearly the trend these days in public education. As recently as forty or fifty years ago wildlife had to shift for itself. Too late we realized that steps must be taken if we were to continue to enjoy the sports of hunting and fishing.

Now wildlife management and reclamation is very much the order of the day. The game hogs and fish hogs no longer are respected citizens. Conservation is being preached from the housetops. Even so, the road to recovery is long, rough, and incredibly expensive.

Education of the public in any subject is an arduous task. Mr. Average Citizen has his own problems to occupy his attention and he simply is not interested in other matters. To impress upon him the vital importance of the conservation of our national natural resources takes a deal of doing.

It is difficult to teach an old dog new tricks. The confirmed limit-taker, either with fish or game, simply is not content to be moderate. The pleasure he finds each day afield is measured solely by the size of the bag.

Rules to Enforce Conduct

For these the only remedy lies in the fish and game laws and their enforcement. The old-timers learned their fishing and shooting in times of plenty. Too late to hope to change very many of them now. Thus, we must have rules to govern their conduct and wardens to enforce these rules.

With the youth of today matters are different. Children can be taught and their ideas and senses of values can be shaped during their formative years. In the grade schools, the high schools, and the universities lies the salvation of conservation in the future.

Such education is not all compulsory. To enliven interest among the young folks, contests are held and valuable prizes awarded. Such organizations as the 4H clubs, the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., and local sportsmen's groups sponsor essay contests or competitions in land or stream improvement.

On September 15th the National Wildlife Federation announced its annual poster contest. Mr. Claude Kelley, President of the Federation said, "The purpose of the contest is to develop a nationwide interest, particularly among school children and young people, in the need of the restoration and conservation of our natural resources — our soil, forests, waters and wildlife."

Two Groups

The contest will be divided into two groups. Group I will cover all contestants in the 7th, 8th, and 9th grades. Group II will cover the high-school grades through the senior year.

The first prize for Group I is $100 and for Group II $250. Total prizes amount to $700.00. Copies of rules, etc., can be had by writing to National Wildlife Federation, Washington 10, D.C.

Some years ago I announced the formation of the Half-Limit Club. This, as you may know, is an informal organization, banded together for the purpose of conserving the supply of fish in our waters. The members agree to confine the daily kill to half a legal limit.

From all parts of the country came inquiries concerning the formation of new local chapters of the Half-Limit Club. At least seventy-five per cent of these letters were from youngsters under twenty-five. Instruction in conservation evidently is beginning to pay off.

And, speaking of public education, the task of acquainting the sportsmen of the nation with the Solunar Tables was not an easy one. Even after seventeen years of concerted effort, the job is by no means done.

However, through the mediums of newspaper publication, stories and advertisements in the outdoor magazines, talks to sportsmen's groups, etc., thousands of hunters and fishermen now plan their days in the open with the aid of the Solunar Tables.

Gradually experience has shown these men . . . and women . . . that it pays to keep track of the daily Solunar Periods.

Russian Geologists Find Oil in SW China

Taipei, Formosa, Oct. 28 (Reuters)—Russian oil prospectors have discovered 40 workable oil-fields in Shensi, southwestern China, reports reaching here said today.

The reports said news of the Russian finds has been passed to the Sino-Russian Petroleum Enterprise in Peiping, communist capital, and further exploration is being planned.

About 30 Russian geologists and oil experts went to Shensi following the Chinese-Russian agreement on exploitation of mineral products early this year.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Horse Sense bridge circles the globe. It is being taught in Saudi Arabia. Calls for my book come from Shanghai and Manila. So, it was bound to turn up at the Rocky Mountain regionals.

My system loomed in the Pike's Peak open at Colorado Springs. While east-west top went to my partner and me, north-south title was won by Horse Sense pair Harold O. Reid and Carl W. Beck.

Dr. Reid is assistant dean of Arts and Sciences at the University of New Mexico. Dr. Beck is professor of geology at the same seat of learning in Albuquerque. Both enthuse over the system.

Both our pairs had played the same deals, each from opposite sides of the table. Whereas they played only the north-south hands, my pair played only the east-west hands.

After the match, therefore, we were able to compare notes from actual experience. The correct contracts were reached by our simple and sound bidding policies.

One of their deals is shown here:

Their bidding went like this:

South	North
1 S	2 C
2 H	3 NT
4 NT	5 H
6 C	Pass

Before reaching for a slam south learned from the bidding that it would be a gamble. But a system is only expected to give correct information. This points to the safest comparative contract. The human element can and does take it from there.

Others stopped at game in notrump when north hated to show the club suit takeout. They pleaded lack of enough honor strength to go to the level of two. Maybe I should tell you more about this.

Movie Column

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 28 — (AP)— Looking at the week's news:

The death of Al Jolson Monday night was a grave loss to the magic of the show world. His tireless singing and jesting will be missed by all.

After the first shock of Jolson's passing was over, Hollywood observers discussed the significance of it. They concluded that a great era of American show business is fading.

It's true that Jolson could keep up with today's popular favorites —the Hopes, the Crosbys, the Bennys and Sinatras. But actually he harked to the time when our national amusement was not as mechanized and standardized as it is today.

Jolson got his start in minstrel shows and vaudeville. He climbed to top fame in Broadway shows at the Winter Garden. Among his contemporaries were such great names as Will Rogers, W. C. Fields, Lillian Russell, George M. Cohan, Eddie Foy, Bert Williams, Marilyn Miller, Weber and Fields. All are now dead.

And minstrel shows and vaudeville are dead, too. The question arises: Where will the Jolsons of the future come from?. . . .

Speaking of oldtimers, there are still some around and they're going strong. People like Eddie Cantor, Jimmy Durante, Ed Wynn, Bobby Clark, George Jessel and Sophie Tucker.

About Love

Title of the week is "Love Is Better Than Ever," which will star Elizabeth Taylor and Larry Parks. Like the industry's current slogan, "Movies Are Better Than Ever, this brings up a number of issues.

Did love, like the movies, hit a slump after the war? If love is better than ever, how much better? What has brought the improvement? This is very confusin. Maybe they'd beter call the picture "Love Is As Good As It Ever Was.". . . .

AT THE BELLE

Lusty Action, Drama in "The Eagle and the Hawk"

Blazing with action, advnture and romance, Paramount's lusty Technicolor epic, "The Eagle and the Hawk", arrives today at the Belle Theatre.

John Payne, Rhonda Fleming and Dennis O'Keefe are in the Paramount production which is based on the true story.

Near the close of the Civil War, the French had established Maxmilian as the Emperor of Mexico and were planning on an attack on Texas to rip that state from the Union. "The Eagle and the Hawk", is the stirring, dramatic story of how the United States met and overcame the insidious invasion threat.

Forcefully establishing himself as a top box office attraction, John Payne turns in another great performance, according to advance reports. The lanky, handsome actor, whose most recent picture was "El Paso" bids fair to become one of the screen's outstanding action stars.

Beautiful Rhonda Fleming who scored so tremendously with Bing Crosby in "Connecticut Yankee" and with Bob Hope in "The Great Lover," is Payne's vis-a-vis while Dennis O'Keefe is said to give an exciting portrayal as a straight - shooting - government agent. Thomas Gomez, Fred Clark and Frank Faylen are seen in featured roles. Continuous shows will be presented today. Come anytime.

SHIPMENT HELD UP

Philadelphia, Oct 28—AP—A shipment of liquid petroleum for Communist China, scheduled to be put aboard the freighter Flying Cloud yesterday, was held up more than six hours while a government chemist analyzed it. Officials said the tests showed the commodity met export regulations and was released.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Satturday walk with pop, and some man stopped going, passed and shook hands with pop. Being a thin man with a worried expression, saying, Well, how are you, you're quite a stranger.

That's odd, I thawt you were the stranger, where have you been keeping yourself? pop said, and the man said, Oh, I've been around. Is this your little boy? he said.

Meening me, and pop said, Yes, this is my sun and air. Benny, shake hands with Mr. Glocher, he said.

Which I did, and Mr. Glocker said, Boys that age must be quite a drain on the pocketbook.

I'll say they must, pop said, and Mr. Glocker said, Well, when it comes to that, everything put together seems nuthing but a conspiracy to eat into a man's savings. And then consider taxes. Taxes are a serious problem, and that's no joke, he said.

I haven't laffed at taxes for years, pop said, and Mr. Glocker said, Speeking of financial matters, here's something will amuse you. I happened to meet Lew Bickler, and out of a blue sky he paid me 5 dollers that he'd owed me for quite some time. Of course it had completely slipped his mind, and I'd practically forgotten about it too, but it just shows you the way those things go, if you know what I mean, he said.

Say, come to think of it, I owe you 5 dollers, pop said. I'm glad you brawt it up, I meen I'm glad I happened to think of it, he said

And he gave Mr. Glocker 5 dollers, and Mr. Glocker said, Well, this seems like Chrissmas, I meen I never would of remembered that little dett if you hadn't recalled it to me.

And he kept on going, and I said, G, pop, do you think it really was a serprise to him?

There's no possible glimmer of a shadow of a doubt, pop said.

RESERVES JUDGMENT

Toronto, Oct. 28. (CP)—Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow Friday night reserved judgment in the enticement suit brought against a 35-year-old blonde widow by Mrs. Gertrude Brydon.

Earlier Friday, Justice Barlow discharged a jury which for five days had heard testimony concerning Mrs. Brydon's charge that her husband was "enticed" away by her neighbor, Mrs. Ruth Abernethy.

He said "hearsay" evidence introduced by both lawyers as to the "state of mind" of principals in the case, would cause a mistrial in the hands of a jury.

1,000 WORKERS LAID OFF

Detroit, Oct. 28. (AP)— The Ford Motor Company Friday laid off 1,000 workers at its big Rouge plant, blaming model change-over and material shortages. Rouge employs 60,000.

The action came just a day after Carl Stellato, president of the C.I.O. United Auto Workers' Local, predicted Ford would cut its working force by 15 per cent.

Ford said further lay-offs "will depend, in part at least, on how much steel and other basic materials are available for automobile production."

PICTON

Committee Sets Date for Santa Claus Parade

Picton — Saturday, December 2nd was the date chosen for the annual Santa Claus parade in Picton, when Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce members met Thursday night. Plans discussed indicate that the parade will be the greatest since they were started five years ago. Already many floats have been promised and fifty costumes are to be rented. Three or four bands are to be secured.

It was decided to start the parade at one-thirty in the afternoon and to twice parade through the Main Street.

The directors also arranged for a general meeting on Nov. 22 when prizes in the fishing competition will be presented and matters of interest to town and county discussed at open forum.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"Come in, Mrs. Betsy. I don't really want anything. I had tea so late."

"Oh, but you must eat, child. You didn't touch the lunch I brought up for you. If you don't want dinner I could toss up a nice fruit salad, the caterer left a lot of sandwiches and cakes and — Lem brought some ice cream from the village for our supper."

"You're a darling, would you mind if I had it in about an hour? Leave things in the icebox where I can get them if you and Mrs. Digby are going out. Miss Sargent said she would drop in after the picture show to see me on business"—that was a guess—"and I would like to wait until after she has been here."

"Any time you say, dearie. Lem and I almost never go out in the evening, he don't like the movies, he sits and listens to the radio. Just ring your bell and I'll bring it up. 'Tisn't any trouble I love to come into this room, it's so pretty since you fixed it up.' A door closed below. "I guess that's Miss Gene now. I'll run down the back way."

As she crossed to a door at the rear of the room Gene Sargent called:

"Hi, there. I'm in a terrific jam, Fran."

"Come up, Gene."

"You've certainly made the room look like a million," Gene Sargent approved as she entered. She slumped into the wing chair thrust her long legs straight out before her. Fran perched on the edge of the sofa.

"What's it all about, Gene?"

"Here's the awful truth. Luck has been against me. I owe money. Thought perhaps you could help me out with a loan till my next allowance day. Dad has theories as to the way to bring up a gal. He won't advance a cent until the date is due."

"You couldn't have applied at a worse time, Gene. My bank balance is close to the vanishing stage. I plunged on clothes before I left home."

"I'll say you plunged. I'll bet you have the most colorful, the swankiest outfit on the coast of Maine this summer. You've earned it, you were an angel with that cranky aunt of yours. You didn't use all your money, did you, you who were taught thrift by Rebecca Harding?"

"I have $75 in the bank. I counted on my pay here to carry me until next income day which will be the fifth of September. I will give you a check for $50 and $25 in cash, if that will help.

"Seventy-five dollars! You're offering me a stone, gal, when I need bread. I'm in the red just $1,000."

"Gene!"

"Aint it awful, Mabel!" There was a quiver in her flippant quote. "That's how it is. I've got to get the money, somehow, somewhere. I thought first of you."

"I'd let you have the money in a minute, Gene, if I had it," said. "But seventy-five is the limit I can scrape together. I must leave something in the bank. I've spent most of my salary on one thing or another since I've been here."

"You'll have a fistful of the filthy lucre the fifth of September, won't you? Get an advance Myles Jaffray is trustee of your property isn't he? The gods are with us. He's here. Tell him you need money to pay for—for that antique diamond cluster ring you're wearing. It's bigger than a quarter, it looks like a thousand dollars."

"You know it was aunt Becky's ring Gene."

"Myles doesn't. You've got to help me. I'll do something desperate if you don't."

"Don't talk like a nitwit. Why don't you go to your mother, tell her the story?"

"I can't she's settled for me once, she said 'never again.'"

"Your father?"

"Dads generous, but he would not advance our allowances or increase them a penny were the alternative jail for mother or me. He's of the 'This rock shall fly from its firm base as soon as I' school. Can you seeing him giving it to me for card debts?"

She couldn't, Fran assured herself; she had been here a little over three weeks but she had learned enough of Henry Sargent to know that if he once made up his mind no argument could change it.

"Come on, Franny, be a good sport. Ask Myles. After all, it's your money, nothing in his life."

"I can't ask him, Gene."

"I've got to have that money and you're the only person who can come across. If you don't—you'll be responsible for—" An automobile horn signifying impatience cut into the sentence.

"Who's waiting downstairs Gene?"

"Blake Sinclair. We're on the way to—we're on the way to somewhere. He wanted to come with me, but I told him you had asked me to stop and talk business."

"I?" I asked you to come on business?"

"What difference does it make whose business it is? Darn him. Why doesn't he stop blowing that horn? I've got to go Fran. Help me won't you?"

"How soon must you have the money?"

"I ought to have it this minute, but if you'll promise to get it I'll get a reprieve."

"I can't promise, Gene.'

"Will you try?"

"Yes. But don't count on it."

"I've got to have it or else—" She dashed to the hall in answer to another furious summons.

Fran stood motionless in the middle of the room till she heard a car start. How could she get money for Gene? Asking Myles Jaffray for an advance on her allowance was out. Hadn't she told him that the subject of his trusteeship was definitely closed? Hadn't he told her that she was a confounded responsibility?

"I've got to have—or else—" Gene's threat echoed through her memory. She shivered. What had she meant by "or else"?

Myles Jaffray perched on the wall of the terrace of his home smoking. Far off between the spruce trees in the downhill garden he could see whitecaps rolling in on a sandy beach. The world was so quiet that the rhythmic swish and ebb of the tide was faintly audible.

Crocker the gardener was closing the gay umbrellas above the green iron tables in the garden, folding the awninged deck chairs as he had done in the days before the war. From daily repetition it had become something of a ritual. Myles thought of the many times when in the midst of flame, the shriek and crash of bombs, he had conjured the colorful memory—how he had visualized the trees his grandfather had set out on the land his great-grandfather had purchased; the flowers; women in lovely frocks having tea in the garden after a party; old Crocker, limping then as he limped now from table to table, closing the umbrellas. He remembered how his excursion into the past had refreshed and revitalized and strengthened his belief that right would win the fight.

"Frances Phillips is beautiful and vital, Myles."

His sister's voice transported him from a world of battle and sudden death to the peace and fragrance of the present. He had forgotten she was at the coffee table on the terrace. A spoon tinkled as she set cup and saucer on the silver tray.

"Had you met her before she came here?"

"No."

That was the truth. He visualized the slim girl he had seen in the elevator the first time he had called on Judge Grimes, a full week before he was expected. He had recognized her from the photograph her brother carried, a photograph suddenly come vividly alive. One couldn't call that meeting her.

"Of course, it isn't my business his sister's voice broke the photographic plate of memory, "equally of course you will consider my point of view dated when I say I think that a charming girl like her should not live alone." That brought him off the wall to his feet. He backed against a vine-covered pillar.

"What do you mean, 'live alone?" She's staying with the Sargents, isn't she?"

"She was. Yesterday she moved to the apartment above the gallery."

"How do you know?"

"Mrs. Sargent told me at the preview this afternoon. She embarked on one of her lengthy explanations as to the whys and wherefores, in which I caught the word 'Matilde.' Of course she had no idea that the name was anathema to me. I had a feeling that she didn't approve of the transfer of her husband's assistant from Rocky Point to the apartment, but had been persuaded that the change was for the best. In short —if you can by any stretch of the imagination connect the word 'short' with Mrs. Sargent's conversation— I would say she was apologetic. The gallery is full of valuable and salable stuff which could be picked up easily by a burglar. Even with Lem Digby there and Silas Pond the night watchman, it is not a safe place for a girl alone."

"Safe? It's darned unsafe. Why wasn't I consulted?" His sister laughed.

"Why should you be, Major? You are out of the army now where your word was law in certain situations. Unless—unless you mean by being consulted that you —you are tied up with the Sargent family. It—it isn't Gene, is it?"

"It is not, accent on the not. The reason I should have been consulted—I had intended to tell you this evening—is that I am now trustee, succeeding her brother, of the estate Rebecca Harding left Fran Phillips."

"What has happened to Ken Phillips? I met him when he came to New York on leave. I liked him very much."

"Ken is okay." Is he? He pushed the perturbed question back into the shadows of his mind where fear belonged and slammed the door of imagination. It wasn't to be told that he had planned with Ken that he was to be near Fran this summer, until her brother had come safely through his mission. The arm of reprisal was long, her safety must be assured.

"He has decided to remain in Germany as long as he is needed, which anybody's guess will be for years." That statement was allowable. "He felt that the trusteeship should be handled by someone in this country and picked me. The Lord knows I didn't want it, but Ken is entitled to all the help I can give."

Conservatives Vote to End Coalition in Man.

Brandon, Man., Oct. 28 (CP) — Speculation centred today on the future of two Progressive Conservative cabinet ministers remaining in the Manitoba Coalition government following the party's decision to break up its 10-year partnership with the Liberals.

Education Minster W. C. Miller and Labor Minister C. E. Greenlay pleaded at the two-day provincial convention yesterday for continuance of the coalition for the life of the present legislature. Both said they were elected at last year's general election under the coalition banner and felt under obligation to stick by the bipartisan administration.

But the convention voted them down 205 to 26, then voted 215 to 17 to end the political arrangement begun during the war years and continued into peace time.

Errick F. Willis, the party leader who resigned as Deputy Premier Aug. 10 and called on Progressive Conservatives to go into opposition, was re-elected leader. Pro-coalitionists nominated no candidate and Mr. Willis was elected 188 to 35 over 37-year-old George Victor Hastings of Winnipeg who said the party needed a new leader in order to start out with a clean slate.

The convention turned today to resolutions and the election of officers.

George Drew, national leader of the party who addressed a banquet last night, continued talks with provincial leaders.

Mr. Willis before his re-election answered criticisms of his leadership. Dr. J. S. Poole of Neepawa, who said dissolution of the coalition "probably will mean an election," claimed Mr. Willis had supported Premier Douglas Campbell during the Red River floods last spring and had sided with the Liberals on the compulsory marketing of coarse grains and the redistribution of legislature seats.

Mr. Willis replied that his position had been that of a loyal member of the government up to the time of his resignation.

Both Education Minister Miller and Labor Minister Greenlay made a spirited defence of their refusal to follow their leader out of the cabinet. Mr. Greenlay said that "anything short of continuing coalition to the end of the present legislature is going back on a contract."

One high party member predicted they will be forced to resign since they now are in the position of holding office without the support of any followers in the legislature.

Dean William Bender said permission hs been granted the Harvard Art Association to use live female models—possibly even nude ones.

Th association immediately closed its membership at 22.

ECUADOREAN SAYS PERU THREATENS PEACE OF AMERICA

Reports of Peruvian troops being mobilized near the borders of Ecuador has forced Ecuador's foreign ministry to be called into extraordinary session at Quito. President Galo Plazo Lasso, above, was reportedly considering an appeal to the United Nations against what some Ecuadoreans term as a "threat to peace" by Peru. — Central Press Canadian.

Nightly Trysts In Canyon County Jail Are Over

Caldwell, Idaho, Oct. 28 (AP) — The two-month party in the Canyon county jail is over.

Sheriff Ray Luekenga said yesterday that two keys were made in the jail and used to unlock the men's cells and the door to the women's ward.

The sheriff said nightly trysts were held from mid - July until officers discovered the inter cell visiting Sept. 10.

Sir Stafford In Effect Being Expelled

London, Oct. 28. (Reuters)—Sir Stafford Cripps, who resigned as chancellor of the Exchequer last week, ceased to be a member of Parliament Friday night.

But parliamentary rules do not allow an M.P. to quit. He must either die or be expelled. And Sir Stafford is, in effect, being expelled.

As part of the formal expulsion procedure, he applied for appointment as "steward and bailiff of His Majesty's three hundreds of Chiltren"—more familiarly known as "The Chiltern Hundreds".

The word "hundreds" indicates that each of the royal tracts in the Chiltern Hills can be covered by 100 oxskins. The oxskin once was a unit of measure for land.

But the job of steward and bailiff is considered an "appointment of profit under the crown",—something no M.P. can hold (outside of Cabinet ministers).

Today the job has neither duties nor salary—and Sir Stafford will have to resign it almost at once so that the loophole will remain open should another M.P. have a legitimate reason for quitting parliament.

Steel Shortage Crimps Barrel Trips Over Falls

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 28 — (CP) — Canada's steel shortage is putting a crimp in barrel trips over Niagara Falls.

Jiggs Rufrano of the Cataract Metal Works, who has a barrel on order for Leslie Sander, industrial designer of New York, says he is having trouble getting steel.

Sander announced some time ago that he planned to go over the Horseshoe Falls in a barrel early next month.

POSSIBLE STARTER

Dr. Harry M. Cassidy, 50, Vancouver-born director of the University of Toronto's school of social work, may be a candidate for leadership of the Ontario Liberal Party. He was director of social welfare for the Province of British Columbia from 1934-39 and was director of training for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration prior to taking his present appointment. He is believed to have strong backing in Toronto and Ottawa if he should decide to run at the Toronto convention Nov. 9-10. — (CP Photo.)

Credit Curbs Make Payment Plans More Difficult

New Regulations Come Into Effect November 1st

Ottawa, Oct. 30—(CP) — The government has moved to make "easy payment" instalment buying more difficult.

New regulations, designed as anti-inflationary discouragement to needless buying, come into effect Nov. 1, covering a wide field in the expanding trade in credit purchasing.

They set minimums on the amount of down payments and on weekly or monthly instalments, and clamp an 18-month maximum on time payments. Practically all goods with such exceptions as building materials, fuel, buses, trucks and educational and religious books, are affected.

Loans for the purchase of consumer goods also come under the new laws announced yesterday by Finance Minister Abbott as a "means of helping check inflationary pressures arising from mounting defence expenditures.

Mr. Abbott said Canadians have been "going into debt on an increasing scale in order to buy goods, thus adding to the upward pressure on prices." The government had therefore decided to act under the powers conferred in the consumer credit (temporary provisions) act passed at the recent special session of parliament.

The Finance Minister said the restrictions, mild compared with those effective during the Second World War, would be varied "as required by changing circumstances" They parallel closely similar curbs on consumer credit already in effect in the United States.

The main provisions:

1. A down payment of 33 1-3 per cent of the purchase price is required at time of delivery on automobiles, motorcycles and other motor vehicles except buses and trucks and those intended for use by salesmen as demonstrators.

Must Pay 28 P.C.

MEDAL IS PRESENTED

St. Catharines, Oct. 30—(CP)— Lt.-Col. George B. Begy, formerly of the Lincoln and Welland Regiment, was presented with the Volunteer (efficiency) Medal Saturday, almost 30 years after the service which had earned him the decoration.

The medal, now discontinued and which bears the likeness of the late King George V, was usually presented after 15 years' service. Col. Begy served with the regiment from 1905 to 1921.

Tibetan Troops Retreat in Face Of Invaders

New Delhi, India, Oct. 30—AP —Tibetan troops were reported today to have retreated in the face of the Chinese Communist invaders to within 200 miles of the mountain country's capital, of Lhasa.

India's representative at Lhasa advised his government here that the defending troops abandoned Lho Dzong (Lolungchung) Oct. 22 and Shoshado Oct. 27 and fell back to Pemba Go.

Pemba Go is 200 miles east of Lhasa, on a main caravan route [illegible] Chamdo, an important East Tibetan defence centre.

Earlier the Kalimpong correspondent of the Calcutta newspaper. The Statesman, reported the Chinese Communists are believed planning a three-pronged drive on Lhasa from both the northeast and the southeast, as well as other advances into eastern Tibet and into the north of the remote Himalayan Lama-ruled country.

The Indian government spokesman added that Tibet has asked India for any diplomatic assistance it can give—specifically for the "continuance of the good offices which India has made available in the past."

The spokesman did not say what assistance India plans, but denied that the Tibetan message included a request for military assistance or that the Chinese invasion be brought before the United Nations.

India has already sent a note to the Chinese Communist government in Peiping expressing regret and surprise at the red order to invade Tibet. The spokesman said no answer has been received to this note.

Ten Families Flee Apartment Block Fire

Lindsay, Oct. 30 (CP) — Ten families were sent scurrying in their night attire early Sunday when a $10,000 fire raged through an apartment block here.

Three children of one family, Nancy, 4, Billy 7, and John Hogarth, seven months, were carried to safety by their mother and a neighbor. Fireman wore gas masks to search the apartments but found everyone had escaped safely.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the cellar of the Wonder Bar lunch counter. The restaurant was gutted and a meat market and fruit store were damaged by smoke.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—Synopsis: An unprecedented late October heat wave over the western United States sent temperatures soaring to the upper 80s on Sunday, some 25 to 35 degrees above normal. Ontario also had its share of unseasonably mild weather when temperatures were 15 to 20 degrees above normal. Hamilton reported a high of 70 degrees while Moosonee at the foot of James Bay had 61 degrees.

Slightly cooler air moved into Northern Ontario this morning and will move through Eastern Ontario today, but Tuesday will again be very warm in all but extreme northern sections of the province.

An intensifying disturbance over Montana will move rapidly eastward reaching northwestern Ontario late Tuesday. It will cause increasing winds over the province on Tuesday with rain in northern sections.

CONGRESSIONAL RACE WILL BE CLOSEST IN YEARS

33 Governors to Be Elected on Nov. 7

New York, Oct. 30 (CP) —The closest Congressional race in years appears to be in the making as candidates in the Nov. 7 voting start their final week of electioneering.

Election of 33 governors along with a maze of state, county and civic officials shares the spotlight with the Congressional race in this "off-year" election—an election year in which there is no presidential contest.

Because of the keen interest in state and local elections, national issues have taken somewhat of a back seat to matters closed to the nearly 70,000,000 eligible voters of whom some 42,000,000 are expected to cast their ballots.

But such vital country-wide questions as peace, national security, the administration's record and communism have been widely discussed.

The Republicans, whose strategists privately estimate a gain of three Senate seats and about 15 or 20 in the House of Representatives, will interpret any Democratic losses as dissatisfaction with the Truman administration and a good omen for Republican success in the 1952 Presidential elections.

The Democrats estimate they will gain no fewer than two Senate seats and will more than hold their own in the House. If the election upholds this prediction, they will take it as approval of the administration policies.

If the election returns should stay within these minimums, the Democrats would retain control of both Houses. To take the Senate, the Republicans would have to gain seven seats. They need a net advance of 49 to control the House.

36 Senate Seats At Stake

There are 36 of the 96 senate seats at stake this year—four more than the usual one-third of the House which is elected every two years for a six-year term. The extra four senate elections are necessary to fill unexpired terms. Of the senate seats at stake, 23 are Democrat and 13 Republican. The present senate has 54 Democrats and 42 Republicans.

The Democrats now hold 259 seats in the 435-seat house, with the Republicans controlling 169. There is one American Labor party member and six vacant seats. The whole House is elected every two years.

President Truman has not yet taken part in the campaign but has one political broadcast scheduled near its close. Some of his opponents have read political motives into his conference with Gen. MacArthur at Wake Island and his subsequent speeches which Truman aides insist were "non-political".

Irish Boy Doesn't Ask for Moon From Santa; Just Wants Few Toys

Montreal, Oct. 30 (CP)—Mortimer Moriarty of West Main street, Cahirciveen, County Kerry, Ireland, doesn't ask for the moon or put on a sob act, so you may be interested in his letter to Santa Claus.

Nine-year-old Mortimer, apparently alive to the business of letting Santa know about these things bright and early, addressed an envelope to "Editor of the Canidian (Mortimer's spelling) Press, Canada."

A puzzled postman walked into CP's Montreal Bureau and thankfully shed himself of the letter.

Inside was another envelope addressed only "Santa Claus" and a half-sheet of paper in boyish penmanship: "Dear sir, will you please mail this to Santa Claus for me I don't know his right address thank you very much."

A snooping deskman peeked into the Santa Claus letter. At the top was "My name is"—followed by name and address—and at the bottom an even dozen X's for Santa and "Love from Mortimer".

The letter itself—spelled out correctly but suffering from want of punctuation marks—indicated that Mortimer thinks Canada's Santa Claus is top man among all Santa Clauses. But read it for yourself:

Dear Santa Claus

How are you I hope you are well and strong for to carry all the Toys to the children I am nine years old and I would be very thankful to you if you would be good to me and please send me a few nice Toys to play with because I am a poor boy and I wont be lonely for Xmas my Daddy told me that the Santa Claus in Canada was a very good man better than the Santa we have here in Ireland I will say a whole lot of prayers for you I have 3 more Brothers and two sisters younger than myself

Good bye now Santa Claus
Good Luck God bless you and Give you a holy and happy
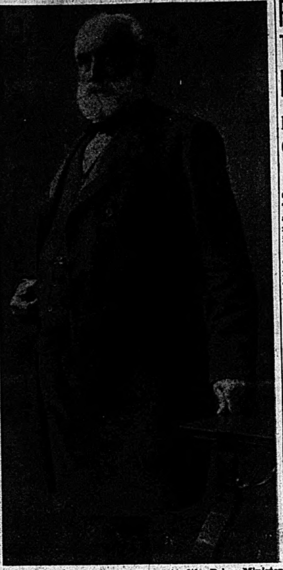
Xmas

(Note to Mortimer: CP relayed your letter. This Canadian Santa will look after you.)



Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Canada's 6th. Prime Minister

Prime Minister St. Laurent Officiates at Ceremony Held In Presence of Many Citizens

In an event unique in this city's history, a Prime Minister of Canada paid tribute to the memory of a former Prime Minister in simple yet impressive ceremonies here on Saturday.

The Right Hon. Louis St. Laurent, Prime Minister of Canada, formally unveiled a monument erected to the memory of the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Prime Minister of Canada from December, 1894 to April, 1896.

A near-overflow crowd packed the Bridge Street Armouries where the unveiling ceremonies were held at four o'clock. Sullen skies that threatened to deluge rain momentarily, forced officials to transfer the ceremonies from the monument proper to a replica erected inside the building.

The memorial with its inscribed plaque is erected at the northwest corner of the Armouries lawn.

With Mr. St. Laurent were Madame St. Laurent; their daughter, Madame Mathieu Sanson; J. W. Pickersgill, executive assistant to the Prime Minister, and Fred M. Landon, of the Historical Sites and Monuments Commission, Ottawa.

Inspects Guard of Honor

During his six-hour stay in the city, the Prime Minister inspected a guard of honor composed of personnel of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment; deposited a wreath at the foot of the Station Street Cenotaph; addressed a Chamber of Commerce luncheon; unveiled the monument replica and was guest of honor at a civic reception and tea in the officers' mess of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment.

Madame St. Laurent and Madame Sanson were guests of honor at a luncheon tendered them by wives of city aldermen and Chamber of Commerce directors.

The unveiling ceremony, due to the uncertain weather, had to be moved into the Armouries. There, at 4.09 p.m., Mr. St. Laurent pulled a cord and bared a replica of the monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

Describing Sir Mackenzie as "one of the great Canadian citizens who contributed so much to the upbuilding of this nation", Mr. St. Laurent paid tribute to the man who came to be known as a great statesman and editor.

The Prime Minister paused, too, to remember the man who made the first move to have the monument erected—the late W. C. Mikel, K.C. He said that it was a matter of great sorrow "that Mr. Mikel should pass away before this monument was ready to unveil."

Called Leading Figure

Mr. St. Laurent said that the people of Canada "cannot take too much care to preserve the records of the development of our nation." He said that the fact that a government of one political complex was glad to agree to the commemoration of the memory of the chief of another political party was ample testimony to show what a part Sir Mackenzie Bowell had played in Canada.

The Prime Minister, in unveiling the monument, called Sir Mackenzie a "leading figure in the public life of Canada for 40 years." Photographers' flashbulbs popped as Mr. St. Laurent pulled the cord and drew the Union Jack from the face of the replica monument.

FIRST NEW RULER TO ASCEND THRONE IN HALF-CENTURY

People Mourn Death Of 92-Year-Old King

By Gustav Svensson

Stockholm, Oct. 30 — (AP) — Gustaf VI today was proclaimed "King of the Swedes, the Goths and the Wends," the first new ruler to ascend the ancient throne in nearly a half-century.

He succeeds his father, 92-year-old King Gustaf V, whose death yesterday morning after a reign of nearly 43 years plunged the nation into deepest mourning.

For all practical purposes the son, born Prince Oscar Frederik Wilhelm Olaf Gustaf Adolf, has been Sweden's monarch since his father's death. But at colorful ceremonies today in the cabinet council room of Stockholm's royal palace he took the royal oath pledging himself to adhere strictly to the constitution and to rule "as a righteous king and gracious father of the Swedish people by a legal, just and mild government."

Oath Is Read

Socialist Premier Tage Erlander read the oath in the presence of his cabinet and Sweden's hereditary princes, who immediately gave their pledge of allegiance to the new king. Erlander then formally tendered his government's resignation and the king in turn asked the cabinet to remain in office.

The king then led a stately procession to the great hall of state in the palace, where his wife, Queen Louise, members of the royal family and the court awaited.

Thousands of Swedes stood outside the palace in the rain, waiting to see their new king, who will be 68 years old Nov. 11.

Gustaf VI announced that his motto as king will be:

"Duty above all."

At 3 p.m. the king and his queen emerged to sit on a palace balcony. The waiting thousands greeted them with tremendous ovations and waving handkerchiefs.

The new queen, British-born Louise, is the monarch's second wife. She is a sister of Earl Mountbatten and a great-granddaughter of Queen Victoria.

The new crown prince is a blonde, curly-haired, four-year-old boy—little Prince Carl Gustaf. His father, the new ruler's eldest son, died in a plane crash in 1947.

The body of Gustaf V lay today in Drottingholm palace, where he died. His democratic rule has been one of the longest in Europe and the longest in Swedish history.

He had suffered from chronic bronchial catarrh for several years and last week took a sudden turn for the worse.

The date of his funeral will be set by his heir. It will take place after 10 days but not later than Nov. 12, an official announcement said.

N. Koreans Rally Desperately South Of Manchuria Line

Increasing Fury of Reds Seen in Use of Larger Guns

(By The Associated Press)

Seoul, Oct. 30—(AP) — North Korean troops rallied desperately today south of the Manchurian border. They cut up one South Korean division and forced it to flee in disorder.

American tanks and artillery were rushed to the critical area—Onjong, in Northwest Korea about 45 miles south of the Manchurian frontier.

S. Korean Division Cut Up

More than 10,000 communists, reported to include some Chinese reds, chopped up one-third of the South Korean 6th Division.

It was the first sizeable defeat in seven weeks for United Nations forces generally advancing toward the Manchurian frontier. Their aim is to clear North Korea before heavier red resistance can be organized — and before winter's blasts.

North Korean women were reported going to the front.

On the left flank of the retreating South Korean 6th Division, the Fifth Regiment of the U. S. 24th Division rolled to within 35 miles of the border.

Increasing Fury

Indicative of the increasing fury of red resistance was their use of their heaviest weapons, tanks and self-propelled guns.

Allied fighters and bombers supporting the American column and the Commonwealth 27th Brigade on the west coast destroyed 18 tanks and seven guns.

Despite the ferocity of the communist opposition, Gen MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters noted that "none of the enemy counterattacks was sustained."

A spokesman said the reds are "in a desperate situation" that the red attacks in the Onjong sector were stopped except for "a few minor gains." The South Koreans were regrouping in that area.

A U.S. Eighth Army spokesman reported that the South Korean division's withdrawal was disorganized, and that a third of its strength was lost in three days of fighting.

A regiment of this division reached the Manchurian frontier Thursday above Chosan. Menaced by the reds in the rear, it was forced to withdraw to Songpa, more than 30 miles south of the Yalu River boundary.

To the south, at Onjong, the division's 2nd Regiment was surrounded Thursday, the bulk of it wiped out. Two other regiments the 19th and 10th, were hard hit in trying to rescue the survivors of the 2nd Regiment.

South Korean commanders said Chinese communist officers led the red force.

Trenches Dug Barbed Wire Laid In East Germany

Berlin, Oct. 30 (AP)—East Germany's militarized police dug trenches and laid barbed wire at four places near the border of West Berlin during the week-end, American officials reported today.

The Soviet zone entrenchments apparently were for field training of police infantry units. The Allied High Commission kept the development under close observation.

The Eastern police were reported unofficially today to be threatening reprisals against Soviet-zone families whose members flee to West Berlin or West Germany.

Since last January, 44,000 East Germans have left the Soviet zone without police permission. Communist authorities confirmed the size of this exodus when they rigorously checked qualified voters for the Oct. 15 parliamentary election.

Criminal prosecution is reported facing East Germans who fail to report the illegal emigration of relatives.

Improve Wood Lots

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP)—Efforts of the Canadian Institute of Forestry, formerly the Canadian Society of Forest Engineers, will be concentrated on improving the wood lots on Canadian farms in 1951.

Alex Koroleff of Montreal told delegates at the annual meeting Saturday that wood lots on 500,000 Canadian farms and private holdings can produce the most wood per acre of any timbered tracts. They are not doing so because of overcutting, grazing and fire damage, he said. Fill production was prevented by ignorance by the owners of woods management and marketing techniques.

WENT TO SLEEP

There's Nothing Dull About Riding Malayan Train, Liable to Get Killed

By LARRY ALLEN

Singapore, Oct. 30 (AP) —If you're looking for a thrill, try riding the mail train from Singapore to Kuala Lumpur, capital city of the Federation of Malay.

Likely as not you will be blown out of your berth, injured or even killed on the 250-mile stretch northward.

Communist terrorists, you see, delight in taking cracks at the mail trains:

Here's a typical government press announcement— and such come often:

"Last night, in Johore, the Kuala Lumpur to Singapore day mail train was derailed by an explosion caused by bandits. The engine capsized and three coaches were derailed. The driver of the engine was killed and two firemen were slightly injured."

"Early this morning, in Negri Sembilan, the pilot train of the Kuala Lampur to Singapore night mail train was derailed by bandits. The driver of the engine was slightly injured."

British soldiers and police guard the trains, but that doesn't seem to put an end to the planting of mines or other explosives on tracks, or otherwise derailling trains.

The communist terrorists in the dense jungle bordering the railroad frequently fire on the slowly moving trains.

To prevent destruction of the main mail trains, and loss of life or injury to crews and passengers a pilot train usually makes the first run.

Frequently the pilot train takes the brunt of terrorist activities, but not always. It seems the communists have caught onto this trick, and so bide their time to plant or touch off explosives to get the main mail train after a pilot engine has passed.

OFFICIALS TO CONFER WITH Y STAFF

H. Arnold Ward, National Secretary for Adult programs of the Y.M.C.A. will be in the city on Tuesday and Wednesday consulting with the local staff on issues facing the association in work with young people. Mr. Ward was associated with the general secretary A. J. Davis on the staff of the Ottawa Y.M.C.A. during the days of the depression in the early 30's.

BLANKET OF FOG ENVELOPS DISTRICT

Highway traffic on No. 2 last night was slowed to a walk in some sections due to a heavy blanket of fog that moved off Lake Ontario. Between Port Hope and Cobourg in particular the fog presented a solid wall to motorists, and speeds were down to ten miles an hour.

A local taxi driver said that the cotton batting extended north to Madoc as well, and transport drivers last night said that the condition seemed to be general all along the lakefront from Toronto east.

DIANNE THOMPSON CATCHES BOUQUET TOSSED BY P.M.

Thirteen - year - old Dianne Thompson of this city was one of the proudest youngsters in the city on Saturday.

She was one of the recipients of bouquets of roses tossed to cheering children by Prime Minister St. Laurent when he appeared on the observation platform of the special railway coach after the train pulled in the CNR station.

MRS. BOB LIDDLE WINNER AT DANCE

Mrs. Bob Liddle was the winner of the door prize, a handsome necklace of brilliants, presented at the dance given by the officers of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment, RCA on Saturday night. The prize was the gift of the Belleville Retail Jewellers Association.

MAYOR PRESENTS CUP TO ASSOCIATION

A silver trophy to be known as the "Allin Cup" has been donated to the Belleville Hockey Association by His Worship Mayor Jack Allin.

The trophy will be awarded annually to the winners of the Midget Hockey Group which is operated by the Hockey Association.

Thieves Secure Small Amount Cash in Break-In

Smashing their way through a double brick wall into the vault of the Ross Miller Biscuit Company building at Napanee, thieves Sunday evening escaped with an undetermined amount of cash.

Entry into the building was gained with the use of railroad lining bars and sledge hammers which were left on the scene. The entry was made some time between seven o'clock and eight-thirty.

After leaving the biscuit factory, the thieves crossed the road and attempted to break into the premises of the Acme Farmers' Dairy but they were scared away when workmen in the plant were alerted by the sound of breaking glass.

Cpl. W. E. Smith of the Napanee detachment of the provincial police stated that only a small amount of cash had been taken from the biscuit factory vault but the exact amount had not been determined.

St. Laurent Deposits Wreath At Cenotaph, Inspects Guard After Arrival in the City

A large crowd was on hand at the C.N.R. station when the train bearing the Prime Minister and party arrived at 12.20. Mayor Jack Allin and party boarded the official coach and met Mr. St. Laurent remaining until the party detrained a few minutes later.

Flag-waving children greeted the Prime Minister as he walked through the station to where a guard of honor of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under Major F. Burtt, of Trenton stood at attention with its color party.

In the background were the colorful Kinsmen Boys' Band with its smart drum majorettes and the scarlet-coated Belleville Municipal Band under Bandmaster Ted Robbins. Troops of boy scouts, sea cadets and army cadets were formed in line.

Mr. St. Laurent with Major Burtt and his aide-de-camp Major Owen Atking, 9th Anti-Tank Regiment and the official party inspected the smartly turned out guard of honor as the sun broke through rain-misted clouds for its only appearance during the day.

Rode in Open Car

Later he entered an open convertible motor car with Mayor Allin and Mr. Follwell and proceeded to the Station Street Cenotaph where another large crowd greeted him with cheers and flags.

Boy scouts, girl guides, brownies and cubs were drawn up in horseshoe formation about the cenotaph with the bands, cadets and guard of honor. On the outside the large crowd pressed closely as Mr. St. Laurent deposited a wreath on the foot of the cenotaph.

He stood with bowed head as the soft notes of "Last Post" sounded in the misty air and remained in reverent attitude after the "Reveille" had sounded. Afterwards he inspected the Cenotaph studying closely some of the names inscribed on its facets. Before turning away, he again faced the monument and stood for a moment with bowed head.

Prime Minister Reviews Sir Mackenzie's Life, Career At Saturday Luncheon

"I don't mind admitting that one reason I wanted to come to Belleville for this occasion was that I felt it would be the kind of gesture of goodwill and understanding which other nations of the world might follow with profit," Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent said here on Saturday.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke to some 170 Chamber of Commerce members and their guests at a luncheon held in his honor at the Hotel Quinte, which was part of the itinerary laid down for his visit here to unveil a monument erected to the memory of the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell, former Prime Minister of Canada.

The Prime Minister's statement followed his observation that the late Sir Mackenie Bowell was "an English-speaking Canadian, a Conservative, a Protestant and an Orangeman—in fact he was the Grand Master of the Orange Lodge in Canada."

"I think it speaks volumes for the progress we have made on the road to a more tolerant and more united Canada that a memorial to his memory should be unveiled by a French-speaking Canadian, a Liberal, a Roman Catholic and one of the Knights of Columbus," he said.

Confined Address to Career

Mr. St. Laurent confined his address to the life and political career of the former Prime Minister. Only once he turned to the international scene when he said "we all feel greatly encouraged by the remarkable success of the police action of the United Nations in Korea."

"I am confident," he added, "the success in Korea will increase the resolve of the peace-loving nations to build up and maintain their combined strength as long as armed strength continues to be necessary to give us effective security against the risk of a third world war."

Preservation of the Dominion's history is one of the nation's obligations, one of which he has particular satisfaction in helping to discharge, Mr. St. Laurent said.

It has been the task of the Historical Sites and Monuments Commission to look after and record persons and places whose importance in Canadian life has been most marked. To date over 400 sites have been recommended for marking and maintenance.

Tangible Reminder

"The monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell that is to be unveiled today is another of these tangible reminders that the men and women of the past not only have a place in the pages of history, but that they also have links with actual places," he said.

"Sir Mackenzie Bowell was one of the eminent figures in our public life during the half century following confederation," the Prime Minister went on. "He has a page in our history; he also has a link with this city of which future generations will from day to day be constantly reminded.'

One of the descendants of Sir Mackenzie Bowell is a grandson, who is now in business in Vancouver. Here the namesake of his famous grandfather, Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, chats with the Prime Minister at the Hotel Quinte prior to the Chamber of Commerce luncheon. Mr. Bowell was born in Vancouver but came to Belleville to attend Albert College for part of his schooling. He operates a motor car agency in the West Coast city.

Retirement After Years of Service Celebrated by Party

On Saturday evening a party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. R. Green, 189 Lingham Street, in celebration of his retirement as brakeman from the Canadian National Railways, and also of his birthday. Twenty immediate relatives were present.

The evening was spent in an enjoyable game of euchre, the winners being: ladies, Mrs. Quantrill, and Mrs. D. Taylor; men, Mr. William Dennis, and Mr. H. Clarke.

Mr. Green was the recipient of many cards, congratulating him on his retirement, and in reaching another milestone along life's highway.

Mr. Green was born in Gananoque, but for the past 30 years has resided in Belleville. He is an ardent hockey and baseball fan, and now in his leisure time will be able to enjoy these pastimes to the full.

Scout Obtains Fine Picture Prime Minister

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent made a particularly big hit with one red-headed Boy Scout Saturday afternoon. After unveiling the monument replica in the Armories, the Prime Minister moved outside to take a look at the real one.

Mr. St. Laurent stood on the Armories lawn for a few minutes while professional photographers made hay, and then started back towards the building. On the way, a young Scout got in front of the Prime Minister and attempted to take his picture.

But the party was moving too fast for the young fellow to focus, and he had to keep backing away from the Prime Minister. Mr. St. Laurent spotted the boy and said "are you trying to take my picture?" The young lad laughed and said "Yes, but you're moving too fast for me."

The Prime Minister then said "Well, if you want to take a picture of me with a flash bulb, we'll stop until you get it, then." And he did.

Mr. St. Laurent's last words to the boy were "Don't forget to send a copy of that to Ottawa."

Police, Firemen Did Grand Job For P.M's Visit

Police and firemen came in for their share of praise this morning from officials in charge of the Prime Minister's visit to Belleville on Saturday.

Chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, Alderman Claude D. Tice, said that the police and firemen did a "near perfect" job of controlling traffic, providing escort for Mr. St. Laurent's party, and in general supervising the Prime Minister's movements.

At the C.N.R. station, police stood guard as Mr. St. Laurent moved from the platform to the waiting cars, and a police cruiser headed the procession down Station street to the cenotaph. At the Hotel Quinte, the men in blue again provided an escort as the Ottawa party moved into the hotel for luncheon.

The firemen provided an escort for Madame St. Laurent and Mrs. Mathieu Sanson when they went to the Queen's Hotel for their private luncheon. After the Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Quinte, Chief of Police Walter Probert and Inspector Clair Hayes flanked the Prime Minister on his way to the Armouries.

Alderman Tice said this morning that the committee appreciated the organization work done by Chief Probert and Fire Chief Vance in arranging for the escorts throughout the afternoon, and that members of both departments deserved much praise for a job well done.

Thanks is also extended to all organizations who in any way had part in the visit of the Prime Minister to the city.

TO MEET P. M.

Montreal, Oct. 30 — (CP) The Canadian Chamber of Commerce announced today that a delegation representing business men from all 10 provinces will meet Prime Minister St. Laurent and his cabinet Nov. 6 to present the Chamber's national policy. The delegation will be led by the newly-elected president, Francis G. Winspear of Edmonton.

EASIER CLIMB

A cable railway is being built 2,500 feet to the top of Geilohogda, favorite ski resort in central Norway.

Inclement weather made holding of the ceremonies infeasible on the Armouries Lawn, so an exact replica of the monument to St. Mackenzie Bowell was unveiled by the Prime Minister from a dias on the Armouries floor. Mr. St. Laurent is seen reading the plaque after officially unveiling the monument. Behind the Prime Minister is Frank Houston, Toronto, great nephew of Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

Obituary

LATE MRS. MARY M. REID
(Ivanhoe)

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Matilda Reid, wife of Wesley Reid was held from her late residence at Ivanhoe, on Friday afternoon, and was largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. B. J. Beckel, who gave a comforting message from the text: "I Will not leave you comfortless; Because I live ye shall live also." During the service the choir sang "Does Jesus Care".

Interment took place at White Lake Cemetery. The bearers were Stanley Prest, Arthur Wood, Percy Wood, Thomas Fleming, Percy Ray and Will French.

The sympathy of the community is extended to the sorrowing family.

LATE HAROLD FRANCIS
(Tweed)

Funeral services were held on Friday October 27th., at Smiths Falls, for the late Harold Francis, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Francis.

Following an illness, extending over a period of months, he died in Smiths Falls last Wednesday in his 63rd. year.

The late Mr. Francis had been in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway, as an engineer for a great many years. He spent part of his early life in Tweed and was a frequent visitor with his sister, Miss Mabel Francis. Surviving are his wife, the former Elizabeth Eleanor Huddleston. The late Mr. Francis was a member of the Rotary Club, and was active in railway circles. His many friends in Tweed will regret to learn of his passing.

Anti Tank Sergts. Entertain At Hallowe'en Party

Members of the 9th Anti-Tank Regiment Sergeants' Mess proved capable hosts on Friday night when they entertained upwards to one hundred guests at their annual Hallowe'en costume ball.

Warrant Officer Howard Kokesh acted as master of ceremonies for the evening and presented the prizes for the best costumes. Prizes were presented for best dressed lady Mrs. Jim Harper; best dressed man Sgt. Frank Butler; best comic lady Mrs. Jim McLuskie; best comic gent Sgt. Gord Carter; best dressed couple Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brown.

R.S.M. Lacey and WO. II Gavin Scott acted as judges for the evening and at midnight the mess members served refreshments under the supervision of the mess caterers Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Dainard. Music for the dancing was supplied by Ed. Rolston and his orchestra. The special door prize donated by the Calvert's Distillery was won by Mrs. Geo. Lancaster.

'Must be Stranger In Town' Says Man in Crowd

Even visits of Prime Ministers have their sidelines of humor.

On Saturday as Prime Minister St. Laurent and his party were driving from the C.N.R. station to the Cenotaph, a citizen slightly the worse for the cup that cheers, viewed the procession through somewhat bleary eyes.

"Hey," he asked of no one in particular "who's the fellow in the new car in the black hat."

No one paid attention to him.

A minute later he turned away, a disgusted look on his face.

"Shucks," he burped, "must be a stranger in town."

IN MEMORIAM

MARACLE — In loving memory of John C. Maracle, who passed away on October 29, 1949.

We often sit and think of him
When we are alone
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak
When all other things decay
Our love for him will still keep green
And never fade away.

Ever remembered by sister Ruth and family. O30

BRICKMAN — In loving memory of our dear dad, George Clinton Brickman, who passed away two years ago this morning.

Silently the angels took daddy
Into the mansion above
There shall he rest from earth's toiling
Safe in the arms of God's love.

Always remembered by children Jean, Doug and Locy. O30

TURNER — In loving memory of Mrs. Walter Turner, who passed away years ago today, October 30th, 1944.

In our home she is fondly remembered
Sweet memories cling to her name;
Those who loved her in life sincerely
Still love her in death just the same.

Ever remembered by daught Dora McTaggart and family.

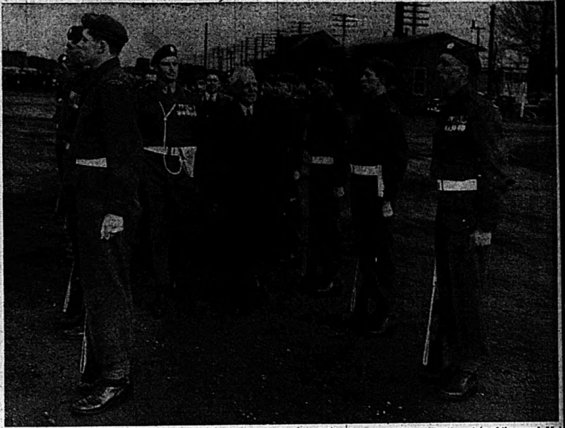
TURNER — In loving memory of dear wife and mother, Harriet Ann Turner, who passed away Octob 30th, 1944.

Days of sadness still come o'er us
Tears in silence often flow
For memory keeps you near us
Though you died six years ago.

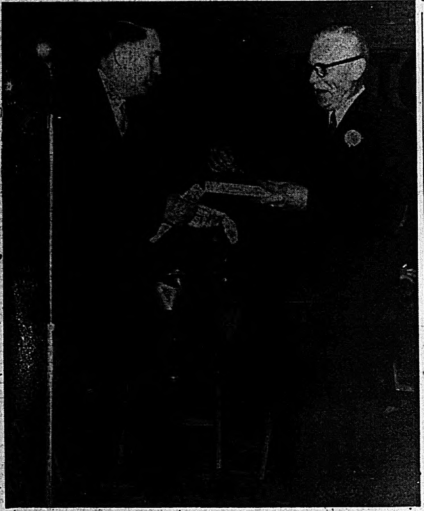
Lovingly remembered by husb Walter and family.

Scenes of Unveiling Ceremony Held in City Saturday

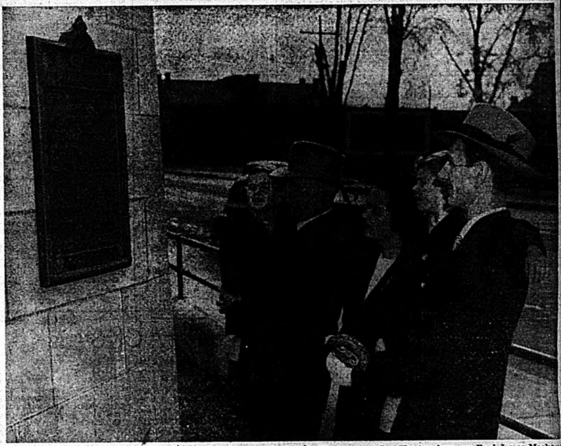
The Prime Minister's visit to the city on Saturday was the first official visit of a Canadian Prime Minister to Belleville since 1927, and the occasion did not go unrecognized by one of the leading branches of the agricultural industry. Here Mrs. St. Laurent is seen accepting a cheese from Chas. Heath, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association. Mr. St. Laurent added his appreciation saying: "We'll not only accept the cheese—we will eat it." Shown at the right are Major Everett Fairman, and Frank S. Follwell, M.P.; and at the left, Mrs. G. W. McGregor, wife of Lt.-Col. McGregor.



It was a full dress occasion for members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who acted as guard of honor for the Prime Minister on his arrival in the city. Here Mr. St. Laurent is seen inspecting the guard of honor immediately after his arrival in the city. Others shown are: Major F. Burtt, captain of the guard; Maj Owen Atkins, aide-de-camp, and Frank S. Follwell, M.P., for Has ings South.



As part of the unveiling ceremony, Mayor H. J. Allin presented Mr. St. Laurent with a gold-plated key to the city. The prime minister is shown accepting the key following which he briefly addressed the several hundred persons present, noting several incidents in the life of Sir Mackenzie Bowell.



Descendants of Sir Mackenzie Bowell read the plaque on the monument which was erected to his memory. Reading, left to right, are: Mr. G. Kayser, of this city, with Mrs. Kayser, who is a great-granddaughter of Sir Mackenzie, and Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, grandson, of Vancouver, B.C. The two boys are Fred James Macken Kayser, aged 4, and William Arthur Kayser, 2, sons of Mr. and M Kayser.

PRIME MINISTER

Reviewing the political life of the former Prime Minister, Mr. St. Laurent pointed out that the Bowell government had a "turbulent life but a short one. But while Sir Mackenzie Bowell did not have a happy time as Prime Minister he did give Canada long and devoted service in Parliament and in successive governments."

Called to Form Gov't

Mr. St. Laurent recalled the various positions held by the late Prime Minister to the time when he was called to form a government following the death of Sir John Thompson.

"Political stability was not a feature of the Conservative government in the period following the death of Sir John A. Macdonald and Sir Mackenzie Bowell had to make the best of a difficult job."

The Bowell cabinet was split over the bitter Manitoba school controversy and seven of the Prime Minister's colleagues resigned en masse. "The bolters" as they were called were denounced by Sir Mackenzie as a "nest of traitors." But to his credit he brought six of them back into the fold and re-established a ministry to tide over the disrupted session of parliament. He resigned at the end of the session and was succeeded by Sir Charles Tupper.

Life-long Journalist

Mr. St. Laurent pointed out that the late Sir Mackenzie Bowell was not only a politician but a life-long journalist who took an active interest in the militia. A veteran of the Fenian Raid, he was a captain in the Argyll Light Infantry and later, a major in the 49th Rifles subsequently receiving promotion to the rank of colonel.

Noting that the 49th Rifles was later incorporated into the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Mr. St. Laurent paid sterling tribute to "the achievements of this unit.

"I hardly need to remind you here in Belleville of the glorious record of this famous regiment in the last war. We shall not forget the heroic and self-sacrificing men of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the glory they brought to the district where so many of them were born and raised," he said.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell was unique among Prime Ministers of Canada in his journalistic background, rising from the position of apprentice in the printing trade when he was eleven years of age to the position of editor and proprietor of the Belleville Intelligencer.

Play Important Role

"Journalists have played a most important role in the life of Canada," Mr. St. Laurent said. He drew attention to the fact that in the Bowell era the newspaper was the sole contact which many persons had with the world outside their own community. News items were limited and most editors were more concerned with the expression of opinion on public questions. It was, therefore, a short step from journalism to politics. People read the papers for the editors' views and generally these were written in a style which, if it lacked anything, did not lack fire and vigor.

"This then," Mr. St. Laurent said, "was an era in which our country was in the process of being welded together by the men and circumstances of the period. And Bowell was undoubtedly one of those who shared the hopes and contributed in no small degree to the work of building our nation."

"Since Sir Mackenzie Bowell was Prime Minister, Canada has grown tremendously and even now is going through one of the greatest periods in national development." the Prime Minister concluded. "We have been blessed with a great wealth of natural resources and an intelligent and energetic population, and we are all anxious to use those resources, both human and material, to the benefit of Canadians who come after us."

Pause to Survey Past

"Today we pause only momentarily to survey the past record of which every Canadian has a right to be proud. But this pause will help confirm our faith in the prospects of the future that we have in this land of ours."

During his address, Mr. St. Laurent announced that an extension of residence as Governor General of Canada had been given Viscount Alexander of Tunis. The announcement was received with sustained applause.

The Prime Minister was introduced by Frank Follwell, M.P. Hastings South who described him as a "human, kindly, friendly man of great energy understanding and capabilities; who knows the problems of life from the national, international domestic and universal sense, a man of magnetic personality and great leadership."

Extends Official Welcome

Mayor Jack Allin extended the official welcome to the Prime Minister and other special guests. He recalled the fact that it was the first time a Prime Minister had visited the city since 1927. "The Bay of Quinte district," he said, "had produced many men who had contributed to governments of the country. He paid tribute to the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce in making the luncheon one of the features of the Prime Minister's visit.

Alderman Bruce Lattimer, president of the Chamber of Commerce presided over the luncheon. He told the Prime Minister that the hospitality of Belleville as extended to him was sufficient invitation to visit the city at any time.

Brigadier Fraser Fulton, in extending the appreciation of the gathering to the Prime Minister said the rapt attention and hearty applause were indicative of the appreciation.

He reviewed the accomplishments of Mr. St. Laurent in his various governmental offices, especially in his present role of Prime Minister. He stressed the fact that Mr. St. Laurent "is losing patience with respect to international relations regarding the St. Lawrence Waterway. We await with interest the development of this waterway and know we have, in our distinguished guest, the man who will direct this great undertaking."

Two Solos Given

The fine tenor voice of Ulysses Espalliat, Albert College student was heard in two solos, with Leo Riggs at the piano. Luncheon music was provided by the well-known pianist, Jimmy Corradi.

Among the special guests present were, besides Mr. St. Laurent, his executive assistant, J.W. Pickersgill; Mr. F.M. Landon, Historical Sites and Monuments Commission; Ottawa; Roscoe Robson, MLA; E. Sandercock.MLA; Senator W.A. Fraser, Trenton; Air Vice Marshal C.R. Slemon. R.C.A.F., Trenton; Lieut. Col. G. W. McGregor, commanding officer 9th Anti Tank Regt.; Lieut. Col. Max Porritt, commanding officer, Hastings and Prince Edward Regt.; Warden Clark Rollins, Hastings County; and Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, Vancouver, B. C. grandson of the late Prime Minister.

With the Prime Minister and party at the Cenotaph were representatives of four veterans' organizations. Included were Canadian Legion president Max Matthews; secretary Ken Edgecombe, Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans; John Godwin, RCAF Wing, Belleville and Larry Amo, Canadian National Railway Veterans.

Capt. of Guard Complimented

Mr. St. Laurent complimented Major Burtt, captain of the guard of honor on the fine appearance and efficiency of the 52-man guard. With Major Burtt were Officer Cadet D. Hobson acting as company sergeant major and Officer Cadet A. Rankin in the capacity of company quartermaster sergeant.

The color party was under the command of Captain H. Campbell who carried the Union Jack and Officer Cadet Armstrong carrying the regimental colors. The guard consisted of Sergt. H. C. Davis, C.S.M. L. V. A Simpson and Sergt. C. A. Whitman.

Adding a touch of regimental color to the scene was the famous Hasty Pees Indian mascot "Petawawa-Much" and the battle-colors of the regiment.

While the Prime Minister's private coach was waiting to be brought to the point of detrainment, children milled and shouted on the platform. Mr. St. Laurent appearing on the coach platform, smiled and waved at the children and threw them three bouquets of roses.

At the conclusion of the Cenotaph ceremonies, the Prime Minister and party were taken to the Hotel Quinte where they were guests of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at luncheon.

Cheers echoed from a massed crowd as the Prime Minister stepped from the automobile and walked to the hotel. Mrs. St. Laurent and Mrs. Sanson were driven to the Queen's Hotel where they had luncheon with wives of the city aldermen and directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

MEMBERS ASSIST

St. Thomas, Oct. 30 (CP)—The Southwold fire department needs a new fire hall but the firemen don't want to burden the taxpayers of the nearby village. So they held a rummage sale and netted nearly $1,000 towards the building. They plan to hold another one soon.

Stumping Country

The affable vice-president, Alben Barkley, has been stumping the country trying to win support for Democratic candidates.

The big senate races include those in Ohio, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois and New York.

The New York campaign is filled with blistering charges of graft, corruption and political pay offs. The explosive "Hanley letter" and disclosures of graft in New York city's police have provided the fuel.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, twice-defeated Republican presidential candidate, is running for his third term as governor. His Democratic opponent, Representative Walter A. Lynch, charges that Lieutenant-Governor Joe R. Hanley was paid off to withdraw from the governorship race in favor of Dewey. Hanley is running for the senate against Democratic incumbent Herbert H. Lehman.

The Republicans deny the charge and call it a "smokescreen" for graft and corruption in Democratic New York City.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL MEMORIAL

When Canada's Prime Minister the Right Honorable Louis St. Laurent on Saturday unveiled the Dominion memorial which had been erected in Belleville by the Dominion Historic Sites and Monuments Board to the memory of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, Canada's sixth Prime Minister who entered Parliament at Confederation and remained a member of the House and later of the Senate for a full half century, fitting recognition was paid a great Canadian.

In the great assemblage attending the ceremony were many who had personally known the aged statesman in his later years. Mackenzie Bowell was born in Rickinghall, Suffolk, England, in 1823 and came to Belleville as a boy, received his education in the local schools. His attachment to Belleville lasted throughout his long life.

His rise from "printer's devil" and apprentice with the Intelligencer of which he became later proprietor and editor to a seat in the Canadian Parliament and in due time to become Prime Minister and later Senator is known to everyone. It tells the story of a remarkable life. It has been repeated again and again to show he had risen to the highest honors in the gift of his country and his Sovereign to bestow upon a faithful public servant.

Prime Minister St. Laurent in reference to the preservation of Canada's history in her memorials of her great men, said it is a thrilling story "worth telling and worth remembering for the past points the way to a bright future." The monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell is a tangible reminder "that the men and women of the past not only have a place in the pages of history but that they also have links with actual places.

"Sir Mackenzie Bowell was one of the eminent figures in our public life during the half century following Confederation. He has a page in our history, he also has a link with this city of which future generations will from today be constantly reminded."

Mr. St. Laurent referred to the confidence of the people of the riding of North Hastings who elected Sir Mackenzie for over a quarter of a century as their member until he was summoned to the Senate. Tribute was given his native ability and his tireless effort to improve trade while Minister of Customs.

In the words of the Prime Minister "Sir Mackenzie was not merely a politician." He was a lifelong journalist. He took an active part in the defence of Canada in 1866 while serving with the rifle company he had assisted in raising. He was an officer of the Argyll Light Infantry and later a major of the Forty-Ninth Rifles.

Prime Minister St. Laurent sees in the memorial to Sir Mackenzie the evidence of tolerance. "It speaks volumes to a more tolerant and more united Canada that a memorial to the memory of Sir Mackenzie who was an English-speaking Canadian, a Conservative, a Protestant and an Orangeman — in fact the Grand Master of that association—should be unveiled by a French-speaking Canadian, a Liberal, a Roman Catholic, and one of the Knights of Columbus."

In his field of journalism, said the Prime Minister, Sir Mackenzie "contributed in no small degree to the work of building our nation."

Sir Mackenzie's life story is one that will be told Canadians for generations. It will be an inspiration to young and old to serve their day and generation with all their gifts and talents.

HALLOWE'EN NEAR

Once more the spell of Hallowe'en is at hand. Fancy and imagination will take command. Youth particularly will celebrate in all the familiar forms of fun in the grand make-believe of the annual festival.

In the popular imagination the eve of All Saints' Day was for ages associated with supernatural influences which date from pagan times.

In the modern world there is a great deal of pleasure in the application of the age-old fancies to the present work-a-day world.

The festival is the high time of autumn.

For centuries it has been observed and will likely be for many more generations. It serves a purpose of adding a fantastic touch to the season by bringing back from the ancient times beliefs and fancies which were then held, but which today are only the means of entertainment especially of the young.

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE

Although men are often referred to as "the stronger sex," it has been estimated that in about nine cases out of ten, if the women in their lives tell them "no" they must not enlist in the armed services again, or even in the reserve force, the answer stays in the negative. It is this consideration for the views of the mother or wife which decides the vital question, and not the "man." — Brockville Recorder and Times.

GREAT-GRANDPA BIDIGAR

Old Bidigar is puffed with pride.
Today his strut is plain to see,
For he is boasting, far and wide,
A great-grandfather now is he.

That he is good at any game
Is proved by medals he displays,
Nor has he backward been to claim
Full credit for the way he plays.

Triumph has crowned him down the years.
When cycling history is told,
Upon the books his name appears
A champion in the days of old.

No wonder Grandpa Bidigar
Of that new title "great" is proud,
For few upon this earth there are
To whom such glory is allowed.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 30, 1930

Farmers in Prince Edward County are experiencing difficulty in ploughing this autumn and are behind time in their work on account of the firm nature of the soil caused through the dry season.

At present the level of the Bay of Quinte at this point is lower than it has been for a long time. It would appear that low-water is the rule over most of the district. Crowe Lake is low, and Weslemkoon has gone lower than it ever was. A lack of rains so far this year, coupled with an abnormally warm spell in the early part of October, would appear to be a good cause for the low level.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It used to be this time of year that your sporting friends dropped around with genial gifts of wild duck, partridge, venison. But the deep freeze has changed all that; the deep freeze and the food storage plants, where a locker can be rented big enough to store a whole deer, or the season's limit of game birds.

Some of the generosity of your sporting friends in the past sprang from the fact that they had no way of keeping their game when they arrived home from the hunting trip. The usual thing was to rush the deer to the family butcher who, after business hours, skinned and cut up the buck into as many portions as he could. And then, laden with butcher baskets full of ghastly parcels, the sportsman made the rounds of his friends far into the night. All he kept for himself were the choicest roasts and chops in such quantity as he could persuade his wife to stash in the ice box.

The meaner type of hunter devised ways of curing, pickling or smoking as much of his deer as he could. But this was a lot of trouble, and a man had to have a pretty subordinate sort of wife to get away with it. The principle of distributing the spoils of the chase—and spoils isn't too bad a word to describe most of it — applied to wild duck, partridge, wild geese and other game as well as venison.

All, all is changed. The sporting fraternity can rent big lockers in the refrigeration storage companies now to be found in every neighborhood. The modern butcher is an expert at butchering a deer and packaging the roasts, steaks and chops in waxed paper, each air-tight parcel labelled with its contents. The birds are plucked and drawn and parcelled in cellophane. And all across the autumn and winter, at Christmas and New Years, the sportsman and his family can enjoy a meal of wild game to break the monotony of the flavor of commercial meats, as well as to be able to speak nonchalantly to their underprivileged friends of what they had for dinner.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HOW CAN WE MEASURE CHARACTER?

Character is gauged not so much by what we do, as by why we do it.

Here are three honest men. One is honest because honesty is the best policy. A second is honest because he is afraid of the consequences should he be dishonest. The third is honest because the idea of dishonesty is reprehensible to him and contrary to his moral principles. Is there any doubt as to which of these three men has the most commendable character?

Some people remain temperate because liquor costs too much. There are boys and girls who live decent lives because they are not particularly tempted to live lives of the other variety. All of us, probably, are guilty of keeping our eye on the mirror as we drive our cars, in order to make sure that, if we happen to jump beyond the speed limit, the man on the motorcycle will not sound his whistle and wave us over to the side of the road.

Someone has said that character is what a man is when he is in the dark.

The gauge of character is motive. You are living a good life? That's fine. Now why are you living it? The answer to that question is important.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

OPEN LETTER TO A CLOSED MIND

Marshal Tito
Government Palace
Belgrade, Yugoslavia

Dear Sir:

The other day, according to a dispatch from Belgrade, you abolished all special privileges enjoyed by communist officials as regards food, housing and services. For the first time in history, your spokesman was quoted as saying, the rulers and the people were going to be treated exactly alike.

This piece of news, Your Excellency, hit me where I speculate, and so I moseyed down to the Public Library this morning to see whether you really rate the No. 1 spot on all the all-time Split Parade. And the answer, as I researched it, is that (a) you're a dozen centuries late, and (b) if history means anything, you're a cinch to fall flat on your postulate. Here are the pertinent precedents:

Back in the 8th Century, the ruler of Tibet, a sharp-consciencced gent named Muni Tsan-po, decreed that the wealth of his country be divided up among the people, share-and-share-alike. A few years later, however, when Muni (no relation to Paul) took a turn around his bailiwick to see how the plan was working, he found that in almost every case the rich had regained their riches and the poor their poverty.

Twice more he reshuffled the wealth, but when the results were the same he finally abandoned the notion and decided to devote the rest of his life to prayer—the lion, so to speak, turned into a lama.

The same thing, according to the record, has happened dozens of times in this country during the past 150 years. In 1825 an idealistic gent named Robert Owen set up an egalitarian community in New Harmony, Indiana, and saw it break up some years later because of friction between the haves and the would-like-to-gets. Then there was the Perfectionist colony in Oneida, N.Y., and Fourier's Brook Farm in Massachusetts—not to mention Joseph Baumeler's settlement in Zoar, Ohio, where everyone over 60 was entitled to quit work and consume "a reasonable amount of beer and cider" at the communal tavern each day.

This last Utopia, it may interest you to know, came apart at the comradely seams because certain of its citizens surreptitiously opened bank accounts in Cincinnati and were caught smuggling in bottles of bourbon.

You can argue, of course, that these experiments don't count because they took place in the capitalistic West, but I think I can show you that geography does not enter into it with a final example.

Some years ago the people of a certain country gave the bum's rush to their rulers and set up a government in which everyone was to be treated equally. Fifteen years later, however, a compilation of figures released by this government indicated that 15 per cent of the population was consuming as much as the other 85 per cent. Certain "specialists" and "technicians" were earning a hundred times as much as common labor, and in addition special "Luxe" shops had been set up for wealthy bureaucrats and a perfume and cosmetic industry for their wives.

The country I'm referring to, of course, is Soviet Russia and the above iniquities came about soon after the Stakhanovite peicework system was introduced in 1935. Yes, cockeyed as it may seem, only 15 years after the revolution there was a greater gap between top and bottom wage levels in communist Russia than there had ever been in Capitalist America.

Am I setting forth all these grim statistics to prove the overworked cliche that you can't change human nature? Not at all—I've seen human nature overhauled more than once in the last half century. However, if you'll pardon the presumption, I am trying to point out to Your Excellency that no matter how you juggle human nature you can't eliminate it entirely.

Sincerely,
Billy Rose

P.S.—By the way, how many miles to the gallon do you get on that Cadillac in your garage?

Economic Pact Between Canada And U.S. Praised

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Canadian-American economic pact which has just been signed in Washington is the sort of thing from which dreams are built.

Looking ahead through the years one can believe that potentially it may be the forerunner of a partnership representing the world's most powerful combination.

This agreement is a renewal of the wartime partnership under which the two countries pooled their economic resources for common defence. The pact provides that skills, raw materials and finished products will be shared in building up American and North Atlantic defences against the threat of aggression.

Peace-minded folk hope of course, that the need of the pact in defensive sense won't be long lived. However, past experience has shown that many of the features of such a treaty continue even after its formal termination.

That was demonstrated in the case of the original economic pact which it inaugurated have persisted.

One and the Same

Why should this be so? To me the answer seems clear. It is that there is no essential difference between our two peoples.

Our interests are inseparable. We have the same ideals and think the same thoughts. Our solid and educational requirements are the same.

That is not by any means to suggest that these two great countries are heading for political unity. They certainly are not. They have too much pride in sovereignty.

Drawing Together

Howover, it is to suggest that all the signs for many years have indicated a drawing together. There always will be two flags, though the trends in both countries are almost identical.

But what of the suggestion that this may develop into the Globe's most powerful partnership? That is based on the colossal resources of the two countries.

The United States now leads the world in industrial strength and developed natural resources. Canada already has uncovered vast wealth in oil, coal, and minerals, and the experts have no doubts that the potential resources far exceed anything as yet discovered.

More American money is invested in Canada than in any other foreign country. Development will come with the growth of the Canadian population.

Even now a combination of the resources of the two countries presents a formidable strength. The day will come when it will be unchallenged.

A dream? Of course it is, but it's bound to come true because it will represent a natural progress of two similar peoples with a unity of ideas and ideals.

Alleges Cruelty To Bush Horses

Ottawa, Oct. 30. (CP)— Bush horses have been neglected, starved and abused by logging jobbers in the Algoma district of Northern Ontario, the Ontario Society for the prevention of cruelty to animals was told Saturday.

Allegations of cruelty were reported by Miss R. Doherty, secretary of the Sault Ste. Marie and District Humane Society, who completed an 11-month investigation of the area.

She told of horses, their feet rotting away from neglect and infection, standing in open barns.

It was common, said Miss Doherty, to find horses 250 pounds underweight hauling heavy loads of logs. Conditions of neglect and abuse existed among jobbers cutting birch logs for veneer. To no appreciable extent did it occur in camps where pulpwood was being cut.

Harold Allard of Saut Ste. Marie, S.P.C.A. inspector, said he had travelled 4,600 miles investigating conditions in the Algoma district. He inspected 167 horses. Only 128 were found satisfactory. One horse he saw had been standing in a barn three weeks with a broken leg.

Inspection was the only solution, Miss Doherty said.

"As long as there is a horse in the bush without supervision there will be abuse."

More veterinarians were needed. None were available for regular bush work in the Algoma area.

FIND LIMESTONE

New Delhi. (CP)—Large limestone deposits, estimated to contain 10,000,000 tons, have been found in Madras state. The deposits are believed to be big enough to provide a cement factory producing 500 tons a day for 40 years.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address:

YOU WILL HAVE YOUR TONSILS

A patient who had received diathermy for infected tonsils with highly satisfactory results, in the hands of a physician skilled in the technique, consulted an old timer about eye trouble some five years later. The old timer purported to be an all-around specialist—eye, ear, nose, throat or what have you. Taking the patient's history the doctor learned about the successful electro-coagulation. Then he asked if he might have a look at the throat. The patient didn't mind. The doctor looked at the throat and remarked, with an air of reluctance, as to dash the poor fellow's illusion: "But, my dear sir, you still have your tonsils!"

This convinced the patient that the doctor was incompetent and he never returned. But the "specialist" only implied only what too many thousands of doctors in Yankeeland still believe, namely, that if the operation or treatment does not remove every bit of tonsil it is "no good." This is a childish notion, unscientific in principle and without foundation in practice. However, some "authorities" of yesteryear conceived and promulgted the notion and the yes-men of the profession have taken it as "established," many of them right down to the present.

As a fair analogy, suppose a patient consulted a physician about a lame shoulder and in recording the patient's history the physician learned that the patient had received injection treatment for varicose veins, with satisfactory results. What would the patient or any other sane persons think if the doctor, upon examining the patient, remarked: "But, my dear madam, you still have your legs!"

It is an elementary principle of pathology—I invite any reputable physician to contradict this if he or she can; I'll print it without revealing his or her identity, if the communication is courteous and properly signed—that the presence of so-called focus of infection in the tonsil, or, what is more likely, a presumption of such infection, may warrant an attempt to drain, disinfect, sterilize, pasteurize or destroy the infected area but does not justify an operation which involves risk of life.

For merely enlarged tonsils no treatment is necessary unless the child's breathing is obstructed or ventilation of the middle ear (through the Eustachian tube to the back of the throat) is blocked enough to give frequent earache, inflammation of the middle ear or defective hearing. On any such case the judgment of the family physician is paramount, first, as to whether treatment is required, and if so then what the treatment should be.

If any surgical treatment is indicated it should be only tonsillotmy, and not tonsillectomy, in my opinion.

Tonsillotomy mans slicing off the obstructing portion of the tonsil with the instrument called tonsillotime, which does the job instantaneously, with no more pain, difficulty or danger than attend extraction of a tooth. Of course anesthesia may be used, as for extraction of a tooth, if the child will not co-operate.

In many cases of simple enlargement (hypertrophy) of the tonsils painless X-ray treatments, or radium emanation (radon) treatment, shrinks the tonsils. One of these methods should be used in the treatment of the school child whose enlarged tonsils and/or adenoids impair hearing or cause deafness.

I repeat, there are still far too many tonsillectomies on children with simple enlargement or hypertrophy of the tonsils and/or adenoid tissue. Tonsillectomy is a major operation and even if only one child out of a hundred or a thousand subjected to it dies on the table or hours or days after the operation, from "complications," the coroner, if not the official medical examiner, might well inquire, before the jury, whether the operation was really necessary. As I have said many times, I am no expert or authority, but I'll say it is not justifiable for the treatment of simple enlargement of the tonsils.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Congratulations, Professor!

I am 71, vigorous, lifelong interest in the outdoors activities, especially walking and gardening. Neither smoke nor drink. Teaching. Never any surgery. All my life slept soundly all night, waking refeshed. For past 1½ years wake at night, sometimes twice, to empty bladder. Still sometimes I sleep the night through — why cannot this be induced artificially? Or is shrinking bladder capacity part of the P D one must expect at my age? (A. W. L.)

Answer—Most men of your age, Professor, are a good deal more so. You say you take no food or fluid within two hours of retiring. Forget that. Why fret about it anyway?

Leg Cramps

I suffered a lot from leg cramps at night, especially during pregnancy. Upon supplementing my diet with calcium and D as you recommend, I found relief within a week and have had no recurrence. Of course I still follow the high calcium diet outlined in your booklet. (Mrs. B. C.)

Answer—Best food sources of calcium: Milk, skim milk, cheese, egg yolk, peas, beans, salad greens, peanuts, almonds, cabbage, wheat, oats. Send stamped self-addressed envelope for pamphlet Adult Tetany and Growing Pains. Many elderly persons suffer with painful leg cramps at night—adult tetany. For the booklet The Calcium Shortage inclose 25 cents. It describes many common ailments which are due to calcium deficiency.

FREE ENTERPRISE

In no country of the world has the idea of free enterprise been so clearly demonstrated as in America, where anyone with a creative mind and an indomitable spirit can climb the heights to success.

An example of this came to my attention the past week. In 1925 a seventeen-year-old boy from Norway landed in New York City, friendless and alone, but with the burning ambition to be a somebody in this "land of opportunity". His name was Finn H. Magnus. He took a room in a cheap section of the city and went out for a walk, but forgot the number of his place, so was thrown anew on his own. He did anything, became a dock hand, dishwasher, elevator operator, factory clerk and a number of other things. But always his active mind was in high working order.

Music-minded, he went into a store to buy a harmonica but was told they had none, that the country being at war, no one made them but the Germans and Japanese, who for long periods had dominated this field. This set Magnus to thinking. Why not a plastic instrument? He got to work. Day and night he worked in his room and with his tools. Experts told him such an instrument was impossible—there were hundreds of processes essential, and each was of the most exacting sort. Impossible—but Magnus did it! He created the five-piece all plastic harmonica, working with tolerances that are still the most exacting in the history of plastic molding.

I went to see an exhibition of all the instruments made by this man and was amazed! Harmonicas for the boy and expert, dozens of varieties, an accordion, and even an electric organ weighing less than seven pounds! Today Finn Magnus in less than ten years has created a business employing five hundred workers, and giving delight to thousands of youth, as well as to the more expert.

Opportunities all gone? No more chances for the poor? Magnus didn't think so. He had an idea and went to work. Said this inspiring individual: "I would like to dispel the mistaken idea that no further opportunities exist in this country of ours!"

WE'VE SAID "YES" TO THE CHEST

YES, we're glad to say that we've already given our contribution to the Belleville Community Chest — and given it gladly because we realize, very fully, the important part that the CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY, THE VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES and the Y.M.C.A. play in the life of our community. They save the lives of our loved ones by preventative care and treatment. They prevent crime through character building, and in this way help to make good citizens — and they protect and provide for destitute and needy children. You, too, will feel happier when you've done your part in helping to put the Community Chest Drive over the top.

WEDDINGS

LATCHFORD—MORTON

Autumn flowers and ferns with lighted candles, made a lovely setting on Saturday, October 7, at 2:30 p.m., in Thomasburg United Church, when Beatrice Joyce, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morton, of Thomasburg, became the bride of Cyril Arthur Latchford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Latchford, also of Thomasburg. The Rev. Morley Clarke was the officiating clergyman.

Mr. Fred Porter provided the wedding music and Mrs. Morley Clarke sang "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in her bridal gown of white slipper satin with inserts of lace, molded bodice, and long lily pointed sleeves and a full skirt. Her fingertip veil was held in place by a lace coronet trimmed with rhinestones. She carried a crescent bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Barbara Morton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing floor length gown of powder blue with matching headdress held by pink and blue flowers and matching mitts. She carried a crescent bouquet of carnations.

Miss Janet Morton, sister of the bride, was the little flower girl, wearing a floor length gown of white sheer and net, and a headdress of net held by pink and blue forget-me-nots. She carried a basket of pink and white bachelor buttons with streamers of pink ribbon.

Mr. Lorne Latchford, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman and the ushers were, Mr. Carl Latchford, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Earl Morton, brother of the bride.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the home of the bride, where her mother received, wearing a black and white dress with corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was wearing a cinnamon dress with rust and white 'mums.

The T-shape tables were set in the dining room decorated with streamers and white bells. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake flanked by tall white candles and bouquets of the bride and her maid of honor. A delicious dinner was served. The waitresses were: Misses Ruby Bateman, Elsie Sine, Merle Carleton, Marilyn Carleton, Doris Mumby and Jean Martin.

Miss Doris Mumby caught the bride's bouquet.

For travelling to Niagara and Buffalo and other western points the bride chose a navy blue suit with grey accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Latchford will reside at Thomasburg.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Belleville, Bannockburn, Flinton and Tweed.

On Wednesday evening last, a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the Oddfellows Hall at Thomasburg to honor Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Latchford, (nee Joyce Morton), upon their recent marriage.

During the evening they were presented with a kitchen cabinet on behalf of their friends. Delicious refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed.

KESSLER—WAITE

On Friday, October 20, at 11:30 a.m., a quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized by the Reverend H. O. Eastman, at the Baptist parsonage, when Betty Marie Waite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Waite, Belleville, was united in marriage to Harold Emerson Kessler, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kessler.

The bride was becomingly gowned in battleship grey with wine accessories and corsage of red roses. She was attended by Mrs. Harry McGuire, sister of the bride, gowned in grey with wine accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Maxwell Shorey, of Foxboro, attended the bridegroom.

Following the reception held at the bride's home, which was beautifully decorated with Fall flowers, the bride's mother, gowned in wine, with corsage of yellow 'mums, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing grey with corsage of orange blossoms, received the guests, the happy couple left for a wedding trip to Rochester, the bride wearing a tan suit with wine accessories. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

SHANNONVILLE

Young Couple Feted by Reception And Gifts

Shannonville.—A reception was held in the L.O.L. hall on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Woods, (nee Muriel Miller), who were recently married. The happy couple were seated on the platform and Miss Beatrice Uens read an address, in the form of a poem, wishing them much happiness, signed on behalf of friends and neighbors, by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Stratton, Lenora, Beatrice, Alfred Uens and Jimmy Hinchey.

They were then presented with a davenport, end table and table lamp, by their friends and neighbors.

Women of The Moose

On Thursday last, the Women of the Moose held their regular meeting in the Saco club rooms with Senior Regent Selina Isles, presiding. Recorder Gladys Ritch read the roll call of officers and minutes of previous meeting. A beautiful picture of a child kneeling in prayer was presented to the Chapter by coworker Elizabeth Murphy, heartiest thanks were expressed to Elizabeth for this lovely thought.

Jr. Grad. Rgt. Kathleen Donnovan is to receive her green beany on Sundy at Toronto, which is to show that Kay had a successful year while Sr. Rgt. Initiation took place of Mrs. McNiel and Mrs. Cole, who were sponsored by Coworker Murphy.

Governor Bailey, Trenton, extended an invitation for all to attend an open meeting at Frankford, in November. Pianist Irene Reed was reported ill and as she was to celebrate an October birthday, chaplain Emily Jeffery will visit her and take her gifts. Coworker Luella Bull and treasurer Leah Isles also had October birthdays, and received lovely presents.

Homemaker Madge Bailey and committee served refreshments to forty.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

Assembly

Our assembly this past week was something special, and truly the best this year. United Nations Day, October 24th., was celebrated Tuesday at BCI by means of a combined assembly including both senior and junior grades. Bob Reid was in charge of the Devotional Period.

Ten students from Albert College and two from BCI and VS represented the twelve countries participating in the actual United Nations Assembly. Joan Harback had the pleasure of inviting these guests and introducing them to the student body. One of the guests, Ulysses Espaillat, sang a solo "O Sole Mio." I need not say everyone thought it was wonderful.

The principal and vice-chancellor of Queen's University Dr. R. C. Wallace spoke on "The United Nations at Work Today." It was truly an interesting story and thanks go out to all those who made it a success.

After attending the assemby Tuesday I became so interested in the United Nations Club that I cornered the president, Pauline Sprague, and asked her to put me straight on what the club is about. She tells me that there are more than twenty members. For the first few weeks they are studying six main bodies of the United Nations. At their last meeting they saw the film entitled "Searchight on the Nations." Their slate of officers is: President, pauline Sprague; vice President, Murray Lennox; Secretary, Bill Babbit; Treasurer, Bob Fulton.

The purpose of this new club is to learn more about the United Nations. In the future they are planning a program of speakers, films and forums. Mr. Leslie Reid is their advisor.

Last Wednesday at the request of several students a meeting was held at noon hour for the purpose of discussing the organiation of an inter-school Christian Fellowship group.

The 32 students who came to the meeting were unanimous in supporting the formation of such a group at our school.

The Fellowship lays stress on the belief that the answers to all our basic problems in life are to be found in the Gospel of Jesus Christ as set forth in God's Word—the Bible.

The I.S.C.F. is concerned with the important task of furthering this gospel among students — leaders in the world of to-morrow.

Its program includes a weekly prayer and Bible study period which will be at 12.30 Monday in Room 214.

Projects such as Character Training, and Christian leadership will be undertaken. Election of officers will take place shortly and our staff advisor will be Miss Ruth Silvester.

Miss Merry informed me that the members of the cast of George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" are practising daily. The band is working hard at the new music they have, to get it in shape for the play. Mr. Tindales stage setting is something quite elaborate and Miss Merry is very thrilled with its originality and beauty.

Well, the much looked forward to Commencement Exercises are over and a tremendous success they were. Mr. A. G. Hooper, M.A., superintendent of secondary education was the guest speaker. It was good to see faces familiar to B.C.I. back to their Alma Mater.

Despite the fact they have gone out to work or to gain a higher education, I think they were glad to get back in the corridors of good old B.C.I. and V.S. so don't be too eager to get away from it all gang!

—Topsy.

Shavings

Friday was the big day. From 9 o'clock until 3, girls could be seen in groups talking excitedly. The question of "who are you going with?" floated constantly through the air.

The gym was decorated with beautiful streamers across the ceiling like a Disney cartoon. It was one of the big events of the year. The formal! Not only that B.C.I. students were dismissed at three o'clock. An extra hour for the gals to primp and the boys to persuade Pop to give them more money.

If you see grade twelve and thirteen students wandering around the halls murmuring "plot," "plot", "What will I write about?" don't be alarmed it's just short story time. Mr. Linton Read, it seems has run out of reading material and the upper school students feeling sorry for him, have consented to write some short stories to keep him from being idle during those long winter evenings.

Sports

Last week the Trenton Juniors played volleyball against our Juniors. Result? Trenton won. The score, however, was nothing to be ashamed of, since it was the first game. We are sure the girls will profit from this experience and make a good showing in C.O.S.S.A. ranks.

ALLAN'S MILLS

Forty Ladies Present Gifts to Bride-Elect

Allan's Mills.—On Monday evening, about forty ladies met at the home of Mrs. Clarence Thomson in honor of the approaching marriage of Marie Meiklejohn and tendered her a "cup and saucer and linen shower".

The following program was enjoyed: Community singing with the hostess at the piano; a piano solo, "A Dream of Love", by Margaret Spencer; contests "A Romantic Story", Jean Morton; "A Musical Romance", by Mrs. Ellis Jones; readings, "The Buckwheat Straw Plan", Mrs. Murray Meiklejohn and "Auntie Doleful" by Ruth Morton.

Dorothy Thomson gave "A Musical Courtship"; "For Ever and Ever", was given by Mrs. Don Stewart with Mrs. E. Jones at the piano.

Marie was then called to her especially decorated chair and an address was read by Dorothy Thomson, to which Marie made a suitable and gracious reply inviting all to visit her in her new home near Hastings.

Marie was then presented with a table full of gifts under pink and white streamers. Refreshments were served by the hostess. The wishes of a host of friends go with Marie in her forthcoming marriage.

PICTON

Ladies Auxiliary Party Hostesses At Social Evening

Picton—The Legion Hall was the scene of an enjoyable party Friday night when the Ladies Aux. to Branch 78 entertained members of Belleville Aux. along with a number of members of both branches. Mrs. James Hedges and F. J. MacArthur, presidents of the Picton organizations, extended cordial welcomes.

Twenty prizes were awarded in bingo with Frank Starr as caller. Comrade C. R. Widdifield donated three cash prizes which went to Belleville ladies. Mrs. Dorothy Sayers convened these games.

Mrs. Leta Milford was at the piano for a sing song and also played for dancing. A prize given by Mr. Widdifield for the best dancers was won by Mr. and Mrs. E. Helm of 36 Sinclair St., Belleville. Mr. Helm also won the door prize. The prize for the best old time waltz, donated by Major Howard Reid was won by Mrs. Dave Collier and Mrs. Tom Wilkinson.

Delectable refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. T. Wilkinson, Mrs. E. Brough, Mrs. H. Buchanan.

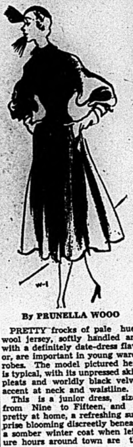
Pastel Wool Jersey



By PRUNELLA WOOO

PRETTY frocks of pale hued wool jersey, softly handled and with a definitely date-dress flavor, are important in young wardrobes. The model pictured here is typical, with its unpressed skirt pleats and worldly black velvet accent at neck and waistline.

This is a junior dress, sized from Nine to Fifteen, and is pretty at home, a refreshing surprise blooming discreetly beneath a somber winter coat when leisure hours around town are the order.

Fashion Flashes

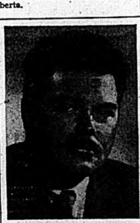
YOUNG AND beguiling wool jersey dresses are going like the proverbial hot-cakes; and no wonder, when they are so smart and so sensibly priced. Dark brown fine wool jersey for a nice frock with long, tight, rib-knit sleeves to tone. The top, above a bone-buttoned bodice, has a yellow linen collar fastened with a big gold safety pin. Soft gathers for the skirt with slit pockets.

A GOOD SOLUTION for the limited wardrobe that has to be right for much social activity, is the simple, baretop sheath, with a jacket for street wear. Silk taffeta for a side-wrap sheath, the bodice top edged with velvet banding that dips in scrolls and fleur-de-lis design. The boxy taffeta jacket has a casual collar and cuffs of the velvet.

A CHANGE IN FRONTS is the big attraction of a new, short-sleeved suit blouse in tissue faille. It has a diamond-shaped front cut-out in which can be snapped a bullion-trimmed or plain insert. A necktie can be pulled through the cut-out for a further change.

ELEGANCE is the theme of the majority of the new hand-bags, even those that are very inexpensive. Polished calf for a horizontal envelope with a deep, asymmetric lid. The slender leather cord handles are knotted at the base. The lining is wine-colored leather.

HANDS OUT for the new gloves. Black suede for a pretty slip-on with matching corde trim outlining the scalloped cuff and forming an intricate leaf design on the glove back.



John Collingwood Reade, distinguished commentator, is welcomed daily into thousands of Canadian homes. When he isn't bringing you the news, John spends a fair bit of time analysing new photographic techniques.

Mrs. Victor Brooker, 312 Spring Garden, Lansing, busy housewife, enjoys both John Collingwood Reade's broadcasts—the 8:00 a.m. one, for breakfast listening, and the 6:30 p.m. one for dinnertime listening.

"I like the way John Collingwood Reade handles the news," says Mrs. Vic Brooker. "I especially like the morning broadcast—timed just right for breakfast listening! And later in the morning CFRB has all my favourite programs—Ann Adam, Mary Garden's Market Basket and Kate Aitken. My husband and I think CFRB is the best spot on the dial!" British Women Wool-Conscious More Than Ever

By MURIEL PENN

London, Oct. 30. (Reuters)—British women, overhauling their winter wardrobes, are more wool-conscious than ever before.

Record prices paid at recent wool auctions in Australia, South Africa and London, have sent women rushing to buy extra woollens at current prices "because it's sure to go up, my dear."

The uncertain international situation has also led to fears that clothes rationing may return.

Women's interest in wool was demonstrated by the large turnout at a fashion show organized by the international wool secretariat.

For the winter, a feature of coats and suits alike was that most were belted and some suit jackets were also bloused.

A novel use for some of the belts evolves at the same time the eternal question of the lost umbrella. From the belt hangs a "scabbard" in which the umbrella is carried when not in use.

Skirts Shorter

Skirts in general on these models are shorter than of late, an average length for a suit being rather above mid-calf.

The slim outline is the order of the day for suits as well as dresses, fullness being given either by buttoned or wrap-over skirts, or by a covey of knife-edged inverted pleats in the back. Many skirts are slightly slit to give extra width for walking.

A number of the coats are saddle-stitched and have large, deep pockets. One model was a black velour tent coat faced in check, with two enormous pockets at the front. The pocket motif was repeated in the dress. Made in bold black-and-pink-check chiffon tweed, it had two large, bellowed, "derriere" pockets—reminiscent of a man's "hip" pocket, only larger and on each side.

ESTABLISH MILITIA

Singapore, Malaya, Oct. 30 —(Reuters)— A "powerful people's militia," said to be 5,500,000 strong, is being established in Peiping monitored here report. The decision to strengthen the militia was taken at an all-China people's militia conference which ended last week after a 15-day session, one announcement said.

HEADLINER DIES

Los Angeles, Oct. 30 — (AP)—Harry Usher, 59, a vaudeville headliner for more than 30 years, died Saturday night following a heart attack. Usher collapsed shortly after he and his wife, Frances, appeared in their mind-reading act. It was the same act which set a record run at New York's Palace Theatre in vaudeville's heyday.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This sh[illegible]pair thoroughly de[illegible] each other

O[illegible] silliest excuses offere[illegible] women engaged in the contemptible business of stealing other women's husbands is: "He made me love him."

Just exactly what this means I have no idea. How another person can "make" you love him whether you want to or not, I find it hard to see. Certainly it can't be done without your meeting him at least halfway, by associating with him and being perfectly receptive to whatever methods he uses to "make you love him".

A young woman of 24, who has a small child by a marriage which apparently ended in divorce, trots out this same old excuse to justify her illicit relationship with a man in his 40's, who, by his own admission, has been happily married for nearly 20 years. He tells the girl that "his wife is a good wife and homemaker, and has never done anything to make him want to leave her." Yet, she goes on to say, in further justification of her own behavior, going out with other women has been a long-standing habit of his, and all of his women-friends are much younger than he.

Because he "made her love him," the current girl friend feels, in common, no doubt, with all her predecessors, that his wife should relinquish any claim on him, so that she would have a free road to matrimony. Pursuing this belief, the girl has already informed the man's wife of the situation, and as a result, the wife has a severe nervous breakdown. To make her feel better, the girl now proposes to pay a call on her, for the express purpose of telling her how many other women her husband has had affairs with, the idea being that she will then be eager to give her husband up. Or perhaps, the girl cherishes the hope that her revelations may finish the wife off completely, and so free the husband with no more delay. The reason she gives for her fight to get the husband for herself is that she "loves him and he tells me he loves me." She can tell she loves him, it seems, by comparing her feeling for him with the feeling she had for "the other men, single and married," with whom she has passed the time on other occasions.

Here is a fine pair indeed, and I can think of no more fitting end to this whole disgusting mess than for Fate to marry them off to each other. Unfortunately, this is the last thing that is likely to happen, since it goes without saying that this man has no intention in the world of marrying the girl, and that he's wholly incapable of loving anybody. If she hasn't learned to date, that when a man of his kind tells a girl he loves her he has one purpose, and only one, in mind, the truth will be forced upon her when she eventually finds herself discarded for the next in line.

She says she has told him to try and make his wife angry so that she will want to break up their marriage. She can be perfectly certain that he is not going to take any suggestions, either from her or anyone else, on how to free himself so that any other woman can get him. His present position—hiding securely behind the screen of respectable marriage while carrying on his shabby affairs—is exactly the status he wants, and he's not going to let anything disturb it.

I don't expect this girl to believe me, and she's not likely to take any advice from any one, even though she has asked it. But I earnestly hope that she may discover some lingering, if tattered, shred of decency in herself that will keep her away from any further cruel intrusion on the suffering wife.

Merry Makers, Jr. Institute Holds First Meeting

The Merry Makers, the Junior Institute of the Mountain View and Huff's Island branch held their first meeting last Monday at the home of Misses Marion and Lois Conklin.

The officers for the coming Unit are: President, Lois Conklin; Secretary-treasurer—Sylvia Motley The leaders are, Miss Marion Conklin and Mrs. Madeline Motley.

The project the girls are taking this season is "Cottons May Be Smart." Each girl will make a cotton dress and keep a record book.

The discussion for the evening was the selecting of good quality material, color, line and cost.

A social hour was spent while the girls enjoyed refreshments.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Here's how to write a thank-you note for wedding present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When is the correct time for a bride-to-be to write thank-you notes for her wedding presents? In other words, is it correct to send them before the wedding, or wait to write them in her married name?

2. Will you please give me the correct form for my thank-you notes for presents?

M. E.

1. As soon as possible after a bride-to-be receives a wedding present she should reach for her pen and write a thank-you note for that present! That is, if at all possible, she should write her thank-you notes each day for the presents that arrive that day. (This should be the ideal of every bride-to-be.) Thus her prompt and enthusiastic notes make for good manners. . . her relatives and friends will be thrilled with her courtesy and thoughtfulness . . . and this procedure makes good sense, too, for, as we all know, it is so very much easier to write a charming note of thanks when we've just opened a present and our enthusiasm and appreciation are fresh in mind and heart.

Sign your name only . . . . "Mary" to relatives and friends. "Mary Eliot" to those who need more identification.

2. Here's a good workable 'recipe' for your thank-you notes:

(1) Thank for the kind thought that prompted the present, (For example: "How very kind and generous you and Bill were to send us such a wonderful present!")

(2) Mention the present specifically. Don't say vaguely, "Your present," giving the impression that you can't remember just what it was.

(3) Make enthusiastic comments about special features of the present. For example: about the color . . .or the design . . . or its perfect size or adaptability. Don't be afraid to be enthusiastic! If you are an enthusiastic person, write with gusto. Let your tone of voice get into your words, just as if you were chatting with your friend.

(4) Include your fiance's thanks and enthusiasm.

(5) Whenever possible, give your notes a crowning glory by telling how "you two" are planning to use the present in your home-to-be.

Silver placed in the order of use

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a waitress, and naturally I am interested in setting tables properly. There has been quite a good deal of discussion between the other girls and myself as to the correct placing of the silverware at the individual settings. In other words, should the silver pieces be placed according to the way they are to be used? And how—starting from the outside or the inside of the setting?

Please give me any other suggestions about the place silver.

(2) And exactly where is the water glass placed?

L. F.

(1) The silver utensils should be placed in the order in which they are to be used . . The ones first to be used farthest away from the plate. This is always the rule.

Knives and spoons are placed at the right of the plate. (The cutting edge of a knife should be toward the plate.) Forks are placed at the left of the plate. . . with only one exception, the oyster fork, which is placed to the right of the spoons.

(2) The water glass is placed just above the tip of the meat knife, on the right of the plate.

Women Compete In Pipe-Smoking Montreal Contest

Montreal, Oct. 30 —CP—Women pipe smokers gained recognition by the International Association of Pipe Smokers' Clubs at its annual convention here and proved they were in earnest in competing in a world pipe-smoking contest.

During a heated debate in a smoke-filled room Saturday, Mrs. Hugo Gnam of Jefferson Valley, N.Y., president of 16 Toby Pipe Smokers' Clubs with 40 women members in the United States, said she attended the convention to make certain women were admitted to the international body.

A vote was ordered and the men split into two camps—those wanting an open vote and those wanting it to be secret. Finally an open vote was agreed upon and the delegates sheepishly approved the admission of women but on the condition that they remain in dependent clubs.

In the contest for the world championship, Charles Guay of the Schenectady, N.Y., Mohawk Club smoked 3.3 grams af Burley tobacco—less than ¼ of an ounce —for 85¼ minutes to set a record.

A close competitor was Toby, honorary president of the women's clubs, who managed to attract most of the attention on her by smokng a Turkish hookah—harem-style—pipe 41 minutes. The young red-head, who has never revealed her name, has 500 pipes in her Tompkins Corners, N.Y., home.

BEAUTY

Keep up your good-looks insurance

When a woman is feeling low, when she fancies that life is kicking her around, she may even find her beauty chores a bore—especially if the reflection in the mirror shows a doleful face. That is precisely the time for her to put on her seven league boots, sneak some money from the household budget and chase out on a grand old beautifying spree. Several hours in the good-looks factory will restore her confidence, give her courage, set her on the right road again.

You cannot deny the fact that a good-looking woman has a big advantage over the sloppy-looking one. Good grooming, tasteful dressing and the chic coiffure are a sort of passport. A healthy, graceful body and a charming personality oil the wheels of life; no doubt about it.

FACE CREAM
MILK
FRUITS
BEAUTY

The thirty-girl should not take her youthful appearence for granted.

If a woman devotes a little time each day to the business of keeping fit and looking well, it is to her credit. Certainly nothing is gained by neglect. No dividends are collected by the woman who lets things slide, forgets to cream her complexion to ward off birthday lines, lets the shampoo wait too long.

The thirty-girl should not take her youthful appearance for granted; she must tend to her beauty knitting. Birthdays seem to exceed the speed limit, these hectic days. In a few short years, she may be aware of tiny lines around her eyes. They will not appear if she attends to complexion care, keeps sweet, is a devotee of the Goddes Hygeia.

Premature grey hair is more prevalent than in the old days, possibly because of hurry and tension. Then there is the prospect of losing the svelte and youthful shape; this can be avoided by getting a certain amount of exercise each day and maintaining correct posture.

It is a long, long trail, to be sure, but it must be travelled. An easy way to attend to beautifying needs is to devote half an hour every night to what must be done to keep looking attractive. After the face-washing, which should be thorough instead of just a swish of a soaped cloth and a promise, the skin should be lubricated with a nourishing cream. The rewards are manifold. The skin surface will be kept smooth, underlying fibres will be kept strong.

A few minutes of hair brushing and scalp friction may ward off a moulting period that comes now and then. It doesn't take a minute to anoint the fingernails, thus escaping hangnails. Stretching exercises before going to sleep will make for limberness and the neat silhouette.

Friends Present Young Couple With Gifts

A surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oswal Moore on Monday evening last, when a number of friends gathered in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Horton (nee Merla Vance) who were quietly married in Belleville, on Saturday last.

An enjoyable evening was spent playing bingo, Many prizes were won.

Mr. and Mrs. Horton thanked the guests for the many useful gifts and extended a cordial visiting welcome to all.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Olive Ross of Belleville.

The evening came to a close by all singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking ?

There's not only gold in Alaska. There are crabs too.

Recently discovered crab beds in the gulf of Alaska were so crowded with crustaceans that fishermen were making as high as 150 to 200 dollars a day bringing in the rich haul.

Canned crab meat is one of the few foods in tin which retains the greater part of its subtle fresh flavor.

If you prefer fresh crab meat you can buy it cooked in most fish stores. If you want large size jumbo chunks, ask for crab lump. Smaller size pieces —good for croquettes or creamed dishes—are called crab flakes.

When buying fresh cooked crab meat, see that it has no trace of stickiness or strong, fishy smell.

Ordinarily a pint of crab meat, solidly packed, will provide 4 portions. Prepare creamed crab meat as a filling to spoon between split baked Idaho potatoes. If you care to take the trouble, you can mash the halved baked potatoes, refill the shells and reheat them just before serving time.

Baked Potatoes With Crab Meat. Serves 4,

4 baking potatoes
2 cups cooked or canned crab meat
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk
1-4 cup scallions
1-4 cup canned pimientos
2 tablespoons dry white wine
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley salt, pepper

Wash, and bake 4 Idaho baking potatoes in a hote oven 450 degrees for 1 to 1 1-4 hours.

Examine crab meat carefully to remove any bones or cartilage.

Melt butter in a heavy saucepan. Remove from flame. Stir in flour. Gradually add hot milk stirring well. Return to a small flame. Add crab meat, Simmer 10 minutes.

Cut scallions into very thin slices. Cut pimientos into 1-2 inch squares. Add scallions and pimientos to crab meat mixture. Add wine. Add chopped parsley. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt or more to taste and pepper to taste.

Split baked potatoes in half lengthwise. Spoon crabmeat mixture between potato halves.

Think Russian Master Plan To Make Baltic Stalin Lake Now in Full Swing

By GUSTAV SVENSSON

Stockholm, Oct. 30. (AP)—A Russian master plan to transform the Baltic sea into a "Stalin lake" seems to be in full swing, according to many observers in this Baltic capital.

References to such Russian designs, appearing lately with striking frequency in the Swedish press, they are mostly founded on a combination of recent Russian moves in the Baltic that seem to fit easily into a disquieting pattern.

The Swedes are clearly worried.

The plan envisions Russian control over the narrow straits between the European continent and the Scandinavian peninsula through which a considerable part of Russia's submarines must pass to reach the Atlantic in the event of another world war.

Close to Vital Outlets

Russia already is pretty close to these vital outlets from the big inland sea where she keeps much of her navy.

In 1940 Russia held only a narrow 100-mile coastal strip at the bottom of the Gulf of Finland. As a result of tremendous expansion on the Baltic in the last 10 years, the Soviet has virtual control of the whole Baltic coast, from formerly Finnish Viipuri to Luebeck. That brings Russia to considerably less than 100 miles away from the straits at several points.

Many military experts here agree that, in the event of a third world war, Russia is likely to jump immediately at the Baltic approaches to the Atlantic. They also believe that the Russians are wasting no time in preparing themselves for the jump.

While the details of Swedish press reports are difficult to verify, Swedish sources list these as known facts:

Moscow has sealed off the whole Baltic area to foreigners with the exception only of Leningrad.

A great naval expansion program—described by senior Swedish navy officers as far exceeding Russia's defensive needs—is being pushed at Russia's old and new shipyards on the Baltic.

Russia is rapidly constructing what has been described as a gigantic "Baltic wall" of coastal defence extending from the northern shore of the Gulf of Finland to the southern Baltic.

Reports in the Swedish press of large-scale combined V-weapon and radar manoeuvres in the Baltic area last summer, however, belong to the large category of unverified details.

Says Pontecorvo Afraid to Return

London, Oct. 30. (AP)—The Daily Herald says today missing atom scientist Professor Bruno Pontecorvo was afraid to return to Britain from Italy after a mystery encounter with two unknown men.

The Herald, organ of the reigning Labor party, says the two mystery men—a Czech and an Italian—met Pontecorvo in a holiday camp near Lake Como in August.

The Herald story says Pontecorvo told his wife after the Como meeting: "I dare not go back. I should be sent to prison if I did."

After protesting, his wife agreed to accompany him to Helsinki—and beyond, the Herald says. They were last seen in Finland's capital on Sept. 2. Some believe they are now in Russia.

Needs More Enlistments

Winnipeg, Oct. 30. (CP) —The R.C.A.F.'s director of Reserve and Manning, says he needs more enlistments than he's getting.

"Our present requirements are being met with sufficient numbers," Group Capt. R. S. Turnbull said in an address here last night, "but with larger demands being anticipated in the near future, enlistments are not what we should like them to be.

"Since the Korean outbreak, the entire establishment has been put on an increased scale, and our aim is to get many more operations units functioning as soon as possible."

Glasgow Pupils Pen Ideas About Canada

Glasgow, Scotland, Oct. 30. — (CP)—To stimulate interest in Canada, approximately 50,000 Glasgow school children have been invited to write an essay on "What I Want to See in Canada and Why". The competition which has the support of the city's director of Education, is being sponsored by the Canadian Club of Glasgow.

A panel of three judges, including an exchange teacher from Canada, will select the best entries and award three prizes donated by Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Soutter, members of the Canadian Club.

George Rennie, secretary of the Club, said the idea of the contest was to promote keener interest in the Dominion whose history and development was so closely linked with Scotland. He hoped the competition would be established as an annual fixture.

Text of Prayer Composed By Pope Pius to Honor Virgin

Vatican City, Oct. 30. (CP)—The text of the prayer Pope Pius has composed to honor the Virgin Mary was made public today.

It will be said by the Pope Oct. 31 at the proclamation of the dogma of the Assumption of the Virgin to Heaven.

An unofficial translation of the Italian text follows:

"Prayer to Most Holy Mary assumed:

"O Immaculate Virgin, Mother of God and mother of men, we believe with all the fervor of our faith in thy triumphant assumption, in soul and in body, into heaven, where thou art acclaimed queen by all the choirs of the angels and by all the legions of the saints;

"And we unite with them to praise and bless the Lord, who hath exalted thee above all other pure creatures, and to offer thee the breath of our devotion and of our love."

"We know that thy gaze, that maternally caressed the humble and suffering humanity of Jesus on earth, satiates itself with the sight of the glorious humanity of the uncreated Knowledge (The Divine Knowledge, I.E. God), and that the joy of thy soul in contemplating face to face the adorable Trinity causes thy heart to throb with tenderness.

"And we, poor sinners, we for whom the body weighs down the flight of the soul, we beseech thee to purify our senses that we may learn, from here below, to enjoy God, God alone amidst the enchantment of creatures.

"We confide that thine eyes of mercy look down upon our miseries and upon our sorrows, upon our struggles and upon our weaknesses; that thy lips smile upon our joys and upon our victories: that thou hearest the voice of Jesus say of each one of us, as He did of His beloved disciple (John): Behold thy son;

"And we, who invoke thee (as) our mother, we take thee, as (did) John, for guide, strength and consolation in our mortal life.

"We have the vivifying certainty that thine eyes which wept on the earth bathed with the blood of Jesus, yet turn towards this world, prey to wars, to persecutions, to oppressions of the just and the weak;

"And we, from the shadows of this vale of tears, await from thy heavenly light and thy sweet pity surcease from the griefs of our hearts, from the trials of the church and of our fatherland.

"We believe, finally, that in the glory over which thou reignest, robed with sun and crowned with stars, thou art, after Jesus, the joy and the gladness of all the angles and of all the saints;

"And we, from this earth and through which we pass as pilgrims, comforted by the faith in the future ressurection, look towards thee, our life, our sweetness, our hope; lead us with the gentleness of thy voice, to show us one day, after this our exile, Jesus, the blessed fruit of thy womb, O Clement, O Pius, O sweet Virgin Mary."

German Whaling Ship Leaves for Antarctic

Kiel, Germany, Oct. 30. (Reuters)—The 13,000-ton German-manned whaling flagship Olympic Challenger and 12 former British corvettes rebuilt as whale-catchers, left here today for the Antarctic.

It was the first time German sailors have taken part in a whaling expedition since the Allies barred Germany from whaling after the war.

The technical manager of the American-financed expedition is the Norwegian "King of the Whalers", Lars Andersen, who led the German whaling expedition of 1938.

With the exception of two other Norwegian experts the crew is entirely German.

17 Accidental, Violent Deaths During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Three traffic accidents alone took eight lives in eastern Canada during the weekend. In all, 15 persons died on its highways.

A Canadian Press compilation showed 17 accidental and violent deaths during the weekend. There were nine traffic deaths in Ontario, four in Nova Scotia and two in Quebec.

In addition, Earl Gill of Saint John, N.B., and Henry Foisy, 13, of St. Marguerite, Que., were shot to death in separate hunting accidents.

One of the three biggest accidents killed three young men in Pleasant River, N.S., as they were returning from a Hallowe'en party. The three were Roland Scott, 23, Roman Smith, 24, and Douglas MacQuarrie 17. Their car left the highway and turned over.

Near Pickering, Ont., 20 miles west of Toronto, Brian O'Boyle, 19, and Norman Scherb, 19, were killed when their car smashed into the rear of a truck driven by Earl Kirk, 53 of Toronto.

As Kirk examined the car containing the two dead men, it was hit from behind by a car driven by Charles Stone of Lindsay. Kirk was killed.

Blamed On Fog

Many of the accidents in Ontario were blamed on a heavy fog that settled down over the province from North Bay to the Great Lakes.

Ernest Gordon, a Toronto truck driver, and Mary Nichoveau, were killed in a collision between Gordon's truck and a car near Kingston Saturday In another collision at Harrow, William A. Grady was killed. Seven-year-old Henry Ferber of Courtland, Ont., was killed in a car-truck collision near Toronto.

Two cars hit head-on in the fog near Chatham, Ont., Sunday, killing Laird Ross, 8. Steve Sysburg, Conway, Pa., was killed near Smithville, Ont., when his car went into a ditch.

The other traffic victim in Nova Scotia was Mrs. Sabra Hines of Lantz Siding, 30 miles north of Halifax. The 74-year-old woman was struck by a car.

Frank Massarelo, 50, and Joseph Presener, 55, died in Montreal hospitals. Both were hit by cars in separate accidents in Montreal Saturday.

Special Seasons For Deer Set In Some Twps.

Toronto, Oct. 30—(CP)—Special deer seasons have been set for mid-November in certain townships in the Ontario counties of Bruce, Grey, Simcoe, Brant, Haldimand, Huron, Lambton, Northumberland, Wellington and Wentworth.

The lands department said Sunday that hunters will require special licences, obtainable only from the clerk of the township in which the hunting is to be done and issued only to persons not holding general deer-hunting licences. The fee is $4 for residents, $25.75 for non-residents.

In Bruce county, hunting will be permitted from Nov. 13 to 18 in the townships of Albermarle, Amabel, Arran, Eastnor, Lindsay and St. Edmunds and from Nov. 16 to 18 in Greenock township.

The season will be open Nov. 13 to 18 in Grey county's Sullivan township and from Nov. 16 to 18 in the Grey townships of Artemesia, Bentinck, Proton and Saint Vincent. With shotguns only, hunting will be permitted from Nov. 16 to 18 in that county's Normanby township.

In Simcoe county, hunting will be permitted Nov. 13 to 18 in Adjala, Essa, Sunnidale, Tecumseth, Tosorontio and West Gwillimbury townships.

Hunting with shotguns only will be permitted Nov. 16 to 18 in these townships: Brant county— South Dumfries; Haldimand—Normanby; Haldimand—North Cayuga; Huron —Goderich, Howick; Lambton — Plympton; Northumberland — Brighton, Murray; Wellington — Arthur, Puslinch; Wentworth — West Flamborough.

Dedicate Monument

Immediately after the unveiling, Rev. F. R. Harback led the crowd of more than 1,200 people in prayer as he dedicated the monument.

After the ceremony, Mr. St. Laurent, accompanied by Mayor Jack Allin and Frank Follwell, M.P., for Hastings South, moved to the outdoor monument on the Armouries lawn. He stood there fully ten minutes under dull skies reading the inscription on the gray memorial.

Present at the ceremony and also with the Prime Minister on the lawn were Sir Mackenzie Bowell's great granddaughter, Mrs. G. Kayser, Belleville, and a grandson, Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, Vancouver.

The first part of the program in the Armouries was given over to a civic welcome to Mr. St. Laurent and his party by Mayor Jack Allin. The Prime Minister and his retinue had been escorted to the Armouries by Chief of Police Walter Probert and Inspector Clair Hayes. The Mayor presented a key to the city to Mr. St. Laurent, and the Mayor's granddaughter, Miss Patricia Hall, made a presentation of a bouquet of flowers, to Madame St. Laurent.

Tribute Paid Committee

The Mayor paid tribute to the special committee of City Council which had worked with the Historical Sites and Monuments Board to erect the monument. He then gave the platform to Alderman Claude D. Tice, who headed the committee, to introduce Mr. Fred M. Landon, chairman of the Historical Board.

Mr. Landon, who himself had an illustrious career in the Ottawa Press Gallery, while Sir Mackenzie Bowell was Prime Minister of Canada, presented the monument to the city. "It is fitting that this monument should be placed in Belleville, the community to which Mackenzie Bowell came as a small boy", he said.

"Today", he said, "we are paying a belated but very proper tribute to a man who gave to his country loyal service, who risked his life in her defence when danger threatened, and who throughout his life made and retained warm friendships."

Mr. Landon concluded by saying "We are indicating by our presence here today and by the raising of this monument that we are grateful and that his name shall not pass from public remembrance."

Mayor Allin, who presided over the ceremonies, then called on Mr. Frank Follwell to introduce the Prime Minister.

Party Views Monument

After the party had moved outside to view the monument, a civic reception was held in the officers' mess at the Armouries. It was convened by the Argyle Chapter of the I.O.D.E., whose regent is Mrs. Everett Fairman.

The Kinsmen's Boys' Band was assembled in the west end of the Armouries to preface the ceremonies with the National Anthem and to conclude them with "O Canada". A guard of honor from the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment occupied the east end of the floor.

On the floor level, seats were provided, but an overflow crowd stood to watch the unveiling rites. The upstairs balcony was about half filled with spectators who joined with lower-floor witnesses to give the Prime Minister and his party a hand as they came into the building.

CREDIT CURBS

2. Other goods bought on the instalment plan with the exception of such things as real estate, securities and goods for profesional use, require a down payment of at least 20 per cent and not less than $5.

3. A flat 18-month maximum time allowed for full payment of goods purchased on the instalment plan with instalments to be not less than $5 a month or $1.25 a week. At present the length of time given to pay varies.

4. Loans made by banks or other lending agencies for the purchase of consumer goods will be subject to the same terms. For instance, a loan for the purchase of a car must not exceed 66 2-3 per cent of the purchase price of the car and must be repaid in regular instalments within 18 months.

Charge accounts are not affected but the regulations apply to revolving credit accounts, permanent budget accounts and budgetted charge accounts by which a purchaser can get a continuing amount of credit by making regular monthly instalment payments.

Persons using such accounts will have to pay at least one-sixth every month of the maximum amount of credit or 1:26th every week. And the first such payment will have to be made at the time the account is opened, something which is not generally required at present.

During the war consumer-credit curbs required a 33 1-3 per cent down payment with anywhere from six to 15 months to pay depending on the type of goods purchased. Minimum instalments were put at the same figure as in the new regulations—$5 monthly or 1.25 a week

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Reluctantly, and with a few backward glances, Eddie Schreider said farewell to the city he "cant forget" today as he moved his home to Galt where the popular Ed. has become a permanent resident. Mrs. Schreider accompanied him. Gary, who is rapidly making a name for himself in football is a student at St. Michael's College, Toronto. Once again sports fans of this district and not a few others wish Ed. the best for the future.

The Belleville senior hockey club will get its first taste of skating tonight when the players, coaches and officials trek to Cobourg where they will get the kinks out of their legs in a practice session. The boys leave the Arena at 7:30 and will go through an hour and a half session on the ice starting at nine o'clock. The team opens the season here on Friday next when the Queen's University squad will be their guests. It is hoped they will get in more practice licks at the Arena here before they take the ice against the Gaels.

Meanwhile the regular senior season pries the lid off tonight with the Peterborough Eagles clashing with the Nylons in Kingston and the Peterborough Petes visiting Queen's University. All teams have been either practicing faithfully or playing exhibition games or both and tonight's jousts could be a fair indication of things to come, or at least the comparative strength of the squads.

Cleveland Barons Still Top Team In E. Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons just won't stay off the top rung of the American Hockey League's Western division standings.

They proved their point during the weekend. They were dropped to second place Saturday night by Cincinnati Mohawks who defeated the Barons 3-1.

But Sunday night Cleveland stormed right back to tie the Mohawks in first place with a 7-4 victory over Cincinnati. After Cincinnati took a 4-2 lead in the first period, Barons exploded with a five-goal scoring spree in the last two stanzas.

Harry Taylor scored twice for Barons in the first period while other Cleveland marksmen were Roy Kelly, Walter Hergesheimer, Hy Buller, Glen Sonmor and Steve Wochy.

Jackie Gordon and Gilles Dube each connected twice for Cincinnati.

Buffalo Bisons continued in first place of the league's Eastern division with a 7-4 victory over Springfield Indians. Pete Leswick sparked Bisons with two counters while Walter Atanas, Don Ashbee, Ab Demarco, Lloyd Finbeiner and George Pargeter added the other Buffalo markers.

Keith Allan, Armand Lemieux, Harry Pidgirny and Eddie Bush scored for Springfield.

Rookie Al Millar of New Haven Eagles scored his first shutout of the season as he blanked Pittsburgh Hornets 2-0. The former Quebec Senior Hockey League goalie with Quebec Aces made 38 stops.

Johnny Holota and Sam Mulholland scored for Eagles.

Cliff Simpson scored in overtime to give the St. Louis Flyers a 5-4 win and keep the Indianapolis Caps out of the win column so far this season.

Simpson and Bill McComb scored twice for the winners and Ted Olsen once. Butch Wolt, Johnny Wilson, Doug McKay and Jerry Reid counted for Caps.

In the other A.H.L. game Sunday night, Hershey Bears defeated Providence Reds 5-2.

Winnipeg or Edmonton to Make Grey Cup Trip, Five Eastern Teams Still in Title Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Winnipeg Blue Bombers of Edmonton Eskimos will come East for the Grey Cup final. Five Eastern teams still are in the hunt for the other half of the fall football classic.

That's the way the Canadian Senior Football picture wound up after the weekend shuffle which saw Ottawa Rough Riders and Saskatchewan Roughriders added to the list of teams eliminated from Grey Cup possibilities.

The defending champion Montreal Alouettes were left with only a slim mathematical chance.

Edmonton bounced Roughriders 24-1 in Regina to earn the right to meet Winnipeg for the Western championship.

Ottawa was dropped after losing 30-7 to Toronto Argonauts in a Big Four game in Toronto. Montreal's chances faded after losing 29-18 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton.

In the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union, Windsor Rockets beat Sarnia Imperials 13-10 Saturday then lost 31-5 to Balmy Beach Sunday. Balmy Beach and Imperials play a two-game series for the right to enter the Eastern finals with the Big Four winner.

McGill University Redmen continued to roll through the Intercollegiate competition with a 43-15 victory over Queen's University Gaels. The only team with a chance of stopping McGill is the University of Western Ontario which smashed University of Toronto Blues.

Must Beat Toronto

Alouettes can make the Big Four playoffs only if they beat Toronto next week and if Ottawa beats Hamilton. That would put Tiger-Cats and Alouettes in a second-place tie and force a sudden-death playoff for the right to meet Argos—only team in the league sure of making the playoffs.

Ottawa bowed out of the contention Saturday after moving into a one-touchdown lead and fading before a brilliant last-half Argonaut attack led by quarterback Al Dekdebrun. Dekdebrun's passes accounted for three of Toronto's five majors.

Joe Asquini went 55 yards for the Ottawa touchdown on a pass from Andy Gordon. Eric Chipper converted. A long run by Bob Westlake set up Ulysses Curtis for a ten-yard touchdown run to tie the score before the half.

Then Dekdebrun's passing took over in the third quarter. He threw one to Don Scott and the outside wing made a running catch and went 15 yards to score. Another one was caught by Marvin Whaley on the Ottawe three-yard line. Curtis burst through the centre of the line for a 45-yard touchdown run in the final quarter and in the final 30 seconds another Dekdebrun-to-Whaley pass was good for a major.

Nick Volpe converted all five Toronto touchdowns. That brought his record for the year to 40 converts out of 44 attempts.

Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones went for 18 Hamilton points as the Tiger-Cats humbled Alouettes. The Hamilton club ran up a 16-0 lead before Alouettes struck back for 18 straight points. Then Jones stopped the streak by plunging over for a major and Jack Stewart went over for another in the final quarter.

Scores Three TD's

Jones scored three touchdowns, Bob McDonald plunged for the other Hamilton touchdown and Dick Brown kicked a single.

Tommy Manastersky got the first Montreal touchdown on a pass from Frank Filchock, Virgil Wagner plunged for another and Pete Thodos took a pass from Filchock for the third. Nick Scollard kicked three converts.

After a scoreless first quarter, Eskimos struck with a pass from quarterback Lindy Berry to outside Rollin Prather that sent Prather 20 yards for a score. Then Mike King took two plunges to go over from the Regina 19.

After the second-half kickoff, Edmonton rolled right down to the four and Kink went over on his third attempt. Playing-coach Annis Stukus booted two field goals and two converts. Jack Hartman booted a single in the final quarter.

Kicks Field Goal

Playing-coach Jim Caine of Windsor kicked a field goal in the final quarter to give the Rockets a win over Sarnia after they had trailed 10-9 at the start. It was his second placement kick of the game. Len Wright kicked two single points and Jack Brown got the only touchdown. John Chorostecki and Eric McKeever got the two Sarnia touchdowns.

Windsor, bruised and tired from the game, were unable to hold Balmy Beach the next day. Halfback Carl Galbreath rolled for three touchdowns and four converts. Billy Haddleton and Bob Dunlap each went for a major and George Gilchrist kicked a convert and Bill Douglass booted a single. Lyle Ross went 25 yards around the end for Windsor's only touchdown.

Home-and-Home Series

Sarnia and Beaches open a home-and-home total-points series for the league championship next week.

The Intercollegiate games saw Western fumble scoring chances away all through the first quarter while Al Haig kicked a single for the Blues who had been humbled 41-1 the week before by Western. Mustangs started to roll in the second quarter when Bob McFarlane went for a major and converted it. His brother, Don, and Gerry Fitzgerald each got touchdowns and Bob converted both and kicked a field goal.

Gene Robillard and Ken Wagner each went for McGill touchdowns in the first quarter against Queen's. Before the game was over, Roy Deshields had gone for two majors with Jim Mitchener, Jeff Crain and Dawson Tilley each getting another. Fred Wilmot converted all of them. Queen's points came on touchdowns by Tip Logan and Jack Sisson and a field goal and two converts by Logan.

Border League May be Expanded To Eight Teams

Watertown, N.Y., Oct. 30—(AP) — The Border Baseball League will decide at its mid-winter meeting in January whether to expand to eight teams, owners of the present six clubs announced Sunday.

Owners said after the league's annual meeting Sunday that Cornwall, Ont., Corning, N. Y., and Plattsburgh, N. Y., are interested in joining the class-C circuit.

In the league now are Ottawa and Kingston, Ont., and Ogdensburg, Watertown, Auburn and Geneva, all New York cities.

John G. Ward of Ogdensburg, president of the league since it was organized in 1946, was re-elected president, secretary and treasurer.

Rev. Harold J. Martin of Canton, N. Y., former president of the Canadian - American League was re-elected honorary chairman of the board and league adviser. Miss Catherine Martin of Canton was re-elected assistant treasurer.

Owners said they discussed a rookie rule, player limit and salary limit, but would not act until after the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Father Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Ward will attend the Association meetings in St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 4-9.

CALUMETS DEFEATED

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 30 (CP)— North Bay Black Hawks posted a 5-1 victory over Cornwall Calumets Saturday night in an Eastern Canada Senior Hockey League game before nearly 1,800 fans.

Goaler Al Picard had on easy night between the home posts as his mates held Cornwall to 18 shots while Black Hawks peppered Gord Buckley with 29 shots.

Bert Lilly's screened shot in the first period put Cornwall ahead, but Black Hawks came back as Frank Ringler evened the count in the middle frame. In the third period, Ringler got another, and other scorers were Alf Guarda, Dave Morland and Harold Hill.

Black Hawks Crack Broda's Shutout Streak; Sawchuck Hands Boston Bruins Goose Egg

(By The Canadian Press)

What's wrong with Boston Bruins?

Coach Lynn Patrick wishes he knew, for his club now has gone seven straight games without a win.

Their latest sad showing came in Detroit last night when they were blanked 2-0 by the Red Wings whose rookie goalie, Terry Sawchuk, recorded his first shutout of the season.

With such a record — three ties and four losses in seven starts — Patrick should be about ripe for suggestions from almost any quarter, including arm - chair strategists.

Meanwhile a rookie N. H. L. coach — Gentleman Joe Primeau — seemingly has no troubles, with his Maple Leafs leading the league and riding the crest of an undefeated streak of seven games.

The Leafs picked up three points during the weekend's heavy action to remain out front with 12 points, one ahead of Montreal Canadiens. But Turk Broda's skein of shutouts came to an end in Chicago.

The Hawks staged a whirlwind finish Sunday night with three third - period goals to gain a 3-3 tie. On Saturday, the Leafs dumped the luckless Bruins 4-2 at Toronto.

Montreal kept pace with Toronto, also picking up three points in a home-and-home set with New York Rangers. The Habitants won 5-1 at home Saturday but were held to a 2-2 draw in New York Sunday.

The Wings gained ground on the leaders with a double victory, both at home, defeating the Hawks 3-1 Saturday and blanking the Bruins Sunday.

At Chicago Sunday, the 36-year-old Broda entered the game with three straight whitewash jobs and a total of 200 minutes, 45 seconds of perfect netminding.

Blanked Two Periods

Chicago's largest crowd of the season — 14,948 — saw him blank the Hawks through two periods before rookie Vic Stasiuk beat him at 4:48 of the third. Gordon Fashoway, another rookie, and defenceman Bill Gadsby beat him again before the final bell.

The Leafs had got away to a 2-0 lead on second - period goals by Joe Klukay, Sid Smith and Harry Watson. The game was rough, 15 penalties being called, including a 10-minute misconduct to the Leafs' Gus Mortson.

Hawk winger Bill Mosienko suffered a possible fracture of the right cheekbone late in the second period, apparently from a glancing blow from a puck.

Goalie Chuck Rayner of the Rangers was injured twice but returned to the ice each time before 12,981 New York fans Sunday. Montreal's tying goal was scored while he was sprawled across his blood-stained crease. He was hurt each time by cuts from the skate of Montreal's Frank King.

MacKay Ties it up

The Rangers' only rookie, Reggie Sinclair, scored the first goal early in the second period. Maurice (The Rocket) Richard equalized. Nick Mickoski shot the Rangers ahead again and Calum MacKay tied it up for Canadiens.

Elmer Lach, Montreal's battle-scarred veteran, also was injured and received nine stitches for a cut above his right eye. He was hit by a shot from linemate Richard in the second period and did not return to the game.

At Detroit, the Red Wings slapped in two goals within the first 12 minutes of play before 10,093 fans and the Bruins never got close in dull action on mushy ice. Ted Lindsay and Gordie Howe were the scorers.

Full-Scale Brawl

About the only excitement came midway in the final period when a full-scale brawl broke out with Boston's Ferny Flaman tangling with Steve Black and Leo Reise. The Flaman - Reise bout was the best seen in Olympic in some time. Both drew five-minute major penalties for fisticuffs; Black and Ed Sandford escaped with minors.

In Saturday's Wings - Hawks game, Howe, Marty Pavelich and Lindsay scored for the visitors; Stasiuk for the losers.

At Montreal, 15,547 fans saw Canadiens overpower Rangers with Richard and Floyd Curry scoring two goals each and Ken Mosdell one. Edgar Laprade scored for Rangers.

Rookie Danny Lewicki and veteran Ted Kennedy paced the Leafs to their second victory over the Bruins this season Saturday. The 19-year-old Lewicki got his first N.H.L. scoring points, a goal and two assists. Kennedy rapped home a pair of goals and Joe Klukay got the other. Paul Ronty and Phil Maloney scored for Boston.

St. Catharines Captures Ted Reeve Trophy

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP) —Jim McNulty's expertly-coached St. Catharines Collegiate gridders captured the Ted Reeve trophy symbolic of Ontario interscholastic football supremacy as the second annual Red Feather football tournament wound up before 18,000 fans Saturday.

The St. Kitts crew, which walloped Guelph C.V.S 52-0 in Friday's tournament opener, was selected by sports columnist Ted Reeve and a panel of eight high school football experts for its offensive and defensive strength, strategy and statistics.

In Saturday's final doubleheader of the Feather Bowl which attracted a total gate of 39,000, Ottawa Tech trimmed Sudbury High School Wolves 23-0 and London's South High School Lions upset Toronto Malvern Collegiate 6-3.

In collegiate competitions in conjunction with the games, Ken Koch of Stratford placed second in placement kicking and Henry Holdenmeyer of Kitchener-Waterloo took third place among forward passers.

Selection by the judges as best players on their teams were Pete Newman of St. Catharines, an end; halfback Mel Wolford of Guelph and centre Vince Lefebvre of Sudbury.

BLUES IN SECOND PLACE

Guelph, Ont., Oct. 30 — (CP)— University of Toronto Seconds took to the air in the 3rd quarter Saturday to take a 3-18 win over Ontario Agricultural College series. The victory moved the Blues into second place in the intermediate intercollegiate race and dropped O.A.C. into the cellar.

Majors by Bob Brooks and George Gray helped give Aggies a 12-10 lead in the first half. Third-quarter touchdowns by Bill McFarlane, Irv Salsberg and Earl Ford put the Blues ahead. McFarlane scored another major in the last quarter before Jim Dodds scored a touchdown for Aggies and converted it to end the scoring.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 30 (AP)—Baseball historian Ernie Lanigan figures it's a good bet a manager to start a former Syracuse pitcher in the first game of the world series... At least, four of them have pitched those opening games—Nick Altrock, Grover Alexander, Howard Ehmke and Jim Konstanty—and Konstanty was the only one who lost... What's more, this quartet allowed just one run apiece... Charlie Berry, who hits the banquet circuit between baseball and football officiating chores, lists three vital pays which cost Detroit Tigers the American League pennant. Thy are (1) Aaron Robinson's failure to tag Cleveland's Bob Lemon at the plate during a clutch game; (2) Pitcher Ted Gray's failure to cover first on a grounder hit to his left in the same series and (3) Hal Newhouser's full wind-up during a last-inning Boston Red Sox rally in another important game ... How about the lack of base hits?

His Vest Friend

Lou D'Achille, Indian's young passing sensation, and Jim (Bucky) Mutscheller, Notre Dame end, were teammates and the closest of pals back home in Beaver Falls, Pa... They played against each other for the first time this year and when they met after the game, neither knew just what to say ... Fumbling around for some comment that wouldn't hurt his friend's feelings, D'Achille finally blurted out "Gee, Bucky, you've got a nice suit. It sure is a nice one."

Present Trophies At Successful Soccer Banquet

(Contributed)

The Bay of Quinte Football Association held their second annual banquet and dance at the Queensway Hotel in Trenton last Friday evening.

The special guests of the evening were Frank Follwell M.P. for Hastings South and Bill Henshaw, president of the Toronto Celtic Soccer Club. A telegram from Alex MacGregor, secretary of the Ontario Football Association regretting his inability to attend owing to having to attend a meetting of the Ontario Football Commission, and conveying his best wishes for the future of local association was read by the chairman.

After a very fine chicken dinner served by Bert High the genial host of the Queensway Hotel, Bill Henshaw addressed the gathering. Bill stated that he had visited the district twice, last year with the Toronto Irish and this year with the Toronto Celtic, and this was one of the places that he always looked forward to visiting as the visiting team was always given a fine reception and was made so welcome. Bill mentioned that a concerted effort is being made in Ontario to interest the younger element in the game of soccer, for it is only by cultivating the juniors that the game will survive in this country. He also asked those players who from time have to hang up their boots when old Father Time catches up with them not to drop out of the game as there is always some sport for them in running the game, refereeing or coaching the younger players.

Reviews Activities

Les Digby, president of the Bay of Quinte Football Association, who acted as chairman of the function gave a short review of activities during the season both locally and with the Eastern Ontario Football League which was first formed this year. He noted that it is anticipated that Portsmouth who finished first in the English First Division for the last two seasons will be one of the teams to tour Canada next year. Les informed the gathering that according to Mr. MacGregor of the Ontario Football Association the Ontario Intermediate championship competition will be run on slightly different lines next year with all teams going into the draw at the start of the competition instead of running regional playoffs as has been done previously.

The secretary treasurer of the Bay of Quinte F.A., Chalky Whyte, apologized for the fact that his Trenton Flyers, due to inter-station postings, rather fell away towards the end of the season but anticipates that they will be in there better than ever next year.

Before presenting the Kent Shoe Gold Trophy emblematic of supremacy in the Bay of Quinte soccer league to Tony Kuklis, captain of the Batawa club, Frank Follwell made a few well chosen remarks. He said he was very glad to be associated with the game of soccer as it was a game his father had played years ago in the City of Belleville. Frank said that he was very pleased to hear the remarks that had been passed by previous speakers regarding the juniors and in order to further these efforts he wished to donate a trophy to be put up for junior competition. This generous offer was promptly accepted by the president on behalf of the F.A.

Mrs. Baverstock, a lady who has worked hard to further the success of soccer in this district, and is one of the district's keenest soccer supporters, presented the Trenton Challenge Cup to Eric Helyer, captain of the Trenton Merchants club.

The final presentation was that of the Belleville Merchants Charity Cup which was won by Batawa and was accepted on behalf of the club by captain Tony Kuklis, from Frank Follwell.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing to music by Charlie Thorn and his trio and a sing song when quite a lot of local talent was shown to good advantage. The Batawa boys rendered several songs in their native Czech language and showed that they had other talents besides being able to play football and the girls of Batawa certainly gave the men a run for their money in the singing department. Jack Helyer of Trenton and Bill Henshaw were also in fine voice.

R. M. C. WINS

Ottawa, Oct. 30 — (CP)—Royal Military College of Kingston, Ont., defeated Carleton College of Ottawa 38-1 Saturday in an Ottawa - St. Lawrence intermediate intercollegiate football game.

In the dwindling minutes of the game, Carleton's Rod Sprague kicked a single to save being white-washed.

R. M. C. went over for six majors, four of which were converted by Dennis O'Connor. Jim Lundell scored two touchdowns and the others were registered by Don Green, P. Kerr, Walter Scott and E. Bell.

Galt Moves Into First Position Of Junior Race

(By The Canadian Press)

An overtime victory Saturday and Sunday tie put Galt Black Hawks into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior standings.

They're a single point ahead of Barrie Flyers who beat Galt 6-3 in their only meeting this year and who were idle during the weekend.

Galt met Toronto St. Michael's college in both games. The Hawks won 4-3 Saturday on centre Bill Wharram's overtime goal then managed a 2-2 tie Sunday after trailing 2-0.

In other weekend junior games, Oshawa beat Guelph 4-2 at Oshawa and Stratford won 6-2 at Waterloo Saturday, and St. Catharines beat Marlboros 5-0 in Toronto Sunday.

In the O H.A. major series, St. Michael's drubbed Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 5-0 Saturday and moved into a first-place tie with Marlboros in the four-team league.

Wharram's winning goal in the Saturday game with St. Mike's was his second of the night. He also got an assist. Pete Conacher and Jack Price got the other Galt goals with Bill Dineen, Fred Sandford and Jack Weldrake scoring for the Irish.

Wharram was held scoreless in the Sunday game when Sandford and Ray Ingoldsby put St. Mike's ahead in the second period. Hawks turned on the pressure in the final when Conacher and Tony Poeta scored.

Marlies Blank

St. Catharines blanked Marlies 5-0 in the first game of the Sunday twin bill. The Teepees had too much power for the Marlies with Frank Toyota scoring twice and Eddie Calhoun, Skip Teal and Ern Bodnar getting the others.

Stratford Kroehlers moved up into third place, a point behind Barrie, after their trouncing of the last-place Waterloo Hurricanes. Larry Lemenchick potted three for Kroehlers, Ray Leckie got two more and Gord Myles for the sixth. Don McIntosh and Alf Brooker scored for Waterloo.

Oshawa Generals and Guelph Biltmores wound up in a fifth-place tie, a point back of fourth-place St. Catharines, after their game in Oshawa. Bob Holden, Bobby Attersley, Alex Delvecchio, Paul Oliver put Oshawa into a 4-0 lead before Chester Koneczny and Chuck Henderson got the two Guelph goals.

In the senior game, St. Mike's goalie Phil Hughes lost his second straight shut-out when Harvey Jacklin batted the puck in with 12 seconds remaining. Tom Fowler, Ken Watson, Matt Mesich, Ed. Mulligan and Dusty Blair scored for St. Mike's.

COBOURG WINS FIRST ONE

Cobourg, Oct. 30 — (CP)—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts took a 3-0 victory over Dundas Bombers Saturday to take a slight lead in their two-game total-point Intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union playoffs. Second game will be in Hamilton next Saturday.

Playing - coach Bob Cooper spelled the difference between the two teams as he kicked all 3 singles, two in the second quarter and another in the third.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Montreal Canadiens' Maurice Richard scored three goals in two weekend games with New York Rangers to move into top spot in the National Hockey League scoring parade.

The rocket scored twice Saturday night and again Sunday night to boost his point total to seven goals—best in the league—and three assists, for 10 points.

Behind Richard are Max Bentley of Toronto and Gordie Howe of Detroit with eight points apiece. Bentley, whose six assists lead the circuit, has also two goals, while Howe boasts of three points and five assists.

The leaders:	G	A	Pts
Richard, Montreal	7	3	10
M. Bentley, Toronto	2	6	8
Howe, Detroit	3	5	8
Kennedy, Toronto	2	5	7
Lindsay, Detroit	3	3	6
Mackay, Montreal	3	3	6
Mosdell, Monteral	2	4	6
S. Smith, Toronto	3	3	6
Stasiuk, Chicago	4	2	6

Weekend Stars

(By The Canadian Press)

Maurice Richard and Floyd Curry, both of Montreal, who scored two goals each Saturday night to lead the Canadiens to 5-1 victory over New York Rangers.

Toronto's Ted Kennedy, who notched two goals Saturday night which proved the margin of victory as Maple Leafs defeated Boston 4-2.

Goalie Chuck Rayner of New York, who though twice injured in a game Sunday night returned to the ice to hold Montreal to a 2-2 tie.

Terry Sawchuk, Detroit's rookie goalie who scored his first shutout of the season as Red Wings blanked Boston Bruins 2-0.

..Chicago's Rookie Vic Stasiuk, who scored one goal and assisted on another in a third period scoring spree that gave Black Hawks a 3-3 tie against Toronto.

Ontario Anglers May Pay Licence To Fish in Prov.

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario fishermen will pay a $1 licence for angling in their own province if a decision of the Ottawa-St. Lawrence zone of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters is taken up.

A weekend meeting of the Association at Cornwall voted 16-9 in favor of charging a resident's licence fee.

The association also recommended that the pickerel season should be closed from Oct. 15 to May 15, with a size limit of 15 inches, and that the limit on perch be placed at 40 with a size limit of eight inches.

The zone delegates also urged that all hunters were red shirts, coats and hats and has asked that the provincial government pass legislation making this mandatory.

The 1950 Canadian junior football championship game will be played Nov. 18 it was announced in Toronto Sunday night. Teams now in the running for the Eastern Canada title are Windsor and Hamilton in Ontario and Montreal. An official of the Canadian Rugby Union junior committee said the all-Canada final will be played in one of those three cities.

Calgary will be the scene of the 1951 North American figure skating championships, officials of the Canadian Figure Skating Association announced Saturday at its annual meeting in Winnipeg. Dates will be announced later. The association also announced that the Canadian championships will take place in Vancouver. H. H. Williams of Calgary was re-elected president of the CFSA. Executive members include J. O. McCarthy, North Bay.

Toronto Stephenson Bruins captured the Ontario Baseball Association juvenile championship at Ottawa Sunday, defeating Ottawa St. Anthony's 4-3.

QUEEN'S SECONDS WIN

Ottawa, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Queen's University of Kingston, Ont., overpowered Ottawa St. Pat's 9-1 Saturday in an Ottawa-St. Lawrence intermediate intercollegiate football game.

Queen's, with only one defeat in four starts, built up an 8-0 lead in the first quarter and added another single in the second.

Jack Wright went over for the only touchdown of the game in the first quarter. Dick Irwin converted.

Brian Timmis punted two singles for Queen's and Hugh Bignoll scored the other. Tom Kelly kicked St. Pat's lone counter.

Movie Column

(By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood. Oct. 30. (AP)—Antonio Moreno, a top romantic star of the silent movies, shook his head sadly as he considered the current crop of screen lovers.

"They just don't have it," sighed the Madrid-born actor, still handsome at 63. He is making a comeback to the industry he first joined in 1912.

"The new stars don't have the romantic appeal," he declared. "The real lovers are the more-mature men. Take Charles Boyer, for example. I can see why woman would be crazy for him. He has a romantic air about him.

"Clark Gable is another. He is simple and plain-spoken. And the success of Ezio Pinza proves that women go for the man who is mature and polished.

"The younger stars are all right for the bobby-sox crowd. But they know nothing about how to make love."

Moreno added that the current glamor girls are equally uninspiring.

"The sexiest woman on the screen today is Gloria Swanson," said the actor, who co-starred with her in "My American Wife" in 1923.

"In the silent days, actresses were picked for their sex appeal —with the exception of Lillian Gish and little Mary Pickford. Most of the women on the screen today do not have it."

No modern lover has achieved the fame of Rudolph Valentino, he added. (Valentino got his first break because Moreno was not available for the lead in "The Four Horsemen.")

And Moreno commented that movie love-making is not what it used to be.

"The talkies killed love on the screen," he observed. "The reason is that love is more effective when it is silent. Valentino, Ramon Novarro and I could make a love scene real by our actions alone.

"But when you introduced talk into a love scene, it is dangerous. The things that you say to your lover might sound silly or offensive to someone else."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

From the last deal I showed you, the strong pair of hands is repeated here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠K Q 5 3	♠A 7
♥A Q J 4	♥6 5 2
♦A	♦8 6 3
♣A 7 5 4	♣K 10 6 3 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 S	2 C
3 H	3 NT
4 NT	5 H
6 C	Pass

Let's discuss in detail each bid. There is a joy in reviewing Horse Sense bids. No opinions are necessary. The rules that apply to one hand apply to every hand. No exceptions.

With better than average in all essential items, south opens the bidding. With equal length suits, first bid the higher rank. So, spades is bid first. The club suit is not biddable.

Five is the least number of tricks promised by an opening bid of one. Nine is the least number of tricks promised by an opening bid of two. These are the rule minimums.

Why open here with a bid of one instead of two? The south hand contains only eight tricks. These are three tricks more than needed for an opening of one; but one trick short of an opening of two.

With less than three tricks, responder should pass. With more than two tricks inclusive of two high cards (aces, kings, queens), responder should bid something. He has an order of choice.

The order of choice is guided by T-A-N; takeout is first, assist is second choice, notrump is last choice. So, north takes out first to his biddable club suit. It is his first choice.

A takeout to a new suit forces partner to bid again. Has it ever occurred to you why? Because he may have an unshown assist or notrump. We will carry on from there. Everything fits in a groove.

OVERCOME BY FUMES

Brantford, Oct. 30. (CP)—Believed overcome by carbon monoxide fumes while sleeping in the cab of a parked truck, Benjamin Bodnar, 22, of Toronto, was found Saturday by a passing truck driver after falling to the side of the road. He was rushed to the hospital where he was revived.

AT THE BELLE
Spectacular Thrills in "Eagle and Hawk"

When bigger and better action pictures are made, they'll all be compared to Paramount's blazing Technicolor drama "The Eagle and the Hawk", which opened Saturday at the Belle to the muted accompaniment of tingling spines.

This John Payne-Rhonda Fleming - Dennis O'Keefe starrer, tauntly directed by Lewis R. Foster, packs more excitement into a single reel than most pictures can lay claim to in their entirety. In addition there's one breathtaking sequence in particular, where Payne is spread-eagled between two wild horses, that is certainly one of the most spectacular scenes ever filmed.

A thrilling account of a desperate mission to Mexico by two American undercover agents ordered to investigate an invasion plot, "The Eagle and the Hawk" is based on a stirring chapter in America's turbulent history.

Payne and O'Keefe are the daring spy team, while Miss Fleming is seen as the beautiful woman caught up in a web of International intrigue.

The three stars, along with the featured players, keep the action lively and interesting troughout. There's not one dull moment of the amazing story of an attempt to invade Texas is unfolded.

But for its exciting plot, "The Eagle and the Hawk", continuing today and Tuesday at the Belle Theatre is essentially a slam-bang action picture that never once slows its breakneck speed. A rare treat, the Paramount production features Thomas Gomez, Fred Clark and Frank Faylen.

AT THE CAPITOL — Gracie Fields, the queen of comedy, in "The Show Goes On," opening tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program George Formby, the king of comedy, in "I See Ice."

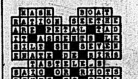
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking to himself, and she said, After all, William, there's no substitute for food when you're hungry.

By gollies that's a thawt, pop said. I wouldn't even be serprised if a really determined eater could learn to injoy a snack even when wasn't hungry, he said, and said, Still, the only way to really be broad minded is to be your own guinny pig and make the test on yourself, so I bawt myself a bottle of Slim Princess Appetite Cutters for a dollar 98. The theory is slip one in your mouth, and by the time it melts you haven't the slightest desire to eat till it's time for another Appetite Cutter, she said.

Do you meen they didn't werk? pop said, and ma said, Well, at ferst I thawt they did. In fact I was on the point of walking triumfantly rite passed the Zipper Tea Room downtow nthis afternoon, and then suddinly I wondered if I was paying out a doller and 98 cents just to play a trick on my own imagination like the Hindoos of India lying on a bed of nails and never losing their comfortable expression. So I decided to go in the Zipper and order one of their famous delicious Napoleon tarts and look it impartially in the face. I knew I couldn't possibly eat a rich thing like that if I wasn't actually hungry, she said.

And you ate it? pop said, and ma said, Every last crumb. So onw I feel better about my dollar 98, because I'll just simply continue taking the tablets, and then if I refrain from eating I'll be able to personly share the credit with the Slim Princess Appetite Cutters, she said.

Yee gods, it's still a woman's werld, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Industrials climbed strongly ahead with gains ranging to a point as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today.

Papers and steels led the list with nearly every issue in the two groups showing good gains. Abitibi gained $1 to feature papers and Algoma added $1.25 for a new high at $29.95 in steels. Utilities, agricultures, constructions, foods, refining oils, banks, manufacturing companies and retail stores showed a majority of gains. Textiles and liquors were mixed.

In the mixed base metal group, International Nickel, Labrador, Noranda and Steep Rock were ahead. MacDonald Mines was the most active issue, gaining seven cents.

Quesabe Mines held the spotlight in the junior gold list, trading heavily for a four-cent gain. Acme gas traded the most actively in an irregular western oil group.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—Trading was steady on the better grades of cattle offered at the Ontario stockyards today. Included in the fresh supply were 1,800 westerns. Receipts: Cattle 7,000; calves, 1,280; hogs, 780; sheep and lambs, 1,520. Left over from last week 1,000 cattle.

Medium to good weighty steers sold for $26-$28; medium light steers and heifers $25-$26; good heifers brought up to $26.50; good cows $20-$21.50; good bulls $21.50-$23; medium to good fed yearlings $26-$31; good stockers $27-$29; stock calves up to $31.

Hog prices were not established.

"We could just hear our friends saying 'THEY'RE GETTING OLD!'

"Perhaps many couples at our time of life have had the same experience. We seemed to lose all our old pep, and joy in life. I often woke up with those sluggish 'liverish' feelings—felt listless, worn-out, bad-tempered all day long. My wife, too, seemed always out of sorts and suffered from poor digestion. When friends began sympathizing behind our backs, we felt we were really 'getting old'. Then we started with Kruschen Salts and soon nature did the rest, to bring the relief we needed! We found just a little dissolved in our breakfast tea and coffee helped start the day right. NOW we actually feel years 'younger'!"

If you often feel dragged-out, "old before your time" . . . if you suffer "liverish" misery from bad digestion and common constipation . . . Kruschen can help you, too, get "regular" again —can help you to the clean "inside" feeling of radiant fitness that makes life worth living. Ask your druggist.

Three Awards Omitted From B.C.I. Lists

Three awards were inadvertently omitted from the Collegiate Commencement exercises list published in Saturday's Ontario Intelligencer. Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, presented the C.O.S.S.A senior basketball trophy to Allan Galbraith, who accepted it on behalf of his team. The trophy is donated by Shockey Mein of Peterborough.

A Biology prize of $15 donated by the staff of the Dominion Parasite Laboratory was won by Miss Elspeth Wishart, for having the highest marks in Upper School Botany and Zoology. The prize was donated by Mr. R. W. Smith of the D.P.L. staff.

The third prize, a tool kit donated by the Snapon Tool Company, went to Bernard Cannon for being best student in Grade 12 Auto Mechanics. It was presented by Mr. A. Wilson of the company staff.

9th Anti Tank Officers Hold Enjoyable Dance

Lieut. Col. G. W. McGregor, Mrs. McGregor and officers of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment, (RCA, ALI) were hosts at an enjoyable dance held in the Bridge Street officers' mess on Saturday night.

Approximately one hundred officers' associate members and guests with their ladies attended the function.

Dancing started at nine o'clock and continued until midnight when buffet refreshments were served in the main lecture room.

Special guests included Lieut. Col. Sisson, AAQMG, of Eastern Area Command Kingston and Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, Vancouver, who was in the city to attend the unveiling of the monument to his grandfather former Prime Minister Sir Mackenzie Bowell.

At seven o'clock Lieut. Col. McGregor presided at a buffet dinner served to out-of-town officers who attended the unveiling and the reception and tea tendered Prime Minister St. Laurent, Madame St. Laurent and party in the afternoon.

Upwards of 400 guests attended the tea, served by members of the Argyll Chapter IODE under the supervision of Mrs. Everett S. Fairman.

Lieut. Col. McGregor and Mrs. McGregor stood with the Prime Minister, Madame St. Laurent and Madame Mathieu Sanson, their daughter on the reception line.

Hallowe'en Party Being Staged By Y's Men's Club

The local Y.M.C.A. will be a big drawing card for the younger residents of the city on Tuesday evening (Hallowe'en) when a big party is being staged by the members of the Y's Men's Club for children of 12 years and younger.

A big night of fun and games in the "Y" gymnasium, candy and nuts galore, and a big parade through the downtown section of the city is included on the night's program and is one guaranteed to send Junior and his little sister home tired but happy.

In the first place the big party is for children of 12 years and under, only. Promptly at 6:15 the parade will shove off from the Y.M.C.A. and headed by a band will proceed east on Campbell Street to Pinnacle, south on Pinnacle to Bridge, along Bridge to Front, north to Victoria and back to the "Y" by way of Victoria and Pinnacle Streets.

After the parade there will be the big program of fun and games in the gymnasium which will last for a full hour. Then at eight o'clock the kiddies will leave the "Y" receiving a big bag of candy and nuts on their way out.

Although there is no restriction against costumes there will be no prizes given for the best dressed Goblin or witch, but who ever saw a Hallowe'en parade without costumes to add to the fun!

So kids, Tuesday night is the night. Be on hand early all ready for the big night's fun.

O.E.C.T.A. Hears Address By Insp. J.C. Doyle

The annual meeting of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association, District 4, was held on Friday, October 27, at 3 p.m., in St. Michael's Academy. At the request of the president, Reverend Sister Mary Andrew, the meeting was opened with prayer by Reverend J. J. Buckley, who also welcomed the teachers and assured them of his personal interest in the profession.

Following the president's remarks an interesting and practical address on vocational guidance was given by Inspector J. C. Doyle, B.A., B.Paed. Mr. Doyle emphasized the function of guidance in the schools and its contribution towards a well-adjusted, happy adult life, the importance of co-operating with trained guidance workers, and especially the responsibility of parents in the guidance of children.

Current Projects

Reverend Sister Mary Lenore reported on the activities and current projects of the Religious Committee, O.E.C.T.A., whose meetings she regularly attends. Miss Edna Bashall gave the group some timely information on the question of Federal Aid to education.

Miss Celia Maloney, L.C.C.M., inspired and entertained the group by her talk, "Journeyings Abroad". Miss Maloney pleaded for a more sympathetic understanding of the handicap of deafness, illustrating her remarks by references to her course last year in Education for the Deaf, in the University of Manchester.

Tours Abroad

As the speaker described her tours abroad, she carried the audience to a Scotland that is warm with Highland hospitality, in England that is yet battle-scarred and brave, an Ireland studded with gems of beauty like the Lakes of Killarney, and finally through continental Europe to the feet of His Holiness, Pope Pius XII, in the special privilege of a private audience at Castel Gandolfo.

At noon the members, who had been present at the morning session of the Belleville Teachers' Institute Convention, were served an enjoyable luncheon at St. Michael's Academy by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Fireside Hour Series Opens At Y.M.C.A.

An overflow audience was in attendance for the first in the series of Broadcast Sunday night Fireside Hours at the Y.M.C.A. A lively sing song of favorite hymns and songs intermingled with a program of musical numbers by the Quintones Quartet, the Y.M.C.A Boys' Choir and Miss Muriel Jobson as guest soloist. Larry Tucker did the solo number in the choir's rendition of "Fairest Lord Jesus". Miss Jobson's solo was "The Holy City".

A. J. Davis, the general secretary in welcoming the large audience stated that in this time of secularism and materialism when young people were in moral confusion, the Y.M.C.A. as a Christian force was trying to give to them practical leadership in terms not couched in dogmas but in everyday practical terms. He stated that the Christian gospel must be brought out of the theoretical clouds of unreality and made relevant to everyday situations which youth can readily recognize. The central Christian truth as exemplified in the life and teachings of Jesus must be made known to youth by every appropriate means. Material recreation alone lacks the vitality youth requires and the spiritual influence of character-developing activity under devoted Christian leadership is the challenge which youth expects.

The program was directed by Walter Bent. Jack Devine was chairman and Miss Grace Leeman was the accompanist. Musical numbers will be presented by students of Albert College at the next Fireside program on Sunday, November 5.

CAMPBELLFORD

Chief G. Hardy Arrives Home With Prisoner

Campbellford, Oct. 30 — Chief Constable Geo. H. Hardy of Campbellford, has arrived back from Montreal, where he went to bring back a prisoner. Gerald Collins, who has been on the wanted list since he left town some weeks ago.

Montreal police apprehended Collins in the Seamen's Club, after they realized his description tallied with that on a circular sent out after the man fled to escape charges of cruelty to animals, and three charges of assault. He is now in Cobourg jail awaiting trial.

Smithfield School Under Construction

Construction of the new four-room public school in the village of Smithfield, west of Trenton, is progressing favorably by the contractors, the Tatham Construction Company of Belleville. Site of the new school is on Drewry Street, north of the post office on property purchased from R. M. Smith.

Method of Play For Boys Novel But Dangerous

Victim of a novel but dangerous method of play, seven-year-old Robt. Golka, Cannifton Road, escaped what might have been serious injury Sunday afternoon when he was hurled to the pavement on Cannifton Road.

The young boys were playing along Cannifton Road, the Golka boy with a rope tied about his neck. Another boy was standing across the street with the end of the rope in his hand and when a car passed the rope was pulled taut with result that Robt. was hurled to the pavement as the rope was struck by the auto. Fortunately the boy escaped with but a slight head injury.

Driver of the car who had no way of anticipating the incident, was Robt. E. Green, Dundas St.

Escapes to Street And Gives Alarm

Peterborough, Oct. 30 (CP)—An attempt to hold up Mrs. Gordon A. Shantz, proprietress of a beverage firm here, failed Saturday night when she escaped to the street and gave the alarm.

Mrs. Shantz was confronted by a masked man in the basement of her home. She screamed and he grabbed her throwing her to the floor. He demanded the day's receipts but she said she had banked the money.

He then demanded the money in her purse and told her to go ahead of him up to the first floor. When they arrived upstairs, Mrs. Shantz ran out the door calling for help.

Four Persons Hurt In Car Collision

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP) — Four persons, two of them from Sudbury, were injured in an auto collision here Sunday.

Vincent Ladouceur, 20-year-old resident of Casselman, near Ottawa, is in hospital in serious condition with head injuries. Police charged Ladouceur with careless driving. They said he went through a red light and collided with a car driven by Wallace Kerns of Toronto.

Anne Rouleau, 21, of Sudbury, a passenger in Ladouceur's car, also was taken to hospital with head injuries. Her condition is good, officials said today. Another passenger, Diana Rouleau, 18, of Sudbury, was treated for scalp cuts.

Kerns escaped uninjured but a passenger in his car suffered face injuries.

BLAMES BEFRIENDED MAN

Windsor, Oct. 30 (CP)—Owen Wright, 68-year-old restaurant owner, told police he had been robbed of $300 Saturday night. He said he suspects a man he had befriended, fed, given work and living accommodation.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

“Does [illegible]eship give you the ri[illegible] Miss Phillips what sh[illegible] or cannot do?” Natalie asked her brother.

“No, except in one particular, a right which I will never exercise—but she doesn't know that. She resents my appointment, is hot about it, has taken a violent dislike to me. I don't get it. I'm no saint, but, by golly, I'm no sinner.”

“Perhaps she has heard the gossip about you and Matilde and considers you a menace.”

“That story went the rounds several years ago. How could she hear it?”

“Gene Sargent and she were at college together, weren't they? If Fran Phillips is being unjust to you because of that story I'll set her right Myles.”

“Let it go, let the situation straighten itself out. No use reviving tragic memories, Nat. Try not to look back on what is finished.”

“Finished?” She rose impetuously. “Finished when Hal and Matilde appeared together this afternoon?”

There was light enough to see the glitter of tears in her eyes, abnormally large and dark in the pallor of her face. He laid his arm across her shoulders.

“Don't tear yourself to pieces over that heel, Nat.”

She brushed her hand impatiently across her eyes.

“I won't, ever again. Did you notice his eyes when he saw Fran Phillips? I thought ‘there he goes again,’ I hope she won't be fooled by him.”

“Don't worry, Nat. I'll take care of that.”

“I don't know why I cried. I stopped loving Hal years ago when he began trampling my heart, I cant love a person I don't respect. I'll try not to look back, but if even the chance comes I will tell Frances Phillips that it was my husband, not my brother, with whom Matilde Sargent was planning to run away, that you answered ‘No comment’ when your friends told you that she declared she had lost her head over you.”

“Her husband knew the truth —fiction to the contrary, you can't fool a man as to the identity of the person who is breaking up his home, not a keen guy like Ben Sargent. Why did she pick on me? Since college days when I played the field with no seri- girls or mine I have been too busy to cultivate a line that would interest the fair sex. I figured that as I was heart-whole and fancy free the gossip would not hurt me, that I could save —”

“Your sister from the being the subject of sensational headlines. I knew at the time that you were protecting Hal because of me but I was so stunned by surprise and grief that I let it go. This is different. I won't allow you to be misjudged any longer.”

“Let it go now, Nat. Fighting a prejudice can be mighty stimulating—under some conditions. If I need your help I will ask for it.”

“Is that a promise?”

“Sure, Lets tune in on another station.” He had said that to Fran. No one watching her today would have suspected that her heart was anxious. Ken was right. She was a soldier.

“Thanks for ‘Country Lane,’ Myles. I love it. That artist is going places.” She laughed. “He looked frightened stiff when Miss Tassie invited him to go home for dinner.”

“Did he accept?”

“After he had glanced at Miss Phillips and caught her eager nod. Apparently he was leaning on her to steer him socially. His ‘With pleasure, Miss Trent’ was tinged with the deference that lady likes. I am glad he went. She can help him. One of his paintings in her charming house will make others want them. Speaking of houses, Myles, this place is yours. Do you want it?”

“Good Lord, no, not now.”

“It would be an ideal summer home for children.”

“That's right, but my children are still playing with the angels. I intend to settle in New York. I have an offer to take over the probate work in an important firm there, which I shall do unless I am needed in the service.”

“In the service? You are not expecting another war?”

“No, but it's a grim world just now, I think that our military forces should be kept up to war strength. Believing that, I'm ready to go if I am called.”

“I hope that horror never will come again. There are fights nearer home. The Good Government Association wants you as its candidate for a seat in the House from this district. Will you try for it? You would make an ideal representative.”

“No, I've threshed it out with the G.G.A. I'm not qualified to be a representative. I have been out of this country for six years except for a few short leaves. I know nothing, really, of what people are thinking, of what they want. It will take me a few years to catch on. After that, I'll try for Congress. Morrison Grove is a good man. Slightly tarred with the isolationist brush, he'll outgrow that, in every other way sound. I have things on my mind I want to accomplish.”

“Matrimony?”

“I don't know. I honestly don't know. Perhaps were I really in love I wouldn't stop, look, listen, until I was sure the girl could take the hard knocks of marriage without thinking herself a martyr and trekking to the divorce court. Someone said recently ‘You don't marry happiness, you make happiness after marriage.’ The guy is right.”

“It isn't always the woman Myles.”

“You've said something, it's fifty-fifty. If a couple goes into marriage knowing that adjustments are bound to be tough, that the going may be plenty rough in spots yet, believing it to be great adventure, that the rewards in companionship, in sunny stretches of road in shared laughter, shared intimacies and interests will overbalance the hazards, such a marriage ought to result in a genuine till-death-do-us-part relationship and that is the only one I will settle for.”

“You've given the subject a lot of thought.”

“I have had plenty of time for thought during these last years. The experience I have been through has given me the long view, perspective, in one word. If I were building a house I would put into the planning all the wisdom and experience I had acquired on the subject. Why do less for the house of marriage?”

“Sound reasoning, Myles. I wonder if it will hold when you fall hard for a girl.”

“Probably not, I have a feeling that sometime I will go haywire when I hear a voice singing:

Nita, Juanita,
Ask thy soul if we should part.

“Myles, I haven't heard you sing in years.” Gene Sargent spoke from the embrasure of the long open window. The light from the room behind set the silver belt of her gray frock glistening. “Your voice would melt a heart of stone. That reminds me, I hope someone will be singing like that when your heart needs melting. I made Blake drive me here, Natalie to see if I couldn't wangle ‘Country Lane’ from your brother, I want it.” She perched on the terrace wall close to Myles. Sinclair declined a cigaret from the case he offered.

“Thanks, no, I smoke a special brand you can't get in this country.”

“Too late for ‘Country Lane,’ Gene. I have presented the painting to my best girl.” Myles crossed to the low table. “How about coffee?”

“No thanks. Who is your best girl?” she demanded jealously.

“That's a closely guarded secret, Hush-hush.”

“Perhaps I can guess, now that Matilde is back.”

“Gene! You are—”

“Matilde?” Myles cut in on his sister's breathless voice. “Not for me. I've taken to heart old Weller's advice to his son—‘Be werry careful o' vidders all your life.” —Now that you know where I stand, let's get back to the preview. Many pictures sold?”

“Four, and who do you think was one of the purchasers? Terrible Tassie. Fran sold them. She was so excited and exhausted from her first day of selling that she wouldn't come back to Rocky Point for dinner. She preferred to stay in her own attractive apartment, she said. But I think she was terribly upset about something else.”

“Fran is scared to death of you, Myles,” Gene Sargent said flatly.

“What do you mean by that?”

“Don't bite my head off, I'm just trying to make it easy for her.”

“Make what easy?”

“If you must know, I didn't promise I wouldnt tell when she poured out her troubles to me, so here goes.”

“For the love of Pete, what troubles?”

“Nothing you can't help, Myles, if you want to. Fran plunged on a diamond ring to the modest tune of one thousand dollars. Her bank balance is down to a new low, she is being dunned by the dealer and she swears she won't ask you for an advance on her income. I'm doing a little spadework for her.”

“Does she know that?”

“Of course not. I'm fond of her and I hate to see her worrying to death.”

“If she is woried she ought not to be alone in that apartment”—Sinclair spoke for the first time since he had refused the cigaret—“and I can't imagine a girl who had been raised under the iron rule of Rebecca Hading plunging into debt. Let's call for her, Gene, and take her to the Country Club for a little dancing and supper, help her forget her troubles.”

“You know she won't go with you—why pester her, Blake? I like the Country Club idea, though, we'll go. Join us, Myles?”

“No.” He glanced at his wrist watch. “Have a date with a man to talk politics.”

“Morrie Grove, I'll bet. Fran gave him a pep talk the night of our dinner, now he is sure he will be nominated. She majored in political science in college, argued that as demoncracy was being challenged every woman should be trained to understand something of politics and the state of the nation.”

“Is she planning a political career, Gene? That's news to me.”

“And from your shocked voice unpleasant news, Blake. Don't be old-fashioned, only part time for the present, she won't let it interfere with marriage, she claims. Good night, Nat. Don't come in. I have no objection to having Myles see me to the car, though. I believe in encouraging good manners in the sterner sex.”

He stood at the pillared entrance to the house watching the red taillight of the roadster blink out. How much truth had there been in Gene's yarn about Fran's dobt for the ring? It hadn't rung true. Was she grinding an ax of her own? Was she trying to borrow money? Fran had refused to go out, he ought to find her at home. She had had no lunch and had declined the invitation to Rocky Point to dinner, she couldn't work as she had worked today on a cup of tea and a sliver of sandwich. Blake was 100 percent right about her staying alone in the apartment over the gallery. Gene's spadework had done its stuff, if not in the way she intended.

WILL BE CAUTIOUS

Ottawa, Oct. 30—(CP)— Canada will be cautious about implementing a ban on amusement construction, a government official said Saturday

The government here will be vigilant to see how far the United States actually goes in enforcing its ban, on amusement construction before similar steps are taken here.

If the U.S. appears to be enforcing to the hilt the ban announced in Washington Thursday, then similar restrictions may be enforced in Canada.

Consumer Credit Regulations

EFFECTIVE NOVEMBER 1, 1950, instalment sales of consumer goods at retail and loans for the purchase of consumer goods at retail will be subject to new Consumer Credit Regulations. This action has been taken under the Consumer Credit (Temporary Provisions) Act as passed by Parliament.

The Regulations apply to every person engaged in the business of selling consumer goods at retail on credit, in the business of making loans, or otherwise engaged in financing the purchase of consumer goods.

The following requirements will be in effect when retail sales are made on the instalment plan on and after November 1, 1950:

	Minimum down payment	Maximum time to pay
Motor vehicles (e.g. passenger automobiles and motorcycles)	33⅓%	18 months
All other consumer goods.....	20%	18 months

In no case shall the down payment be less than $5.00.

INSTALMENT PAYMENTS are to be in regular, approximately equal, amounts of not less than $5.00 monthly or $1.25 weekly. Instalment payments may be varied to meet the circumstances of persons such as farmers and commercial fishermen whose incomes are subject to seasonal fluctuations.

Similar terms apply to loans granted by banks or loan companies for the purpose of purchasing consumer goods at retail.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS ARE INCLUDED WITH REGARD TO REVOLVING CREDIT ACCOUNTS, permanent budget accounts, current budget accounts, and similar plans involving payment for goods by regular instalments.

ORDINARY CHARGE ACCOUNTS ARE NOT DIRECTLY AFFECTED by the present Regulations, but steps will be taken, if necessary, to see that charge accounts are not used to evade the regulations relating to instalment sales.

THE REGULATIONS REQUIRE SELLERS, LENDERS AND FINANCE COMPANIES to maintain records of transactions, to make them available for inspection, and to furnish information on request to authorized representatives of the Government of Canada.

CONSUMER GOODS include all goods with certain exceptions. A full list of the exceptions will be found in the Regulations.

For example, the Regulations DO NOT APPLY to sales of real estate, stocks, bonds, securities, goods for professional or business use, buses, trucks, building materials, implements and equipment used exclusively in farming and fishing.

Penalties are provided for violation of the Regulations.

Douglas Abbott
Minister of Finance

For the convenience of the public, copies of the Consumer Credit (Temporary Provisions) Act and Consumer Credit Regulations will be available at branches of the Chartered Banks throughout Canada.

MALIK LAUNCHES DRIVE AGAINST TERM EXTENSION

Likely Lie's Term Will Be Extended 3 Years

New York, Oct. 31.— (AP)— Russia's deputy foreign minister, Jakob A. Malik, launched a campaign in the U.N. General Assembly today against a three-year extension of the term of secretary-general Trygve Lie.

Malik said the 60-country assembly had no legal right to consider extending Lie's term as asked by the United States.

A Soviet veto in the Security Council has prevented Lie's re-election to a new five-year term. In a series of meetings this month the council failed to agree on another candidate.

The United States insisted on Lie's retaining the $40,000-a-year office, contending that to dump him now would amount to surrender to a Soviet move to punish the secretary-general for his support of the United Nations military action in Korea.

Before the Assembly was a resolution supported by the United States and 13 other countries to extend Lie's term for the three-year period after it expires next Feb. 2.

The veto-free Assembly was expected to extend Lie's term following the debate.

Delegates from 60 countries gather to debate whether to follow the United States—which is determined that Lie shall have an extended term to vindicate his support of the Korean War, or Russia—which opposes Lie for the same reason. Canada is among Lie's supporters.

Tradition decrees that Lie sit on a platform behind the speakers, where he will be able to bear the praise and blame heaped on him and delegates can watch his reactions.

Called Two-faced Tool

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, gave reporters a preview yesterday of the anti-Lie tirade he expects to stage from the Assembly rostrum today.

At a press conference he called Lie a two-faced tool of the United States and said Russia would not deal with him if the outspoken Norwegian has his term extended by the General Assembly.

Vishinsky, however, did not threaten to quit the U.N. if Lie stays in office.

Vishinsky is expected to make his blast in opposing a resolution sponsored by 14 countries to extend Lie's term. This resolution notes that the Security Council could not agree on recommending a new candidate and asks the Assembly to extend Lie's term for three years.

The U.S. was reported to be extremely gratified that India—which has supported Russian moves to find a compromise candidate during Security Council debates—had swung over to the majority view.

The council was tied up for three weeks as the east-west giants tested their strength in the struggle over Lie.

When the present secretary general was nominated for another five years in his $40,000 a year job, he won a 9-1 victory. But that lone negative vote was a Russian veto and the council was deadlocked.

It reported that fact to the veto-free General Assembly, which prepared to vote Lie an extension of his term.

Wallace Havelock Robb, Canadian Poet, Lives Amid Nature in Nearby Sanctuary

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 31—(CP)— On a quiet sanctuary overlooking the St. Lawrence River, the bad boy of Canodian poetry lives unhampered by the worries of the world.

Abbey Dawn, 100 acres of rocky woodland east of here, is a home and way of life for Wallace Havelock Robb, poet, archaeologist, ornithologist and humorist.

Robb has become increasingly well-known in Canadian literary circles since his novel Thunderbird was recently published. The book concerns the history of the Mohawk Indians, of whom Robb is an honorary chief. He has also written numerous poems, chiefly on nature topics.

"They call me the bad boy of Canadian poetry because I won't conform," Robb said in an interview. "Well I'm proud to be a Canadian and my poetry is Canadian."

His poetry "often won't scan properly," he says. "But when it's recited — that's something else again."

"Through my poetry I try to express my feelings about the air, the soil and the water of my country."

His poetry draws much of its inspiration from Abbey Dawn, which the 62-year-old Belleville, Ont., native bought after an earlier sanctuary near Belleville had been invaded by vandals.

Robb the archaeologist has found something else in Abbey Dawn. Granite masks, stones shaped like a ram's head, Indian relics—all have been unearthed and are lodged in a special museum built atop a rock mesa.

Other Abbey Dawn attractions include Gitchi Nagamo, the huge bell Robb rings whenever he feels the day needs brightening up; and a wildflower shrine with the face of artist Robert Holmes carved into a great rock.

The son of W. D. Robb, president of the Grand Trunk Railway, Robb left Canada in 1921 and launched a career of lecturing and writing in the United States. He returned a few years later to Belleville on the advice of the Prince of Wales, whom he met on a trip to his father's railway car.

Aviation Officials Say 1950 Will be Marked as Year Of Jet-Engine Acceptance

Seigniory Club, Que., Oct. 31—(CP)—The Canadian aviation industry will mark 1950 as "the year of the acceptance of jet engines", Howard Cotterell of Montreal today told the Air Industries and Transport Association.

The body of which Mr. Cotterell is president, opened its annual meeting today The association represents the operating departments of some 30 Canadian air lines.

"In the field of military aviation, the design and development efforts of the A. V. Roe company culminated in the CF-100 long-range jet fighter," said Mr. Cotterell. " The prototype was first flown this year and the aircraft now is in production.

"While history will recognize 1950 as the year of the CF-100 and the Canadian F-86 jet fighter, it will not pass lightly over the field of commercial aviation. The year will mark the initial flights of the first jet transport to be designed and built in the western hemisphere—the Avro C-102. It will also mark the first order for commercial jet transports by a Canadian airline."

Mr. Cotterell also described the test flights of the first Canadian-designed and built jet engine—the A. V. Roe Orenda, and added that the DeHavilland Company of Britain has established a jet-engine plant in Canada.

The association president warned that while Canada is embarked on a heavy program of fighter aircraft construction "there are not sufficient heavy transports either in being in Canada or announced as being on order by either Canadian military or civil agencies to support our fighter forces operating from the perimeters of Canada or abroad."

King Opens New Parliament Session, Labor Plan Read

His Majesty Rides in State Through Crowded Streets

London, Oct. 31 (CP) — The King opened a new session of Parliament today with medieval pageantry and the Speech from the Throne pledged the Labor government to strive "by all means in their power" to ensure successful rearmament to avoid war.

The King rode in state through crowded London streets with an escort of red-coated household cavalry, to convene what may be the last session of parliament under Prime Minister Attlee's second Labor government. Attlee may close it with a new general election.

The Speech from the Throne, prepared by Attlee and his colleagues and read by the King, disclosed that legislation will be introduced to:

1. Nationalize the beet sugar part of the industry.
2. To give the government permanent powers to regular production, distribution and consumption of goods and to control prices.
3. Reform the leasehold laws to postpone expiration of 99-year leases on thousands of British homes and buildings.

Toronto to Take Measures to Protect Services

Toronto, Oct. 31—CP—Mayor Hiram McCallum said today "wartime protection" measures will be taken immediately at all key points of the city's essential services.

The announcement followed a statement yesterday by Ontario Hydro chairman Robert H. Saunders that all provincial power plants and sub-stations will be patrolled by security guards.

Mayor McCallum said he plans to call a meeting of the city's Civil Defence Committe to work out a plan to establish security measures for all the city-operated hydro sub-stations, filtration and sewage plants.

"It is imperative that we take every step to prevent sabotage to these plants so essential to the daily life of this area and also to guard against contamination of the water supply."

Suffers Burns On Hydro Pole

Toronto, Oct. 31. (CP) —Sam Dawes, Toronto hydro lineman, was taken to hospital Monday suffering from burns to his face and legs after a high tension wire fell across a metal bar. "There was a boom like a cannon," said Sandra Jones, drug store clerk. "The lights went out and I looked out the window to see a man climbing down a hydro pole wrapped in a ball of fire."

Warmest Oct 30 In Toronto History

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP)—The temperature here yesterday climbed to 73 degrees. Weathermen said it was the city's warmest Oct. 30 on record.

THIRTY KILLED AS GUARDS DRIVE OUT RIOTERS

Conspiracy Helped By Communists Claim

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Oct. 31 (AP) — National Guard forces determined to smash remaining resistance of U.S.-hating Nationalist rebels, drove Insurrectionist forces out of their stronghold at Jayuya today in a combined attack by strafing planes and troops.

The government troops began mopping up pockets in Jayuya, a centre of the Nationalist revolt which erupted yesterday, and sent spearheads toward Utuado, about 10 miles to the west, where a force of about 60 or 70 diehard Nationalists were dug in.

The casualty toll for the uprising—worst in the island's history—rose today. It was difficult to estimate the number of dead and wounded. Latest reports indicated the figure for both sides at about 30 dead and 25 wounded, but it may be higher.

Jayuya, about 50 miles southwest of San Juan, was the scene of some of the bloodiest of the fighting in the rebellion, which the governor of Puerto Rico said was a conspiracy helped by the communists. The Nationalists, who often echo the communist line, want the United States to give full independence to this territory of 2,000,000 population.

Revolts in 10 Centres

The revolt flared in more than 10 centres on the island, including San Juan, where 1,500 troops stood by today for action wherever they might be needed.

The government forces opened their attacks on Jayuya and Utuado early this morning. Eight planes strafed the two towns before they were ordered by the insular police chief to stop. The ground forces were equipped with machine-guns, bazookas and tanks.

Before radio communications were temporarily broken, a message from Utuado said a guard and police detachment was besieged in the police station there.

Dept. Will Stop Requisitioning Cheese Nov. 1st

Canadian Stocks Becoming Rapidly Depleted Is Claimed

Ottawa, Oct. 31—(CP) — The Agriculture Department today announced that it will stop requisitioning cheddar cheese in Ontario and Quebec tomorrow, even though the 1950 Anglo-Canadian cheese contract is not filled.

An official said the department took the action because Canadian cheese stocks were rapidly becoming depleted and there was almost insufficient quantities in Canada to meet domestic needs.

He predicted that Canada would ship only about 55,000,000 or 60,000,000 pounds of cheese to the United Kingdom this year, under contract which calls for a min[illegible]m shipment of 70,000,000 and [illegible] maximum of 84,000,000.

The requisitioning move was made earlier this year in order to obtain sufficient stocks to fill the contract.

Can Sell On Market

The department said that the dairy products boards has exempted from its requisitioning order all cheddar cheese manufactured in Ontario and Quebec—the two main cheese-producing provinces—on and after Nov., 1.

All cheddar produced in these provinces previous to Nov. 1 must be delivered to licensed warehouses for shipment to the U.K.

"Beginning Nov. 1, "said the department, "factories are free to manufacture cheese and dispose of it on the local market."

Normally, Canada consumes about 60,000,000 pounds of cheese. Stocks for domestic consumption are believed to have fallen sharply below the level required to maintain normal supplies.

Now that most of the cheese-producing season is over, supplies which may be produced in Ontario and Quebec after Nov. 1 provide only minor additions to the year's output.

Under the Anglo-Canadian contract, Canada agreed to buy cheese from the producers at 28 cents a pound and sell it to the United Kingdom at 25 cents, with the loss chargeable to the federal price-support program.

Release Man Said To Have Watched Companion Drown

Port Colborne, Oct 31—(CP)— Police today released a 22-year-old man said to have stood on the bank of the Welland Canal Sunday night and watched a companion drown.

They questioned the man, whose name was not revealed, in connection with the death of Joseph Duquette, 40. Police said Duquette and the man had been drinking.

Coroner G. N. Black said Duquette had been despondent over finances. Police learned that the weekly grocery bill for his wife and family often equalled his weekly take-home pay.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) —Synopsis: Under the influence of a stationary area of high pressure over the southeastern states, warm air continues to flow into Ontario Soaring temperatures are expected again today. As the high pressure shows no signs of moving, warm weather is anticipated to [illegible]ntinue in southern regions on [illegible]ednesday.

Cool air which is pushing across the prairies is expected to enter northern regions tonight accompanied by cloudy skies.

Most People Agree With New Book, Hallowe'en is "Degenerate Holiday"

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 31— Folks who awake tomorrow morning to find their garbage can on the porch roof and their porch furniture stacked on somebody's lawn across the street doubtless will agree wholeheartedly with Ralph and Adelin Linton.

"Hallowe'en," the Lintons say, "has now become what the socialogists refer to as a degenerate holiday."

They explain, in a new book "Hallowe'en Through Twenty Centuries," that whereas the holiday once was one of the most solemn festivals of the church, it has degenerated into "a time devoted chiefly to the delight and amusement of children."

Hallowe'en had its origin among pagans prior to the Christian era, Linton, a Yale anthropology professor, and his wife report. They say that the Druids, a Celtic order dating back to 200 B.C., started the holiday to honor Samhain, Lord of the Dead.

The Druids had a custom of burning horses alive as a sacrifice to Samhaim. They burned people alive, too, but that wasn't so unusual in those times.

In 834 Pope Gregory IV set aside Nov. 1 as All Saints' Day to honor the sanctified and to recognize the many martyrs and other faithful who were worthy of sainthood, but had died unrecognized.

However, the Lintons say, the belief persisted that Hallowe'en was a gathering time for unsanctified as well as sanctified spirits.

"The result was the emergence of witchcraft as a more or less organized cult in opposition rites, but it also incorporated many of the ancient beliefs and practices, among them the ancient sacred days. Hallowe'en became the great witch night.".

Trapped Saving Child, Manages To Rescue Her

Toronto, Oct. 31—CP—Wind slammed shut the door of a fire-swept trailer last night, temporarily trapping Frank Linton, 28, as he groped through dense smoke to the aid of a three-year-old child.

He was able to force the door open again and rescued little Nancy Sharon. Linton suffered painful burns about the hads.

KILLED BY CAR

Sudbury, Oct. 31—CP—Jean Paul Pilon, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pilon of suburban N[illegible]on Township, was killed yesterday when struck near his home by a car driven by Albert Pren, of nearby McKim Township.

Pren told police the child suddenly darted onto the roadway.

Lessons of Korea Subject of Talk By George Drew

Perth, Oct. 31 (CP) —George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, Monday night called on Canadians to assume responsibility for helping formulate the foreign policies of the democracies.

In a speech entitled "The Lessons of Korea," prepared for delivery at a district convention of Rotary Clubs; Mr. Drew said the thing which distinguishes a democracy from a dictatorship "is that foreign policy, just as much as any other responsibility, should represent the opinion of a majority of all our individual citizens."

He summarized "the most important lessons which Korea has taught us," in this way:

"1. That everything possible should be done and that our clearly stated purpose should be to preserve peace by leaving no doubt that the combined strength of the free world will be employed and will be adequate to deal with any aggressor.

"2. Adequate armed forces for this requirement must be immediately available in being and ready for action to meet any situation which must be dealt with.

"3. There must be certainty in the minds of the men of the Kremlin that immediate action be taken.

"4. It should be known to ourselves and to the men in the Kremlin whether action will or will not be taken in any particular area.

"5 Approved plans must be ready in advance under which the extent of the participation in any joint operation must be defined.

"6. There must be compact, mobile land forces of immense fire power which can be transported quickly and whenever possible by air."

Higher Food Prices Possibly Highest In U.S. in 1951

Washington, Oct. 31—(AP) — Higher food prices—maybe the highest ever—are in prospect for next year, the United States agriculture department said today.

In a report on the U.S. food situation the department foresaw "reinforced pressure" on prices in the spring and declared:

"Accelerated consumer demand for food, unless checked by anti-inflationary measures or other developments could push food prices by mid-year up to and even above the record level of the summer of 1948."

REMANDED UNTIL NOV. 14

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) Elsie Arnetta Teasdale, 33-year-old bookkeeper, and Michael Manos, 27, a private investigator, charged jointly with theft of $38,000 from a law firm which employed Miss Teasdale, were remanded today to Nov. 14. Miss Teasdale was arrested in Edmonton after being reported missing from her Toronto home.

Hopes to Find Protective Vaccine Against Dreaded Gas Gangrene

By FRANK CAREY

St. Louis, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Hope was offered today by a Montreal doctor for the development of a protective vaccine against gas gangrene, an always-feared complication of war wounds.

Gas gangrene is a wound infection caused by germs that live in soil.

Dr. Victorien Fredette of the University of Montreal told the American Public Health Association that statistics for the Second World War show that no marked progress in combatting it has been achieved since 1918.

But he declared "new hope" for a vaccine is offered by a substance recently found in cultures of "colstridium perfringens" — the principal gem involved in gas gangrene. It appears to set up immunity to the germ's action when it is injected into experimental animals.

In tests with guinea pigs, he related, vaccinated animals all survived "challenge" doses of gas gangrene germs. In contrast, 80 per cent of one group of unvaccinated animals were killed.

Extra Police Officers Will Be on Duty

Tonight is the night for the goblins and witches to howl, but as far as the local police department is concerned all Hallowe'en revelry by city youths and other celebrants will have to be kept on a harmless scale.

"Extra police officers will be on duty for the night and additional police cars will cruise the city," stated Police Chief Walter Probert today as he warned that any persons doing property damage will be severely dealt with by the law.

"The police department does not want to throw a wet blanket on any innocent fun by Hallowe'en celebrants but when fun means property damage then action will be taken and those damaging property will be dealt with in magistrate's court."

Parents were asked by Chief Probert to check on their children and warn them against doing any property damage.

Pile of Leaves Left Burning Firemen Called

Burning of leaves is an excellent manner of getting rid of the autumn foliage but when the burning extends on into the night it is a different matter and frowned on by the local fire department.

City Fire Chief Gerald Vance points out that it is against the city by-law to leave a rubbish or any other kind of a fire burning after sundown. Residents who disregard the by-law may be summoned into court.

Last night shortly before midnight firemen were called to extinguish a pile of leaves which was burning in the West Hill district. The pile of leaves had apparently been left smouldering with result that later in the evening a slight breeze kindled the embers and again set the pile of leaves burning.

Firemen extinguished the blaze but the fire chief warned against leaving piles of leaves burning after sundown.

Trap Partridge With Pail

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) — John Rogers, who operates a hunting and fishing resort at Belmont, Ont., got a partridge dinner the hard way, outdoors editor Pete McGillen of the Telegram says today.

Rogers fired at and missed a partridge 50 feet from his cottage door. Later, he was about to shoot a second bird when a covey of 10 rose into the air. His distracted shots missed all of them.

Still later the same day, another bird was flushed at the well. Before Rogers could reach his shotgun, the bird flew into the tennis net. Rogers trapped it with a pail.

Boy Climbs Down 20-Foot Well, Rescues Child

Waterdown, Ont., Oct. 31—(CP) Little Joan Simpson toppled 20 feet into a well while trying to draw a bucket of water.

Richard Jackson, 12, heard her scream. He climbed down the stones of the well shaft.

His foothold was precarious, but he managed to catch the child as she struggled in the water. He held her until his father came to help.

It all happened Sunday. Richard was back at school today, outwardly unconcerned about the whole affair.

Mild Weather Advances Fall Farm Work

Toronto, Oct. 31—CP—Farm work in Ontario is well advanced because of favorable mild weather prvailing through most of the province, the Agriculture department said today in its weekly crop report.

Turnips are being harvested in western, central and eastern Ontario. Lincoln county reports several thousand tons of grapes remain to be marketed.

Northern Ontario farmers are continuing fall ploughing and the fall pasture is in excellent condition. Timiskaming district has not yet completed threshing.

Colorful Insight Into Rackets By Which Public is Mulcted Given Rotary Club Members

"Man is the only animal which has been 'skinned' more than once." A. R. Haskell, manager of the Better Business Bureau Toronto, told the Rotary Club yesterday.

Mr. Haskell gave a colorful insight into the rackets by which the public has been and is being mulcted out of thousands of dollars every year.

He explained in detail how some of these rackets are worked and of the effective solutions for elimination practised by the Better Business Bureau.

"Publicity," he said, "was the best weapon to combat all business and other rackets preying on the public's purse" His bureau he added used the press, radio, street-car posters, pay envelope inserts and many other methods of exposing the racketeers and their nefarious work.

Ninety per cent of the rackets today is the sale of shady merchandise by racketeers living on the fringe of the trade.

"These racketeers," he said. "follow the line of least resistance and capitalize on sales campaigns and take advantage of human nature's weakness to get something for nothing"

Denounced Pyramid Clubs

"The best way to get rid of the rackets is to expose them," Mr. Haskell said. One of the biggest rackets to be exposed was that of the Pyramid Clubs.

"In order for everyone to cash in on this racket," he smiled, a small village would need a population of eight billion people."

After one month's exposure to the glare of publicity, the Pyramid racketeers closed "shop" in Toronto.

Another racket was the Funnel Club. The BBB, closed another clip program in which a salesman purchased fountain pens for $4 a dozen and retailed them, house to house at $2 each.

He related the story of a racketeer who advertised an antiferment solution for the body. A note to the Department of Health an analysis and another racket case was closed.

He told the story of another racket in which a doctor, with a reputation of being a good dresser, received three neckties through the mail, with the request to forward $2.00. "The doctor," he said "enclosed pills to the value of $2 and returned them to the sender.

Get the Facts

"Before you give—get the facts," he urged. "Because people are too lazy to enquire many so-called charity rackets are flourishing." He illustrated the point with the story of an "Elderly Ladies Guild," which sold candy at 50 cents the box. The source was traced after a lengthy period by securing the license number of a delivery car.

After the expose of this racket it was discovered that the person who made the candy received 17 cents; the telephone operator 12 1-2 cents; the deliveryman, five cents, and the promoter 16 1-2 cents from every 50 cent sale.

Mr. Haskell warned against the purchase of so-called veterans' calendars. These are bought for four or five cents and sell for 25 or as much as the public will go for "Not one cent from the sale of these calendars goes to a war veterans' organization, hospital or other worthy veterans' cause, but to the pocket of the salesman."

Other phony salesmen claim they sell articles made by the blind. The publication field has become fertile for the operation of these racketeers. Of 17 police publications offered for sale last year, only four were bona-fide. The same with labor, civil service and in some cases fake political publications.

Old Racket

The oldest racket of modern times is the picture framing gyp. The speaker told the story of the elderly widow approached by one of these racketeers who asked if she wanted an enlargement of her deceased husband's photograph.

The widow demurred, but finally consented with the proviso that the enlargement be made with the straw hat her late husband was wearing be removed.

The rackateer consented after "accepting" two dollars down payment, but hesitated and asked "By the way, which side did the late Mr. So-and-So part his hair?"

The widow smiled. "Oh," she said, "you'll find that out when you take his hat off."

The Better Business Bureau, Mr. Haskell said is a non-profit organization that does not charge a cent for its services, nor gets governmental or other grants.

From the expose of rackets and shady business methods, the BBB had saved the public some $271,000 last year, he claimed.

"By reporting to the BBB what you think is a racket, you will be doing your share towards diverting thousands of dollars from illegitimate to legitimate channels," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Freeman Burrows with Rotarian Mac Haig expressing club appreciation. President Ken Griffiths was in the chair.

Take 10 Chinese Red Soldiers In N. Korea, Presence of Units Of Chinese Not Established

By RELMAN MORIN

Tokyo, Oct. 31—(AP) — Gen. MacArthur's intelligence spokesman today confirmed the capture of 10 Chinese communist soldiers in North Korea. But he said the presence of organized Chinese units has not been established definitely.

The spokesman said:

"There has not been a sufficient evaluation of reports from command sources in Korea to confirm that Chinese communist forces in Chinese communist organizations and under the direction of either North Korean or Chinese communist general headquarters have taken part in this conflict."

Chinese soldiers were taken prisoner at Taechon, Unsan, Onjong and Taepyong, the spokeman said.

Several facts pointed strongly to the possibility that the Chinese reds have entered the Korean war and in force. They were:

1. The four areas where prisoners were captured are fairly widely separated.

2. Resistance has stiffened tremendously since Friday. The entire complexion of the fighting changed from a virtual parade to a set of battle resembling Seoul and Kumchon.

3. The sudden flurry of counterattacks indicates that, the north Koreans are again being directed from a general headquarters, that they have communications and that there is a definite plan of defence.

4. Intelligence did confirm that they have received reinforcements from somewhere. These might be "ghost units"—uncommitted reserves—of the North Korean army, the existence of which was suspected before but could not be confirmed, the spokesman said.

5. The North Koreans definitely have been resupplied with armament. It may have come from China although none of it is different in type from the tanks and weapons already encountered in Korea. The spokesman said, "the continued appearance of tanks in these dwindling forces indicates the enemy is still receiving these supplies from across the Manchurian border."

The reinforcements that have come into the fighting are well trained, the intelligence spokesman said.

The total number of known North Korean units still fighting was placed at 20,000. The spokesman said he could not disclose the estimate of the total strength of the "ghost units."

MARMORA

500-Seat Theatre Will Be Built

Marmora — The Bruce McLeod interests, of Kitchener, will operate a 500 seat theatre in Marmora to be built by Don Ross on the Delmar site. The drawings are now being prepared by Mr. McLeod and will approximate his Fox theatre at Kitchener.

Plans for a business block previously announced by Don Ross will not proceed at the present time.

ADMITS STARTING FIRE

London, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP)—A 15-year-old London boy admitted in juvenile court Monday that he started the fire which caused $20,000 damage in Talbot Street Baptist Church Oct. 2. Judge Donald Menzies directed that the boy remain in his parent's custody until Nov. 27 when final disposition of the arson charge will be made.

This aristocratic White Orpington cockerel was crowned champion bird out of more than 4,000 in the C.N.E. mammoth poultry show. Owner is Roy J. Messervey, 87 Gordon Street, in this city.

Wm. M. Hurst, Tweed, Appointed County Registrar

Announcement was made recently of the appointment of William N. 'Bill' Hurst of Tweed, to the position of Registrar for the County of Hastings. He will succeed Mr. R. J. S. Dewar who is retiring. Mr. Hurst will assume his new duties at the Registry Office in Belleville at an early date.

He will continue to reside in Tweed, at least temporarily and he does not plan immediate sale of his insurance business here. Announcement of Mr. Hurst's appointment, was made by Roscoe Robson, M.P.P. for East Hastings, and it has been confirmed by the Riding Progressive-Conservative Association.

News of Mr. Hurst's decision to accept the position offered him, was received with regret by his friends and the business men of Tweed. Since going to Tweed from Belleville, in February 1946, he has been a most active citizen and gave his time to all community undertakings. He has built up a most successful general insurance business and in addition, has been Clerk of the local Division Court.

President of C. of C.

For the past two years, he has been President of Tweed Chamber of Commerce and in that capacity, has devoted considerable time in an effort to attract new industries and also promote the tourist business. He has been the capable Treasurer of The Parks Board for the past three years and for four years, has been Warden of St. James' Anglican Church.

Mrs. Hurst has been organist and choir leader at St. James and has also made many friends in this village. Two of their four children, attend Tweed Consolidated School.

Mr. Hurst's services were always at the disposal of any project, which needed the support and assistance of business men and citizens. A veteran of the Second World War, he held the rank of Captain in the Canadian Armoured Corps, when he was discharged. After leaving high School in Belleville, he was on the staff of The Royal Bank for three years following which, he joined Mutual Lie of Canada and served that company for fifteen years in Belleville before coming to Tweed. He is a former President of The Bay of Quinte Tennis League and also the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

Mr. Hurst enlisted in 1940, after serving in the militia and went overseas in 1941. He served in England until 1943, when he was seriously injured while serving with an Air Defence Unit. Invalided home, he was Staff Officer of M.D. No. 3 at Kingston until his discharge. His wife is the former Louise Wallbridge of Belleville.

It is expected that Mr. Hurst will assume his new post as Registrar, some time during the month of November.

FEWER DIVORCES

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)— Ontario divorce showed a sharp decline in October. Sixteen divorces were granted here Monday, bringing the provincial total for the month to 184, of which 70 were from Toronto. In September there were 347 divorces granted, 170 from Toronto.

Father Lord Speaks on "Fun In the Family"

St. Michael's Auditorium was filled to capacity last evening for the lecture of the well-known Jesuit, Father D. A. Lord. The address was sponsored by District 4 of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association. Mr. A. B. Craigen, Tweed, acted as chairman and Very Reverend L. B. Garvin introduced the speaker.

Father Lord's subject was "Fun in the Family." His keen wit, kindly humor and unusually penetrating understanding of teenagers, whom he spoke of as a national group with their own national language, customs, and dress, kept the audience in rapt attention and frequent bursts of laughter for well over an hour.

Living Rooms for Children

Father Lord pleaded for homes with living rooms that could be used, with provision for "kid food," with parents taking their children with them to the theatre, teaching them to dance at home, and making home attractive. This, the speaker assured his audience, would be the sovereign cure for delinquency.

Entertainment was provided also by the talented Grant Family, Miss Helen Grant playing a xylophone solo, followed by a selection on the xylophone and bells by Miss Grant and her father, Mr. William Grant. Mrs. Grant accompanied at the piano.

Hallowe'en Its Past And Its Present Form

Do you know why your youngster is wearing a mask and shouting "shell out" tonight? Well, it's because, many years ago, people found it impossible to set aside a separate day for every saint, and named November 1 as All Saints' Day.

The New General Encyclopedia says "Years ago, pagan people celebrated All Saints' Day in honor of the good and evil spirits". The tome continues that although the occasion is usually given over to frolic mischief and entertainment, the literal meaning of the name is "Holy Eve".

Northern Beliefs

In the north of England, another source says, the night of ghosts and goblins is known as Nutcrack Night. In Scotland, the land of Bobbie Burns, the ceremonies of Hallowe'en were always regarded in a highly superstitious light. This source continues that there is a popular belief that children born on Hallowe'en will have the faculty of perceiving and holding conversations with supernatural beings.

The Encyclopedia Americana says that All Saints' Day was a festival instituted by Pope Boniface IV early in the seventh century, and was first made a feast of obligation by Gregory IV in 835. "It is designed," the Americana says, "to honor all departed saints and was formerly called Allhallows.

All this is a far cry from the goings-on of tonight, when the grotesque masks and costumes, fun and freaks will take the spotlight. It's also fairly remote from garden gates hung on telephone poles, flat tires on automobiles, piles of candy and taffy apples and hoot owls.

So, if you're swamped tonight by disguised callers, of your clotheslines take a beating, don't be mad. These kids are preserving something that started in 835, and that's a long time ago.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) —Industrials sagged as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Profit taking losses that ranged to a point appeared over a broad front in continuation of yesterday's final hour selling wave.

Papers led the decline following news that Abitibi had reduced its $10 newsprint increase to $8. Steels, refining oils, liquors, banks, textiles, and retail stores showed a majority of losses. Utilities, agricultures, constructions, and foods tended to be mixed and manufacturing companies managed to show more gains than losses.

Western oils lost heavily. A wide list of leaders declined up to 20 cents.

Base metals were mixed with half of the key issues losing up to 75 cents and the other half gaining up to 50 cents. Senior and junior golds drifted lower. Bralorne, Hollinger and Lake Shore declined in the senior group. A wide list of junior producers lost pennies. Lake Fortune and Quesabe traded the most actively to remain almost unchanged.

Red China's Note Said To Regret Tibet Invasion

New Delhi, Oct. 31 (AP) — An Indian government spokesman said today that communist China has replied to India's note expressing surprise and regret at the invasion of Tibet by Chinese communists.

A Chinese note, the spokesman said, had been handed India's ambassador to Peiping, K. M. Panikkar, and was expected here today or tomorrow.

India's policy on the invasion then would be formulated on the basis of the reply, the spokesman added.

At Kalimpong, India, reliable sources said delay in reaching Chinese - Tibetan agreement on future relations between the two countries arose over a Chinese proposal to station a "token force" in Tibet.

The proposal was said to have been made to the Tibetan delegation which arrived here yesterday after talks with the Chinese ambassador in New Delhi.

The delegation was believed to have accepted during the talks a proposal for "nominal suzerainty" of the Peiping government over Tibet, but could not commit the Tibetan government to a proposal to station a Chinese force in the Tibetan capital.

Nor could the delegation agree to another Chinese suggestion for the reorganization of Tibetan forces by Chinese advisers, the informants here said.

Mrs. Jack Balyx Wins Retail Merchants Contest

Mrs. Jack Balyx, 17 Everett Street, is the winner of the "What's Wrong with this Window" Contest staged by the Retail Merchants Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

The announcement was made today after a committee of three toiled late last night judging the several hundreds of entries.

The contest was so close that the eventual winner was decided by the correct description of one article. Mrs. Balyx who received the prize of $25.00 cash today had the name of every unrelated article appearing in the store windows letter-perfect.

The tremendous public interest created by the contest will likely lead to the promotional scheme becoming an annual event.

Following is the list of the stores and the correct names of the unrelated articles of merchandise:-

Albert's Style Shop: Pair of men's fine stitched finger gloves; Agnew Surpass Shoe Store: Plow share or gold bow of women's shoe on small child's shoe; Angus McFee: Small box baking Soda; J. S. RANGERS PROTEST GAME

New York, Oct. 31 — (CP) — New York Rangers today filed a protest with the National Hockey League on a goal awarded to Montreal Canadiens in their 2-2 tie game with the Rangers Sunday night.

The protest claims that Referee George Gravel erred in awarding a goal to the Canadiens' Calum MacKay in the ninth minute of the third period while Rangers were leading 2-1.

JOINS MOLSON'S

WILLIAM OSBORNE

George H. Craig, Vice-President of Molson's (Ontario) Limited, a subsidiary of Molson's Brewery Limited, has recently announced the appointment of Mr. William Osborne as their sales representative in their Oshawa, Peterborough, Belleville sales area.

Mr. Osborne, who is well known in business and social circles in Peterborough, came to Molson's from Trinidad Leaseholds (Canada) Limited.

He succeeds Mr. J.A.C. Rogers who resigned to take up other employment.

Allies Fighting Against Time, Red Resistance

Seoul, Oct. 31 (AP) — Allied forces fought today against time and mounting communist resistance. A powerful United Nations army of 100,000 men stretched across the spiny North Korean peninsula in forward areas, driving to end the war before winter's harsh blasts freeze the campaign into another year.

A United States armored column scored the only impressive gain in a day marked by bitter fighting on the arching, 250-mile northern peninsula front below the communist Manchurian border.

Chinese communists were helping the North Koreans; how many no high allied official would say. A captured red Korean officer said two Chinese divisions were attacking in north east Korea.

In Tokyo, an intelligence officer at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters confirmed the capture of 10 Chinese reds in North Korea but said the presence of organized Chinese units had not been established definitely.

He said headquarters is awaiting a positive statement from high allied field commanders. The officer acknowledged that the Korean reds are getting help from somewhere, but added that it might be from North Korean "ghost" units held in reserve during the fall of Pyongyang, the red capital.

"The continued appearance of tanks in these dwindling forces indicates the enemy still is getting these supplies from across the Manchurian border," he said.

Undecided Bloc May Turn, Tide In Elections

New York, Oct. 31 (CP) — Final week political manoeuvres indicated today that voters who haven't yet made up their minds may have much to say about the make-up of the next Congress.

The undecided bloc also may turn the tide one way or the other in some close governorship races in next Tuesday's "off-year" election.

With the voting only a week away, democrats looked to President Truman for assists in their efforts to mark up gains in the election for 36 Senators, 32 governors, the 435 seats in the House of Representatives and scores of minor offices.

Truman will make a political speech in St. Louis Saturday night—the first direct entry he will make into this campaign. He also was reported ready to provide some last-minute campaign material for Democrats in a call for Congress to get back to work sooner after the election than the Nov. 27 date on which it agreed previously.

The Republicans, meanwhile, pounded away on the theme that the Democrats have a muddle of things.

Some Tight Races

Republicans said there are some tight races in which the outcome is likely to be decided by voters who make up their minds this week.

They listed Senate races in California, Pennsylvania, Indiana Colorado, Utah and Wisconsin in this category. Governorship races in New York and Michigan were termed "nip and tuck."

In New York, Frank Gannett, newspaper publisher who once sought the Republican presidential nomination, said he can't support Governor Thomas E. Dewey for re-election because "I have concluded that for the good of the Republican party he should retire or be retired."

Gannett, whose 18 New York newspapers have more than 500,000 daily circulation outside New York City, said however he would not support Dewey's Democratic opponent, Representative Walter A. Lynch.

Dewey's only comment: "Everyone is entitled to his own opinion—it's a free world."

Strategists of both parties are anxious for a big vote. Some 40,000,000 of the registered 42,000,000 voters are expected to cast ballots.

Democrats and Republicans each reported that their campaign spending has mounted past the $1,000,000 mark.

FORESEES SALARY BOOST

Regina, Oct. 31 — (CP)—Dominion civil servants will probably get salary increases next January, Fred Knowles, national secretary of the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada, said at a weekend meeting here of federal employees. Mr. Knowles said he did not know how much the wage boost will be.

Two Cannot Draw Money From Bank Until November 6

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) — In a ruling considered rare in legal circles, a court yesterday ruled Steve Burtyn and Leonard Bernhart, both of Hamilton, may not issue cheques or otherwise draw money from their Hamilton bank accounts until Nov. 6. Each is accused of two bank robberies.

Mr. Justice P. E. F. Smiley granted the Canadian Bank of Commerce an injunction impounding the men's account. The bank has brought suit against the two for $39,000, said stolen from the bank.

The bank said Burtyn has an account totalling $5,781 in the Royal Bank of Canada, Hamilton; Bernhart $900 in the Market branch of the Bank of Montreal, Hamilton.

Police officials were quoted as saying four persons — including the two accused — broke into the branch at Binbrook, Ont., and stole $14,000 in cash and $6,100 in bonds on Sept. 5. The Keswick branch was broken into Sept. 13 and $23,000 in cash and bonds stolen.

Floods Leave Untold Damage, Five Lose Lives

Portland, Ore., Oct. 31—(AP)—Muddy river flood crests swept into broad valleys of western Oregon today after claiming five lives and leaving untold damage in mountain areas.

Headwater streams that had driven 2,000 people from homes during the weekend were receding almost as fast as they had swirled out of their banks. Some communities were still isolated behind flooded roads and broken or unsafe bridges. Many families in rural southern Oregon were marooned a third day.

The evacuation of a Coquille valley farm family led yesterday to the drowning of Leo A. Landive, 35, and his son Dan, 9. Landive's wife, another son and neighbors struggled ashore when a rowboat capsized in the churning river.

Two of the other victims perished in the same Oregon coastal range river earlier.

R. H. Baldock, chief highway engineer, said damage to roads and bridges of southern Oregon's Rogue, Umpqua and Coquille valleys may be the worst in history. Roads were undermined by the flash flooding after storms had rolled in off the Pacific day and night for almost a week.

Stories of heroism and the terror of racing surging water came out of towns which caught the brunt of the flooding.

At Myrtle Creek, still partially isolated, C. L. Lindquist told of realizing his plight when he saw a neighbor's chicken float by his house along the Umpqua River.

"We ran out the door and just barely had time to get our car out onto the highway. We stopped by the bridge over the South Umpqua just in time to see our cows going by." Lindquist related.

Says Husband Plotted to Seize Two Children

London, Oct. 31 (CP) — A husband now living in Toronto bombarded his wife with a false display of affection while secretly plotting to seize the two children of the marriage, it was stated yesterday.

Mr. Justice G.S. Pilcher said in divorce court that Richard Hopkins, a "domineering" former Fleet Air Arm officer, after treated his wife Barbara with physical violence. When Mrs. Hopkins started divorce proceedings, the judge said, Hopkins came to Britain from Canada and "bombarded her with affection and remorse."

Last April the couple flew to Canada, Mr. Justice Pilcher said, and it was later arranged Mrs. Hopkins should return to Britain in September to collect the children. When she did she found her husband's mother had already taken them to Canada.

Mr. Justice Pilcher said the application for divorce was refused "with the greatest reluctance" because the husband was not within the court's jurisdiction.

Seance Fails To Produce Houdini or Ghost

New York, Oct. 31 — (AP) — The ghost didn't walk last night either.

It was the 24th anniversary of the Hallowe'en death of Harry Houdini — the master magician who promised to speak from the grave if he could.

Once again his friends, led by Joseph Dunninger, magician and mentalist gathered for their annual seance to wait for some word from the beyond.

This time they had a professional medium, Frank Decker, to help find the key to a secret code Houdini left with Dunninger before he died.

The seance — as always—failed to produce either Houdini or his ghost.

The friends will try again next year.

KING GUSTAF DIES

King Gustaf V of Sweden, the oldest ruler in Europe, has passed at the age of 92 years. He had the further distinction of having been on the throne for one of the longest periods in history. The new King Gustaf VI has been proclaimed "King of the Swedes, the Goths and the Wends" in succession to his late father. The new ruler has the motto, "Duty above all."

Gustaf V was a popular ruler for his kindly spirit and simple tastes. As a ruler he saw Sweden at peace during two World Wars.

He governed a people whom it was not difficult to rule. To him the people looked for leadership in their ways of life and the example he set them suited his people.

One of the happy facts in his long life was his good health. He was a world-famous figure in sport and until a few years ago played the strenuous game of tennis.

Sweden's rulers are members of the Bernadotte dynasty whose founder was Marshal Bernadotte, one of the marshals of the Emperor Napoleon Bonaparte.

Gustaf lived in an era of history which has ended, the era marked by the reigns of Queen Victoria and the Emperor Franz Josef of Austria and the times of Bismark.

VICE-REGAL TERM EXTENDED

Viscount Alexander and Lady Alexander are to remain a year longer in Canada than was first planned. Announcement made the other day will meet with satisfaction at the hands of the Canadian people that have the highest regard for Their Excellencies who enjoy a wide popularity.

The Governor-General has travelled widely in the Dominion and has come to know Canada intimately. Wherever Their Excellencies have gone they have been warmly received.

The vice-regal office they hold has brought them into close association with the people in all parts of Canada so that it is with great pleasure that the Canadian public learned that their stay was to be lengthened until a year from next spring.

DRIVE OF ENTHUSIASM

Ontario's Premier, the Hon. Leslie Frost, recently stressed the value of enthusiasm to the young. It becomes a driving force which may well lead to the most important achievements.

The Hamilton Herald stresses the importance of this quality saying, Inventors frankly confess that success is due more to the zeal and persistency of the researcher than to any other factor. Enthusiasm is born of faith. It is of interest to trace the origin of the word, which in the ancient Greek from which it is derived meant "God-inspired devotion." What are discoveries but relevations? "There is nothing new under the sun." The primary sources of power with which the modern world is able to perform such marvels of ingenuity have been available at all times, awaiting the advent of some individual of exceptional insight to become the chosen instrument for revealing them and putting them to the service of mankind. Such people are the enthusiasts. They refuse to be beaten, pressing on over all obstacles because of their relish in the pursuit of their object.

It is said of Edison that when he was carrying out his great experiments he ignored the clock, neglecting sleep in the excitement of his work, and even meals. Few would be prepared to follow that Spartan example: and it is not suggested that any one should go to such lengths as this, for no such demands are made upon the average individual. But what is essential to good performance in almost every instance is some measure of the spirit found in such master minds. If we have enthusiasm, we can be assured of satisfaction in whatever we may undertake. Without it, nothing remarkable can be expected.

It is, of course, possible to have enthusiasm for wrong things. There is no more dangerous fanatic than the person who fights might and main for a foolish or unworthy cause. Enthusiasm is especially desirable in the young person undergoing the discipline of education. He or she must be genuinely interested in the subject under study to do well in it; indifference is fatal to progress. Work which is done "con amore," that is to say, "with love," with one's heart in it, ceases to be a task — it is a pleasure. But without some degree of enthusiasm, it is more or less a waste of time.

Knowledge always desires increase; it is like fire, which must first be kindled by some external agent, but which will afterwards propagate itself. — Johnson.

A conscience, void of offence, before God and man, is an inheritance for eternity. — Daniel Webster.

JUST FOLKS

HALLOWE'EN

Of my courage and daring I'm not one who boasts.
I admit without quibbling I'm frightened by ghosts.
I'm a nervous old fellow. A tap at the pane
And at peace in my arm chair
I cannot remain.
My pulse starts to beat at too
rapid a pace.
I am sure there are pirates attacking the place.

I'm a grandfather now and my temples are grayed,
But of imps and of goblins I still am afraid.
I'm no Jack the Killer of giants

I'd not climb a bean stalk for fear I should fall.
I'm frightened by demons and ogres I dread.
Should I see one I'd promptly hide under the bed.

An ill-at-ease grandpa all day
I have been
Since the women have told me tonight's Hallowe'en.
There'll be taps at the pane and loud raps at the door
And the wailing of ghosts
will assail me once more.
From pirates and goblins
in terror I'll flee,
Till the laughter of children
again heartens me.

The big pelican which was shot by Messrs. W. P. Clarke and P. C. Jones when hunting ducks down the bay some time ago, has been mounted and now is on exhibition in the show window of Mr. W. Flint Jones' drygoods store.

Col. Ponton's term as commanding officer of the 15th Battalion, A.L.I., has been extended for another term.

Every soldier from Ontario who served in the South African War will receive a grant of 160 acres of land in Northern Ontario. The land will be free of all taxes except school rates for ten years.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When I taught history in school, the method was to take it in bites. We studied elementary Canadian history, then British. In high school, we came to ancient history, and next a history of Europe in the middle ages; and later modern. History was regarded as too large and perhaps too specialized a subject to teach in what might be called a parallel or simultaneous system. I arrived at manhood with no sense of the world as one subject. The world was made up of bits and pieces.

For example it was usually necessary for me to consult two or three books to refresh my mind as to what was going on in the United States at the time of Frederick the Great of Prussia. Or, when reading the life of Dr. Samuel Johnson by Mr. Boswell, it is necessary to keep hopscotching around the book shelves to relate this wise and witty old boy to events in Canada, Finland, China.

We realize now that the world is one organism, its parts all inter-related like the organs and limbs of any other living body. We realize it dimly, of course. The realization is growing on us. But the reason we are so slow about it may well be that history has always concerned itself with half a dozen or a dozen time-tables instead of one, Even in Pharaoh's time, in Caesar's or Charlemagne's, we were all here —or our ancestors were—and we were all going the same way to the same place: which is now.

But history taught us that we were all going separate ways.

Pride has got a lot to do with the separating effect of history as it is written and taught. Pride is one of easiest of sentiments to arouse in stupid people. Maybe our educator concluded that we were all stupid, and employed pride of race and nation to make us pay attention.

In all humanity, for instance, I would like to be reminded of what I—or my ancestors, which is the same thing — was doing while a horde of Chinamen were building their wonderful Great Wall in the third century B.C.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE HOUR OF NEED

Most war news is unpleasant news, even when our own side is winning, because it is news of death and destruction. Victories are not won without loss of life. And in modern warfare, the destruction of civilians and homes is always appalling.

Yet despite the tragedy of war, it is possible to draw strength from some of the news items about the struggle in Korea. Nearly every day we read stories of heroic acts of courage or endurance or skill by individual soldiers or fliers.

One day it is an infantryman who crawls through enemy fire to rescue a wounded comrade. Or a tank driver finds the way to clear an obstructed road and save his blocked column from destruction.

Such actions illustrate an old truth which should encourage us when we despair God does not require of us more than He gives us strength to do. Think of your own past life. Have there not been ordeals which you feared and dreaded, but which, when the time came, you passed through successfully? Christian faith includes the knowledge that God makes us able to do what we must do,

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

DREAM TOWN

We have covered a lot of ground in the past six days, up with the foolish birds each morning, on the road all day, and now, some 1500 miles south of New York, we've come to rest in New Orleans, where nobody gets up before noon.

From Washington, D.C., the route lay down through the pines of Virginia, across the tobacco and cotton growing Carolinas, into Georgia, on to Tallahassee, the capital of Florida, then around the spectacular rim of the Gulf of Mexico through Alabama and Mississippi and finally to this lovely old city of magnolias and jazz. More about New Orleans later on.

Washington is a fine place for the trailer tourist. There's a government camp for caravans right beside the Potomac River, where the Japanese Kwanzan cherry trees would be abloom if it were Spring. Trailers from all states of the union, including Japan (not yet officially in the union), were drawn up like covered wagons in this compound while their owners worshipped at the shrine of the American way.

It is a very handsome city. Seeing Washington for the first time you marvel that any congressman or senator could come to this place and have anything but the noblest ideals.

An old gentleman from Cleveland, Ohio, whose trailer was next to ours and who had spent all the daylight hours of two weeks wandering about the city, opined some sentiments along these lines. "They talk about the American dream," he said one night, "Well, we're a whole long way from it. But when you look around Washington it gives you fresh hope."

We felt this strongly ourselves. One night, very late, we climbed the many steps up to the Lincoln memorial where the craggy marble figure of Honest Abe sits, bathed in a light from above. On one wall are the words of the Gettysburg Address. Mighty fine words they are, too.

Looking east from this small Parthenon your gaze takes in the whole of the floodlit Mall the magnificent finger of the Washington Monument multiplying itself in the Reflecting Pool and, beyond, the klieg-lit dome of the Capitol. It is an inspiring sight even for a non-American. You cant' help but admire the dream.

Not So Fine

Two aspects of Washington, however, are a blot on its face. The worst is the condition of the Negro population, said to be more than 30 per cent of the city's total and the largest, proportionately, of any city in America.

It seems inconceivable that here in Washington, where so much is a proud symbol of democracy, where equality is a word carved forever in the city's stone, that there should be such tragic examples of segregation.

You've doubtless read that Washington has some of the worst Negro slums in America. Until you've seen them for yourself, within a short walk of the White House, you can't realize the feeling of gloom they inspire. Reading the Gettysburg Address and seeing these Americans living in poverty and filth, both in the one day, is more than a little confusing.

The farther one come into the south, of course, the more this puts a weight on the heart. When we saw our first sign on a restaurant "Whites Only," we determined that we'd deny our patronage to such places. But as you drive south the signs disappear The restrictions are too firmly established to need signs.

Washington's other problems is a glut of automobiles. More than a hundred thousand cars are driven into the city each day and the capital has more horseless carriages per square mile than any city in the world. Add to this the traffic of some three million tourists a year and you have a motorist's nightmare.

In the times of the heaviest commuting, morning and night, the broad streets of downtown Washington become clogged with traffic and produce some of the most harried, embittered cops I've ever seen. Needless to say, we nosed our trailer through this at the very time when all Washington was homeward bound. New York seemed like a one-horse town in comparison.

The problem is intensified in Washington, but it's the same in every large and middling-sized town we've visited, in Canada as well as the United States. One result is that the day of shopping "downtown" seems finished. The trend in every city is to establish the best stores out on the fringe and with parking lots of incredible size.

Long View

With the possible exception of the monument on Vimy Ridge, the Washington memorial is the most thrilling I've seen. There's an elevator trip every five minutes to the 500-foot level and the view from there is something to cherish.

As you ascend a recorded voice gives a short lecture about the shaft. You learn that it's the highest masonry structure extant. That there are 898 steps to the top. That it was started in 1848, delayed by the war betweeen the States, completed in 1885 at a cost of a million and a half dollars.

When the voice explained that the builders inadvertently used the best materials in the portion least affected by strain and the weakest marble in the parts which carry the most weight, one of the wags in the car commented, "That's Washington sure enough."

From the top there's a fine view of the Pentagon Building, across the Potomac in Virginia, where tens of thousands of War Department employees are at work building a huge war machine so that there won't be any war. That's Washington, too.

On viewing that greatest of all office buildings, one of the sightseers told the old joke about the Western Union messenger boy who went in to deliver a telegram and came out a lieutenant-colonel. Whereupon his companion told another Pentagon joke I hadn't heard before.

Seems that a very pregnant lady pushed up to one of the guards one day and cried, "Help me, I'm lost! I've got to find a way out of here. My baby is going to be born any minute."

Guard looked at the woman critically and said, "Lady, you should never have come in here in that condition."

"But officer," cried the lady, "When I came in I wasn't in this condition.

Outlook Good For Seaway Says U.S. Senator

Washington, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Senator Alexander Wiley (Rep. Wis.) today told Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada that the next (2nd) congress "may well authorize" the long-contested St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Wiley made public a letter to the Prime Minister in which he said he understands Canada's "well-justified impatience" at lack of United States action on the $800,000,000 proposal.

" think," Wiley wrote, "that the outlook is very favorable."

Wiley, long an advocate of the project, said several senators who voted to shelve a St. Lawrence bill 2 1-2 years ago (the last time such legislation was considered by the senate) have "indicated" to him that they would change their vote now. The senate in 1948 sent the bill back to committee by a vote of 57 to 30.

Wiley said that the United States needs the joint seaway and power development to:

"1. Mobilize every possible alternative transportation artery to supplement our clogged railroads.

"2. Expand productive capacity by tapping the tremendous electricity resources of the St. Lawrence River's international rapids section, and,

"3. Speed iron ores from Labrador to American steel mills."

1,000 Employees Steel Products Out on Strike

Montreal, Oct. 31 — (CP) — More than 1,000 employees of Canadian Tube and Steel Products, Ltd. today went on strike at 7 a. m. EST after last - minute negotiations failed yesterday.

Members of the United Steel Workers of America (C. C. L. - C. I. O.), the workers struck to back wage and hour demands made to the company 14 months ago when their old contract expired.

There were few pickets around the plant this morning. The majority of employees were attending a union meeting called just before the strike deadline.

The union is seeking a $1.05 hourly minimum, 44-hour work week, union security clause and a pension plan. Present basic hourly salary is 93 cents.

Their contract expired Nov. 7. 1949,. and negotiations had been started two months previously.

Rejected by Workers

All company offers had been rejected by the workers so far. Management made its last offer yesterday but the workers turned it down, claiming it was a reduction of an offer made last week.

The company is a subsidiary of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

Union officials claim that the workers should get the 44 - hour week because Dosco employees in other parts of the country were granted the 40-hour work week with same take home pay as for 44 hours, plus time and a half overtime after 40 hours.

The union also is seeking check-off dues — making it mandatory for all new employees to pay unions dues after 30 days of employment — two weeks vacation with pay after three years' service plus life, sickness and accident insurance and a recognized pension plan.

PEPTIC ULCER

The man about town calls it "peptic ulcer." A peptic ulcer may occur either in the stomach —a gastric ulcer—or in the duodenum, the section of the small bowel into which the stomach empties. The latter is known as duodenal ulcer. Rarely, an ulcer may occur further along in the small intestine. Pepsin is an enzyme — a chemical substance produced by the normal stomach which aids in the digestion of proteins.

There seems reason to suspect that the old time doctors thought a deficiency of pepsin production by the stomach led to ulcer. Pepsin was quite popular as a "remedy" in days gone by, for a wide variety of stomach disorders. It has little or no standing today.

The cause of peptic ulcer is unknown. It is known, however, that ulcer develops in the presence of a sustained over-production of hydrochloric acid. This acid is one of the normal secretions of the stomach. What causes the over-production is a matter which has a great many investigators staying up nights and muttering into their beards during the day. Of course the victims of peptic ulcer often do likewise.

Relief from the constant gnawing pain of ulcer is usually given by almost any alkali. The eating of almost any kind of food gives temporary relief. Smoking invariably increases the distress. Most victims fare much better when they stop smoking. Many good physicians will not undertake the management of an ulcer case until the victim stops smoking.

The medical consensus today is that gastric ulcer—ulcer of the stomach alone—should be treated surgically. The reason for this is that gastric ulcer may be malignant. There is no medical treatment for malignancy—cancer — no matter where it may be.

A duodenal ulcer rarely is malignant. It is possible to harbor a duodenal ulcer for fifty years. No one harbors a gastric ulcer very long. The distinction between the two locations of ulcer is the province of the physician. Neither the physician nor the patient can make this distinction on the basis of the symptoms. The diagnosis is possible only by means of X-ray examination.

The purpose of taking alkalis is to neutralize the excess of acid in the stomach, acid which irritates the ulcer. Some alkalis are readily absorbed from the digestive tract and in sustained usage create an excessive amount of alkali in the blood. Others, such as common chalk—calcium carbonate—are not so readily absorbed and have a comparable local action.

While some alkalis seem to cause a "rebound" effect, increasing the production of acid after the original neutralization, chalk does not appear to have this action. A preparation of aluminum the hydroxide, has been in use for the past twenty years as an "antacid." The "neutralizing" effect of this preparation is very minor. It acts by a process of absorption—in which the excess acid fastens itself, or clings to the particles of the preparation.

A new-comer to the scene is a drug which presumably cuts down acid secretion by partially paralyzing certain nerves concerned in the function of the acid-producing glands of the stomach. This drug also may cause unpleasant side effects, such as extreme dryness of the nose and throat. Its place in the future remains to be determined.

Those of you who suffer from what I often term "Yankee stomach," might be interested in a booklet titled, "So You Have Indigestion," which you may have by addressing me in care of this newspaper, asking for same by title and enclosing 25c in coin together with a stamped self-addressed return envelope.

A subsequent article will deal with the necessity for and results of surgery in the treatment of ulcer.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Canned Peas Excellent Food

Have been given several dozens of canned peas and I like them very much. Would a diet using canned peas in place of meat be adequate for a woman aged 73 years? (H. R.)

Answer—If your diet includes cheese, eggs or milk (whole milk or skim milk) the canned peas plus one of these will keep you well nourished. Peas are excellent food but their protein (nitrogenous material) does not contain certain amino acids, present in meat, eggs, cheese and milk that are essential for good growth, repair and regeneration.

Loss of Minerals and Growing Old

Is my reasoning right about this: As an individual grows older the mineral substances predominate and as a result there is less organic material or life substance. If this takes place in the bones, why not in all the tissues...? (M. T. C.)

Answer — Your premise is wrong—although the school physiologies of the 19th century made the same false assumption. In fact the body, bones and all, gradually loses mineral matter with advancing age. This will be the subject of a talk here soon.

Pipe Versus Cigarettes or Cigars

In speaking of harmful effects of smoking you always specify cigarettes. Is that because you smoke cigars or pipe? (A. C. H.)

Answer—It is because most of the medical authorities or investigators specify cigarette smoking. I hope readers will report their experience with pipe and cigar smoking.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DOORS AND WINDOWS

The essentials in every home are doors and windows. Both have an after-effect upon our entire lives. Every day we go through the doors of our home, and every day we look out of windows. The more of this beautiful earth that we can see from our windows the more sensitive we become to beauty.

In Carl Sandburg's "The Prairie Years" I was fascinated by a paragraph describing the birth of Abraham Lincoln. He said: "And although he was born in a house with only one door and one window, it was written that he would read many riddles and doors and windows."

I recently visited the little home of a friend. It was on a very small plot of ground, but its owner had built a small pool, with a Japanese bridge across, and there were lilies in the pool, and tiny flowers about its edge, and there were wild trees planted all about, and all this you could see from the living room, and a door at the rear led to this garden which love had planted and created.

Those old castles with small windows and huge doors have no attraction for me. I want to see the light, and I like open doors. I work better with the doors to my office always open, so that people may feel they are welcome at any hour. And I like the many windows that look out from my office, so that I may catch something of the spirit of the city in which I live, and so that I may look out and see the people and the cars go by. Activity and life.

It is a good sign to see our modern buildings with bigger windows in them, letting in the light. As to doors, they cannot be too beautiful, especially the door to one's home. I love those beautiful New England doors that can be seen on the older houses. They are works of art. Too many people look upon a door merely as something to get through!

A friend asked me to call and see his new home, on which he had lavished both love and money. I hesitated at the door. It was so beautiful, but when I was welcomed inside I understood. It was a prelude to everything beautiful inside. Doors can mean so much!

SHELLS LITTER BEACH

Florence, Ore., Oct. 31 (AP)—Hand grenades and mortar shells littered more than a mile of beach near this Oregon coastal town today. Coast guardsmen set up a watch to keep beach visitors out of danger. The explosives, all of U. S. make, began coming in Sunday night by case lots, most of the boxes breaking up as they hit the beach. Their source was not determined. A demolition expert is expected from Seattle today.

MADOC

Large Congregations At[illegible] Thanksgiving Services at Trinity

Madoc—Large congregations attended the annual Thanksgiving services both morning and evening in Trinity United Church, Madoc, last Sunday. The special speaker for the day was the Rev. A. E. Baker, of Stirling.

At the morning service, Mr. Baker chose as his text these words, "No man having put his hand to the plough and turneth back is fit for the Kingdom of Heaven."

At the evening service the minister, Rev. M. W. Heslip and the congregation of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church joined the Trinity congregation for worship with Rev. Mr. Heslip assisting in the service. Rev. A. E. Baker choosing his text from Ezra 8th chapter and 21st verse.

Outstanding Messages

The messages given to the people by Rev. Mr. Baker were outstanding, carrying with them many instructive ways in which the people as members can advance the work in the church of today particularly among the young people and putting more time and effort in the work of the church.

The church music under the direction of Mr. Stanley Hawthorne as conductor and organist, was beautiful and inspiring. At the morning service the choir sang one anthem, "Crown Him with Many Crowns." Mrs. Adams taking the solo part and Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Hulin the duet. While Miss Phyllis Beatty, A.R.C.T., as guest soloist, rendered two solo numbers, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" and "Thanks Be To God."

At the evening service, the choir rendered two anthems, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," and "Hear Ye The Call", with Mrs. Smith taking the solo part. The soloist for the evening service, Mr. Martin sang, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."

Potted chrysanthemums and cut flowers were used for floral decorations. At the evening service several members of the congregations of Union Church and Fox's Church, Eldorado, were in attendance.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Holland visited the former's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harford Twiddy during the week.

Miss Mution of Peterborough, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. McKenley Rankin.

Miss Joyce Fleming of Deseronto, spent the weekend at her home in Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reid, of Brampton spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. Hawthorne.

ROBBED, TIED TO GUYWIRE

Stratford, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Bela Racz, 28-year-old district farmer, told police he was robbed of $18 last night by three men who beat him and left him tied to the guy wire of a hydro pole half a mile east of here.

Racz, being treated in hospital here for bruises about the head, said he did not know the men.

TWEED

Tweed — Those attending the Madoc and Elzevir Sunday School Convention, St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, Madoc, on Wednesday last from Tweed were:— Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco, W. S. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. John Sills, Mrs. S. B. Rollins, Mrs. P. C. Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Morton, John Sager and Inspector of Music, Mr. Roy Fenwick, Toronto.

Trenton, have moved to Tweed and taken up residence in one of the apartments in the Sim's building. Mr. Little has accepted a position on the staff of Max Bush's furniture store. He will succeed "Red" Rodgers who left a short time ago to join the staff of Reid's Funeral Home in Kingston.

The Ladies of Tweed Eastern Mr. and Mrs. "Jack" Little, of Star Lodge held a successful tea and bazaar in the lodgeroom on Wednesday afternoon. The room was decorated in fall colors with autumn leaves and baby mums. The tea tables were in keeping with the Halloween season. The conveners of the home cooking table and fancy work report splendid results. Mrs. Ethel Fisher, Worthy Matron of the lodge, was the general convener.

Mrs. Alex Turcott left on Friday with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Peggs, and Mr. Peggs, to spend the winter months at their home in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Miss Arlie Burris, of the Bell Telephone staff here for several years will take a similar position in Belleville next week.

Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Doyle left on Wednesday for Kingston where they will spend the winter months.

Mrs. George Harron, Belleville, visited for a few days at the home of Dr. M. G. and Mrs. Dales in town.

Dr. Stanley Beatty, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, visited during the past week with his sister, Mrs. James Jeffrey, Mr. Jeffrey and Joyce. Dr. Beatty, who is president of the Chemical Institute of Canada has just returned from a trip to the west coast in his official capacity.

Mr. and Mrs. George Geraldi and Mary, of Toronto, spent the weekend in town with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Lee.

Official Visit

On Monday night, a number of local Oddfellows attended the official visit of the Grand Master I.O.O.F. at Stirling, and on Tuesday night, Rev. A. L. Sisco, Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Ontario, and Mrs. Sisco, attended the banquet at the Empress Hotel, Peterborough, in honor of the Grand Master.

Guests during the past week at the Parsonage included Mr. Chas. E. Hutcheson, London, Grand Master I.O.O.F. for Ontario, and Mrs. Hutcheson; Rev. Dr. J. I. McKay, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cowan, Mansonville, Que.; Mrs. Henry Gray, Millbrook, and Mrs. Adah Montgomery, Bailieboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Roberts, Toronto, formerly of Tweed, called on friends in town enroute home from a trip through the United States.

Mr. A. W. Leman, local district Forester, spent the past week in Toronto, with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leman.

NATURE UNSPOILED

YOURS TO PROTECT

The LESSER SCAUP is a duck of the open waters, on our larger bays, lakes and estuaries. He appears to be black at both ends and white in the middle. In winter, scaups often gather in great flocks on the open water. They should be protected.

WEDDINGS

SILLS—BOULTON

Tall standards of tinted 'mums and fern, adorned the altar in Holloway Street United Church on Saturday, October 28, at two p.m., when Dorothy Olivia, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy R. Boulton, of Belleville Ontario School for the Deaf, became the bride of Donald Nelson Sills, of Plainfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sills. The Rev. Sidney E. Larman, B. Th., pastor of the church, officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. H. McNish, church organist, and the soloist, Mrs. Ethel (Smith) Lawrenson, sang before the ceremony "The Lord's Prayer", and during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of white taffeta featuring a nylon yoke, molded bodice and bouffant skirt with small paniers. Her silk embroidered veil of tulle illusion was of fingertip length, held in place by a coronet headdress ornamented with tiny clusters of orange blossoms. She wore matching mitts, and carried a cascade bouquet of red Talisman roses tied with wide white satin ribbon. Her only adornment was a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Harold Thrasher, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, becomingly attired in ice-blue taffeta with nylon yoke, fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore matching mitts, shoulder-length veil and carried a shower bouquet of pink snapdragons and pale pink chrysanthemums.

Mr. Lindsay Sills, West Huntingdon, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and Mr. Russell Sills, West Huntingdon, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mr. Harold Burley, Odessa, Ont., cousin of the bride, were ushers.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the bride's mother, wearing lace trimmed navy crepe, with navy accessories, and corsage of red Talisman roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in wine crepe with black accessories, and corsage of cream Talisman roses, received the guests, the happy couple left for a wedding trip by motor to Western Ontario and New York State, the bride wearing a suit of rosy-plum, matching topcoat, black accessories and corsage of white roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Sills will reside in Plainfield, at the bridegroom's farm.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Odessa, Trenton, West Huntingdon, Thomasburg, Plainfield, Roslin, Peterborough, and Tweed.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the guest of honor at the trousseau tea held by the bride's mother, when Mrs. Harold Thrasher, sister of the bride, showed the gifts, and Mrs. Roy MacLaren, sister of the bridegroom, the trousseau.

Also miscellaneous showers were given in her honor by the Avondale Aid, at the home of Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Trent Road; by the sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Roy MacLaren, and at the home of Mrs. W. Gray, Dundas Street, cousin of the bride.

PRATT—MOFFATT

Marmora.—A pretty wedding was solemnized at Marmora Free Methodist Church at 2:30 p.m., on Saturday, October 28, when Aileen Agnes Moffatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moffatt, of Marmora, was united in marriage to Gordon Edmond Pratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Pratt, of Warkworth. The Rev. L. C. Ball officiated assisted by the Rev. R. L. Casement of Verona.

The church was tastefully decorated with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums and ferns.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. L. C. Ball.

As the bride entered the church the Rev. R. E. Dargan, of Peterborough, sang "The Breath That Breathed O'er Eden". and during the signing of the register, "The Wedding Prayer".

The bride wore a gown of white slipper satin, with peplum at back, fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and long, fitted sleeves. Her fingertip veil was held by a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Eva Moffatt, the bride's sister, as maid of honor, wore a gown of blue slipper satin with matching headdress and mittens and she carried a nosegay of white chrysanthemums and red roses.

Miss Velma Moffatt, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in orchid slipper satin, with matching headdress and mittens and she carried a nosegay of white chrysanthemums and red roses.

Miss Merilyn Johnson, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She was attired in pink slipper satin, matching headdress and mittens and her bouquet was also of white chrysanthemums and red roses.

Irene Phillips, cousin of the bride, as flower girl, was daintily attired in yellow taffeta with matching poke bonnet and she carried a basket of chrysanthemums and roses.

The best man was Francis Casement, and the ushers were, Kelvin Johnson, of Peterborough, and George Sayles, of Warkworth.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, attended by almost 100 guests. The bride's mother received, wearing grey crepe and black accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who wore navy crepe with grey accessories. Each wore a corsage of red roses.

Guests were present from Oshawa, Toronto, Peterborough, Warkworth, Verona, Morganstown, Cobourg, Brighton, Springbrook and Cordova.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt left on a motor trip to the United States, the bride travelling in a blue grey suit with navy accessories. They will reside in Warkworth.

How To Have Pretty Eyebrows

By HELEN FOLLETT

Correct grooming of lashes as well as eyebrows is important. Learn to use mascara and you'll be surprised what a difference it makes in the beauty of your eyes.

AT long last the sisters have found out that the attenuated eyebrow, tweezed down to a mere skeleton of its normal formation, is not an attribute of beauty. Actresses know that a lot can be done with eyebrows to express surprise, or irritation. If the forehead scimitars are just about obliterated, they are not much help to the acting job.

The emaciated line does not improve the appearance of the eyes as will the more normal pattern. Also, the proper place for the eyebrow is along the frontal bone, not above it as happens when the growth is plucked along the lower border. The impulse to do this has gone on to the bitter end, and it is a wonder that there is an eyebrow left to carry on. That a beauty whimsy of this kind should endure for more than twenty years is astonishing, to say the least.

Mineral Oil

If you would bring yours back to a natural state, apply mineral oil every night of your life and give the little fuzzers a brisk treatment with the small brush that you have for this purpose. They will develop a charming gloss, will stay neatly and nicely in place.

If you would darken them, use dark brown mascara instead of the black crayon that usually produces too heavy an effect.

A Little Attention

Eye lashes respond to a little attention. Mineral oil makes them grow and imparts lustre. Any irritation of the lids will have a deplorable effect upon them as they are a delicate growth, inclined to moult. Styes are a menace. The infection can go deeply into the tissues, destroy papillae from which the little shafts emerge.

Correct grooming of eyebrows and lashes will do much to make the feminine countenance vivid and attractive. If you use blue eye shadows, you can apply a dark blue mascara to your lashes. That trick should be indulged in only on the grand, dressed up occasion.

WATCHMAN FOUND DEAD

Owen Sound, Oct. 31 — (CP)— Alexander Breen, 62, night watchman at the Great Lakes Grain Company elevator here was found dead when employees entered the building early today. His body was in a kneeling position, half-supported by one of the elevators massic conveyor belts. His death was attributed to heart attack.

AIKENS

Mrs. Grant Coulter Addresses Aikens WA On 'Spiritual Values'

Aikens'— Mrs. W. Neelands opened her home for the October meeting of Aikens' Woman's Association. The theme for this meeting was "Thanksgiving", and opened with a poem read by the president, Mrs. W. Bush. The W.A. "Theme Song" was followed by the reading of Psalm 95 by Mrs. G. Denike. Meditation on the Scripture and prayer was led by Mrs. D. McComb.

Mrs. W. Bush thanked the society for card of sympathy. Several items of business were discussed. Mrs. Carmer Grills and Mrs. Ken Jones volunteered for November church cleaning.

The treasurer's report showed approximately $168 on hand on October first.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. E. Hubble introduced the guest speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Grant Coulter, of Belleville.

Mrs. Coulter expressed her pleasure at being present but explained that she did not consider herself a speaker. She chose as her subject "Life's Spiritual Values", stating that the world is transformed only as individuals are transformed. Influences go out from the many types of homes throughout the world. Let the standards of these homes be raised so that their influence may be better.

"In our homes let us show and practise "Thankfulness for many small things but above all for the gift of Jesus' life, death and resurrection."

"Honesty" is the second home standard. Small deceits have no place in the training of children.

"We have "Faith" in many privileges of everyday living, let us also have faith in God."

"Service" is the standard which naturally follows faith. She quoted "Faith without works is dead".

"Love" is another standard that lacking it, we can not build Christian homes.

Let us have "Courage" to meet the duties of everyday living."

"Loyalty" to God and each other is another important standard. All of these are important but without the knowledge of God none of them can be carried out. Let us learn to depend on prayer, meditation and morning devotion."

Mrs. Coulter closed her inspiring remarks by reading the poem "I Will Follow the Upward Road Today".

Mrs. C. McMullen moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Coulter for her timely address and Mrs. C. Grills, seconded the motion.

Headings were given by Mrs. H. Denike, "Banish All Fears" and Mrs. W. Bush, "Meditation on Thanksgiving". Mrs. S. Westover, a former member closed the meeting.

Mrs. Neelands and committee served delicious refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Attractive autumn trio

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

BARONDUKI, that nicely marked fur, has been smartly fashioned into a sleeveless jacket, a good adjunct to a sports suit, and a good companion with a blouse and slacks. It could be worn over an entirely simple dress too. This one is bound in brown velveteen. Double woven cotton that smartly simulates doeskin is used for a nice, long wearing glove. It has a stitched and quilted cuff and back decoration. The sports shoes are of dark beige suede with a dark green strap and two brass balls trimming the front, and dark green calf piping all around.

Friends, Neighbors Present Miss. E. Bailey With Gifts

Bonarlaw.—On Friday evening, of last week the home of Gordon Bailey at Harold, was filled to capacity when friends and neighbors gathered to present his sister, Evelyn, who is shortly to take up her residence in Peterborough, with an address wishing her success and happiness in her new home and also a mixmaster and coffee percolator.

The address was read by Mrs. Carman Sine and the presentation was made by Mrs. Roy Brown and Mrs. Don Heath.

Following this presentation, Mrs. Gordon Webb read an address from the Junior Adult Bible Class of Springbrook Sunday School and presented Evelyn with a beautiful cake plate. She charmingly replied to both addresses and expressed her sincere thanks for the expressions of good wishes and for the gifts.

Rev. H. E. Beare acted as chairman and called on reeve of Rawdon, Wilfred Spencer, Sunday School superintendent Geo. Williams, and Mrs. Thomas Laycock for a few words.

A program of instrumental, vocal music and readings was given by local talent after which generous refreshments were served.

utual Respect ain Factor In appy Marriage

Winnipeg — (CP) — Mutual espect is one of the important actors in preserving marriage, ays Judge M. S. Watson of the innipeg Family Court.

The judge, 60 years old and arried with a grown-up son and aughter, was the first speaker t a series of marriage-counseling lectures for young couples.

Other important factors in preserving marriage, he said, are ommon interests, shared responsibility and mutual confidence.

He doesn't think that travelling alesmen make poor husbands. "A ittle absence from the home akes for better relationships in arriage," he said.

"The art of living together is a atter of putting emphasis on the [illegible] things." It is the little things [illegible] often become the basis of arger issues.

"Bring a bit of your courtship nto your marriage," he told the athering. "Married people should how the same courtesies and consideration for each other as they sed in their courtships.

"Give yourself to the one you ove. You'll find a greater love vill come back."

Many modern marriages fail ecause the principals "don't now each other," he continued. Preparation for marriage should nvolve no short-cuts. There must e transition from "I-mindedness" o "we-mindedness"; from infatuation to real unity.

eplores Haste

It was his experience from atching thousands of cases in amily court that "hasty marriages just don't work out.

"Love at first sight is often ured by a second look."

[illegible]dge Watson said his family [illegible] experience proves that very ew persons coming there have ny church connection.

"Religion is the greatest force n the world for changing marital nhappiness into happiness."

Why do some husbands leave ome?

One reason, the judge reported, s that a wife sometimes will pend so much time on her children that she neglects her husband. And she may allow herself o become less attractive.

Husbands can help overcome his, he continued, by "a little raise, some help with the housework — in other words, by doing heir share. Loyalty to, and pride n, your partner should dominate our marriage.

The judge says there's a surecure solution for temper-tantrums on the part of a wife.

Wellington on the Lake

WHAT THE AUTUMN BRINGS

What does the autumn bring us?
Wind and cloud and rain,
Golden and mellow sunshine
Parting the clouds again,
And a cavalcade of color
Passing o'er hill and plain.

She never fails to bring us
Of fruits a golden store,
And freighted fields of harvest,
And barn bins running o'er,
And at eve a cosy hearth-fire
Within a close-shut door.

What does the autumn bring us?
The maple's crimson crown,
The blazing trees on the hill-top
Like sentinels looking down
On the water's edge, where the sumachs
Are wearing their scarlet gown.

But soon the trees will be barren,
And winds will wail and weep,
And all the world of Nature
Be folded in winter sleep
But oh! that the days might bring us
Peace, peace so calm and deep!

—Helen B. Anderson.

Canning factories are still operating and loads of golden pumpkins are passing every day.

Mr. Elmer Carley, Oshawa, spent the weekend at his home in Wellington.

Miss Gladys Lumb and Miss Mary Lumb motored to Kingston and visited friends.

Miss Nellie Arthur, Belleville, spent Sunday in Wellington with Mrs. W. H. Anderson, Miss S. E. Blakely and Marjorie.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Melville, with their guest, Mrs. Harvey Eaton of Calgary, spent Tuesday evening in town and called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley and Mrs. Anderson. Mrs. Eaton, who has spent several weeks in the country, is returning this week to Calgary.

Miss Hewitt spent the weekend with friends in Bancroft.

Miss M. Lumb and Gladys with Mrs. G. Ferguson and Mrs. Fred Ford, motored to Picton on Saturday. Other visitors included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley and Mrs. Lillian Anderson and daughter.

The ivy-clad Anglican Church of Wellington presents a picture to attract the eye of the artist. The colors of brown and gold blended with crimson and lighted by the October sun, remind one of pictures of churches in Old England.

Mrs. Henry Dick and Barbara are spending a week's holidays with friends in Detroit.

The Misses Gillespie, Picton, were guests of Miss Gena Benson at her summer home, Lilac Lodge on Wednesday. Miss Benson is returning this week to her home in Windsor after enjoying the summer in Wellington. She will visit her sister, Mrs. Wilson and Dr. Wilson, Kitchener, en route.

Mrs. W. H. Anderson spent a few days in Trenton the guest of Mrs. J. M. Whyte and attended the play, "Jumping Jewels," presented at the Legion Hall by the Trenton Dramatic Club. The play was very entertaining and the actors played their parts well. The leaders, Roy Brown and Dorothy Todd, who took the parts as husband and wife, were exceptionally good. But each played his or her part well.

AUTUMN

Oh! the lure of these last days before the autumn dies,
When the sunlight floods the spirit as it floods the yellow leaves.
Lightens up the forest pathways that in summer were so dim
And a magic web of beauty o'er life's parting summer weaves.

There's a sweetness and a sadness and a freshness in the air,
A freshness as of cooler days in store
And a quiet dreamy stillness born of summer's golden hours—
The glory of life's youth, that is no more.

—Leona Whyte, Trenton, Ont.

Hallowe'en Party Held by Phiat Sorority of Y

The Phiat Sorority of the Y. M. C. A. held a successful Halloween costume party at the "Y" Saturday night. More than 70 young people were present.

Cider, doughnuts and cokes were sold in the games room. Upstairs, ghosts, Spanish maidens, clowns and harem girls danced amid cornstalks and Jack-O-Lanterns to records and the square dance music of the orchestra. Novelty dances and Paul Jones were a feature of the evening.

The appreciation of the club is extended to Mr. Bent and Mr. Boucher for their help.

Women's Institute

WALLBRIDGE W|I.

The October meeting of Wallbridge Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. A. Woods with an attendance of approximately 50 members and visitors. The meeting opened in the usual manner with Mrs. Lane at the piano.

Mrs. Ross Fisher, 2nd vice president, presiding in the absence of the president. The correspondence was read including a letter from Mrs. G. Heasman asking for a demonstration of plastic curtains, drapes and brushes; from Miss Lewis, director, a competition of rug-making through the F.W.I.C.

Mrs. J. Sine, inquired of Dr. McMullen, medical health officer, concerning the project of the inspection of the school children's eyes and teeth, advising inspection of tonsils also. He recommended Mrs. Fox, Reg.N., for this inspection and for treatment, contact the family physician.

Area Convention—Nov. 8-9 at the B.C.I.V.S. auditorium; time changed from 9:30 to 9:45 a.m., and from 1:30 to 2:05 in the afternoon, so as not to disturb the classes. Asking for an exhibit of home made rugs for display. Delegates appointed, Mrs. L. Ketcheson, Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Cecil Sine and Mrs. Lloyd.

A decision was made that of catering to Scott's sale barn at the beginning of the year again.

Mrs. J. Sine, District Director, reported an executive meeting, and the holding of an officers' rally in the near future.

Presidents, secretaries, 1st vice presidents of branches and officers of the district are to attend and branches to bring questions they would like answered Put to a vote all in favor, that the Institute donate each year a silver spoon to each club girl and for garden club girls one spoon every three years. Club work to be under the leadership of Mrs. Ross Fisher and Mrs. Ken Kingston.

Anyone wishing a membership pin with safety clasp may get same for a nominal sum.

The business part being dealt with, Mrs. Lloyd took the topic "The History of Wallbridge". Col. W. G. Ketcheson at the age of 87, wrote this for the Tweedsmuir Village History Book. Wallbridge, he said, was named after Lewis Wallbridge, later chief justice of Manitoba. First cheese factory was built in 1869. Episcopal church the same year. Wesleyn Church, 1870, land given by Peter Ketcheson. In 1862, a hotel and post office were built. The history of the surrounding community with reminiscence of the past, making an interesting topic for young and old.

Roll call—bring an item to be included in the history book. A demonstration of the book was given.

Mrs. F. Vermilyea gave a reading of the first automobile of Belleville in the year 1904 owned by Mr. Burgoyne, one lunger as it was called driven by Mr. Greenleaf.

A reading by Mrs. E. Phillips, "Before My Sister Came". Mrs. C. Fair favored with a piano solo.

Mrs. Fisher moved a hearty vote of thanks, to which all responded, to Mrs. Woods for entertaining the W.I. and to Mrs. Lloyd and to all who helped with the program.

Refreshments were served by the lunch conveners and the hostess.

REACH FOR A RENNIE

GIVEN EDUCATIONAL YEAR

Kingston, Oct. 31 (CP) —Charged with theft and assault with intent to commit grievous bodily harm, Royton St. John, 46, was sentenced Monday to an additional year in penitentiary.

He escaped from Kingston penitentiary Sept. 15 with 11 months of a five-year term still to be served. St. John slugged Jimmy Biggs, 10, grandson of the chief keeper, in making his escape. Less than 36 hours later he was recaptured in a Brockville hotel.

On charges of stealing a pistol and of being unlawfully at large St. John elected trial by jury in a higher court. He was working as a trusty at the time of his escape.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about Food . . . What's Cooking ?

We no longer keep tea locked in expensive caskets as they did in the 18th century. Perhaps we may soon keep coffee in the household safe if the price continues to mount.

Most Canadian tea drinkers prefer black tea from India and Ceylon rather than the green tea from China.

For hundreds of years Chinese drank their tea only in blue cups. Wisely the Chinese knew that color, like texture, affects one's reaction to any food or drink. Blue was best, they thought for accenting the tea's subtle color.

Any Chinese main dish should be followed with tea as a beverage. To retain the color and crisp texture of broccoli in today's recipe, cook it only until it is semi-tender in the best Chinese style. Green peppers may be substituted for broccoli.

Chinese Beef and Broccoli
Serves 4.

1 lb. top round beef or top sirloin
2 tablespoons melted shortening
1 small onion, chopped fine
2 medium size cloves of garlic chopped fine
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1 1-2 cups hot water
2 bouillon cubes
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1-2 teaspoon worcestershire sauce
1 12-ounce package frozen broccoli
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1-2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 8-ounce can pineapple tidbits, drained

Cut meat into 1-8 inch thick slices. The slices should be about 1 inch long and 1-2 inch wide. Put meat in a large saucepan with the melted shortening. Cook uncovered, stirring frequently, until meat loses red color and accumulated liquid has evaporated.

Add onion, garlic, salt and pepper. Simmer a few minutes more until onions begin to turn yellow. Add water, bouillon cubes, soy sauce and worcestershire sauce. When liquid reaches boiling point, reduce flame and simmer, covered, 5 minutes more.

Add broccoli and simmer 5 minutes more.

Mix cornstarch and mustard to a smooth paste with 3 tablespoons cold water. Add to simmering liquid. Cook 2 minutes more. Add drained pineapple. Mix well. Serve at once.

SEA BREAKS INTO SHAFT

Tokyo, Oct. 31 — (AP) — The sea broke into a coal mine shaft under the inland sea on the southwestern tip of Honshu Island yesterday and 35 miners were feared trapped below. Efforts to drain the shaft today were not successful and engineers said the 35 possibly were drowned.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge—Quite a number of this appointment attended the anniversary services at Scott's and Atkins appointment on Sunday.

Miss Jenny Kiernan is having her home wired.

The annual Conservative meeting held in the Orange Hall on Friday evening was well attended. After the business meeting, the evening was spent playing euchre. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Wedding bells are ringing again in this community.

Rev. L. Wallace and Mr. and Mrs. Herb Alexander of Markham and Mrs. George Beare of Uxbridge were callers on Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Walker and baby were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Barton Hinchcliffe.

Apple picking is almost completed for another season and the crop is quite satisfactory with some of the apple growers while others have very few.

CAMPBELLFORD

Capt. L. Goddard Describes Various Types of Fish

Campbellford—About 40 members of the Campbellford and District Fish and Game Protective Association were on hand on Thursday night, to hear a very interesting talk by Captain L. M. Goddard, R.N.R.

Captain Goddard has been a sailor for the past 55 years. Born in London, England, he spent six years on sailing vessels, starting at the age of 13. Having been in just about every country in the world, he is a veritable walking encyclopedia, with his host of information on almost every phase of foreign customs. Captain Goddard spent some 25 years with ships of Canada Steamship Lines, and was master of the "Empress of Scotland" for a number of years. He was also a Royal Naval Reserve Officer until he retired recently.

Speaking on the different types of fish found throughout the world, he told of the 'flying' fish. He described how sailors would catch these creatures as they flew onto the decks of the ships, clean them and stuff them with tobacco and mount them on a board as a trophy. Sharks were caught with large hooks baited with chunks of salt pork.

Porpoises Mistaken for Torpedoes

During the war, the porpoise was quite often mistaken for a torpedo, as these creatures would skim along the surface of the water at great speed, then suddenly swerve away at the last second. Crew members held their breath on numerous occasions, when the porpoise, which looks very much like a torpedo, came at them, as there was no time to alter the course of the ship.

The captain also described a couple of hunting expeditions he was on in various parts of the world and told of some of the favorite dishes of the natives, among them shark's fin soup and birds' nest soup, both very tasty dishes according to the captain, who had tasted them on many occasions.

"Bombay Duck," which in reality is not a duck but a fish, is used in some of the Indian and Asiatic regions. The fish is dried in the sun until it shrinks to a fraction of its normal size, after which it is ground to a powder and used as we would use salt.

Captain Goddard, who hails from Cobourg Ontario, entertained his audience with feats of magic and various tricks with numbers, at the end of his talk.

A great number of interesting trophies of the sea were exhibited, and these drew much interest. The speaker also donned a cloak of a Chinese Mandarin, which he obtained in China some 40 years ago.

The speaker was introduced by W. S. Wiggins of the Campbellford Club, and a vote of thanks on behalf of the club was extended by George Lucy.

Mr. Ollie Taylor, V.P. of the Northumberland Fish and Game Club was at the meeting, as was Charlie Beattie of the same club. The men spoke briefly and thanked the local club, for the support given during the Sportsman Show held in Grafton last spring at which time Campbellford won the cup for the club having the largest attendance at the show.

Each member present at the Thursday meeting received a sportsman's button.

Receipts and Expenses

In the absence of Mr. Bert Taylor, treasurer, the treasurer's report was read by Mr. Fred Burgar. This revealed that expenses for the regatta the club sponsored during the summer amounted to $775.67, with receipts at $837.09, leaving the club a net profit on the affair of $61.42.

The financial statement showed cash on hand at the first of the year as $1,025.65, receipts to October 14 were $2,239.34, expenses $1,275.14, leaving a bank balance for the period of $964.10.

Mr. Burgar thanked all those who assisted in any way before and during the regatta to make it the success it was.

An invitation was extended to Captain Goddard to return at a later date to continue his talk and to describe more of his experiences to the club, which he very graciously replied he would do.

Lockwood Lanes Bowling Alleys Officially Opened

Campbellford—A snip from a ribbon be-decked pair of scissors, was the culmination of a dream started many years ago in Campbellford on Saturday night when the scissors, ably operated by Hon. W. A. (Billy) Goodfellow, snipped the red ribbon that signified the opening of one of Campbellford's newest attractions, Lockwood Lanes bowling alleys.

The alleys are the newest and most modern to be found between Toronto and Ottawa, and there are few in either city that can measure up to Campbellford's newest edition. Latest acoustics have been employed, and the alleys are scientifically planned and constructed.

Mayor J. E. Ayrhart introduced the guest of honor, Mr Goodfellow, at the opening, before a crowd of some 400 persons, who crowded into and around the building on Front Street.

Dream Becomes Actuality

Mr. Ayrnart said that he had dreamed of such an enterprise a number of years ago, but at that time could not bring it into being. He was later to meet a Picton man, Mr. Vernon Lockwood, who turned, what some local citizens tauntingly termed the "hole in the ground", or "Ayrhart's folly" into the beautiful eight-laned place of recreation it now is. Mr. Ayrhart, who a few hours before the opening had been in Montreal, said he was proud to have both the building and the Lockwoods in Campbellford, and said he had his fingers crossed when he first introduced the idea to the present owner a few years ago. Now his mind is at ease, as by some manner or other, he had pledged himself to give the citizens of Campbellford something new and different in their limited field of entertainment.

Mrs. Wm. Goodfellow, wife of the Welfare Minister, rolled the first ball down the brightly illuminated alley, and was more surprised than anyone else, when she scored a strike—thanks to one of the pin boys.

104 Candles Honor Birthday of Grand, Old Lady

Campbellford. — A birthday cake may be quite a common place thing as a rule, but when a cake is decorated with no less than 104 candles, then it deserves mention. Such a cake was on display at the farm home of Mrs. Ezra King in Belmont township, on Sunday, when a quiet celebration was held in honor of a grand old lady, Mrs. Margaret Ashby Jennings, who was born in Lincolnshire, England, 104 years ago, Sunday.

Mrs. Jennings, who came to this country at the age of seven years with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Gibson, is enjoying perfect health, her eyesight and hearing are good and her mind is clear and quick as a woman many years her junior.

Amazing Memory

Suffering a fall on leaving a theatre, 19 years ago, Mrs. Jennings broke her hip, and although she can walk if she takes the notion; she prefers to get around on a chair equipped with four wheels made for her by her son. Mrs. Jennings could remember dates and incidents with amazing clarity when interviewed on Saturday afternoon. She even sang a song for the reporter just to prove she "wasn't an old fuddy-duddy". The song ran something like this: "When I get up in the morning, I am always full of cheer, With my flail upon my back, And a bottle of good beer."

Mrs. Jennings first married the late Charles Ashby when she was 20 years old, and lived near Port Hope. She helped her husband farm, and remembers using oxen. She baked all her own bread, cakes and pies, and cooked for seven men.

After the death of her first husband, Mrs. Jennings married Simon Jennings. She and her husband operated a sawmill in Havelock district, until his death 23 years ago. She has lived in the district for 57 years. Mr. Ashby died 33 years ago.

There are two children, Mrs. Ezra King of Havelock, and Mr. Thomas Ashby, of Peterborough. Another son, Wilbur, died three years ago at the age of 65.

She has eight grandchildren, they are: Mrs. George Boyd of West Hill; Mrs. Randal Anderson, of Belmont township; Mrs. Edward Baker, Mrs. Eric Ellis, Mrs. Edward Henderson, Mrs. W. Barton, of Havelock and Clyde Ashby, of Peterborough. She also has thirteen great - grandchildren, most all of whom she can call by name.

When asked if she had any special recipe for longevity, Mrs. Jennings replied, "Lots of hard work, and getting up before breakfast."

Mrs. Jennings lives at the home of her daughter on the Cordova road, a few miles north of Havelock. Always quick with an answer to everything, she exclaimed "Don't take any wooden nickels," as we made our departure from her home, after being invited to her 105th birthday party.

United Church Young People Hold Hallowe'en Party

Shannonville.— The Young People of the United Church held a Hallowe'en party on Thursday evening, prizes were awarded as follows: Marina Master, best costume for seniors; best child under ten, Stanley Uens; best couple, Marjorie Murray and Mary Correy dressed as bride and groom; best original couple, Leona and Beatrice Uens as Little Abner and Daisy Mae.

For entertainment all enjoyed an apple eating contest and a guitar solo was also rendered by a member of Station C.J.B.Q.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Crisp and Mrs. R. Robertson.

PICTON

Three Horses, Bull, 21 Pigs Burned in Fire

Picton — Fire completely destroyed a large barn on the farm of James Lloyd in the Scoharie district Monday afternoon. Loss included all the season's crop, three horses, a bull and 21 pigs. Also included were a thousand bushels of grain which Mr. Lloyd's son, Bill, who farms at Doxsee had stored there.

Mr. Lloyd was absent at the time. There was no hydro in the barn and cause of the outbreak is not known. When first noticed the fire appeared to be in the top of the barn.

Fortunately the breeze was blowing away from the house and other buildings and they were not endangered. Bloomfield fire truck rushed to the scene, as did neighbors, but nothing could be done to save the building.

Rotary District Poultry Contest Is Concluded

Picton — The Picton District Poultry Club competition, sponsored by the Rotary Club, in cooperation with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, has just been concluded. Donald Hook was winner of the club's trophy for highest standing. He had a total of 691 points out of a possible 800. Jack Hicks was runner-up with 659 points. There were 21 contestants and scoring was on the basis of exhibit at Picton Fair, judging, quiz, home score, reports, attendance at meetings.

Winners of a bus trip to Ottawa were Jack Hicks and Margery Dulmage, Mr. Hook being ineligible as he was a previous winner.

Standing was as follows: Donald Hook 691, Jack Hicks 659; Margery Dulmage 658, June Bowerman 649, George R. Young 643, Patsy Brown 634, John Huizenca, 627, Margaret Ann Insley 608, Eleanor Fraleigh, Roger McKinley, Ronald Leavitt, Wilhelmina Mitchell, Carman Ryckman, Leslie Faulkner, Fred Kellar, Gladys Johnson, Merlyn Vandusen, Louis Aulthouse, J. The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Poland

A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Polish Descen

The great Canadian Family is comprised of peoples of various racial origins. From the blending of the cultural heritages brought from these many lands, Canada derives much of her strength and vitality.

The tragic history of Poland, once the largest and most powerful state in Europe, has resulted in the migration of tens of thousands of Poles to Canada, seeking freedom and security. Unquenched by centuries of oppression, they have retained an individuality, all the more notable, now that the have attained that freedom here.

The Poles, with their innate lov of music, have produced famous musicians as Chopin Paderewski. Their engineering ski was personified in Casimir Stanislau Gzowski, who engineered the origina International Bridge at Niagar In addition they have given Canad some of her best lawyers, doctor farmers and teachers, contributin much to Canada's progress.

Giant Canadian Cyrus S. Ching Heads U.S. Stabilization Board

[illegible]AMES MARLOW

Sucking on a pipe, his iron-grey hair mussed, he's 74, weighs 230 pounds, stands six feet, seven inches.

President Truman recently appointed him chairman of the new wage stabilization board, a spot not likely to be very amusing for a man whose huge face always wears an amused and happy look.

Combat Inflation

Although he has plenty of savvy in labor relations, he'll probably need all of it if the government starts slapping controls on wages.

(Before it went home this year, Congress set up an economic program to combat inflation. This calls for an economic stabilization administrator and a wage stabilization board.

(If price controls are imposed by the government, wage controls have to be applied at the same time. Ching will be key man in wage controls.)

Ching was born at Red Point, P.E.I., but didn't like digging potatoes on his father's farm.

At 19 he headed west to make his fortune as a buyer for a fellow Islander handling farm productions. His duties carried him back and forth between Calgary and Edmonton. But he made no fortune.

In 1900 he was in Boston, driving a street-car. He began learning some labor lessons there, watching relations between the car men and the company.

He seemed to do all right. He drove cars by day, studied law by night, got a law degree from Northeastern University, was made an assistant to the president of the company in charge of personnel problems.

Become U.S. Citizen in 1909

He became a U.S. citizen in 1909, but he loves Canada's Maritime Provinces. Every summer he spends some time with fellow Americans of the Tobique River Salmon Club in Northern New Brunswick and visits boyhood cronies at a Lodge founded many years ago on the Murray River in Prince Edward Island.

In 1919 he went to work for the U.S. Rubber Company. Did pretty well there, too. Started in on labor relations, in time became director of labor and public relations, and kept the job until 1947.

Meanwhile he filled a lot of jobs for the government.

While in one of these government jobs—as a member of a special board investigating the coal dispute in 1948—Ching received special attention from that well known acid-penman, John L. Lewis.

Said Lewis of Ching: "In attendance is Ching, a truly remarkable man, who sees through the eyes of United States rubber".

This seems not to have wiped the grin off Ching's face. Not all labor leaders have the same acid feeling toward him, so it's said.

On Advisory Council

From 1925 to 1931, and since 1940, he has been a member of the advisory council on Industrial Relations of the National Industrial Conference Board.

In the 1933 depression year he was a business member of the National Regional Labor Board of the National Recovery Administration.

President Roosevelt in 1941 appointed him a member of the National Defence Mediation Board.

In 1942 and 1943 he was a member of the National War Labor Board. (Among other things, as a member of the National Association of Manufacturers, he was on the N.A.M.'s Immigration committee in 1933.)

Not all his jobs for the government—while he still retained his connections with U.S. Rubber—are listed here.

But in August, 1947, President Truman made him director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, which has the job of trying to get management and labor to settle their disputes without strikes or lockouts.

And in that job he has had to pour oil on some of the most troubled waters in America's Labor-management history.

When labor trouble started, they had to ring for Ching.

Now in his new job he has a new chance to rise—although, sitting down, he seems later than most men standing up—and shine.

PEI TO HELP FARMERS

Toronto, Oct. 30 — (CP) — Prince Edward Island farmers can take a special plane to the Royal Winter Fair here Nov. 14-22 — with a round-trip fare of $50.

Premier J. Walter Jones of Prince Edward Island said here today that his government will pay part of the cost of the flights. The plane is to make several trips during the fair.

"I'd like as many of our agriculturists as possible to attend Canada's greatest agricultural show," said the premier, who last week sold some of his prize-winning Holstein cattle here.

EIGHT SAVED OUT OF 20

A lifeboat containing survivors of the North Voyageur, which sank off Newfoundland is shown being hoisted aboard the U.S. coast guard cutter Sorrel. The lifeboat contained eight survivors and it is thought that nine to 12 lives were lost in the sinking. The survivors were taken to Argentia. The sunken vessel had been on a run from Philadelphia to Newfoundland with a cargo of coal, and had been leaking since leaving port. — Central Press Canadian.

THEIR MOTHER WAS FOUND DEAD

One of the nerve-shattering sights that met British-Aussie troops along the road to Pyongyang, was this infant and her older sister, tearfully sitting near the body of their mother in a ditch along the roadside. The two bewildered children, unable to understand the tragedy that had befallen them, protested in the only way they knew when the soldier took them to shelter. — Central Press Canadian.

ARREST FIVE JUVENILES

Whitby, Oct. 30 (CP)—Chief of Police Ron Love said storekeepers should be prosecuted for selling youngsters cigaret lighters and wrist watches without finding out where they got the money. He made the statement after picking up five juveniles, averaging eight years old, and charged one with stealing $50 and the others with receiving stolen goods. He said they all had watches and some had lighters.

North Atlantic Pact Military Leaders Go Into Extra Session To Finish Plans for Defence

Approve Decision To Proclaim New Dogma

By FRANK BRUTTO

Vatican Cit, Oct. 30—(AP)— more than 500 cardinals and bishops approved today the Pope's decision to proclaim the bodily assumption of the Virgin Mary into heaven as a dogma of the Roman Catholic Church.

The dignitaries—35 cardinals, including James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto, and more than 500 bishops from all parts of the world—signified their assent to the papal decision, at a great consistory after the pontiff outlined his reasons for his action.

The Pope told the assemblage the proclamation on Wednesday of the dogma will "fill. . . the whole Catholic world with unspeakable joy."

After the belief that the Virgin Mary ascended bodily into heaven is proclaimed at the most important ceremony of the 1950 Holy Year, every Catholic must accept it without question or expose himself to the sin of heresy.

British Families Expect More Food At Christmas Time

London — (CP) — This will be the closest to a ration-free Christmas that Britain has enjoyed since 1940, but many old food favorites will still be missing.

Butchers are already predicting that pork will be hard to get. They probably won't have enough even for regular customers. Although the present meat ration is only 23 cents weekly.

Turkeys are still scarce and other shortages are sugar, butter, eggs, tea and bacon. Housewives making their own puddings and cakes will have a hard time finding raisins, mincemeats and candied peel.

But the ministry of food has just lifted the four-pound weight restriction on confectioner's cakes. Shoppers now can order any size of cake, iced and decorated, paying the controlled price of three shillings ninepence a pound.

Other welcome changes are the large quantity of Christmas puddings, by reputable manufacturers, already lining the shelves, and, for the first Christmas in years, cookies of all kinds are off ration and in quantity.

Canned Foods Help

A pleasant surprise this year will be a large variety of canned prepared foods, off ration for the first Christmas since France was invaded in 1940. Most are French, Danish, Dutch, Belgian or Polish, but there also are canned corncobs, corn kernels and other delicacies from Canada and the United States.

Canned fruits generally are in ample supply but canned peaches, pears and pineapple still make only rare appearance on the shelves.

To amplify the scanty meat ration there are cooked Dutch chickens canned whole, price 10s 9d., and tins of cooked ham weighing anything from 16 ounces to 10 pounds and priced at an average of 9s 6d. a pound.

Stranded in Fog

Brockville, Oct. 30. (CP)—More than 100 Canadians were stranded in the United States last night when the ferry running between Brockville and Morristown, N.Y., was unable to make its last two scheduled trips across the St. Lawrence river because of heavy fog.

Many Canadians who had planned on taking either of the ferry trips drove home by the Thousand Island bridge, 21 miles to the west, but others were forced to remain in hotels and boarding houses in the U.S., returning home on the first boat today.

TORONTONES WIN

Toronto, Oct. 30 (CP)—The Torontones, a local quartet, won the Ontario district finals of the Society for the Preservation and Encouraging of Barber-Shop-Quartet-Singing of America Saturday night. Entries from Hamilton, London, Brantford, Guelph and Sarnia competed.

Washington, Oct. 31—(AP) — Military leaders of Atlantic Pact countries went into an extra session today in an effort to work out the final form for organizing a mutual defence force in western Europe.

Apparently prolonged discussion of the much-debated proposal for German participation in the plan had delayed the work of the defence committee, preventing scheduled termination of the meeting last night.

The committee recessed after six hours of sessions yesterday. No communique was issued. A spokesman said only the conferees would gather again this morning.

The foreign defence ministers —including Brooke Claxton of Canada—and the military chiefs of staff of the 12 North Atlantic powers had been scheduled to start out today on a three-day tour of some of the United States' technical military centres. The trip was put over until Friday.

A secrecy that surpasses even the military security of a wartime combat operation has been thrown around the meetings of the defence committee. All persons who have anything to do with the sessions, including defence ministers themselves, obviously have been enjoined to say nothing.

Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell of Britain gave a talk at the National Press Club yesterday. He prefaced his reading of a prepared address by explaining that:

"For reasons of—shall I say accuracy—it has been thought advisable by my advisers that I should confine myself to notes."

Then he smiled and waded into his printed speech.

Shinwell, during his speech and in answering a few questions afterward, did say that "solid progress" had been made in creating a security force. But he did not expand on that comment.

Says Medical Men Should Be On Hospital Boards

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) — Dr. N. E. Berry of Kingston, said today that medical men should be included on hospital boards, because some doctors now are inclined to think of hospitals as workshops provided for their use.

"As governors of the hospital, they would have a better appreciation of the whole problem of hospital administration," said Dr. Berry, president of the Medical Staff of Kingston General Hospital.

The question was aired during an Ontario Hospital Association panel discussion on "the relationship between trustees and medical staff." Others who took part were Arthur L. Davies, chairman of the Kingston General Hospital Board of Governors, and fraser Armstrong, superintendent of Kingston General Hospital.

On Way to Draft Board, Pounces Upon Bandit

New York, Oct. 31 — (AP)— It was a busy day for Alfred Green-Lanus, in the service of his city and his country.

Early yesterday, two gunmen dashed out of a bar, exchanging a half dozen shots with police as they fled with $50 loot.

Green-Lanus, 23, a slight, 135-pound, British - born American, spotted one of the bandits crouching behind a parked car. Employing an old rugby tackle, he dove atop the man and held him until police took over.

Several hours later, Green-Lanus reported to the army induction centre to answer a draft call.

John Boettinger Plunges to Death

New York, Oct. 31—AP—John Boettiger, 50, former son-in-law of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, plunged to his death today from the seventh floor of an exclusive Manhattan hotel.

Police said he had been in a depressed state of mind for several days and was under the care or a male nurse.

They said he awakened this morning, asked to have the window opened wide, and then hurled himself out.

Boettiger, a life-long newspaper man, was the divorced husband of the late president's only daughter, the former Anna Roosevelt Dall, mother of Sistie and Buzzie Dall.

Boettiger and Anna had one child of their own before the divorce, John Boettiger Jr.

Boettiger was a political reporter for the Chicago Tribune assigned to cover Roosevelt's second campaign tour when he met the president's daughter.

The romance blossomed quickly. Boettiger left the Tribune, and after the marriage became publisher of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, one of the Hearst papers.

He left Seattle during the war to serve in the American Military government overseas, and after the war returned to Seattle without resuming his publishing position.

He and his wife were divorced two years ago. Boettiger later married Virginia Daly Lunn of Phoenix, Ariz.

Boettiger, who lately had been connected with the Park Avenue public relations firm of Theodore Swanson Company, was staying at the Hotel Weylin.

Police said that last Sunday Boettiger took an overdose of sleeping medicine, and had been revived by a physician, who assigned the male nurse to watch him.

Mrs. Anna Boettiger, who had not remarried, is living in California.

SENTENCED IN YUGOSLAVIA

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 31— (AP) — A Yugoslav district court yesterday sentenced to prison 13 persons charged with having plotted the overthrow of Premier Marshal Tito's government. The prison terms range from five to 15 years. Two defendants are acquitted.

Health Minister Suggests Plan to Enable Hospitals To Trim Operating Costs

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) —A unit plan to enable hospitals to trim operating costs was suggested Monday by Dr. MacKinnon Phillips, a country doctor from Owen Sound district who recently became Ontario's Minister of Health.

The plan calls for five units which would enable patients to be dispersed in accordance with their needs. Thus chronically-ill patients could be sent to a unit designed to meet their needs at reasonable cost, instead of to bed in a general hospial where maintenance costs are high.

Under the plan, which Dr. Phillips put for discussion at a meeting of the Ontario Hospital Association, the first unit would be a general hospital with outpatient department, costing perhaps $12,000 a bed and with maintenance costs of $10 to $12 a patient a day.

It would have operating rooms, delivery rooms, X-ray department, laboratory services, blood bank and physiotherapy department.

The second unit costing $6,000 a bed and operated at a cost of $5, a patient a day, would be a rehabilitation hospital where persons who had undergone treatment could go for convalescence.

The third unit, to cost $4,000 a bed to build and $2 a patient a day, would work in conjunction with the provincial department of health and welfare. It would be a home for the aged, a hospital for the incurable and a centre for treatment of handicapped persons.

Only Four Needed

The fourth unit of which only three or four would be needed in Ontario, would be a hospital attached to a university.

The fifth unit would be the patient's own home, in which some of the treatment given in hospitals could be administered.

Thus, most cities of 10,000 or 15,000 persons or more could afford the first three units of the plan and reduce the over-all cost of services.

(A health department official estimated that operating cost of all public hospitals in Ontario has risen from $13,000,000 in 1939 to $51,000,000 n 1949. In 1939, there were about 150 public hospitals in the province compared with about 170 today).

Dr. Phillips said that during he same period the number of Ontario residents receiving hospital care rose from 298,000 to 600,000 and the number of persons employed in hospitals from 13,000 to 25,000. Also during that time, costs advanced by 371 per cent while municipal grants were increased 54 percent.

Reams of Foolscap Used in Old Days In Running Army

Washington, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Take the Smithsonian Institution's word for it, there is little new about paper work in running an army.

British military commanders used up reams of foolscap just handling the Indian situation in the American colonies.

A canvass of the historical collection known as the Loudoun papers, comprising the "vast" correspondence of John Campbell, fourth Earl of Loudoun, while he was commander of all British forces in North America, proved the point, the Institution reported yesterday.

Loudoun's letters dealt largely with his attempts to win over Eastern Indian tribes to Britain after Gen. Braddock's defeat near Fort Duquesne in 1775.

"Considering that all letters were copied by hand by military scribes, it took proportionately as much paper work to run an army then as now," the Smithsonian said.

Traffic Deaths In U.S. Appear Highest Since '41

Chicago, Oct. 31 — (AP) Traffic deaths in the United States this year appear headed for the highest mark since 1941 — a toll of 35,000 — says the National Safety Council. Traffic fatalities for the nine months this year were 24,580, an increase of 11 per cent over last year, the council said.

Safety First Is Cited For Reckless Driving

Long Beach, Calif., Oct. 31 — (AP)— Motorcycle officer Robert E. Cleveland ordered a car to the curb after the driver made a left turn at an intersection without an arm signal.

Cleveland asked the driver his name. The reply didn't satisfy him. So he checked the motorist's licence and registration slip. Cleveland was finally convinced.

The driver's name actually is "Safety First." He was cited for reckless driving.

$164,386 Profit Made by Gardens In Past Year

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) — Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., last night reported net profit of $164,386, equal to $1.12 a share, for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31. This compares with $165,531, or $1.12 a share, for the previous year. Operating profit totalled $334,932, as against $339,585.

Current assets of $365,818 and current liabilities of $315,650 indicated net working capital of $50,168 at Aug. 31, up slightly from last year, President Conn Smythe reported.

Net revenues from hockey, boxing, wrestling and arena rentals were higher, Mr. Smythe said, but the increases were offset by lower receipts from skating attractions and higher building costs.

Raw and Rugged Political Campaign Being Conducted By Both Parties in New York

New York, Oct. 31. (CP)—New York, always a stormy political centre, has erupted with a raw, rugged campaign for the Nov. 7 elections.

Charges of graft, corruption and political "pay-offs" have highlighted the campaign to such an extent that one New York City newspaper said a poll showed voters were weary of mud-slinging and name calling.

At stake is the state governorship, one Senate seat, the important post of New York City mayor, 45 House of Representatives' seats, the State Legislature, and numerous lesser offices.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, twice-defeated Republican presidential nominee seeking his third term as governor, is apposed by a long-time Democratic regular, representative Walter A. Lynch. The senatorial race pits Democratic incumbent Herbert H. Lehman against the Republican nominee, Lieutenant-Governor Joe R. Hanley, aging veteran of 24 years in the state political ring.

The Republicans, led by Dewey, accuse "Tammany crooks" of harboring a vast police graft and gambling setup, recently exposed in New York City.

The now-famous and hotly-debated "Hanley Letter" has provided the Democrats with most of their election ammunition to fire at the Republicans, pictured as tools of Wall Street interests.

Started Months Ago

The story of the Hanley letter starts several months ago. Dewey announced his retirement from politics and Hanley was promised the nomination for governorship. But Dewey was "drafted" to run for a third term.

When Hanley withdrew from the governorship race in favor of Dewey he wrote a letter to a Republican leader saying he had received "unalterable propositions" which would enable him to pay his debts within 90 days if he agreed to run for the Senate instead.

The four-man New York City mayoralty race has been turned into a seething campaign by the candidacy of Acting-Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri, bucking the regular Democrats — Tammany Hall.

Shortly after he took over from O'Dwyer, a Brooklyn grand jury which had been investigating graft—O'Dwyer once termeds it a witch hunt—reported a $1,000,000-a-year-pay-off to police by bookmakers. This led to the shakeup in the city's police.

Other candidates for the mayoralty are Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, the regular Democratic candidate; Edward Corsi, state industrial commissioner, Republican, and Paul Ross, American Labor party.

TWO COPS ACCUSED

Rockland, Me., Oct. 31 — (AP) — Two policemen were accused last night of robbing main street stores while on duty in the police prowl car. Chief Bernard Thompson said two patrolmen had been arrested on breaking, entering and larceny charges. More than $500 worth of furnishings and clothing were found in the men's homes, the chief said.

Rev. R.J.D. Morris Guest Speaker At St. John's Church

Last Sunday the Rev. R. J. D. Morris, secretary of Church, School and Youth Work of the Missionary and Maintenance Department of the United Church, Toronto, was the guest speaker at St. John's United Church, Tweed, and spoke to a large congregation. At 10 o'clock he spoke to the Sunday School.

Mr. Morris has been spending the week in the Belleville Presbytery and has been creating great interest among the people. He said in his remarks that "opportunities for expansion were to be seen in four departments of the church's work—in home missions, in Christian education, in evangelism and social service."

"We need to recognize the fact that 'this is my Father's world', in which we are called to be about our Father's business."

Barbara Caldwell read the Scripture lesson from the 6th chapter of St. Mark. Mrs. Garrison, teacher of the Junior room, gave a reading "This is the Year We Explore Japan." Ruth Angenine read a story, "Boys of the Bible," and Mrs. Phillips, teacher of the Senior grades, told a story about a "Hallowe'en Heroine."

The Men's Club of Saint Margaret's-on-the-Hill Church, Belleville, met and were entertained at Holy Trinity Church rectory by the rector, Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Caldwell, on Friday evening.

The Guild of Holy Trinity Church met at the home of Mrs. John Kent on Thursday evening, with 13 members present.

In the absence of the secretary, splendid reports were given by the president, Mrs. Sidney Fitzgerald. At the close of the business meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was spent over the tea cups.

Rev. Ernest Caldwell attended the Deanery meeting held in Belleville on Thursday.

Mr. George Campbell, who was an old resident of this village, is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

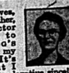
Mr. Frank Smith and Mrs. Margaret Smith were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Arbuckle, Belleville, on Wednesday evening.

Little Terry Stolicker had the misfortune to fall on the street causing slight concussion and he was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Arthur Culloden, Belleville, spent the weekend with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McKenzie.

Messrs. Alfred Uens and James Kent of Toronto were weekend guests at their homes here.

HARSH LAXATIVE USER FINDS HELP



"Harsh laxatives, one after another, until my doctor advised me to add KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN to my daily diet. It's amazing, but I haven't needed a laxative since!" Mrs. J. A name to endure

Ontario

The Iroquois called it Kanadario . . . "sparkling water."

On Canada's first Dominion Day, in 1867, the newly-created Province of Ontario (previously Upper Canada) took its enduring name from the lake which bounds much of its shore.

Rich in mineral resources, Ontario has become a foremost supplier of the world's gold and the leading source of nickel. Yet her natural wealth today lies barely tapped . . . a huge fund for the future. Rich, too, in promise and in accomplishment, are the rolling farmlands and thriving industrial cities which have contributed much to Ontario's stature.

Today Ontario is on the threshold of tremendous development. As in the past, when guided by the wisdom of her pioneers, Ontario prepares to fulfill her part in Canada's future.

The Future Belongs to those who Prepare for It

Maritimes Artist Widely Acclaimed In New York Show

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York (CP)—Miller Brittain, Saint John artist whose religious paintings have been given wide acclaim in Canada, has won plaudits for his recent one-man showing in New York.

The New Brunswick-born and educated painter, once called the "Breugnel of Canada", because of the satirical drawings he produced, found favor with Manhattan's hard-bitten critics whose daily job demands that they see the work of thousands of artists good and bad—mostly the latter.

The Art Digest, semi-monthly "Bible" of the American Art World, said Brittain is an artist of "vision and sensitivity."

"...he achieves a harmony of color impression and strong personal expression...(with) paintings vital in spiritual content and often atmosphere in quality," the Digest said.

These words summed up the critical opinion—both professional and non-professional—of the hundreds of New Yorkers who came to see the Canadian's refreshing approach to modern realism. Though dealing basically in religious themes, Brittain avoids the over-religious and sentimental.

Working in egg tempera, his themes rang from deeply tragic single figures—"and God made the two great lights" "Samson"—to strikingly contrasting groups—the return of the Prodigal Son," "Christ Stilling the Waves."

Notable War Record

The 37-year-old artist turned to religious themes after returning from service with the R.C.A.F. Prior to that he reached artistic fame for a series of satiric works of local life which cut through all classes of society.

Winner of the Distinguished Flying Cross after 37 bombing flights over Germany, Brittain was appointed a war artist after his tour of operations. Here for the first time he was able to work full time at his metier, not having to support himself—as he had done in the '30s—by working at various odd jobs ranging from inspecting pile - drivers to collecting bills.

Upon his discharge in 1946, Brittain began developing an intuitive style which he had felt growing in him during the war years. Not influenced by contemporary trends in non-objectivity, he felt his work grow from an inner conviction that manifested itself first in non-objective daubing with shapes and colors and then allowing the forms to emerge "as they will."

Beginning his paintings without a definite idea has allowed for a use of color which is striking and basically emotional rather than realistic. Rich harmonies create powerful effects and his sensitivity to color seems to create a new dimension in his works.

Most striking were his portrayals of Christ in many of the 20 canvasses shown here. Unlike the classical almost-vapid treatments of Christ, the Brittain paintings show him as a man of great strength as background to his humility, love and understanding.

ALMOST A MARINE AT AGE THIRTEEN

A sudden "How old are you?" from an officer in a U.S. Marine camp got a "Thirteen, sir," reply from Pte. Eugene Erickson, six feet tall and looking every inch the 17 he'd said he was. So here he is, packing to go back to school. — Central Press Canadian.

Ottawa Woman Has Been Mising For Nearly Month

North Bay, Oct. 31—CP—City and Ontario Provincial police are looking for a 31-year-old Ottawa woman last heard of here earlier this month.

Yvette Newton of Ottawa, left her home Sept. 26. She escorted a blind nephew to a Brantford school and went on to enjoy a travelling holiday. She had $500 in cash when she left Ottawa, police said.

Police said that Mrs. Newton forwarded letters and cards to her husband from different points until Oct. 8 when he received a card from North Bay informing him that she was enjoying her holiday and would write more fully shortly.

"Since that date," Ottawa police said Monday, "no word has been received here from her."

OSHAWA MAN WINS APPEAL

Toronto, Oct. 31 — (CP) — William Mulholland of Oshawa won his appal Monday from a conviction on a charge that he broke into the Oshawa post office. Mr. Justice W. D. Roach dissented.

Mulholland had been sentenced to six months determinate and 3 months indeterminate.

W. B. Common, counsel for the Crown, said later he was considering an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

People of Seoul Appear Content Amid Ruins Such as Few Cities Knew

By O. H. P. KING

Seoul, Oct. 31 — (AP) —This capital city of Korea today is an enigma. Its people appear contented amid ruins such as few cities even in the path of war know.

Shots still ring out at night—and there is no explanation, only speculation. Business is moribund. The wheels of industry are idle, too many cogs are missing.

The communists abducted them—the technicians, mechanics and artisans on whose skills a city depends for its modern comforts.

Ruin and devastation sit on the city like an oppressive monarch.

The vast majority of business buildings are nothing but four walls, gutted by communist-set fires or burned out by allied air and ground fire.

A photo shop is open for business but without film or printing paper.

Nearby is a glass shop—with glassless windowpanes.

Plastered on the wall of a ruined building is a poster: "Hail to the victory of U.N. forces."

There is a hustle and bustle in the streets, but it is the stirring of restless people, not the tides and eddies of business activity.

Most merchants whose stores are open lack stocks and customers. They cannot make plans in the confusion that swirls in the wake of war.

Everything is not dead. Sidewalk vendors are plentiful. Their stands are stocked with cigarets, chewing gum, candy and other items of unmistakable origin—the U.S. armed forces.

United Nations officials, U.S. State Department representatives, economic co-operation administration workers and military officers are seeking to restore the Korean economy.

But progress is slow; the pessimistic say it will be 20 years before Seoul returns to her pre-war condition.

Nevertheless, the citizens appear to be cheerful.

There is rice for today and enough for tomorrow and the next day. Perhaps there will be enough to last through the winter and into late spring.

Experts See 1951 Bad Hopper Year For Saskatchewan

Regina,—(CP)— Saskatchewan farmers have been warned that 1951 may be a bad grasshopper year.

The provincial department of agriculture says infestation by the stubble grasshopper, voracious enemy of grain crops, probably will be worse than in the last two seasons.

The Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Saskatoon says an extensive anti-grasshopper campaign will be required in a large part of the province. Its preliminary forecast map shows bad outbreaks can be expected through much of central and southern Saskatchewan.

Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollet said the stubble grasshopper, which lays its eggs in stubble fields, is more easily controlled by proper farming practice than by poisoning.

Shallow fall tillage is recommended, he said. During the last two years, severe damage had been done in infested fields sown to crop. Farmers should study egg infestation in their fields so they could tell whether it was safe to seed next spring.

The entomological laboratory made its preliminary estimate on a survey of the number of full-grown grasshoppers during July and August. A final forecast will be issued after a survey of grasshooper eggs is completed.

First egg-survey reports indicated the preliminary estimate is about right, at least for central and south-central Saskatchewan.

The laboratory said the roadside grasshopper, found along the roads and in fields in some areas, seems less numerous than in 1949.

Heaviest 1951 infestation in southwestern Saskatchewan is expected in the same areas as this year: KincailGlentworth, Hodgeville-Coderre, Shaunavon-Swift Current-Pondeix, Leader, Cabri and Abbey.

In south central and southeastern Saskatchewan, grasshoppers were worse in 1950 than in 1949, though the infested area was smaller. Parts of these districts may have "very severe" infestation in 1951, the laboratory said.

Moderate to severe infestation can be expected in some parts of central Saskatchewan, it added. The stubble grasshopper had become more troublesome. Some very severe infestation areas had been found in grass pastures around sloughs, on ditch and creek banks and through stubble fields.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

READY [illegible] GO

[illegible]hone on the sports desk shrilled.

[illegible] sports bloke shoved back his toupee, the large economy size, scowled at three creditors who were waiting, and squeaked, "Yeah?" into the transmitter.

"Hey, mister" came a high-pitched voice over the wire, "You runnin' a hockey team this winter?"

It beats all what the bi-monthly haircut will do to a fellow's appearance. Then, too, the little lady had our other suit pressed on account of Mr. Salarow's weekend sojourn in the city. Young Peter had worked a shine miracle on the ancient army "Kitcheners", and we had selected, by accident, a better hat than the rusty chapeau we bought during the war, from the variety suspended in our favorite barber shop on the occasion of the tonsorial operation.

To the average eye, the transformation was far from being one of opulence. The weekend, after a date or two with those attractive maidens who play "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle" on chainstore cash registers, and a distinct yen for Doug. Locke's "missionary's downfalls," had reduced the family wallet to a state of flatness comparable to the under belly of a sole.

Yet something must have happened. Or why the three creditors and the moppet idea that we had been converted to a Conny Smythe, or any other hockey chain owner?

In any event, the call was but one of several. Other messages via the wire brought queries as to whether the speakers could "git a place on one of the teams". In fact a fond parent has voiced her query over the telephone wanting to know if we could do anything about her hockey - playing Syl Apps in-the-making, who is anxious to get a spot on a minor team.

* * *

Then it dawned on us that the telephone calls had nothing to do with our financial status. The creditors were purely incidental. What happened is this: Ice is in the making in Memorial Arena. The hockey urge is beginning to flame in youthful breasts. Skating feet are becoming itchy. Hockey is around the corner, and youthful Belleville is anxious and rarin' to go.

* * *

And thanks to the minor hockey division of the Belleville Hockey Association and its sponsors, it won't be long before the Arena air is resounding to the excitement and noise of Belleville youth on skates.

THE B. H. A. HOCKEY PICTURE

No so long ago, hockey-wild moppets were forced to resort to dangerous stretches of ice on the bay, or any place where there was ice. True a few kid - minded citizens attempted to operate an open - air rink on the harbor which met with some degree of success. But the youngsters played willy-nilly — and there was no semblance of organization.

* * *

Last year, foresighted B. H. A. directors and executive members realised the need for organization among the minor ranks of the city. They lost no time. Practically overnight a four - team bantam League was formed. Midget and juvenile teams were organized. Upwards of 500 hockey - crazy kids "ganged" the Arena in an effort to "make" the respective squads. But many were disappointed.

* * *

Realizing the need for expansion, the B. H. A. officials extended their activities this season. Sponsors co-operated. And as a result some 234 youngsters, exclusive of the juniors, will be playing organized hockey.

* * *

The coaching, administration and operation of fourteen hockey teams is not, by any stretch of the imagination, a sinecure. It calls for hard work, and sacrifice of time and effort, not to mention finances.

* * *

The executive, directors, coaches and anyone connected with the operation of the Belleville Hockey Association do not receive one cent of remuneration. Their reward is in the development of young hockey players and what this development means to them, to hockey and to Belleville.

* * *

The B. H. A. is doing a grand community job along youth lines. And its efforts are worthy of all the support, financial, moral and otherwise that hockey fandom in particular and the city in general can give it.

ONE POINT AHEAD

Minneapolis, Oct. 31 (AP) — Bruce Giesebrecht of the Omaha Knights drew one point ahead of Cal Stearns of Kansas City in the race for scoring honors in the United States Hockey League last week.

Giesebrecht scored two goals and aided in another to boost him to nine points. Stearns didn't score any goals but assisted in two to give him eight points.

Jack Giesebrecht of Denver was tied with his brother, Bruce, for the most goals scored, each with six, Jack also has one assist.

FORT ERIE WINS

Brantford, Oct. 30 — (CP) — The Fort Erie Club won the Ontario Baseball Association intermediate B crown here Saturday defeating Listowel Legionnaires, 5-2, in a third and sudden death game for the title. Both teams had won their home games and could not agree on a home diamond so chose Brantford.

Maurice Richard Top Scorer In National Loop

Montreal, Oct. 31 — (CP — Maurice Richard of Montreal Canadians has pulled ahead in the National Hockey League individual scoring race.

The hard-shooting right winger scored three goals last week to bring his total to seven goals and three assists for 10 points in nine games. Behind the Rocket are Gordie Howe of Detroit and veteran Max Bentley of Toronto.

Howe has five goals and three assists for eight points while Bentley has two goals and six assists. Bentley's six assists leads the circuit in that department.

Tied with seven points in fourth spot are Tod Sloan of Toronto Maple Leafs who slipped from a first place tie with Richard last week, and teammate Ted Kennedy. Sloan's record of four goals and three assists is unchanged from last week.

Seven players then are grouped with six points: Vic Stasiuk, Chicago; Floyd Curry, Montreal; Sid Smith, Toronto; Cal Gardner, Toronto; Ted Lindsay, Detroit; Calum MacKay and Ken Mosdell, both of Montreal.

Toronto with five victories and two ties for 12 points stands atop the team standings after winning two and tying one last week. The Leafs have scored most goals—25. One point behind is Montreal with four wins and three ties. Detroit has four victories and one tie for nine points while Chicago Black Hawks are fourth with two wins and two ties.

New York Rangers are in fifth place with one victory and three ties for five points while the winless Boston Bruins are last with three ties.

Jack Gelineau, in his sophomore year with Boston, and Terry Sawchuk Detroit's rookie sensation, lead the league's goalies with a 1.71 average. Both have allowed 12 goals in seven games.

Turk Broda of the Maple Leafs has the most shutouts—three, followed by rookie Gerry McNeil of Canadiens with two.

Gelineau, Sawchuk and Chuck Rayner of New York each has one goose-egg while Chicago's Harry Lumley is without one.

Boston's rugged defenceman Fern Flaman continues to be the league's "badman" with 35 minutes in the penalty box in seven games—a five minute per game average.

Montreal is the most penalized team with 116 minutes.

LEAVE FOR JAPAN

San Francisco, Oct. 31 — (AP) —Joe DiMaggio, the great New York Yankee outfielder, and Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, manager of the San Francisco Seals, left by plane last night for Japan.

It will be the first trip to Japan for DiMaggio and the seventh for O'Doul. O'Doul will conduct baseball clinics and DiMaggio will show off some of his hitting power.

NEPHISTO CHANGES HANDS

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) —Nephisto, who brought the highest price—$10,700—at last week's dispersal sale of Col. R. S. McLaughlin's Parkwood Racing Stables, changed hands again yesterday.

Mrs. Arthur Brent, wife of Parkwood's trainer, obtained the three-year-old at a private sale from the Three V's Stable. Sale price was not disclosed.

Trenton High Wallops Picton By 31-0 Score

Picton, Oct. 31 — Trenton High School ran their unbeaten streak to four games when they walloped Picton High School, 31-0, in a Bay of Quinte League senior football fixture played. The win assured Trenton of at least a tie for the league crown. A win in either of their two remaining games will clinch the title.

Special Delivery Jones Far Ahead In Scoring Race

Toronto, Oct. 31—CP—Canadian football fans can see at a glance why Edgar Jones picked up the "Special Delivery" nickname when he played with the professional Cleveland Browns in the United States.

Statistics compiled by the Canadian Press show that Jones has delivered 102 points for Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 11 games in the Big Four football union this season and has virtually clinched the union's individual scoring title.

With one more scheduled game to play, Jones has a 32-point lead over his closest rival, Ulysses Curtis, Negro half from Florida A. and M. who plays with Toronto Argonauts. Curtis —like Jones, a first year man in Canadian football—has 70 points on 14 touchdowns. Third place is held by Virgil Wagner of Montreal Alouettes with 60 points. Wagner, who comes from Belleville, Ill., is in his fifth season with Alouettes.

Jones got 18 points Saturday against the Alouettes. He has already shattered the Big Four scoring record of 77 points set last year by Wagner.

High Canadian is Nick Volpe, defensive half with the Argos, who has 43 points on 40 converts and one field goal. He is in fifth place.

Johnny Chorostecki of Sarnia Imperials won the scoring championship of the Ontario Rugby Football Union's three year senior group which wound up its schedule at the weekend.

Chorostecki, native of the Sudbury area, scored 85 points in eight games. His total set a union record.

An American import from North Carolina State College, Carl Galbreath, wound up second with 54 points for Toronto Balmy Beach.

Bill Haddleton of Balmy Beach took third spot with 35 points.

In the Intercollegiate Union Bob McFarlane of University of Western Ontario Mustangs, pulled out into the leadership with an 11-point showing Saturday for a total of 29, four more than Fred Wilmot, Calgary product with McGill Redmen. The two were tied a week ago. Harry Irving and Ken Wagner of McGill share third place with 15 points apiece.

SWIM TO SAFETY

Ringsiders Boo Decision Giving McFater Bout

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP) — Alan McFater, 19-year-old Toronto lightweight, won a split decision over Young Junior of Springfield Mass., in an eight-round boxing match here Monday night. Ringside observers termed it one of the worst home-town decisions in years. More than 3,000 fans in Maple Leaf Gardens roundly booed the verdict.

Observers figured that the 135-pound barrel-chested Negro, who lost an unpopular decision to McFater a month ago which cost him a New York bout at Madison Square Garden, won practically going away over the eight-round route.

The Canadian Press score card gave the American five rounds with only two—the fifth and eighth—to the 138-pound Toronto fighter. The seventh was about even.

Young Junior repeatedly beat McFater to the punch, chopped him with stiff lefts to the head and looping right-hand body smashes. He took McFater's Sunday punch—a smashing right to the midriff—and retaliated with lefts and rights that forced McFater to retreat.

McFater was installed four-to-one favorite by the ringside bettors and they were ready to pay off immediately the bell rang to end the fight. Crowds stormed the ringside loudly protesting the decision.

Zastre Defeated

Eddie Zastre of Winnipeg, who fights out of Montreal, lost the eight-round semi-final to Dan Moray, rugged Cleveland Negro. Moray at 177 3-4 pounds, had a nine-pound pull in the weights.

Gordon Wallace of Brantford, Ont., made an impressive debut in the pro ranks, scoring a technical knockout over Bobby Cedar of Troy, N.Y., after two minutes and 40 seconds of the second round of their scheduled six-round bout.

Wallace, former Canadian amateur middleweight champion who won 102 of 105 amateur fights, weighed 161 pounds, Cedar 155.

The 21-year-old Brantford product, who had fought more than 100 amateur bouts before last night, scored a knockdown in the first round and two more in the fourth before the fight was stopped.

Lebanese General Killed in Beyrouth

Beyrouth, Lebanon, Oct. 30 — (Reuters) — Gen Sami Hinnawi, who organized a coup d'etat in Syria last year, was shot and killed today at a streetcar stop here.

Police said the killer was Ahmed Barazi, cousin of the former prime minister, Mohsin Bey Barazi, who was executed on Gen. Hinnawi's orders after his coup d'etat.

Barazi fired three bullets into Hinnawi's heart and killed him almost instantly, the police said. He was arrested as he tried to run away.

Police said his motive was vengeance.

Ab Demarco Scoring Leader American Loop

New York, Oct. 31—AP—Led by veteran Ab Demarco, members of Buffalo Bisons continue to dominate the American Hockey League's individual scoring parade.

Demarco tops the field with 21 points on nine goals and 12 assists. Jackie Gordon of Cincinnati is second with 18 points and George Sullivan of Hershey is third with 17. Paul Meger and Walt Atanas of the Bisons are tied for fourth at 15 points. Grant Warwick of the Bisons, Springfield's Kelvin Burnett and Cincinnati's Fern Perreault are tied for sixth with 14 points each.

Demarco also leads the pack in goal-netting while Sullivan of Hershey leads the playmakers with 14 assists. Ray Gariepy of Hershey has spent the most time in the penalty box, 49 minutes.

Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh is the loop's top netminder. Mayer has allowed only 21 goals in nine games for a 2.33 mark. Ralph Almas of St. Louis, Emil (the cat) Francis of Cincinnati and rookie Al Millar of New Haven are tied for the lead in shutouts at one each.

McGill Winner Of Track Meet In Close Race

[illegible] Oct. 31 — (CP) — M[illegible]versity won the Ottawa-[illegible]awrence Valley Conference track and field championships Monday but when the points were tallied McGill knew it had had a battle from the hard-pressing cadets from Royal Military College, Kingston.

McGill scored 52 points while R. M. C. finished second with 42. Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., scored 28 points for third place. Ottawa's Carlton College finished fourth with 22 points and Sir George Williams College of Montreal fifth with 21 points.

Pappe Kiar of R. M. C., was easily the star of the meet with three firsts. He won the 100-yards dash in 10.6 seconds and 220-yards dash in 23.4 seconds and later ran in the No. 3 slot on the R. M. C. medley relay team which won in 3.51.3.

Others in the cadets medley relay foursome were Scott, S. Lundell and A. Tromanhauser.

R. Hinge of Carlton won the 440-yards dash in 53.2 while teammate P. MacCormack won the 880-yards in 2:10.9.

R. M. C. also took the mile and three mile events with Tromanhauser winning the mile in 4.50 and McDougall taking the three mile in 16:57.

McGill took five firsts and scored in all but two of the 15 events in the meet. R. M. C. also scored five firsts and six entries obtained points in the other events.

Carlton scored two firsts and five other point - winning places.

Kingston Player Bought by Saints

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 31 (AP)—St. Paul Saints of the United States Hockey League yesterday gained one player and lost two others.

The Saints announced they had purchased Ronald Plumb, 20-year old centre from New York Rangers. Plumb, a 175-pounder, played last season with Guelph Biltmores of the O.H.A.

Coach Clint Smith sent two forwards, star McClellan and Johnny Flynn to Atlantic City, N. J. Smith said he felt the Saints needed a bit more weight and that the two forwards were a bit small for the league.

King's Contract For Sale Says Blinky Palermo

(By The Canadian Press)

Anybody want to buy a fighter who is confident he can beat lightweight champion Ike Williams?

If so, Williams' manager has one for sale. Sound funny, Williams' manager selling the contract of a fighter who thinks he can lick the 135-pound champion?

Well, that's the way it is. Frank (Blinky) Palermo, manager of titleholder Williams wants to peddle his rights to Li'l Arthur King of Toronto, British Empire lightweight champion. This would give King his long awaited chance to meet Williams for the crown.

The law prohibits matches between boxers under the same manager. So Palermo is willing to step aside to give King his opportunity. It's not necessarily that Palermo is filled with Christmas spirt, for he doesn't think King has a chance against Williams.

"Ike and Arthur aren't in love with each other," Palermo said in discussing the boxing stablemates. "Even if they were, Ike would try to knock him out. He'd knock out his grandmother if she stood in his way. I'll bet on Williams if the two meet. Ike would win by a knockout despite the fact that that he has been losing a number of fights recently."

The showing of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Western Canada football this year would appear to testify to the ability of coach Frank Larson.

The former Minnesota all-American end brought the Bombers from the bottom of the league last year to a first-place finish this season.

But even that hasn't offset talk about whether he'll be back as coach next year.

Asked about a Winnipeg newspaper report that he might resign at end of the season, Larson said last night he hasn't "thought too much about next year," adding that he's "too busy trying to get the team in shape for the western finals."

Larson said it was true that he had let the lease run out on his St. Boniface home "due to the uncertainty of the situation" and that he hasn't discussed a new contract yet because "we've been so busy."—

Ray Famechon of France, European featherweight champion, scored an unpopular, 10-round split decision over Dick Howard of Halifax in the feature bout of a fight card at Montreal Forum last night. In Baltimore, Cesar Brion, young Argentine heavyweight who fights Joe Louis, scored a unanimous decision over Keene Simmons in a 10-rounder.

Eric Billington, one of the greatest kickers ever to perform on a Canadian gridiron, died Saturday of a heart attack in England it was learned from his friends.

Billington out-punted his rivals while playing with McGill University 1911-14. He was on two McGill championship teams in 1912 and 13.

A formidable field of efficient pros and amateurs including Stan Horne of Montreal and Bob Fair of Toronto, formed yesterday to chase down Samuel Jackson Snead in the North and South Open golf tournament at Pinehurst, N.C.

Jack Grount, a professional playing out of Columbus, O., shot a three-under par 69 to lead the qualifying field.

Horne, a pro, qualified with a 38-35—73 while Fair, an amateur made the grade with 36-40—76.

Strangely Mixed Baseball Diet For Meeting

Cincinnati, Oct. 31 (AP)—The future of major league baseball game broadcasts, the ambitions of the Pacific Coast League and the status of jobless Branch Rickey formed a strangely mixed baseball diet here today.

Officially it was to be a meeting of the major-minor league executive committee to consider what to do about major league broadcasts infringing on minor league territory.

That was on the docket today for the combined major-minor bosses.

Tomorrow baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler is to meet with representatives of the three Class AAA leagues—the Pacific Coast, the International and the American Association—for a discussion of the renewed request by the Pacific Coast loop to be excluded from baseball's draft.

That's where Rickey entered into the picture.

Rickey, left without any official baseball status after severing his connections with the Brooklyn Dodgers, said in St. Louis yesterday that he would be in there tomorrow to see some major league club owners. There was an element of mystery to the Mahatma's visit.

The first job to be tackled is that concerning radio broadcasts. Major league games now may be broadcasts in minor league cities only when the minor league team isn't playing at home or only with the consent of the minor league club.

Some minor league magnates have claimed their attendance is being hurt by broadcasts of major league contests which extend into their territory.

The Pacific Coast League request is an old one. The far westerners have been seeking for some time to have their players excluded from the major league draft. In return, club owners there say they'll refrain from drafting players from the lower minors.

The drive for exclusion from the draft generally has been considered as an opening move to gain recognition from that loop as a major league.

S.M.U's Unbeaten Mustangs No. 1 Team in States

New York, Oct. 31—AP—Southern Methodist's unbeaten Mustangs clung to their No. 1 rating among United States college football teams today as Ohio State vaulted from sixth to fourth and Miami, Princeton and Illinois squeezed into the top ten.

The Southwest Conference leader, despite a Saturday of idleness, remained the top choice of a majority of the 280 sports writers and sportscasters who voted in the fifth weekly Associated Press poll to determine the nation's outstanding team.

The Mustangs (5-0) grabbed 153 first place votes and accumulated 2,574 points to outdistance second place Army which notched 34 first place nominations and 2,184 points. Although the undefeated cadets walloped Columbia, 34-0, they gained 50 fewer first place votes than last week when they also were second.

Oklahoma retained its third place ranking by trampling Iowa State for its 26th consecutive victory but fifth place Kentucky (7-0) and sixth place California (6-0) dropped down a notch to make room for Ohio State. The Buckeyes, shooting for their second straight Big Ten Conference Championship, swamped Iowa 83-21.

Ohio State received 30 first place ballots to 25 for Oklahoma, but the Sooners had more seconds and thirds to amass 2,137 points to the Buckeyes' 1,822.

The heaviest voting in the 15 years of the poll also saw Kentucky pick up 17 first place votes, Miami 12, Clemson 3, California, Princeton and Wyoming two apiece.

Biggest jump was registered by Princeton. The Tigers leaped from nowhere a week ago to ninth by virtue of their surprising 27-0 victory over Cornell. Illinois was ranked 10th.

SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Come again to the pair of hands shown here:

SOUTH	NORTH
♠K Q 5 3	♠A 7
♥A Q J 4	♥6 5 2
♦A	♦8 6 3
♣A 7 5 4	♣K 10 6 3 2

The bidding went like this:

South	North
1 S	2 C
3 H	3 TN
4 NT	5 H
6 C	Pass

In answer to an opening one bid, responder passes if he has not more than two tricks. So, the first response by north promised three tricks. Notice then that south jumps to three hearts. Why?

A player who discovers 11 tricks in his pair signals his partner that they have enough for a game. The signal he uses is a jump bid. It matters not whether the jump is in a new suit or rebid suit.

With eight tricks in his own hand south sees 11 when north shows three. The jump forces north to bid again. All he needs do is select his bid from the order of choice: takeout, assist, notrump.

With no other biddable suits and clubs not rebiddable, north has no more takeouts. Lacking adequate support for either spades or hearts, north has no assist. The only bid left is notrump.

Do not be misled by this notrump bid. It does not indicate a desire to play at notrump. It denies having another takeout. Also it denies having support. It obeys the signal not to pass.

Four notrump is the ace and king showing and asking convention. It is used only when a player has discovered tricks enough for slam-try, knows what will be trump, holds two aces and a king or better.

South knows what will be trump. It will be clubs. He has good support for the suit his partner has bid. He wants to know the total number of aces and kings in their pair. Can you blame him?

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 31 — (AP)—Just when I feared that Hollywood was getting too serious, along comes Marie Windsor with her idea for a full-length sweater.

The whole nonsense began when Marie was starring with Jon Hall in a film called "Hurricane Island" recently. Since it was a Jon Hall picture, Marie was naturally expected to wear a sarong. She tried one on and balked.

"What's sarong with a sarong?" I asked, stifling a snicker.

"They're unattractive," she pouted. "When you get all wrapped up in one of those things, you bulge in the wrong places. They reveal too much and do nothing for a girl's figure or a man's imagination.

Art to Unravel

"Besides, they're impractical. Have you ever tried to swim in one? (I confessed I hadn't.) Well, you're apt to find the sarong unravelling out behind you. That happened to me once and I had to emerge from the water in a towel.

So in the picture Marie wears an off-the-shoulder silk outfit.

The sweater would do wonders for girls' figures, Marie declared.

"I don't believe that girls should reveal as much as they do in sarongs and some bathing suits. If you have certain attractions, I believe you should intimate the outline, rather than reveal. It is much more subtle."

Canada Good Bet In Industry Says German

Montreal, (CP)—A former member of the German Luftwaffe is convinced that Canada not only is a good industrial bet but a good place to educate his 13-year-old son.

Klaus Karpf arrived in Montreal recently to begin a business trip in Canada. He is head of a precision camera works in Munich. Ten years ago his factories and services were requisitioned by the German Air Force and he not only built aerial-photography equipment but personally made test flights to make sure the equipment was in good working order.

Later his home was burned and his factories smashed by Allied airmen. A prison term followed before he was cleared by a denazification court. In two years he had his factories back to pre-war production.

He said he thought it a good idea to settle German technicians in other countries "and if all goes well I may bring a few camera technicians to Canada and set up a factory here."

"I would like to send my son to Canada to go to school for a few years", he said also. "And in exchange I would take a Canadian boy of the same age and show him Europe and Germany."

Eagles, Petes Win Senior Group Openers

Peterborough hockey clubs got away to an auspicious start in the Senior OHA Group last night.

The Eagles, 1950 edition of the Legion team edged the Kingston Nylons 7-6 in Peterborough but it took a ten-minute overtime session to turn the trick.

In Kingston the Petes turned back the Queen's University squad by an 8-4 count.

The Nylons-Eagles game was all tied up a 6-6 at the end of regulation time, and an overtime session was ordered.

The Kingston management protested the move, but the OHA executive member Frank Buckland who was present ordered the overtime session played.

Madoc Defeats Marmora 16-15

Marmora — With a weakened team due to injuries Marmora High School rugby team met Madoc on the Deloro grounds on Friday evening to suffer defeat by the score of 16-5. Madoc team at full strength commenced to score halfway through the first quarter when Shadbolt got a touchdown. Marmora evened the score a few minutes later as P. Nicholson registered a touchdown. In the second quarter, Shadbolt got his second touchdown, while Locke garnered another point with a convert.

In the third quarter a further touchdown came to the visitors.

Bell on the Marmora squad, received an injury necessitating his retirement for the remainder of the game.

Marmora bravely endeavored to lower the margin in the last quarter but lacked the finishing efforts.

A tea dance was held in Deloro Hall for the rival teams at the conclusion of the game.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop and ma went to a party last nite, and this morning at breakfist ma said, Really, William, I meen really, I dont see how a man of your so called intelligence could of sat for a whole hour talking to that silly empty hedded woman in the blue flowered dress.

Oh, you meen Mrs. Pritchitt, pop said. You do her an injustice, my dear. She has an unusually keen sense of humor, he said, and ma said, Oh, unusual fiddlesticks. The whole time you were talking to her she never opened her mouth except to giggle like a Simple Simon, she said.

Exactly, my dear, pop said. She has that certain rare appriciation of humor, without which real wit would wither like a neglected flower, he said, and ma said, Oh my, what a touching tribute. I'd just like to hear a few examples of your matchless flow of wit, if you dont mind, she said.

With pleasure, my dear, pop said. Now let me think. You know how it is real, wit is difficult to recall. It's spontaneous and springs from the inspiration of the moment. Oh, yes, I remember one sparkling example. Somebody had just passed a plateful of those little thin cheese spreds, and I remarked, Pardon me, Mrs. Pritchitt, while I close my face on an open face sanwitch.

Now William, quite apart from the doubtful brilliance of the remark, those spreds weren't passed till the end of the evening, ma said, and pop said, Oh, really? Then I must of sprung that one on somebody elts. Give me another moment, I'm sure I can remember a really good one, he said.

Never mind, maybe you were rite about her after all, because whatever you said to her, she was just flattering your childish vanity with her silly giggles, and after all I suppose that does take a certain sense of humor, ma said.

Newsprint Now Being Quoted At Three Prices

Toronto, Oc[illegible] 31—CP—Users of Canadi[illegible]nt today have three pri[illegible] of them, the most mix[illegible]ce situation in the industry in years.

It started with the announcement Oct. 12 by Powell River Co. Ltd., big west coast producer, of a $10-a-ton increase effective Oct. 16. This meant a New York base price of $110 a ton, and a Canadian base price of $106.

Abitibi Power and Paper Co., Ltd., followed Oct. 17 with the same increase, effective Nov. 1, and the Great Lakes Paper Co. Ltd., St. Lawrence Paper Mills Co. Ltd., and Consolidated Paper Corporation Ltd., other big eastern producers, fell into line. Paper Company announced Oct. 26 a increase of $6 a ton, $4 less than the others.

Yesterday Abitibi took cognizance of this and stated:

"To avoid a period of uncertainty and confusion we have decided to meet this reduction without delay." nevertheless:

"We believe that our previously announced increase of $10 was in the best interests of consumers of newsprint as well as our own. It is needed to meet increasing costs and thus to encourage further expansion of the supply. We do not believe that the increase of $6 will be adequate to accomplish this purpose."

Other companies made no comment yesterday.

So consumers have before them before them three prices: $110 fgrom the Geat Lakes, St. Lawrence and Powell River; $106 from International and Abitibi; and $100 from companies which as yet have announced no change.

Reached High in 1920

Newsprint prices reached a high of $112.60 in 1920, and dropped to $40 in 1934-35 with most companies in difficulties. It was up to $50 in 1938-42, and postwar increases have included $74 to $84 in 1946, up to $90 in 1947, $96 in 1948 and $100 in mid-1949.

Canadian production is up more than 5,000,000 tons yearly, of which more than 80 per cent goes to the United States.

Canadian International is the biggest Canadian producer; Consolidated second; Abitibi third; St. Lawrence seventh; Powell River eighth; Great Lakes eleventh. Among them they account for more than half of Canadian production.

Following the Powell River and Abitibi original announcements of $10 increases Cranston Williams, General manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, commented:

"There is a limit to the amount of money a newspaper can pay and stay in business."

The industry, on the other hand, has maintained that newsprint is about the only commodity selling below 1920 prices, and that the increases have been necessary to take care of the increased costs and to keep the industry on a sound basis.

Churchill War History Calls Dieppe Raid Mine of Experience

Montreal, Oct. 30—(CP)— Results of the August, 1942, raid on Dieppe were disappointing and costly, but the operation proved a "mine of experience" and the sacrifice of Canadian troops was "not in vain", in the opinion of Winston Churchill.

The wartime British Prime Minister's views are set forth in his war history appearing in the Montreal Standard, a section this week devoted to Dieppe.

The raid was primarily a Canadian show. In it were 5,000 Canadian troops, some United States Rangers and Royal Marine Commandos and a few free French troops. All were under Maj.-Gen. J. H. Roberts of Kingston, Ont.

Bad weather interfered with the first planned operation—for July 4—and Gen. Montgomery, commander-in-chief of the southern command, thought the operation should not be remounted as the troops, embarked in the Isle of Wight, had dispersed ashore.

But Churchill considered it "most important that a large-scale operation should take place this summer, and the chief of the Imperial General Staff stated that until an operation on that scale was undertaken, no responsible general would take the responsibility of planning for the main invasion."

Churchill says that in discussion with Admiral Mountbatten, the chief of combined operations, it became clear that time did not permit of a new large-scale operation during the summer, but Dieppe could be remounted within a month. The code name was changed from rutter to jubilee.

Not Top Factor

No substantial change was suggested beyond substituting commandos for airborne troops to silence coastal batteries. Two more infantry landing ships had become available to carry the commandos. Omission of airborne troops meant that bad weather would not be top factor.

The Germans had no special warning through leakages, but their general estimate of the threat to the Dieppe sector "led to an intensification of defence measures along the whole front" especially during periods when moon and tide were favorable for landings.

"The Canadian army in Britain had long been eager and impatient for action and the main part of the landing force was provided by them," says Churchill.

"Although the utmost gallantry and devotion were shown by all the troops and by the British commandos and by the landing-craft and their escorts, and many splendid deeds were done, the results were disappointing and our casualties were very heavy.

"In the Canadian 2nd Division 18 per cent of the 5,000 men embarked lost their lives and nearly 2,000 of them were taken prisoner.

"Looking back, the casualties of this memoarble action bay seem out of portion to the results. It would be wrong to judge the episode solely by such a standard. . . It was a costly but not unfruitful reconnaisance in force. Tactically it was a mine of experience."

Farquhar Oliver May Run Again For Leadership

Mount Brydges, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP)—Farquhar Oliver, veteran Liberal member of the Ontario legislature, said Monday night he hasn't decided yet whether he will seek to regain the provincial party leadership he gave up last year.

After addressing the annual meeting of the South Middlesex Liberal Association in this village 14 miles southwest of London, Mr. Oliver told reporters he will know in a day or two whether he will be a candidate.

A convention to choose a party leader has been called for Toronto Nov. 9-10. Several prominent Liberals have announced they will seek the job.

In his address, Mr. Oliver defended his action in resigning from the leadership and predicted Premier Frost's government would call an election in 1951.

He said he acted in a democratic manner and thought it was a good thing for the party to call a convention to weld together a platform and select a leader.

C. C. Calder, legislature member for London, also addressed the meeting and denied reports, which he said originated in Toronto, that he would withdraw from the leadership race.

"I'll be there until the last ballots are counted," he said.

Among Nobel Winners

Two American doctors and a Swiss professor were awarded the Nobel Prize for physiology and medicine in Stockholm. The joint award went to Dr. Philip S. Hench, above, and Dr. Edward C. Kendall, both of Rochester, Minn., and Professor Tadeus Reichstein of Switzerland. On Sept. 20, 1948, a team of medical research workers, headed by Dr. Hench, made a dramatic test on a woman suffering from rheumatoid arthritis that may go down in medical history. They used cortisone by injection and after eight days the sufferer appeared greatly improved. — Central Press Canadian.

Brakeman Killed As Freight Plows Into Local Train

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 31 (CP) — A westbound C.N.R. freight smashed into a local here last night, killing one man and piling wrecked freight cars up for hundreds of yards.

Almost instantly killed when a box car fell on him was a man believed to be Jack or Raymond Valentine, 26, of Hamilton, a brakeman on local 415, one of the trains involved in the collision.

The local was coming out of a siding onto the main line when the through freight, bound for Sarnia, plowed into it.

Valentine was standing beside the local with another brakeman, Carman Norris, just before the crash. Norris said he saw the light of the freight and yelled "hey Val, we'd better start running." Norris said he headed across the coal pile but Valentine didn't get away in time. Workmen dug for two hours beneath the overturned box car before Valentine's body was recovered.

The twisted tracks were torn up and huge wheels were scattered about as if by a giant hand. The engine of 491 struck just behind the first car of local 415 and scattered the remaining 10 or 12 cars all over the two-line track.

No Traffic on Street

Three box cars were piled almost end on end with one rolling down a steep embankment; another rolled off the trestle over Butler Street and smashed to the pavement some 30 or 50 feet below. There was no traffic on the street at the time.

The wreck happened three blocks west of the C.N.R. station, immediately behind a mill. The metal loading shed was shattered by the leaping box cars, although it was some 10 to 15 feet away.

The through-freight contained 63 box cars.

Conductor of the through train was U. J. Elliott of Sarnia. Engineer was John Jackson, also of Sarnia, firemen H. Dunford, Sarnia and brakeman J. R. Westgate and U. G. Scott, all of Sarnia.

The engineer on local 415 was Luke Camden, Hamilton. Conductor was Wilfred Earl Burke, Kennedy Street, Brantford. The fireman was Thomas A. Graham, also Hamilton.

The main line of the C.N.R. was completely blocked and traffic re-routed through Stratford.

C.N.R. police officials were on hand about an hour or so after the crash. A complete investigation has been launched. An inquest will likely be held.

Provides Big Target

The demand for permanent power to regulate the country's economy by decree will provide the Conservatives with one of their big targets. The Conservatives have called such proposals the first step toward a police state.

Although the Conservatives have oposed all kinds of nationalization, it is considered unlikely they will try to make much of a case against the government move to put the sugar-beet industry under state control. The industry already is operated by a government-subsidized monopoly established by a pre-war Conservative government.

Once More Troubled

The Throne Speech said that despite "untiring" efforts by the British peoples and their allies toward the "attainment of enduring world peace. . .the world is once more troubled with the menace of war."

"The avoidance of war remains the supreme desire of my ministers, and under this new peril they will seek by all means in their power to ensure the success of the measures for rearmament which they have taken," the Speech declared, continuing:

"The necesasry increases in production for defence will call for further efforts and sacrifices but I am confident that the unfailing support of all my loyal subjects, the nation will be enbled to play its full part in the defence of freedom and the preservation of peace."

Although the rearmament program "will make heavy demands upon the nation," The Throne Speech said the government will continue "to give high priority to housing and will maintain the essentials of their social policy."

Pledges Co-operation

The speech also included a pledge of continued co-operation with the signers of the North Atlantic and Brussels Treaties "to strengthen the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, to improve the defence of the North Atlantic area and thus achieve security against attack."

Of Korea, where forces, "for the first time under the flag of the United Nations, are overcoming the invaders," the speech said "the success of this historic action . . marks a decisive moment in world affairs and is arousing fresh hopes of achieving a united, free and democratic Korea."

"It has already given proof of the ability of the United Nations to meet a threat of world peace," he added.

The government, the speech said, "also support strongly" specialized U.N. agencies seeking to improve living standards in "inpoverished or backward countries." Consulting with the Commonwealth governments, it added, the government would further plans for "promoting the economic development of South and Southeast Asia."

Heroic Saboteur Now Man in Blue

Toronto — (CP) — Len Thorne is the fellow who appeared in France one day before D-Day in the middle of a group of SS troops greeting Generals Rommel and Von Runstedt. He joined them and was taking photographs of the generals and the troops when someone got suspicious and began asking questions.

He was taken prisoner but later escaped, with the help of the Maquis. (French underground.)

A demolition expert with the Royal Canadian Engineers, Thorne started his in-again, out-again life as a saboteur in Europe after the fall of France. With other members of his unit, he was posted to train saboteurs in the Maquis.

The little international group worked together so well that they were attached to various British and French commandos and made many trips to France and other occupied countries.

Pre-Dieppe Raid

Their first big assignment was just before Dieppe. They went in and blew up gun emplacements and communications six hours before the main raid.

After several more trips into Europe by submarine and boat, Thorne was posted back to the Canadian Army, in the photography, processing and observation group. It was during this period that he "met" Rommel and Von Runstedt.

He was captured again shortly afterwards in another foray. This time he was put to work in a labor camp, repairing roads which he and his comrades had persuaded French farmers to plow over the previous night.

Len's usual equipment reflected the two outfits he worked with. He carried pocketsful of explosives and a tiny camera strapped under his arm.

The soft-speaking man is back in uniform again — pounding a beat in suburban Port Credit as a rookie policeman.

Nature Man 80 Looks Half Age

Collingwood, Ont., (CP)—He's 80, looks 40 and expects to reach 110.

That's "Man of Nature" Alfred Staples who lives on a spartan diet, walked 15 miles recently on his 80th birthday, married three times, has five children and says everybody could be healthy and free from disease if they would only life as nature intended.

He said in an interview he had never been ill in his life and 30 years from now still expects to be fit and active. He has studied "nature" for the last 60 years.

His day starts at 6 a.m., with a cold bath in a big tube in his backyard. He dries himself with his hands and never uses soap. Three glasses of water are taken before breakfast and he "chews every mouthful of water."

Breakfast consists of a cereal mixed by himself, containing wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax seed. Then comes a boiled egg, a slice of brown bread and a generous helping of fresh fruit. For lunch there are raw vegetables and soup. Supper is a boiled egg and more cereal.

He wears light clothing winter and summer. When it rains he wears a topcoat to protect his suit.

Once, 15 years ago, he outlasted his pet dog on a two-weeks' sojourn in below-zero January weather on Blue Mountain. With the temperature dropping to 15 below, the dog gave up on the third day and left the out-door camp. Doctors proclaimed Staples fitter at the end of two weeks than when he started.

BOOST ICE CREAM

Oslo, (CP)—An exhibition to persuade Norwegians to eat more ice cream was held here. Speakers said annual consumption in Norway is under two quarts per capita, compared with nearly 20 quarts in the United States.

I Hear Adventure Calling

By Emilie Loring

"I'm going out Nat," he announced [illegible] the threshold of the [illegible]. His sister, sitt[illegible] knitting, looked [illegible] laughed.

"[illegible] glad. You really should do something about relieving Fran Phillip's mind about that debt."

"Do you believe that yarn of Gene's?"

"I do not. Before I met Miss Phillips today I heard quite a little about her background, and the sterling New England qualities of the aunt with whom she lived. I noticed her lovely ring. It is choice, but even as an antique I don't believe it cost a thousand dollars if it did; she was horribly cheated. Whatever develops, remember that Gene Sargent know the first letter of the word 'loyalty.' How shall I explain your absence to that date you are expecting?"

"Entertain him yourself, you know more of Maine politics than I." He broke his own speed record to the garage, whistling thoughtfully,

Nita, Juanita,
Lean thou on my heart.

Myles knocked on the door of the gallery ell. A loud radioed voice inside stopped in the middle of a word. Through the window he saw the white Persian cat, Missy Snow, leap from Lemuel Digby's lap, saw him thrust his white-stockinged feet into moccasins, saw his round faced wife hold the navy-blue sock she was knitting suspended as her eyes followed the gangling figure of her husband across the room. A key clicked. The door opened a crack.

"Who is it?"

"Open up, Dig. I've come to say 'Hello.'"

The door was flung wide. Two gnarled work-worn hands seized Myle's shoulders.

"It's the boy, Betsy," Digby called. "Come in. Come in, we heard you was home."

His wife jumped to her feet in such haste that the chair in which she had been rocking lurched backward to the floor. Her crisp red and white striped cotton frock crackled with starch as hurried forward."

"Myles, Myles, you're a sight for sore eyes, lad." He bent and kissed her rosy cheek down which a tear was rolling.

"Nothing sore about your eyes, Betsy Dig, they are sparkling like diamonds."

"Sure, an'you're the same lad, war hasn't changed you none." Her laugh was comfortably plump like her figure. "Always buttering me up when you came into the kitchen of Shore Acres for cookies. Those were the days. Sit down, Myles, sit down." He shook his head at the deep red plush-coverered chair she patted invitingly.

"Not that one, you'd have to use a jack to get me out." He righted the overturned rocker before he pulled a golden oak chair from before the golden oak desk and straddled it. He folded his arms on its straight back. Lem Digby slipped his large feet out of his moccasins, sank into the chair Myles had rejected, lighted his pipe and rested his head with its sparse gray hair against the ornate tidy on the back. In one leap the white cat landed in his lap. His wife resumed rocking and knitting.

"Come back to stay, Myles?" she inquired.

"For a while. Then I'm off to work in New York—unless I'm needed in the service."

"By mighty, you don't think there's going to be another war, do you?"

"Not if this country pulls itself together to rebuild the American way of life and keeps in fighting trim, Dig."

"I look at you sittin' tall, 'bout six foot two, ain't you?—and powerful lookin' for all you're lean as a racer, and it don't seem more'n a year or two since your father told me to take you shootin' for birds and teach you how to use a gun. You must have been about ten. That was all of twenty years ago."

"Just twenty-three, Lem. Time flies. I've kept count of his birthdays."

"Betsy's right, Myles. She keeps check on all the birthdays in town."

"Except my own." She chuckled. "Nat must be glad to have you back, Myles. She's been married a long time but I still can't think of her as Mrs. Andrews—Mrs. Jaffray Andrews she calls herself now. Lem and I were livin' at Shore Acres when she was born. She looks real peaked since she got her divorce. I suppose she still loves the skunk, some women are like that— as for me, I'd swish him in boilin' oil."

"By mighty, Betsy, you needn't fret. Life will take care of him, it has a way of givin' such fellas their comeuppance. We've read in this paper about your decorations and how you got 'em, Myles and the wife and me are terrible proud that we had a hand in raisin' you."

"You and the strap, Dig. Don't forget the strap. I won't if I live to be a hundred."

"The papers are saying that folks can live that long easy, Myles. You will, I—"

"Your father told me to make you mind, he hadn't the time," Lem Digby interrupted his wife's hopeful prophecy. "I guess the few whacks that Betsy and I laid on helped you become what the papers say you are, 'a military genius come back to be a stolid citizen.'"

"I hope the papers are right about the solid—" Was the sound Myles heard in the other part of the house Fran going out? He'd better wind up this visit. "Like this job, Dig?"

"It's all right, 'tain't like it was with your folks, though, but its enough for us to handle. Your pa fixed it in his will so we don't need to work unless we want to, but the papers are saying that it's a dangerous thing for a man to retire an'have nothin' to do, with no interests he's apt to die or have to reckon with senile dementia—I don't know what that is, but it sounds terrible. I take care of these grounds, watch out for trespassers here, an'on the beach—them Sargents like privacy. Silas Pond comes on at night daytimes he's out in his fishin' boat with the phonograph goin,' for company. Betsy takes care of the inside and keeps it shinin.' She likes it fine."

"Sure, I like it." Mrs. Digby stopped rocking and knitting. She ran a long steel needle back and forth through her snow-white hair as she talked. "I like taking care of the pretty things, there are some real fine pieces of crockery. Now that you are back from the war whole, Myles, and I have the girl to fuss over an' my flower border inside the stone wall is doin' fine, there isn't another thing in the world I want." She resumed knitting.

"What girl?"

"She means the assistant in the gallery." Lem Digby paused to empty and refill his pipe. "You see, we never had children of our own. While Betsy had you and Nat to mother, it wasn't so bad; when you both went away for your education we was kinder lonesome."

"She's such a pretty girl," his wife contributed eagerly.

Myles thoughtfully drew a silver cigaret case from his pocket and as thoughtfully replaced it.

"Betsy, Ill lay my cards on the table. I'm interested in that girl."

Mrs. Digby's knitting dropped to her lap. She clasped her hands.

"Is she the girl you're going to marry, Myles? She's Miss Right for you."

"By-mighty, Betsy, you're goin' fast. How do you know she's right for him? She ain't been living here for much over two days."

"Get along with you Lem. Hasn't she been working at the gallery for several weeks? And didn't she drop in here for tea with me some afternoons while she was livin' at Rocky Point? I read her cup for her once, she was real anxious. She asked 'Do you see many tears for me?"

"Did you?"

"You asked that as if you believed in them tea-grounds fortunes Myles."

"Some of the things Betsy has told me in the past came true, Dig. Did you see tears in her cup?"

"Not tears exactly, but trouble and danger—there was a black cloud of danger." The last word was a hoarse whisper that Myles recognized as part of her fortune-telling technique, nonetheless it sent a shiver along his nerves.

"Did you tell her of the danger?"

"Sure but I told her she'd come out of it all right and dandy."

"Of course there's danger living alone in that apartment above all those treasures." On his feet he swung the chair back to its place before the desk. "Is she there now?"

"Yes, but you needn't worry about her with Lem and me here, an' Silas Pond round nights. He isn't a fool if he does everlastingly chew gum."

"I want to see her. Show me the way."

"But Myles, she doesn't want callers. She told me that if any young man came to see her in the evening she wouldn't answer the bell, if he came around to this door I was to say she was out."

"But I'm not any young man, Betsy, I'm special." He laughed and linked his arm in hers. 'Come on, show me the way. I want to take her out to supper."

"Her supper is here ready for her when she wants it, all she has to do is ring and I'll take it up. She didn't want it early because she said Miss Gene was comin' to talk business with her."

"Business? Business?"

"I guess 'twas pretty important. I heard Miss Gene say 'I'm in a jam."

"A jam? Light breaks."

"Why didnt you phone her an' tell her you were goin' to take her to supper Myles?"

"Because, like General Blood and Guts Patton, I believe in the value of a surprise attack. Come on, Betsy."

"Think I ought to do it, Lem? She said she didn't want to see callers."

"She was thinkin' of someone else, most probable. Myles ain't one of them wolves you read about in the papers. If she doesn't want to see him she'll get out of it some way. Can't lead that girl round by the ear, no siree. I'm just waitin' to see the Sargents try, they've done it with each assistant. so far."

"Lem says its okay. Myles. We will go through the small gallery, usually I run up the stairs that lead from the kitchen. There is a landing halfway that has a bay window with a seat where I can stop and get my breath. I'm not so spry on stairs as I was at Shore Acres."

Mrs. Digby rolled up her knitting and pulled herself out of the tight-fitting rocker. She led the way through a hall and touched a switch which flooded the small gallery with light. From the floor above came the music of a violin and a girl's voice:

My young and foolish heart.

"Would you buy....TERM INSURANCE?"

"As a matter of fact, I bought a lot of Term Insurance from the London Life. However, as I began to get out of the woods financially, I changed it to permanent plans.

"Why?

"Well, I don't want my insurance to run out at a time when my need for it may still be as great, if not greater than ever.

—I want things arranged so that my family will never be without insurance protection.

—I want insurance funds for retirement in case I haven't 'made my fortune'.

—I want cash values in my policies in case of emergencies.

"In short, I want all the advantages of permanent insurance."

A wide range of policies, low cost, and a high type of counselling service are available to you when you deal with a London Life representative.

Aluminum plates give Bakery pies that "Homemade" flavour

An "Inside Story"

1. Baked in aluminum plates and bought in these same aluminum plates—that's why so many "over-the-counter" pies taste as good as the homemade kind.

2. Aluminum plates give you tender, thoroughly baked pies with the delicious juices all sealed in.

3. Aluminum plates mean no more broken pies for the baker . . . no more thick, soggy bottom crusts for you!

4. No other material is more "food-friendly" than aluminum. When you see aluminum on the outside of a food or a drink, there's an "inside story" of perfectly protected flavour, quality.

Hints to the Housewife

The natural minerals in foods and water sometimes leave a dark deposit on cooking utensils. It's easily removed from aluminum. Simply use a tablespoon of vinegar in boiling water.
